Preface

As the official handbook of the Federal Government, The United States Government Manual provides comprehensive information on the agencies of the legislative, judicial, and executive branches. The Manual also includes information on quasi-official agencies, international organizations in which the United States participates, and boards, committees, and commissions.

A typical agency description includes a list of principal officials, a summary statement of the agency's purpose and role in the Federal Government, a brief history of the agency, including its legislative or executive authority, a description of its programs and activities, and a "Sources of Information" section. This last section provides information on consumer activities, contracts and grants, employment, publications, and many other areas of public interest.

The 1986/87 Manual was prepared by the Presidential Documents and Legislative Division, Office of the Federal Register. Rachel L. Jefferies was Chief Editor, and Kimberly M. Ashworth and Cassandra R. Costley were Associate Editors.

THE FEDERAL REGISTER AND ITS SPECIAL EDITIONS

The Manual is published as a special edition of the Federal Register (see 1 CFR 9.1). Its focus is on programs and activities. Persons interested in detailed organizational structure, the regulatory documents of an agency, or Presidential documents should refer to the Federal Register or one of its other special editions, described below.

Issued each Federal working day, the Federal Register provides a uniform system for publishing Presidential documents, regulatory documents with general applicability and legal effect, proposed rules, notices, and documents required to be published by statute.

The Code of Federal Regulations is an annual codification of the general and permanent rules published in the Federal Register. The Code is divided into 50 titles that represent broad areas subject to Federal regulation. The Code is kept up to date by the individual issues of the Federal Register.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents serves as a timely, up-to-date reference source for the public policies and activities of the President. It contains the remarks, news conferences, messages, statements, and other Presidential material of a public nature issued by the White House during the week reported.

A companion publication to the Weekly Compilation is the Public Papers of the Presidents, which provides public Presidential documents and speeches in convenient book form. Volumes of the Public Papers have been published for every President since Herbert Hoover, with the exception of Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose papers were published privately.

OTHER OFFICE OF THE FEDERAL REGISTER PUBLICATIONS

The Office of the Federal Register publishes slip laws, which are pamphlet prints of each public and private law enacted by Congress. Slip laws are compiled annually as the United States Statutes at Large. The Statutes volumes contain all public and private laws and concurrent resolutions enacted during a session of Congress, reorganization plans, proposed and ratified amendments to the Constitution, and Presidential proclamations. Included with many of these documents are sidenotes, citations, and a guide to their legislative history.

The Codification of Presidential Proclamations and Executive Orders provides in one reference source proclamations and Executive orders with general applicability and continuing legal effect. The Codification is divided into 50 chapters representing broad subject areas. Incorporated into each codified document are all amendments that were in effect on the most recent revision date.

PUBLICATION AVAILABILITY

The publications of the Office of the Federal Register are available for sale from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402, and at Government Printing Office bookstores located in several major cities. The Federal Register and Code of Federal Regulations are available in microfiche form as well as bound paper copies. In addition, these publications are available to the public at designated Government depository libraries and many other libraries. For more information, see the "Sources of Information" section of the Government Printing Office's statement in this book.

The Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION of the thirteen united STATES OF AMERICA

WHEN in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.—We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,—That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.—He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.—He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.—He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.—He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.—He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.—He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.—He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.—He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.—He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.—He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harrass our people, and eat out their substance.—He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the Consent of our legislatures.—He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.—He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:—For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:—For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:—For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:—For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:—For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:—For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:—For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:—For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:—For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.—He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.—He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.—He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.—He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.—He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our Brittish brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.—

WE, THEREFORE, the REPRESENTATIVES of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally disolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do.—And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

The Constitution of the United States

We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

Article I

Section 1. All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2. The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age of twenty five Years, and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons. The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent Term of ten Years, in such Manner as they shall by Law direct. The Number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty Thousand, but each State shall have at Least one Representative; and until such enumerations shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to chuse three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New-York six, New jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue Writs of Election to fill such Vacancies.

The House of Representatives shall chuse their speaker and other Officers; and shall have the sole Power of Impeachment.

Section 3. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six Years; and each Senator shall have one Vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in Consequence of the first Election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three Classes. The Seats of the Senators of the first Class shall be vacated at the Expiration of the second Year, of the second Class at the Expiration of the fourth Year, and of the third Class at the Expiration of the sixth Year, so that one third may be chosen every second Year; and if Vacancies happen by Resignation, or otherwise, during the Recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary Appointments until the next Meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such Vacancies.

No Person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty Years, and been nine Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no Vote, unless they be equally divided.

The Senate shall chuse their other Officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the Absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the Office of President of the United States.

The Senate shall have the sole Power to try all Impeachments. When sitting for that Purpose, they shall be on Oath or Affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside: And no Person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two thirds of the Members present. Judgment in Cases of Impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from Office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any Office of honor, Trust or Profit under the United States: but the Party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to Indictment, Trial, Judgment and Punishment, according to law.

Section 4. The Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by Law make or alter such Regulations, except as to the Places of chusing Senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every Year, and such Meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by Law appoint a different Day.

Section 5. Each House shall be the Judge of the Elections, Returns and Qualifications of its own Members, and a Majority of each shall constitute a Quorum to do business; but a smaller Number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the Attendance of absent Members, in such Manner, and under such Penalties as each House may provide.

Each House may determine the Rules of its Proceedings, punish its Members for disorderly Behaviour, and, with the Concurrence of two thirds, expel a Member.

Each House shall keep a Journal of its Proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such Parts as may in their Judgment require Secrecy; and the yeas and Nays of the Members of either House on any question shall, at the Desire of one fifth of those Present, be entered on the Journal.

Neither House, during the Session of Congress, shall, without the Consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section 6. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a Compensation for their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all Cases, except Treason, Felony and Breach of the Peace, be privileged from Arrest during their Attendance at the Session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any Speech or Debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other Place.

No Senator or Representative shall, during the Time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil Office under the Authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the Emoluments whereof shall have been encreased during such time; and no Person holding any Office under the United States, shall be a Member of either House during his Continuance in Office.

Section 7. All Bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills.

Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a Law, be presented to the President of the United States; If he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his Objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such Reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent, together with the Objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a Law. But in all such Cases the Votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and Nays, and the Names of the Persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the Same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a Law.

Every Order, Resolution, or Vote to which the Concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of Adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the Same shall take Effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the Rules and Limitations prescribed in the Case of a Bill.

Section 8. The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

To borrow Money on the Credit of the United States;

To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;

To establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization, and uniform Laws on the subject of Bankruptcies throughout the United States;

To coin Money, regulate the Value thereof, and of foreign Coin, and fix the Standard of Weights and Measures;

To provide for the Punishment of counterfeiting the Securities and current Coin of the United States;

To establish Post Offices and post Roads;

To promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries;

To constitute Tribunals inferior to the supreme Court;

To define and punish Piracies and Felonies committed on the high Seas, and Offences against the Law of Nations;

To declare War, grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal, and make rules concerning Captures on Land and Water;

To raise and support Armies, but no Appropriation of Money to that Use shall be for a longer Term than two Years;

To provide and maintain a Navy;

To make rules for the Government and Regulation of the land and naval Forces;

To provide for calling forth the Militia to execute the Laws of the Union, suppress Insurrections and repel Invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining, the Militia, and for governing such Part of them as may be employed in the Service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively, the Appointment of the Officers, and the Authority of training the Militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress;

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square), as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings;—And

To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof.

Section 9. The Migration or Importation of such Persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the Year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a Tax or duty may be imposed on such Importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each Person.

The Privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it.

No Bill of Attainder or ex post facto Law shall be passed.

No Capitation, or other direct, Tax shall be laid, unless in Proportion to the Census or Enumeration herein before directed to be taken.

No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State.

No Preference shall be given by any Regulation of Commerce or Revenue to the Ports of one State over those of another: nor shall Vessels bound to, or from, one State, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay Duties in another.

No money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law; and a regular Statement and Account of the Receipts and Expenditures of all public Money shall be published from time to time.

No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince, or foreign State.

Section 10. No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.

No State shall, without the Consent of the Congress, lay any Imposts or Duties on Imports or Exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing it's inspection Laws: and the net Produce of all Duties and Imposts, laid by any State on Imports or Exports, shall be for the Use of the Treasury of the United States; and all such Laws shall be subject to the Revision and Controul of the Congress.

No State shall, without the Consent of Congress, lay any Duty of Tonnage, keep Troops, or Ships of War in time of Peace, enter into any Agreement or Compact with another State, or with a foreign Power, or engage in War, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent Danger as will not admit of delay.

Article II

Section 1. The executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his Office during the Term of four Years, and, together with the Vice President, chosen for the same term, be elected, as follows

Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors, equal to the whole Number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no Senator or Representative, or Person holding an Office of Trust or Profit under the United States, shall be appointed an Elector.

The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by Ballot for two Persons, of whom one at least shall not be an Inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a List of all the Persons voted for, and of the Number of Votes for each; which List they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the Seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the Presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the Certificates, and the Votes shall then be counted. The Person having the greatest Number of Votes shall be the President, if such Number be a Majority of the whole Number of Electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such Majority, and have an equal Number of Votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately chuse by Ballot one of them for President: and if no Person have a Majority, then from the five highest on the List the said House shall in like Manner chuse the President. But in chusing the President, the Votes shall be taken by States, the Representation from each State having one Vote; A quorum for this Purpose shall consist of a Member or Members from two thirds of the States, and a Majority of all the States shall be necessary to a Choice. In every Case, after the Choice of the President, the Person having the greatest Number of Votes of the Electors shall be the Vice President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal Votes, the Senate shall chuse from them by Ballot the Vice President.

The Congress may determine the Time of chusing the Electors, and the Day on which they shall give their Votes; which Day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any Person be eligible to that Office who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United States.

In Case of the Removal of the President from Office, or of his Death, Resignation, or Inability to discharge the Powers and Duties of the said Office, the Same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by Law provide for the Case of Removal, Death, Resignation or Inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what Officer shall then act as President, and such Officer shall act accordingly, until the Disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

The President shall, at stated Times, receive for his Services, a Compensation, which shall neither be encreased nor diminished during the Period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that Period any other Emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath or Affirmation:—"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2. The President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the actual Service of the United States; he may require the Opinion, in writing, of the principal

Officer in each of the executive Departments, upon any Subject relating to the Duties of their respective Offices, and he shall have Power to grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offences against the United States, except in Cases of Impeachment.

He shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law: but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Departments.

The President shall have Power to fill up all Vacancies that may happen during the Recess of the Senate, by granting Commissions which shall expire at the End of their next Session.

Section 3. He shall from time to time give to the Congress Information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their Consideration such Measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary Occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in Case of Disagreement between them, with Respect to the Time of Adjournment, he may adjourn them to such Time as he shall think proper; he shall receive Ambassadors and other public Ministers; he shall take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed, and shall Commission all the Officers of the United States.

Section 4. The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other High Crimes and Misdemeanors.

Article III

Section 1. The judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The Judges, both of the supreme and inferior Courts, shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour, and shall, at stated Times, receive for their Services, a Compensation, which shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office.

Section 2. The judicial Power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority;—to all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls;—to all Cases of admiralty and maritime Jurisdiction;—to Controversies to which the United States shall be a Party;—to Controversies between two or more States; between a State and Citizens of another State;—between Citizens of different States;—between Citizens of the same State claiming Lands under Grants of different States, and between a State, or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects.

In all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, and those in which a State shall be Party, the supreme Court shall have original Jurisdiction. In all the other Cases before mentioned, the supreme Court shall have appellate Jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as the Congress shall make.

The Trial of all Crimes, except in Cases of Impeachment, shall be by Jury; and such Trial shall be held in the State where the said Crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the Trial shall be at such Place or Places as the Congress may by Law have directed.

Section 3. Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying War against them, or in adhering to their Enemies, giving them Aid and Comfort. No Person shall be convicted of Treason unless on the Testimony of two Witnesses to the same overt Act, or on Confession in open Court.

The Congress shall have Power to declare the Punishment of Treason, but no Attainder of Treason shall work Corruption of Blood, or Forfeiture except during the Life of the Person attainted.

Article IV

Section 1. Full Faith and Credit shall be given in each State to the public Acts, Records, and judicial Proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may by general Laws prescribe the Manner in which such Acts, Records and Proceedings shall be proved, and the Effect thereof.

Section 2. The Citizens of each State shall be entitled to all Privileges and Immunities of Citizens in the several States.

A Person charged in any State with Treason, Felony, or other Crime, who shall flee from Justice, and be found in another State, shall on Demand of the executive Authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having Jurisdiction of the Crime.

No person held to Service or Labour in one State, under the Laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in Consequence of any Law or Regulation therein, be discharged from such Service or Labour, but shall be delivered up on on Claim of the Party to whom such Service or Labour may be due.

Section 3. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the Jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the Junction of two or more States, or Parts of States, without the Consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress.

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section 4. The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against Invasion; and on Application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic Violence.

Article V

The Congress, whenever two thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or, on the Application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a Convention for proposing Amendments, which, in either Case, shall be valid to all Intents and Purposes, as Part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three fourths of the several States, or by Conventions in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other Mode of Ratification may be proposed by the Congress; Provided that no Amendment which may be made prior to the Year One thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any Manner affect the first and fourth Clauses in the Ninth Section of the first Article; and that no State, without its Consent, shall be deprived of its equal Suffrage in the Senate.

Article VI

All Debts contracted and Engagements entered into, before the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution, as under the Confederation.

This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding.

The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the Members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial Officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by Oath or Affirmation, to support this Constitution; but no religious Test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office or public Trust under the United States.

Article VII

The Ratification of the Conventions of nine States, shall be sufficient for the Establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the Same.

Amendments

(The first 10 Amendments were ratified December 15, 1791, and form what is known as the "Bill of Rights")

Amendment 1

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Amendment 2

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

Amendment 3

No Soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

Amendment 4

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

Amendment 5

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

Amendment 6

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

Amendment 7

In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

Amendment 8

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

Amendment 9

The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Amendment 10

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

(Ratified February 7, 1795)

The Judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or Subjects of any Foreign State.

(Ratified July 27, 1804)

The Electors shall meet in their respective states and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate;—The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted;—The person having the greatest number of votes for President, shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.—The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President, shall be the Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

(Ratified December 6, 1865)

Section 1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

Section 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

(Ratified July 9, 1868)

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Section 2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the Executive and Judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Section 3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

Section 4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

Section 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

(Ratified February 3, 1870)

Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Section 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

(Ratified February 3, 1913)

The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

(Ratified April 8, 1913)

The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures.

When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the legislature of any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

(Ratified January 16, 1919. Repealed December 5, 1933 by Amendment 21)

Section 1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Section 2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several States as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

(Ratified August 18, 1920)

The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

(Ratified January 23, 1933)

Section 1. The terms of the President and Vice President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the 3d day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

Section 2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the 3d day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 3. If, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President elect shall have died, the Vice President elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice President elect shall act as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President elect nor a Vice President elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a President or Vice President shall have qualified.

Section 4. The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

Section 5. Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article.

Section 6. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission.

(Ratified December 5, 1933)

Section 1. The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Section 2. The transportation or importation into any State, Territory, or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by conventions in the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

(Ratified February 27, 1951)

Section 1. No person shall be elected to the office of the President more than twice, and no person who has held the office of President, or acted as President, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected President shall be elected to the office of the President more than once. But this Article shall not apply to any person holding the office of President when this Article was proposed by the Congress, and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of President, or acting as President, during the term within which this Article becomes operative from holding the office of President or acting as President during the remainder of such term.

Section 2. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission to the States by the Congress.

(Ratified March 29, 1961)

Section 1. The District constituting the seat of Government of the United States shall appoint in such manner as the Congress may direct:

A number of electors of President and Vice President equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives in Congress to which the District would be entitled if it were a State, but in no event more than the least populous State; they shall be in addition to those appointed by the States, but they shall be considered, for the purposes of the election of President and Vice President, to be electors appointed by a State; and they shall meet in the District and perform such duties as provided by the twelfth article of amendment.

Section 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

(Ratified January 23, 1964)

Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote in any primary or other election for President or Vice President, for electors for President or Vice President, or for Senator or Representative in Congress, shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of failure to pay any poll tax or other tax.

Section 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Amendment 25

(Ratified February 10, 1967)

Section 1. In case of the removal of the President from office or of his death or resignation, the Vice President shall become President.

Section 2. Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress.

Section 3. Whenever the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that he is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, and until he transmits to them a written declaration to the contrary, such powers and duties shall be discharged by the Vice President as Acting President.

Section 4. Whenever the Vice President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive departments or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice President shall immediately assume the powers and duties of the office as Acting President.

Thereafter, when the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that no inability exists, he shall resume the powers and duties of his office unless the Vice President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive department or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit within four days to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office. Thereupon Congress shall decide the issue, assembling within forty-eight hours for that purpose if not in session. If the Congress, within twenty-one days after receipt of the latter written declaration, or, if Congress is not in session, within twenty-one days after Congress is required to assemble, determines by two-thirds vote of both Houses that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice President shall continue to discharge the same as Acting President; otherwise, the President shall resume the powers and duties of his office.

(Ratified July 1, 1971)

Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States, who are eighteen years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of age.

Section 2. The Congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

The Congress of the United States was created by Article I, section 1, of the Constitution, adopted by the Constitutional Convention on September 17, 1787, providing that "All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives."

The first Congress under the Constitution met on March 4, 1789, [1] in the Federal Hall in New York City. The membership then consisted of 20 [2] Senators and 59 Representatives.

The Senate is composed of 100 Members, 2 from each State, who are elected to serve for a term of 6 years. Senators were originally chosen by the State legislatures. This procedure was changed by the seventeenth amendment to the Constitution, adopted in 1913, which made the election of Senators a function of the people. There are three classes of Senators, and a new class is elected every 2 years.

[1] North Carolina did not ratify the Constitution until November 21, 1789; Rhode Island on May 29, 1790.

[2] New York ratified the Constitution on July 26, 1788, but did not elect its Senators until July 15 and 16, 1789.

The House of Representatives comprises 435 Representatives. The number representing each State is determined by population but every State is entitled to at least one Representative. Members are elected by the people for 2-year terms, all terms running for the same period.

Both the Senators and the Representatives must be residents of the State from which they are chosen. In addition, a Senator must be at least 30 years of age and must have been a citizen of the United States for at least 9 years; a Representative must be at least 25 years of age and must have been a citizen for at least 7 years.

A Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico (elected for a 4-year term) and Delegates from American Samoa, the District of Columbia, Guam, and the Virgin Islands complete the composition of the Congress of the United States. Delegates are elected for a term of 2 years. The Resident Commissioner and Delegates may take part in the floor discussions, but have no vote. They do vote in the committees to which they are assigned.

Officers The Vice President of the United States is the Presiding Officer of the Senate; in his absence the duties are taken over by a President pro tempore, elected by that body, or someone designated by him. The Presiding Officer of the House of Representatives, the Speaker, is elected by the House; he may designate any Member of the House to act in his absence.

The positions of Senate majority and minority leader have been in existence only since the early years of the 20th century. Leaders are elected at the beginning of each new Congress by a majority vote of the Senators in their political party. In cooperation with their party organizations, leaders are responsible for the design and achievement of a legislative program. This involves managing the flow of legislation, expediting noncontroversial measures, and keeping Members informed regarding proposed action on pending business. Each leader serves as an ex officio member of his party's policymaking and organizational bodies and is aided by an assistant floor leader (whip) and a party secretary.

The Secretary of the Senate, elected by vote of the Senate, performs the duties of the Presiding Officer of the Senate in the absence of the Vice President and pending the election of a President pro tempore. The Secretary is the custodian of the seal of the Senate, draws requisitions on the Secretary of the Treasury for moneys appropriated for the compensation of Senators, officers, and employees, and for the contingent expenses of the Senate, and is empowered to administer oaths to any officer of the Senate and to any witness produced before it. The Secretary's executive duties include certification of extracts from the Journal of the Senate; the attestation of bills and joint, concurrent, and Senate resolutions; in impeachment trials, issuance, under the authority of the Presiding Officer, of all orders, mandates, writs, and precepts authorized by the Senate; and certification to the President of the United States of the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification of treaties and the names of persons confirmed or rejected upon the nomination of the President.

The Sergeant at Arms of the Senate is elected by and serves as the Executive Officer of that body. He directs and supervises the various departments and facilities under his jurisdiction. He is also the Law Enforcement and Protocol Officer. As Law Enforcement Officer, he has statutory power to make arrests; to locate absentee Senators for a quorum; to enforce Senate rules and regulations as they pertain to the Senate Chamber, the Senate wing of the Capitol, and the Senate Office Buildings. He serves as a member of the Capitol Police Board and as its chairman each odd year; and, subject to the Presiding Officer, maintains order in the Senate Chamber. As Protocol Officer, he is responsible for many aspects of ceremonial functions, including the inauguration of the President of the United States; arranges funerals of Senators who die in office; escorts the President when he addresses a Joint Session of Congress or attends any function in the Senate; and escorts heads of state when they visit the Senate.

The Clerk of the House is the chief legislative, administrative, and budgetary officer of the U.S. House of Representatives. The Clerk is responsible for directing legislative activities of the House such as keeping the Journal, taking all votes, certifying passage of bills, and processing all legislation. The Clerk also prepares the budget for the House, disburses funds, and serves as the contracting officer of the House. In addition, the Clerk is the purchaser and provider of all furnishings, office equipment, and office supplies.

Committees The work of preparing and considering legislation is done largely by committees of both Houses of Congress. There are 16 standing committees in the Senate and 22 in the House of Representatives. The standing committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives are shown in the list below. In addition, there are special committees in each House, and various congressional commissions and joint committees composed of members of both Houses. Each House may also appoint special investigating committees.

The membership of the standing committees of each House is chosen by a vote of the entire body; members of other committees are appointed under the provisions of the measure establishing them.

Each bill and resolution is usually referred to the appropriate committee, which may report a bill out in its original form, favorably or unfavorably, recommend amendments, or allow the proposed legislation to die in committee without action.

Congressional Record Proceedings of Congress are published in the Congressional Record, which is issued when Congress is in session. Publication of the Record began March 4, 1873; it was the first series officially reported, printed, and published directly by the Federal Government. The Daily Digest of the Congressional Record, printed in the back of each issue of the Record, summarizes the proceedings of that day in each House, and before each of their committees and subcommittees, respectively. The Digest also presents the legislative program for each day and, at the end of the week, gives the program for the following week. Its publication was begun March 17, 1947.

Sessions Section 4 of Article I of the Constitution makes it mandatory that "The Congress shall assemble at least once in every Year." Under this provision, also, the date for convening Congress was designated originally as the first Monday in December, "unless they shall by Law appoint a different Day." Eighteen acts were passed, up to 1820, providing for the meeting of Congress on other days of the year. From 1820 to 1934, however, Congress met regularly on the first Monday in December. In 1934 the Twentieth Amendment changed the convening of Congress to January 3, unless Congress "shall by law appoint a different day." In addition, the President, according to Article II, section 3, of the Constitution "may, on extraordinary Occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in Case of Disagreement between them, with Respect to the Time of Adjournment, he may adjourn them to such Time as he shall think proper. . . ."

Powers of Congress Article I, section 8, of the Constitution defines the powers of Congress. Included are the powers to assess and collect taxes—called the chief power; to regulate commerce, both interstate and foreign; to coin money; to establish post offices and post roads; to establish courts inferior to the Supreme Court; to declare war; to raise and maintain an army and navy. Congress is further empowered "To provide for calling forth the Militia to execute the Laws of the Union, suppress Insurrections and repel Invasions;" and "To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof."

Amendments to the Constitution Another power vested in the Congress is the right to propose amendments to the Constitution, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary. Should two-thirds of the State legislatures demand changes in the Constitution, it is the duty of Congress to call a constitutional convention. Proposed amendments shall be valid as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures or by conventions of three-fourths of the States, as one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

Special Powers of the Senate Under the Constitution, the Senate is granted certain powers not accorded to the House of Representatives. The Senate approves or disapproves certain Presidential appointments by majority vote; and treaties must be concurred in by a two-thirds vote.

Special Powers of the House of Representatives The House of Representatives is granted the power of originating all bills for the raising of revenue.

Both Houses of Congress act in impeachment proceedings, which, according to the Constitution, may be instituted against the President, Vice President, and all civil officers of the United States. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment, and the Senate has the sole power to try impeachments.

Prohibitions upon Congress Section 9 of Article I of the Constitution also imposes prohibitions upon Congress: "The Privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it." A bill of attainder or an ex post facto law cannot be passed. No export duty can be imposed. Ports of one State cannot be given preference over those of another State. "No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law. . . ." No title of nobility may be granted.

Rights of Members According to section 6 of Article I, Members of Congress are granted certain privileges. In no case, except in treason, felony, and breach of the peace, can Members be arrested while attending sessions of Congress "and in going to and returning from the same." Furthermore, the Members cannot be questioned in any other place for remarks made in Congress. Each House may expel a Member of its body by a two-thirds vote.

Enactment of Laws All bills and joint resolutions must pass both the House of Representatives and the Senate and must be signed by the President, except those proposing a constitutional amendment, in order to become law, or be passed over the President's veto by a two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress. Section 7 of Article I states: "If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the Same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a Law." When a bill or joint resolution is introduced in the House, the procedure for its enactment into a law is as follows:

Assignment to House committee having jurisdiction;

If favorably considered, it is reported to the House either in its original form or with recommended amendments;

If the bill or resolution is passed by the House, it is messaged to the Senate and referred to the committee having jurisdiction;

In the Senate committee the bill, if favorably considered, may be reported in the form as received from the House, or with recommended amendments;

The approved bill or resolution is reported to the Senate, and if passed by that body, is returned to the House;

If one body does not accept the amendments to a bill by the other body, a conference committee comprised of Members of both bodies is usually appointed to effect a compromise;

When the bill or joint resolution is finally approved by both Houses, it is signed by the Speaker (or Speaker pro tempore) and the Vice President (or President pro tempore or acting President pro tempore) and is presented to the President;

Once the President's signature is affixed, the measure becomes a law. If the President vetoes the bill, it cannot become a law unless it is repassed by a two-thirds vote of both Houses.

Publications The Congressional Directory, the Senate Manual, and the House Rules and Manual may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402.

ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL

U.S. Capitol Building, Washington, DC 20515
Phone, 202-225-1200

George M. White Architect of the Capitol

The first Architect of the Capitol was appointed in 1793 by the President of the United States. During the period of the construction of the Capitol (1793–1865) appointments were made to the position of Architect at such times and for such periods as the various stages of the construction work required. The office of Architect has, however, been continuous from 1851 to date.

The functions of the office have changed materially through the years in accordance with the increased activities imposed upon it by Congress, due principally to the addition of new buildings and grounds. Originally, the duties of the Architect of the Capitol were to plan and construct the Capitol Building, and later, to supervise its care and maintenance.

Permanent authority for the care and maintenance of the Capitol Building is provided by the act of August 15, 1876 (19 Stat. 147; 40 U.S.C. 162-163). This act has been amended from time to time to provide for the care and maintenance of the additional buildings and grounds placed under the jurisdiction of the Architect of the Capitol by Congress in subsequent years.

The Architect of the Capitol, acting as an agent of Congress, is in charge of the structural and mechanical care of the United States Capitol Building and making arrangements with the proper authorities for ceremonies held in the building and on the grounds; is responsible for the care, maintenance, and improvement of the Capitol Grounds, comprising approximately 208.7 acres of landscaping, parks, streets, and parking; is responsible for the structural and mechanical care of the Library of Congress Buildings and the United States Supreme Court Building, and also for the operation of the United States Senate and House restaurant.

In addition to these activities, the Architect has the following duties and responsibilities:

Under the direction and approval of the House Office Building Commission, the structural, mechanical, and domestic care and maintenance of the House Office Buildings, including the maintenance and operation of the mechanical, electrical, and electronic equipment, and the care, maintenance, and operation of the Capitol Power Plant, which supplies heat and air-conditioning refrigeration for the Capitol, Senate and House Office Buildings, Library of Congress Buildings, and the United States Supreme Court Building; heat for the United States Botanic Garden and the Senate and House garages; and steam heat for the Government Printing Office, Washington City Post Office, and Union Station, and steam heat and chilled water for the Folger Shakespeare Library;

Subject to the approval of the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration as to matters of general policy, the structural, mechanical, and domestic care and maintenance of the Senate Office Buildings, including the maintenance and operation of the mechanical, electrical, and electronic equipment; and

The jurisdiction and control, including care and maintenance of the Senate garage, subject to such regulations respecting the use thereof as may be promulgated by the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.

The Architect of the Capitol is also charged with the planning and construction of such buildings as may be committed to his care by Congress from time to time. Current projects include extension, reconstruction, alteration, and improvement of the United States Capitol; construction and improvements under the additional House Office Building projects; and expansion, modification, and enlargement of the facilities of the Capitol Power Plant.

Under the direction and supervision of the Joint Committee on the Library, he serves as Acting Director of the United States Botanic Garden.

The Architect of the Capitol serves as a member of the Capitol Police Board, the Capitol Guide Board, the House Page Board, the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, the District of Columbia Zoning Commission, the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, the Art Advisory Committee to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, and Coordinator of Civil Defense for the Capitol group of buildings.

The purpose of the United States Botanic Garden is to collect, cultivate, and grow the various vegetable productions of this and other countries for exhibition and display to the public and for study material for students, scientists, and garden clubs.

The Botanic Garden contains a large variety of palms, cycads, ferns, cacti, orchids, and other miscellaneous tropical and subtropical plants, many of which are rare species. There are special displays during most of the months of the year, and in their proper seasons banana, papaya, orange, lemon, tangerine, kumquat, averrhoa, coffee, and surinam cherry are to be seen in luxuriant fruiting. The entire collection of the Garden includes over 10,000 species and varieties of plant growth. The collection attracts many visitors annually, including botanists, horticulturists, students, and garden club members.

The Garden, though not operated as a scientific institution, offers educational facilities in that it makes available for study to students, botanists, and floriculturists many rare and interesting botanical specimens. Every year botanical specimens are received from all over the world with requests for identification, and one of the services rendered by the Garden to the public is the identification of such specimens and the furnishing of information relating to the proper methods of growing them.

The United States Botanic Garden was founded in 1820 under the auspices of the Columbia Institute for the Promotion of Arts and Sciences, an organization that was the outgrowth of an association known as the Metropolitan Society and that received its charter from Congress on April 20, 1818. The Garden continued under the direction of this Institute until 1837, when the Institute ceased to exist as an active organization.

It remained abandoned until 1842 when it became necessary for the Government to provide accommodations for the botanical collections brought to Washington, DC, from the South Seas by the United States Exploring Expedition of 1838-42, under the leadership of Capt. Charles Wilkes. The collections were placed temporarily on exhibition at the Patent Office upon return of the expedition in June 1842. The first greenhouse for this purpose was constructed in 1842 on a lot behind the Patent Office Building under the direction and control of the Joint Committee of Congress on the Library, from funds appropriated by Congress.

The act of May 15, 1850 (9 Stat. 427), provided for the relocation of the Botanic Garden under the direction of the Joint Committee on the Library.

The site selected by the Joint Committee on the Library for the relocation of the Botanic Garden was on the Mall at the west end of the Capitol Grounds, practically the same site the Botanic Garden occupied during the period it functioned under the Columbia Institute.

This site was later enlarged, and the main area continued to serve as the principal Botanic Garden site from 1850 to 1933, when the Garden was relocated to its present site.

Although the Botanic Garden began functioning as a Government-owned institution in 1842, the records indicate that it was not until 1856 that the maintenance of the Garden was specifically placed under the direction of the Joint Committee on the Library, and a regular, annual appropriation was provided by Congress (11 Stat. 104).

At the present time the Joint Committee exercises its supervision through the Architect of the Capitol, who has been serving as Acting Director since 1934.

For further information concerning the United States Botanic Garden, contact the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, U.S. Capitol Building, Washington, DC 20515. Phone, 202-225-1200.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) was established by the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921 (96 Stat. 887; 31 U.S.C. 702), as an agency of Government independent of the executive departments for the purpose of providing an independent audit of Government agencies. Over the years, the Congress has expanded GAO's audit authority, added new responsibilities and duties, and taken steps to increase GAO's ability to perform independently through the adoption of the Government Corporation Control Act (96 Stat. 1041; 31 U.S.C. 9101 et seq.), the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 (96 Stat. 889; 31 U.S.C. 711 et seq.), the Accounting and Auditing Act of 1950 (96 Stat. 958; 31 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.), the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 (96 Stat. 913; 31 U.S.C. 1112), the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 298; 2 U.S.C. 621 note), the General Accounting Office Act of 1974 (96 Stat. 896; 31 U.S.C. 731), and other legislation.

The General Accounting Office is under the control and direction of the Comptroller General of the United States, appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of 15 years.

The General Accounting Office has the following basic purposes: to assist the Congress, its committees, and its Members in carrying out their legislative and oversight responsibilities, consistent with its role as an independent, nonpolitical agency in the legislative branch; to carry out legal, accounting, auditing, and claims settlement functions with respect to Federal Government programs and operations as assigned by the Congress; and to make recommendations designed to provide for more efficient and effective Government operations.

Special Assistance to the Congress
The General Accounting Office directly assists the Congress, its committees, Members, and officers on request. This assistance can be in any of the following forms:

Legislation may be enacted directing GAO to examine a specific matter; special audits, surveys, and reviews may be performed for the committees, Members, or officers of Congress; professional staff members may be assigned to assist committees in conducting studies and investigations; the Comptroller General or his representatives may testify before committees on matters considered to be within the special competence of GAO; and committees or Members may request comments on or assistance in drafting proposed legislation or other advice in legal and legislative matters.

Further, GAO responds to numerous requests from congressional sources for information relating to or resulting from its work and provides advice on congressional, administrative, and financial operations.

In addition, GAO assists congressional committees in developing statements of legislative objectives and goals and methods for assessing and reporting actual program performance; assists such committees in analyzing and assessing Federal agency program reviews and evaluation studies; develops and recommends methods for review and evaluation of Government programs; conducts a continuing program to identify needs of committees and Members of Congress for fiscal, budgetary, and program-related information; assists congressional committees in developing their information needs; monitors recurring reporting requirements of the Congress; assists committees and Members to obtain information from such sources and to appraise and analyze it; reviews and reports to the Congress on deferrals and rescissions of budget authority proposed by the President; and brings suit, where necessary, to ensure the availability for obligation of budget authority.

Energy Data Verification Under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6201 et seq.), approved December 22, 1975, the Comptroller General is empowered to conduct verification examinations of energy-related information developed by private business concerns if asked by any committee having legislative or oversight responsibilities for energy matters. For the purpose of carrying out this authority, the Comptroller General may issue subpoenas, require written answers to interrogatories, administer oaths, inspect business premises and inspect and copy specified books and records. Certain enforcement powers are provided, including for some types of noncompliance the power to assess civil penalties and to collect such penalties through civil action.

Auditing The audit authority of the General Accounting Office generally extends to all Federal departments and agencies. Exceptions to this audit authority relate principally to funds relating to certain intelligence activities.

Where audit authority exists, GAO has the right of access to, and examination of, any books, documents, papers, or records of the departments and agencies. The law provides that departments and agencies furnish to the Comptroller General such information as he may require including that related to their powers, duties, activities, organization, financial transactions, and methods of business.

The General Accounting Office has statutory authority to investigate all matters relating to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds. In addition, GAO's audit authority covers wholly and partially owned Government corporations and certain nonappropriated-fund activities. By law, it is authorized and directed to make expenditure analyses of executive agencies to enable the Congress to determine whether public funds are efficiently and economically administered and expended; and to review and evaluate the results of existing Government programs and activities.

The scope of the audit work of GAO extends not only to the programs and activities that the Federal Government conducts but also to the activities of State and local governments, quasi-governmental bodies, and private organizations in their capacity as recipients under, or administrators for, Federal aid programs financed by loans, advances, grants, and contributions. The interest of GAO also extends to certain activities of those having negotiated contracts with the Government.

GAO's audit activities also include examining and settling accounts of the Federal Government's certifying, disbursing, and collection officers, including determinations involving accountability for improper or illegal expenditures of public funds. Balances certified by the Comptroller General are binding on the executive branch; however, any settled account can be reviewed on motion by the Comptroller General or other interested party.

In its audit work, GAO makes recommendations for greater economy and efficiency in Government operations and for improving the effectiveness of Government programs. Within this audit authority is a responsibility to report significant matters to the Congress for information and use in carrying out its legislative and executive branch surveillance functions.

Accounting The Comptroller General has the following responsibilities with respect to the accounting systems of Federal agencies:

Prescribes accounting principles, standards, and related requirements to be followed by the agencies;

Cooperates with Federal agencies in developing their accounting systems;

Approves agency accounting systems when they are deemed adequate and meet prescribed principles, standards, and related requirements;

Reviews from time to time agency accounting systems in operation; and Conducts, jointly with the Office of Management and Budget and the Department of the Treasury, a continuous program to improve accounting and financial reporting in the Federal Government and monitors and reports on implementation of the Financial Integrity Act.

By law, the Comptroller General cooperates with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget in developing for use by all Federal agencies standardized information and data processing systems and also standard terminology, definitions, classifications, and codes for Federal fiscal, budgetary, and program-related data and information.

Legal Services and Decisions The legal work of the General Accounting Office is centered at the headquarters office in its Office of the General Counsel.

So far as most Federal departments and agencies are concerned, the Comptroller General makes final determinations as to the legality of actions taken by them with regard to accounting for the use of public funds. These determinations are made in connection with actions already taken and on an advance basis upon request by certain responsible officers of the Government. Decisions of the Comptroller General concerning the legality of payments may arise from the audit work of GAO or may be applied for by the heads of departments or agencies, by certifying and disbursing officers with regard to payments to be made, or as a result of congressional inquiries.

The Comptroller General also considers questions that arise in connection with the award of Government contracts and certain contracts under Government grants. Statutory and regulatory procedures precisely define the manner in which these Government awards are to be made, and those competing for such awards who believe that requirements have not been met in any particular instance may apply to the Comptroller General for a determination.

The legal work of GAO also covers a wide range of advisory services to the Congress, its committees, and Members with respect to the legal effect of statutory provisions and implications of proposed legislation as well as assistance in drafting legislation; to the Department of Justice primarily in the form of litigation reports on court cases generated by or related to the work of GAO; and to the courts in connection with cases involving the award of Government contracts. In addition, there is daily coordination between the staff of the Office of the General Counsel and the audit and operating staffs with regard to the legal consequences of issues raised in the course of reviews of Government activities.

Claims Settlement and Debt Collection The General Accounting Office settles claims by and against the United States as required by law. Claims may involve individuals; business entities; or foreign, State, and municipal governments as claimant or debtor. Settlement of these claims by GAO is binding upon executive agencies. However, the Comptroller General may review any settled claim on his own initiative or at the request of an interested party. Claimants and debtors have further recourse to the Congress or to the courts.

Where an administrative agency has been unable to collect a debt owed the Government (or has not been successful in compromising it if under $20,000), the debt is certified to GAO as uncollectable. After determining the amount due the United States, GAO superintends its recovery and ultimately makes final settlement and adjustment.

Rules, Regulations, and Decisions The Comptroller General makes such rules and regulations as deemed necessary for carrying on the work of the General Accounting Office, including those for the admission of attorneys to practice before it.

The Comptroller General is required by law (96 Stat. 897; 31 U.S.C. 732) to establish an independent personnel management system for employees of GAO. The system is not subject to the regulation or oversight of executive agencies. Employee rights, such as appeals from adverse actions, are protected by a GAO Personnel Appeals Board.

GAO's "Policy and Procedures Manual for Guidance of Federal Agencies" is the official medium through which the Comptroller General promulgates principles, standards, and related requirements for accounting to be observed by the Federal agencies; uniform procedures for use by Federal agencies; and regulations governing the relationships of GAO with other Federal agencies and with individuals and private concerns doing business with the Government.

All decisions of the Comptroller General of general import are published in monthly pamphlets and in annual volumes.

GAO Reports As required by law a list of GAO reports issued or released during the previous month is furnished monthly to Congress, its committees, and its Members.

Copies of GAO reports are provided without charge to Members of Congress and congressional committee staff members; officials of Federal, State, local, and foreign governments; members of the press; college libraries, faculty members, and students; and nonprofit organizations.

Copies of unclassified reports are available from the General Accounting Office, Document Handling and Information Services Facility, P.O. Box 6015, Gaithersburg, MD 20760. Phone, 202-275-6241.

The Government Printing Office (GPO) began operations in accordance with Congressional Joint Resolution 25 of June 23, 1860. The activities of the Government Printing Office are outlined and defined in the act of October 22, 1968, as amended (82 Stat. 1238; 44 U.S.C. 101 et seq.).

The congressional Joint Committee on Printing serves in an oversight capacity for the Government Printing Office. The Public Printer, who serves as the head of the agency, is required by law to be a practical printer versed in the art of bookbinding and is appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Activities

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing and binding placed by Congress and the departments and establishments of the Federal Government. It furnishes blank paper, inks, and similar supplies to all governmental activities on order. It prepares catalogs and distributes and sells Government publications.

GPO invites bids from commercial suppliers on a wide variety of printing and binding services, awards and administers contracts, and maintains liaison between ordering agencies and contractors.

Printing and binding processes used are electronic photocomposition; linotype and hand composition; letterpress printing and photopolymer platemaking; offset photography, stripping, platemaking, and press; and manual and machine bookbinding.

GPO sells through mail orders and Government bookstores approximately 16,000 different publications that originate in various Government agencies and administers the depository library program through which selected Government publications are made available in libraries throughout the country.

The Library of Congress was established under the law approved April 24, 1800, appropriating $5,000 "for the purchase of such books as may be necessary for the use of Congress" (2 Stat. 56). The Library's scope of responsibility has been widened by subsequent legislation (2 U.S.C. 131-168d). The Librarian, appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, directs the Library.

Supported mainly by the appropriations of Congress, the Library also has the use of the income from funds received from foundations and other private sources and administered by the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board; it has the use also of gifts of money presented for direct application (2 U.S.C. 154–163).

Under the organic law, the Library's first responsibility is service to Congress. One department, the Congressional Research Service, functions exclusively for the legislative branch of the Government. As the Library has developed, its range of service has come to include the entire governmental establishment in all its branches and the public at large, so that it has become a national library for the United States.

Functions and Activities

Collections The Library's extensive collections are universal in scope. They include books and pamphlets on every subject and in a multitude of languages. Among them are the most comprehensive collections of Chinese, Japanese, and Russian language books outside Asia and the Soviet Union; volumes relating to science and legal materials outstanding for American and foreign law; the world's largest collection of published aeronautical literature; and the most extensive collection in the Western Hemisphere of books printed before 1501 A.D.

The manuscript collections relate to manifold aspects of American history and civilization and include the personal papers of most of the Presidents from George Washington through Calvin Coolidge. The music collections contain volumes and pieces—manuscript and published—from classic works to the newest popular compositions. Other materials available for research include maps and views; photographic records from the daguerreotype to the latest news photo; recordings, including folksongs and other music, speeches, and poetry readings; prints, drawings, and posters; government documents, newspapers, and periodicals from all over the world; and motion pictures, microforms, and audio and video tapes.

Reference Resources Admission to the various research facilities of the Library is free. No introduction or credentials are required for persons over high school age who wish to read in the general reading rooms; however, certain collections, like those of the Manuscript, Rare Book and Special Collections, and Motion Picture, Broadcasting and Recorded Sound Divisions, can be used only by those with a serious purpose for doing so. As demands for service to Congress and Federal Goverment agencies permit, limited reference service is available through correspondence. The Library must, however, decline some requests with the suggestion that a library within the correspondent's area can provide satisfactory assistance. While priority is given to inquiries pertaining to its holdings of special materials or to subjects in which its resources are unique, the Library does attempt to provide helpful responses to all inquirers.

Copyrights Since 1870 the Library has been responsible for copyrights, which are now registered by the Copyright Office (acts of July 8, 1870 (16 Stat. 212–217), February 19, 1897 (29 Stat. 545), March 4, 1909, as codified and amended, and October 19, 1976 (90 Stat. 2541)). All copyrightable works, whether published or unpublished, are subject to a system of statutory protection that gives the copyright owner certain exclusive rights, including the right to reproduce the copyrighted work in copies or phonorecords and distribute them to the public by sale, rental, lease, or lending. Works of authorship include books, periodicals, and other literary works, musical compositions, song lyrics, dramas and dramatico-musical compositions, pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works, pantomimes and choreographic works, motion pictures and other audiovisual works, and sound recordings.

Extension of Service The Library extends its service through an interlibrary loan system; the photoduplication, at reasonable cost, subject to conditions of law, copyright, and deposit of books, manuscripts, maps, newspapers, and prints in its collections; the sale of sound recordings, which are released by its Recording Laboratory; the exchange of duplicates with other institutions; the sale of printed catalog cards and magnetic tapes and the publication in book format or microform of cumulative catalogs, which make available the results of the expert bibliographical and cataloging work of its technical personnel; a centralized cataloging program whereby the Library of Congress acquires material published all over the world, catalogs it promptly, and distributes cataloging information in machine-readable form as well as by printed cards and other means to the Nation's libraries; a cooperative cataloging program (NACO) whereby cataloging of data by name authority and bibliographic records, prepared by other libraries, becomes part of the Library of Congress data base and is distributed through the MARC Distribution Service; a cataloging-in-publication program in cooperation with American publishers for printing cataloging information in current books; the National Serials Data Program, the national center that maintains a record of serial titles to which International Standard Serial Numbers (ISSN) have been assigned and serves, with this file, as the United States Register; and the development of general schemes of classification (Library of Congress and Dewey Decimal), subject headings, and cataloging, embracing the entire field of printed matter.

Furthermore, the Library provides for the preparation of bibliographical lists responsive to the needs of Government and research; the maintenance and the publication of The National Union Catalogs and other cooperative publications; the publication of catalogs, bibliographical guides, and lists, and of texts of original manuscripts and rare books in the Library of Congress; the circulation in traveling exhibits of items from the Library's collections; and the provision of books in raised type and "talking book" records, as well as books on tape, for the blind and the physically handicapped through 159 cooperating libraries throughout the United States.

American Folklife Center The American Folklife Center in the Library of Congress, established by the American Folklife Preservation Act (89 Stat 1129; 20 U.S.C. 2101 et seq.), approved January 2, 1976, has a coordinative function both in and outside the Federal Establishment to carry out appropriate programs to support, preserve, and present American folklife through such activities as the collection and maintenance of archives, scholarly research, field projects, performances, exhibitions, festivals, workshops, publications, and audiovisual presentations. The Center is directed by a Board of Trustees consisting of four members appointed by the President from Federal agencies, four each appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House from private life, and five ex officio members: the Librarian of Congress, the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, the Chairmen of the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities, and the Director of the Center.

The Center has conducted a number of projects in many locations across the country, such as the ethnic communities of Chicago, IL; southern Georgia; a ranching community in northern Nevada; the Blue Ridge Parkway in southern Virginia and northern North Carolina; and the States of Rhode Island and Montana. The projects have provided large collections of recordings and photographs, which are being incorporated into the Library's collections. The Center administers the Federal Cylinder Project, which is charged with preserving and disseminating music and oral traditions recorded on wax cylinders dating from the late 1800's to the early 1940's. The Cultural Conservation Study was developed at the Center, in cooperation with the Department of the Interior, pursuant to a congressional mandate. Various conferences, workshops, and symposia are given throughout the year. A series of outdoor concerts of traditional music are scheduled monthly at the Library, April through September.

The Folklife Center News, a quarterly newsletter, and other informational publications are available upon request. The Government Printing Office sells additional Center publications, including the Folklife Annual and catalogs produced by the Federal Cylinder Project.

Archive of Folk Culture, a subdivision of the American Folklife Center, maintains and administers an extensive collection of folk music and lore in published and unpublished forms. It is a national repository for folk-related recordings, manuscripts, and other materials. The Archive's reading room contains over 3,500 books and periodicals; a sizable collection of magazines, newsletters, unpublished theses, and dissertations; field notes; and many textual and some musical transcriptions and recordings.

For further information, call 202-287-6590.

Center for the Book The Center for the Book was established in the Library of Congress by an act of Congress approved October 17, 1977 (91 Stat. 1151, 2 U.S.C. 171 et seq.), to provide a program for investigating the transmission of human knowledge and to heighten public interest in the role of books and printing in the diffusion of knowledge. Drawing on the resources of the Library of Congress, the Center works closely with other organizations to explore important issues in the book and educational communities, to encourage reading, and to encourage research about books and about reading. Its goal is to serve as a useful catalyst by bringing together authors, publishers, librarians, booksellers, educators, scholars, and readers to discuss common concerns and work toward the solution of common problems.

Except for basic administrative support provided by the Library of Congress, the Center and its activities are privately funded. Over 130 citizens serve on its National Advisory Board. Three committees reflect its primary concerns: the book in contemporary society, nationally and internationally; reading and book promotion; and the history of books. Major Center for the Book conferences have dealt with "Television, the Book, and the Classroom," "Reading in America," "The Textbook in American Education," and "Public Lending Rights."

For further information, call 202-287-5221.

National Preservation Program The Library provides technical information related to the preservation and restoration of library and archival material. A series of leaflets on various preservation and conservation topics has been prepared by the Preservation Office. Information and publications are available from the National Preservation Program Office, Library of Congress, Washington, DC 20540. Phone, 202-287-1840.

The Office of Technology Assessment (OTA) was created by the Technology Assessment Act of 1972 (86 Stat. 797; 2 U.S.C. 471 note) to help the Congress anticipate and plan for the consequences of uses of technology. The Office provides an independent and objective source of information about the impacts, both beneficial and adverse, of technological applications and identifies policy alternatives for technology-related issues. The Office began operations in January 1974.

The Technology Assessment Act specifies that OTA shall consist of a Technology Assessment Board, a Director and Deputy Director, a Technology Assessment Advisory Council, and such other employees and consultants as may be necessary in the conduct of OTA's work. The Congressional Board sets the policies of the Office. The Director, who is appointed by the Board for a 6-year term, is the chief executive officer and is responsible solely to the Board, of which he is a member. The function of the Advisory Council is to advise on such technology assessment matters as may be requested by the Technology Assessment Board.

The bipartisan 13-member Board includes six Senators appointed by the President pro tempore, six Members of the House of Representatives appointed by the Speaker, and the Director of OTA, who is a nonvoting member. The Board selects a Chairman and a Vice Chairman from among its members at the beginning of each Congress. The Chairmanship and Vice Chairmanship alternate between the Senate and the House of Representatives with each Congress.

The basic function of OTA is to provide congressional committees with assessments or studies that identify the broad range of consequences, social as well as physical, which can be expected to accompany various policy choices affecting the uses of technologies. More specifically, the functions of OTA are to: identify existing or probable impacts of technology or technological programs, and, where possible, ascertain cause-and-effect relationships; identify alternative technological methods of implementing specific programs; identify alternative programs for achieving requisite goals; make estimates and comparisons of the impacts of alternative methods and programs; present findings of completed analyses to the appropriate legislative authorities; identify areas where additional research or data collection is required to provide support for assessments; and undertake such additional associated activities as may be directed.

Requests for OTA assessments may be initiated by the chairman of any standing, special, select, or joint committee of the Congress, acting for himself or at the request of the ranking minority member or a majority of the committee members; the Technology Assessment Board; or the OTA Director, in consultation with the Board.

In carrying out the provisions of the Technology Assessment Act, the Office cannot operate laboratories, pilot plants, or test facilities. It is authorized to secure directly from any executive department or agency information, suggestions, estimates, statistics, and technical assistance for the purpose of carrying out its functions. According to statute, if certain expertise is required, OTA may request, and the head of any executive department or agency may detail, with or without reimbursement, any of its personnel to assist the Office.

The Librarian of Congress is authorized to make available to OTA such services and assistance of the Congressional Research Service as may be appropriate and feasible and that are similar to the services provided to the Congress. Much in the same manner, the General Accounting Office may be utilized by the Office, and it is authorized to provide to OTA the same kind of assistance that it gives to the Congress.

The Congressional Budget Act (88 Stat. 297) requires OTA to assist the Congressional Budget Office on matters concerning Federal science and technology programs.

For further information, contact the Press Officer, Office of Technology Assessment, Washington, DC 20510. Phone, 202-226-2115.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) was established by the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 302; 2 U.S.C. 601), approved July 12, 1974, which also created a procedure by which the United States Congress considers and acts upon the annual Federal budget. This process enables the Congress to have an overview of the Federal budget and to make overall decisions regarding spending and taxing levels and the deficit or surplus these levels incur. Congress is provided with a mechanism through which it can weigh the priorities for national resource allocation and explicitly address issues of fiscal policy.

The Congressional Budget Office provides Congress with basic budget data and with analyses of alternative fiscal, budgetary, and programmatic policy issues. CBO has specific responsibility for the following functions and activities:

Economic Forecasting and Fiscal Policy Analysis The Federal budget both affects and is affected by the national economy. The Congress considers the Federal budget in the context of the current and projected state of the national economy. CBO therefore provides periodic forecasts and analyses of economic trends and alternative fiscal policies.

Scorekeeping Under the budget process the Congress establishes, by concurrent resolutions, targets (or ceilings) for overall expenditures, budget authority and budget outlays, and for broad functional categories. The Congress also establishes targets (or ceilings) for the levels of revenues, the deficit, and the public debt. CBO "keeps score" for the Congress by monitoring the results of congressional action on individual authorization, appropriation, and revenue bills against the targets (or ceilings) specified in the concurrent resolutions.

Cost Projections The Congressional Budget Office prepares 5-year cost estimates for carrying out any public bill or resolution reported by congressional committees. As soon as practicable after the beginning of each fiscal year, CBO also provides 5-year projections on the costs of continuing current Federal spending and taxation policies.

Annual Report on the Budget The Congressional Budget Office is responsible for furnishing the House and Senate Budget Committees by April 1 of each year with a report that includes a discussion of alternative spending and revenue levels and alternative allocations among major programs and functional categories, all in the light of major national needs and the effect on the balanced growth and development of the United States.

Special Studies The Congressional Budget Office undertakes studies requested by the Congress on budget-related areas. As required by the establishing act, such service is provided in the following order of priority to: the House and Senate Budget Committees; the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, the Senate Finance and the House Ways and Means Committees; all other congressional committees.

[For the Copyright Royalty Tribunal statement of organization, see the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 37, Part 301]

The Copyright Royalty Tribunal was established by act of October 19, 1976 (90 Stat. 2594; 17 U.S.C. 801).

The Tribunal sets copyright royalty rates for records, jukeboxes, and certain cable television retransmissions under the compulsory licensing provisions of the act. Royalty fees are deposited with the Register of Copyrights and are distributed by the Tribunal. In addition, the Tribunal makes decisions regarding rates and terms of royalty payments for the use of published, nondramatic compositions and pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works by noncommercial broadcasting stations. Cost-of-living adjustments are made to these noncommercial broadcasting rates in December of each year.

In making its determinations, the Tribunal considers the relative harm and benefits to the copyright owners and users, respectively, the availability of creative works to the public, and the economic impact on the industries involved.

For further information, contact the Copyright Royalty Tribunal, Suite 450, 1111 Twentieth Street NW., Washington, DC 20036. Phone, 202-653-5175.

UNITED STATES TAX COURT

400 Second Street NW., Washington, DC 20217
Phone, 202-376-2751

Charles S. Casazza	Clerk of the Court
Paul Nejelski	Court Administrator

The United States Tax Court is a court of record under Article I of the Constitution of the United States (26 U.S.C. 7441). The court was originally created as the United States Board of Tax Appeals by the Revenue Act of 1924 (43 Stat. 336), an independent agency in the executive branch, and continued by the Revenue Act of 1926 (44 Stat. 105), the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, and the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. The name was changed to the Tax Court of the United States by the Revenue Act of 1942 (56 Stat. 957), and the Article I status and change in name to United States Tax Court were effected by the Tax Reform Act of 1969 (83 Stat. 730).

The court is composed of 19 judges. Its strength is augmented by senior judges who may be recalled by the chief judge to perform further judicial duties and by 17 special trial judges who are appointed by the chief judge and serve at the pleasure of the court. The chief judge is elected biennially from among the 19 judges of the court.

The Tax Court tries and adjudicates controversies involving the existence of deficiencies or overpayments in income, estate, and gift taxes in cases where deficiencies have been determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. It also hears cases commenced by transferees and fiduciaries who have been issued notices of liability by the Commissioner.

The Tax Court has jurisdiction to redetermine excise taxes and penalties imposed on private foundations. Similar jurisdiction over excise taxes has been conferred with regard to public charities, qualified pension plans, real estate investment trusts, and the windfall profit tax on domestic crude oil.

At the option of the individual taxpayer, simplified procedures may be utilized for the trials of small tax cases, provided that in a case conducted under these procedures the decision of the court would be final and not subject to review by any court. The jurisdictional maximum for such cases is $10,000 for any disputed year.

In disputes relating to public inspection of written determinations by the Internal Revenue Service, the Tax Court has jurisdiction to restrain disclosure or to obtain additional disclosure of written determinations or background file documents and, at the request of any person, to order disclosure of the identity of any person to whom the written determination pertains, if there has been a third party contact noted on the determination made public.

The Tax Court has jurisdiction to render declaratory judgments relating to the qualification of retirement plans, including pension, profit-sharing, stock bonus, annuity, and bond purchase plans; the tax-exempt status of a charitable organization, qualified charitable donee, private foundation, or private operating foundation; and the status of interest on certain Government obligations.

All decisions other than small tax cases are subject to review by the United States Courts of Appeals and thereafter by the Supreme Court of the United States upon the granting of a writ of certiorari.

The office of the court and all of its judges are located in Washington, DC, with the exception of a field office located in Los Angeles, CA. The court conducts trial sessions at various places within the United States as reasonably convenient to taxpayers as practicable. Each trial session is conducted by a single judge or special trial judge. All proceedings are public and are conducted judicially in accordance with the court's Rules of Practice and the rules of evidence applicable in trials without a jury in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. A fee of $60 is prescribed for the filing of a petition. Practice before the court is limited to practitioners admitted under the court's Rules.

Article III, section 1, of the Constitution of the United States provides that "the judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish." The Supreme Court of the United States was created in accordance with this provision and by authority of the Judiciary Act of September 24, 1789 (1 Stat. 73). It was organized on February 2, 1790.

The Supreme Court comprises the Chief Justice of the United States and such number of Associate Justices as may be fixed by Congress. Under that authority, and by virtue of the act of June 25, 1948 (62 Stat. 869; 28 U.S.C. 1), the number of Associate Justices is eight. Power to nominate the Justices is vested in the President of the United States, and appointments are made by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Article III, section 1, of the Constitution further provides that "the Judges, both of the supreme and inferior Courts, shall hold their Offices during good Behavior, and shall, at stated Times, receive for their Services a Compensation, which shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office." A Justice may, if he so desires, retire at the age of 70, after serving for 10 years as a Federal judge or at age 65 after 15 years of service.

The officers of the Supreme Court are the Clerk, the Reporter of Decisions, the Marshal, and the Librarian, who are appointed by the Court to assist in the performance of its functions. The library is open to members of the bar of the Court, attorneys for the various Federal departments and agencies, and Members of Congress. Only members of the bar of the Court may practice before the Supreme Court.

The term of the Court begins, by law, the first Monday in October of each year and continues as long as the business before the Court requires, usually until about the end of June. Six members constitute a quorum. Approximately 5,000 cases are passed upon in the course of a term. In addition, some 1,200 applications of various kinds are filed each year that can be acted upon by a single Justice.

Jurisdiction According to the Constitution (art. III, sec. 2), "the judicial Power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority;—to all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls;—to all Cases of admiralty and maritime Jurisdiction;—to Controversies to which the United States shall be a Party;—to Controversies between two or more States;—between a State and Citizens of another State;—between Citizens of different States;—between Citizens of the same State claiming Lands under Grants of different States, and between a State, or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects.

"In all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, and those in which a State shall be Party, the Supreme Court shall have original Jurisdiction. In all the other Cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate Jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as the Congress shall make."

Appellate jurisdiction has been conferred upon the Supreme Court by various statutes, under the authority given Congress by the Constitution. The basic statute effective at this time in conferring and controlling jurisdiction of the Supreme Court may be found in 28 U.S.C. 1251–1258 and various special statutes. Congress has no authority to change the original jurisdiction of this Court.

Rulemaking Power Congress has from time to time conferred upon the Supreme Court power to prescribe rules of procedure to be followed by the lower courts of the United States. Pursuant to these statutes there are now in force rules promulgated by the Court to govern civil and criminal cases in the district courts, bankruptcy proceedings, admiralty cases, copyright cases, appellate proceedings, and criminal minor offense proceedings before U.S. magistrates.

For further information concerning the Supreme Court, contact the Clerk, United States Supreme Court Building, 1 First Street NE., Washington, DC 20543. Phone, 202–479–3011.

Lower Courts

United States Courts of Appeals The courts of appeals are intermediate appellate courts created by act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 826; 28 U.S.C. ch. 3), to relieve the Supreme Court of considering all appeals in cases originally decided by the Federal trial courts. They are empowered to review all final decisions and certain interlocutory decisions (28 U.S.C. 1291, 1292) of district courts, except in those very few situations where the law provides for a direct review by the Supreme Court (see below). They also are empowered to review and enforce orders of many Federal administrative bodies, such as the Securities and Exchange Commission and the National Labor Relations Board (see list in Reviser's Notes to 28 U.S.C. 1291). The decisions of the courts of appeals are final except as they are subject to discretionary review or appeal in the Supreme Court.

The United States is divided geographically into 12 judicial circuits, including the District of Columbia as a circuit (28 U.S.C. 41, 1294), in each of which there is a United States court of appeals. Each of the 50 States is assigned to one of the circuits, and the Territories are assigned variously to the first, third, and ninth circuits. There is also a Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, which has nationwide jurisdiction defined by subject matter. At present each United States court of appeals has from 6 to 28 permanent circuit judgeships (168 in all), depending upon the amount of judicial work in the circuit. United States circuit judges hold their offices during good behavior as provided by Article III, section 1, of the Constitution. The judge senior in commission who is under 65 years of age, has been in office at least 1 year, and has not previously been chief judge serves as the chief judge of the circuit for a 7-year term. One of the justices of the Supreme Court is assigned as circuit justice for each of the 13 judicial circuits. Each court of appeals normally hears cases in panels consisting of three judges but may sit en banc with all judges present.

The United States circuit judges of each circuit by majority vote determine the composition of the judicial council for the circuit, which must include both circuit and district judges. The council meets at least twice a year to consider the state of Federal judicial business in the circuit and to "make all necessary and appropriate orders for [its] effective and expeditious administration * * *" (28 U.S.C. 332). In 1971 the Congress provided for appointment of a Circuit Executive for each circuit by the circuit council. The function of the Circuit Executive is to exercise, among other duties, administrative control of nonjudicial activities of the court of appeals of the circuit in which he serves (84 Stat. 1907; 28 U.S.C. 332). The chief judge of each circuit summons annually a judicial conference of all circuit and district judges in his circuit, and sometimes members of the bar, to discuss the business of the Federal courts of the circuit (28 U.S.C. 333). The chief judge of each circuit and a district judge from each of the 12 geographical circuits, elected by the circuit and district judges of the circuit at their annual judicial conference for a term of 3 years, serve as members of the Judicial Conference of the United States, of which the Chief Justice of the United States is chairman. This is the governing body for the administration of the Federal judicial system as a whole (28 U.S.C. 331).

United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit This court was established under Article III of the Constitution pursuant to the Federal Courts Improvement Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 25; 28 U.S.C. 41) as the successor to the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals and the Court of Claims. The jurisdiction of the court is nationwide and includes appeals from the United States district and territorial courts in patent, trademark, and copyright cases (28 U.S.C. 1338); appeals from the United States district and territorial courts in contract, internal revenue, and other cases in which the United States is a defendant; appeals from final decisions of the United States

Claims Court; appeals from final decisions of the United States Court of International Trade; and review of administrative rulings by the Patent and Trademark Office, U.S. International Trade Commission, Secretary of Commerce, agency boards of contract appeals, and the Merit Systems Protection Board.

The court consists of 12 circuit judges of whom the judge senior in commission, who is under 65 years of age, has been in office for at least 1 year and has not previously been chief judge, shall serve as chief judge for a 7-year term. The court sits in panels of three or more on each case and may also hear or rehear a case en banc. The court sits principally in Washington, DC, and may hold court wherever a United States court of appeals sits (28 U.S.C. 48). Like the other courts of appeals, the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has a clerk, staff attorneys, technical assistants, librarian, and supporting staff.

United States District Courts The district courts are the trial courts of general Federal jurisdiction. Each State has at least one district court, while some of the larger States have as many as four. Altogether there are 89 district courts in the 50 States, plus the one in the District of Columbia. In addition, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has a United States district court with jurisdiction corresponding to that of district courts in the various States.

At present, each district court has from 2 to 27 Federal district judgeships, depending upon the amount of judicial work within its territory. Only one judge is usually required to hear and decide a case in a district court, but in some limited cases it is required that three judges be called together to comprise the court (28 U.S.C. 2284). The judge senior in commission who is under 65 years of age, has been in office for at least 1 year, and has not previously been chief judge serves as chief judge for a 7-year term. There are altogether 541 permanent district judgeships in the 50 States and 15 in the District of Columbia. There are 7 district judgeships in Puerto Rico. United States district judges hold their offices during good behavior as provided by Article III, section 1, of the Constitution. However, Congress may create temporary judgeships for a court with the provision that when a vacancy occurs in that district, such vacancy shall not be filled. Each district court has a clerk, a United States attorney, a United States marshal, one or more United States magistrates, bankruptcy judges, probation officers, court reporters, and their staffs. The jurisdiction of the district courts is set forth in title 28, chapter 85, of the United States Code.

Cases from the district courts are reviewable on appeal by the applicable United States court of appeals, except that injunctive orders of special three-judge district courts and certain decisions holding acts of Congress unconstitutional may be appealed directly to the Supreme Court (28 U.S.C. 1252). Appeals in certain kinds of actions must be taken to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit (28 U.S.C. 1295).

Territorial Courts Pursuant to its authority to govern the Territories (art. IV, sec. 3, clause 2, of the Constitution), Congress has established district courts in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and in the territories of Guam and the Virgin Islands. The District Court of the Canal Zone was abolished on April 1, 1982, pursuant to the Panama Canal Act of 1979 (93 Stat. 452; 22 U.S.C. 3601 note). Congress has also established a district court in the Northern Mariana Islands, which presently are administered by the United States under a trusteeship agreement with the United Nations. Except in Puerto Rico, these Territorial courts have jurisdiction not only of the subjects described in the judicial article of the Constitution but also of many local matters that, within the States, are decided in State courts. The district court of Puerto Rico, however, is classified like other "district courts" and is called a "court of the United States" (28 U.S.C. 451). It has the same jurisdiction as the 90 district courts in the States and the District of Columbia. There are seven judges in Puerto Rico, one each in the Canal Zone, Guam, and the Northern Mariana Islands, and two in the Virgin Islands. The judges in these courts are appointed for terms of 10 years, except in Puerto Rico, where the judges hold their offices during good behavior.

For further information concerning the lower courts, contact the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, Washington, DC 20544.

Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation The Panel, created by act of April 29, 1968 (82 Stat. 109; 28 U.S.C. 1407), and consisting of seven Federal judges, is authorized to temporarily transfer to a single district, for coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings, civil actions pending in different districts that involve one or more common questions of fact.

For further information, contact the Clerk, Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation, Suite 1002, 1120 Vermont Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20005. Phone, 202–653–6090.

National Courts

In addition to the Supreme Court, the United States courts of appeals, and the United States district courts, there have been created by the Congress from time to time special courts to deal with particular types of cases. Appeals from the decisions of these courts may ultimately be reviewed in the Supreme Court.

There have also been created two courts of local jurisdiction for the District of Columbia: the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and the Superior Court.

Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals The Economic Stabilization Act Amendments of 1971 (85 Stat. 743) created a special court known as the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals of the United States. The court has exclusive jurisdiction over all appeals from the district courts of the United States in cases and controversies arising under the economic stabilization laws, and consists of eight circuit and district judges designated by the Chief Justice. The court has been in operation since February 1972, and its principal location is at the United States Courthouse in the District of Columbia.

The court operates under its own rules (6 CFR app. A) and the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure. Under the rules, the hearing divisions sit when necessary at Washington, DC; St. Paul, MN; Atlanta, GA; Houston, TX; and San Francisco, CA; and at such other places and times as the Chief Judge may designate.

For further information, contact the Clerk, Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals, United States Courthouse, Washington, DC 20001. Phone, 202–426–7666.

United States Claims Court This court was established on October 1, 1982 (96 Stat. 27; 28 U.S.C. 171), and succeeds to all the original jurisdiction formerly exercised by the Court of Claims, as now provided for in 28 U.S.C. 1491–1508. The court has jurisdiction to render money judgments upon any claim against the United States founded either upon the Constitution, or any act of Congress or any regulation of an executive department, or upon any express or implied in fact contract with the United States or for liquidated or unliquidated damages in cases not sounding in tort. As collateral to any such judgment, the court may issue orders directing the restoration to office or status and the correction of applicable records. Examples of these, among others, are claims for just compensation for the taking of property, claims arising under construction and supply contracts, claims by both civilian and military personnel for back pay and retired pay, and claims for the refund of Federal income and excise taxes. As part of its jurisdiction over contract claims, the court has the authority, if the claim is filed before a contract is awarded, to grant declaratory judgments and such equitable relief including but not limited to injunctive relief. In addition to its authority to entertain money judgment claims under the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 (41 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), it also has jurisdiction to render judgment upon any claim by or against, or dispute with, a contractor arising under that act.

The court also has jurisdiction over other specific types of claims against the United States, among which is jurisdiction to render judgment for reasonable and entire compensation in cases where the United States in its governmental capacity had manufactured or used an invention covered by a patent or had infringed any work protected by copyright without license of its owner. The court also entertains jurisdiction under special legislation enacted from time to time by the Congress.

Judgments of the court are final and conclusive on both the claimant and the United States subject to an appeal as of right to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. Authority also rests with the court to furnish reports on any bill that may be referred by either House of Congress.

Geographically the jurisdiction of the court is nationwide, and jurisdiction over the parties is obtained when suit is filed and process is served on the United States through the Attorney General. The court exercises its powers by appropriate process, including the power of subpoena served anywhere within the territory over which the Federal Government exercises domain. Trials for the purpose of taking testimony and receiving exhibits are conducted before the judges of the court, and the trials are conducted at locations most convenient for the claimants and their witnesses.

The court is composed of 16 judges appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate for 15 years, one of whom is designated as the chief judge by the President.

United States Court of International Trade This court was originally established as the Board of United States General Appraisers by act of June 10, 1890, which conferred upon it jurisdiction theretofore held by the U.S. district and circuit courts in actions arising under the tariff acts (26 Stat. 136; 19 U.S.C. ch. 4). The act of May 28, 1926 (44 Stat. 669; 19 U.S.C. 405a), created the United States Customs Court to supersede the Board; by acts of August 7, 1939 and June 25, 1948 (53 Stat. 1223, 62 Stat. 943; 28 U.S.C. 1582, 1583), the court was integrated into the United States court structure, organization, and procedure. The act of July 14, 1956 (70 Stat. 532; 28 U.S.C. 251), established the court as a court of record of the United States under Article III of the Constitution.

The Customs Court Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 1727; 28 U.S.C. 251) constituted the court as the United States Court of International Trade and revised provisions relating to its jurisdiction. The Court of International Trade has all the powers in law and equity of a district court.

The Court of International Trade has jurisdiction over any civil action against the United States arising from Federal laws governing import transactions. This includes classification and valuation cases as well as authority to review certain agency determinations under the Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (93 Stat. 144; 19 U.S.C. 2501) involving antidumping and countervailing duty matters. In addition, it has exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions to review determinations as to the eligibility of workers, firms, and communities for adjustment assistance under the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1978; 19 U.S.C. 2101). Civil actions commenced by the United States to recover customs duties, to recover on a customs bond or for certain civil penalties, alleging fraud or negligence, are also within the exclusive jurisdiction of the court.

The court is composed of a chief judge and eight judges, not more than five of whom may belong to any one political party. Any of its judges may be temporarily designated and assigned by the Chief Justice of the United States to sit as a court of appeals or district court judge in any circuit or district. The court has a clerk and deputy clerks, a marshal and deputy marshals, a librarian, court reporters, and other supporting personnel. Cases before the court may be tried before a jury. Under the Federal Courts Improvement Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 25; 28 U.S.C. 1295), appeals are taken to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and ultimately review may be sought in appropriate cases in the Supreme Court of the United States.

The principal offices are located in New York, NY, but the court is empowered to hear and determine cases arising at any port or place within the jurisdiction of the United States.

For further information, contact the Clerk, United States Court of International Trade, 1 Federal Plaza, New York, NY 10007. Phone, 212-264-2814.

United States Court of Military Appeals The United States Court of Military Appeals was established under Article I of the Constitution of the United States pursuant to the act approved May 5, 1950 (64 Stat. 129; 10 U.S.C. 867), as amended. Subject only to certiorari review by the Supreme Court of the United States in a limited number of cases, the court serves as the final appellate tribunal to review court-martial convictions of all the armed services. It is exclusively an appellate criminal court, consisting of three civilian judges appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for 15-year terms. The court is called upon to exercise jurisdiction to review the record in all cases:

Extending to death;

Certified to the court by a Judge Advocate General of an armed service or by the General Counsel of the Department of Transportation, acting for the Coast Guard; or Petitioned by accused who have received a sentence of confinement for 1 year or more, and/or a punitive discharge.

The court also exercises authority under the All Writs Act (28 U.S.C. 1651(a)).

In addition, the judges of the court are required by law to work jointly with the senior uniformed lawyer from each Armed Force, the Chief Counsel of the Coast Guard, and two members of the public appointed by the Secretary of Defense, to make an annual comprehensive survey and to report annually to the Congress on the operation and progress of the military justice system under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, and to recommend improvements wherever necessary.

The Administrative Office of the United States Courts was created by act of Congress approved August 7, 1939 (53 Stat. 1223; 28 U.S.C. 601). The Office was established November 6, 1939. Its Director and Deputy Director are appointed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Administering the Courts The Director is the administrative officer of the courts of the United States (except the Supreme Court). Under the supervision and direction of the Judicial Conference of the United States he is required, among other things, to:

Supervise all administrative matters relating to the offices of clerks and other clerical and administrative personnel of the courts;

Examine the state of the dockets of the courts; secure information as to the courts' need of assistance; prepare and transmit quarterly to the chief judges of the circuits statistical data and reports as to the business of the courts;

Submit to the annual meeting of the Judicial Conference of the United States, at least 2 weeks prior thereto, a report of the activities of the Administrative Office and the state of the business of the courts, together with the required statistical data submitted to the chief judges of the circuits, and the Director's recommendations, which report, data, and recommendations shall be public documents;

Submit to Congress and the Attorney General copies of the report, data, and recommendations, as required;

Fix the compensation of employees of the courts whose compensation is not otherwise fixed by law;

Regulate and pay annuities to widows and surviving dependent children of judges;

Disburse moneys appropriated for the maintenance and operation of the courts;

Examine accounts of court officers;

Regulate travel of judicial personnel;

Provide accommodations and supplies for the courts and their clerical and administrative personnel;

Establish and maintain programs for the certification and utilization of court interpreters and the provision of special interpretation services in the courts; and

Perform such other duties as may be assigned to him by the Supreme Court or the Judicial Conference of the United States.

The Director is also responsible for the preparation and submission of the budget of the courts, except the budget of the Supreme Court.

Probation Officers The Administrative Office, through its Probation Division, exercises general supervision of the accounts and practices of the Federal probation offices, subject to the primary control by the respective district courts that they serve. The Office publishes quarterly, in cooperation with the Bureau of Prisons of the Department of Justice, a magazine entitled Federal Probation, which is a journal "of correctional philosophy and practice."

The Division also has responsibility with respect to the establishment of pretrial services in the United States district courts under the Pretrial Services Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 1136; 18 U.S.C. 3152). These agencies report to their respective courts information concerning pretrial release of persons charged with Federal offenses and supervise such persons who are released to their custody.

Bankruptcy The Bankruptcy Amendments and Federal Judgeship Act of 1984 (98 Stat. 333; 28 U.S.C. 151) provided that the bankruptcy judges for each judicial district shall constitute a unit of the district court to be known as the bankruptcy court. Bankruptcy judges shall be appointed by the United States courts of appeals in such numbers as authorized by Congress and shall serve for a term of 14 years as judicial officers of the district court.

This act placed jurisdiction in the United States district courts over all cases under title 11, United States Code, and all proceedings arising in or related to cases under that title (28 U.S.C. 1334). The district court may provide for such cases and proceedings to be referred to its bankruptcy judges, who may hear and determine all title 11 cases and all "core proceedings" arising under title 11 or arising in a case under that title. Bankruptcy judges may hear proceedings that are not core proceedings but otherwise relate to a case under title 11 and in this event shall submit proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law to the district court, where the final order or judgment shall be entered by a district judge (28 U.S.C. 157).

The Director of the Administrative Office recommends to the Judicial Conference the official duty stations and places of holding court of bankruptcy judges, surveys the need for additional bankruptcy judgeships to be recommended to Congress, and determines the staff needs of bankruptcy judges and, where applicable, of the clerks of the bankruptcy courts.

Federal Magistrates Under the Federal Magistrates Act approved October 17, 1968 (82 Stat. 1107; 28 U.S.C. 631), as amended by the act of October 17, 1976 (90 Stat. 2458), and the Federal Magistrate Act of 1979 (93 Stat. 643), the Director of the Administrative Office, under the supervision and direction of the Judicial Conference, exercises general supervision over administrative matters in offices of United States magistrates, compiles and evaluates statistical and other information relating to such offices, and submits reports thereon to the Conference. The Director reports annually to Congress on the business that has come before United States magistrates and also prepares legal and administrative manuals for the use of the magistrates. The act provides for surveys to be conducted by the Administrative Office, at such time as the Judicial Conference deems expedient, of the conditions in the judicial districts in order to make recommendations as to the number, location, and salaries of magistrates. The Director exercises this responsibility through the Magistrates Division of the Administrative Office.

Federal Defenders The Criminal Justice Act (84 Stat. 916; 18 U.S.C. 3006A) establishes the procedure for the appointment of counsel in Federal criminal cases for individuals who are unable to afford adequate representation under plans adopted by each United States district court. The act also permits the establishment of Federal public defender or Federal community defender organizations by the district courts in districts where at least 200 persons annually require the appointment of counsel. Two adjacent districts may be combined to reach this total.

Each defender organization submits to the Director of the Administrative Office an annual report of its activities along with a proposed budget or, in the case of community defender organizations, a proposed grant for the coming year. The Director is responsible for the submission of the proposed budgets and grants to the Judicial Conference of the United States for approval. The Director also makes payments to the defender organizations out of appropriations in accordance with the approved budgets and grants, as well as compensating private counsel appointed to defend criminal cases in the U.S. courts.

The Federal Judicial Center is the judicial branch's agency for policy research, systems development, and continuing education. It was created by an act of Congress, approved December 20, 1967 (81 Stat. 664; 28 U.S.C. 620), to serve the goal of improved judicial administration in the United States courts.

The Center's basic policies and activities are determined by its Board, which is composed of the Chief Justice of the United States, who is, by statute, permanent Chairman of the Board, two judges of the United States courts of appeals, three judges of the United States district courts, and one bankruptcy judge, who are elected for 4-year terms by the Judicial Conference of the United States. The Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts also is a permanent member of the Board.

Congress assigned the Center the following basic functions:

To conduct research on the operation of the United States courts, and to stimulate and coordinate such research on the part of other public and private persons and agencies;

To stimulate, create, develop, and conduct programs of continuing education and training for judges and support personnel of the judicial branch;

To study and determine ways in which automatic data processing and systems procedures may be applied to the administration of the courts;

To provide staff, research, and planning assistance to the Judicial Conference and its committees, consistent with the performance of the other functions set forth above; and

To develop recommendations for improvement in the administration and management of the courts.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

RONALD REAGAN THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Article II, section 1, of the Constitution provides that "the executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his Office during the Term of four Years, * * * together with the Vice President, chosen for the same Term * * *." In addition to the powers set forth in the Constitution, the statutes have conferred upon the President specific authority and responsibility covering a wide range of matters (United States Code Index).

The President is the administrative head of the executive branch of the Government, which includes numerous agencies, both temporary and permanent, as well as the 13 executive departments.

The Cabinet

The Cabinet, a creation of custom and tradition dating back to George Washington's administration, functions at the pleasure of the President. Its purpose is to advise the President upon any subject on which he requests information (pursuant to Article II, section 2, of the Constitution).

The Cabinet is composed of the heads of the 13 executive departments—the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce, Defense, Education, Energy, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Labor, State, Transportation, and Treasury, and the Attorney General—and certain other executive branch officials to whom the President accords Cabinet rank. The Vice President also participates in Cabinet meetings, and from time to time, other individuals are invited to participate in discussions of particular subjects. A Secretary to the Cabinet is designated to provide for the orderly handling and followup of matters brought before the Cabinet.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Under authority of the Reorganization Act of 1939 (53 Stat. 561; 5 U.S.C. 133–133r, 133t note), various agencies were transferred to the Executive Office of the President by the President's Reorganization Plans I and II of 1939, effective July 1, 1939. Executive Order 8248 of September 8, 1939, established the divisions of the Executive Office and defined their functions. Subsequently, Presidents have used Executive orders, reorganization plans, and legislative initiatives to reorganize the Executive Office to make its composition compatible with the goals of their administrations.

The Office of Management and Budget was established in the Executive Office of the President pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1970 (5 U.S.C. App.), effective July 1, 1970.

By Executive Order 11541 of July 1, 1970 (31 U.S.C. 16 note), all functions transferred to the President of the United States by part I of Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1970 were delegated to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget. Such functions are to be carried out by the Director under the direction of the President. Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1977 (91 Stat. 1633; 5 U.S.C. App.) and Executive orders issued pursuant to that plan amended further the functions of the Office. The Office's functions include the following:

To assist the President in his program to develop and maintain effective government by reviewing the organizational structure and management procedures of the executive branch to ensure that they produce the intended results;

To assist in developing efficient coordinating mechanisms to implement Government activities and to expand interagency cooperation;

To assist the President in the preparation of the budget and the formulation of the fiscal program of the Government;

To supervise and control the administration of the budget;

To assist the President by clearing and coordinating departmental advice on proposed legislation and by making recommendations as to Presidential action on legislative enactments, in accordance with past practice;

To assist in the development of regulatory reform proposals and in programs for paperwork reduction, especially reporting burdens of the public;

To assist in the consideration and clearance and, where necessary, in the preparation of proposed Executive orders and proclamations;

To plan and develop information systems to provide the President with program performance data;

To plan, conduct, and promote evaluation efforts to assist the President in the assessment of program objectives, performance, and efficiency; and

To keep the President informed of the progress of activities by Government agencies with respect to work proposed, initiated, and completed, together with the relative timing of work between the several agencies of the Government, all to the end that the work programs of the several agencies of the executive branch of the Government may be coordinated and that the moneys appropriated by the Congress may be expended in the most economical manner with the least possible overlapping and duplication of effort.

Office of Federal Procurement Policy

The Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (88 Stat. 796; 41 U.S.C. 401) established the Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) within the Office of Management and Budget to improve the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of the procurement processes by providing overall direction of procurement policies, regulations, procedures, and forms. The establishment of OFPP implemented the first recommendation made by the Commission on Government Procurement (COGP) in its report to Congress in December 1972. OFPP authority applies to procurement by executive agencies and recipients of Federal grants or assistance of property, other than real property in being; services, including research and development; and construction, alteration, repair, or maintenance of real property.

The National Security Council was established by the National Security Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 496; 50 U.S.C. 402), amended by the National Security Act Amendments of 1949 (63 Stat. 579; 50 U.S.C. 401 et seq.). By Reorganization Plan No. 4 of 1949, the Council was placed in the Executive Office of the President.

The National Security Council is chaired by the President. Its statutory members, in addition to the President, are the Vice President and the Secretaries of State and Defense. The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is the statutory military adviser to the Council and the Director of Central Intelligence is its intelligence adviser.

The statutory function of the Council is to advise the President with respect to the integration of domestic, foreign, and military policies relating to national security.

The Office of the United States Trade Representative was created as the Office of the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations by Executive Order 11075 of January 15, 1963. Congress, as part of the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1999; 19 U.S.C. 2171), established the office as an agency of the Executive Office of the President charged with administering the trade agreements program under the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1351), the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 (19 U.S.C.

1801), and the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2171). Other powers and responsibilities for coordinating trade policy were assigned to the Office by the Trade Act of 1974 and by the President in Executive Order 11846 of March 27, 1975, as amended.

Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1979 (44 FR 69273), implemented by Executive Order 12188 of January 4, 1980 charged the Office with responsibility for setting and administering overall trade policy. It also provides that the United States Trade Representative shall be chief representative of the United States for all activities of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade; for discussions, meetings, and negotiations in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development when such activities deal primarily with trade and commodity issues; for negotiations in the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development and other multilateral institutions when such negotiations deal primarily with trade and commodity issues; for other bilateral and multilateral negotiations when trade, including East-West trade, or commodities is the primary issue; for negotiations under sections 704 and 734 of the Tariff Act of 1930, and for negotiations concerning direct investment incentives and disincentives and bilateral investment issues concerning barriers to investment.

The Office is headed by the United States Trade Representative, a Cabinet-level official with the rank of Ambassador, who is directly responsible to the President. There are three Deputy United States Trade Representatives, who also hold the rank of Ambassador, two located in Washington and one in Geneva. The Chief Textile Negotiator and the Special Negotiator for the Americas also hold the rank of Ambassador.

The United States Trade Representative serves as an ex officio member of the Boards of Directors of the Export-Import Bank and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, and serves on the National Advisory Council for International Monetary and Financial Policy.

The United States Trade Representative is responsible for the direction of all trade negotiations of the United States and for the formulation of trade policy for the United States.

A. Alan Hill	Chairman
	Members:
William L. Mills
Jacqueline E. Schafer
Dinah Bear	General Counsel

The Council on Environmental Quality was established by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (83 Stat. 852; 42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.), to formulate and recommend national policies to promote the improvement of the quality of the environment. Additional responsibilities were provided by the Environmental Quality Improvement Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 114; 42 U.S.C. 4371 et seq.).

The Council consists of three members appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. One of the members is designated by the President as Chairman. The Council is located within the Executive Office of the President.

The Council develops and recommends to the President national policies that further environmental quality; performs a continuing analysis of changes or trends in the national environment; reviews and appraises programs of the Federal Government to determine their contributions to sound environmental policy; conducts studies, research, and analyses relating to ecological systems and environmental quality; and assists the President in the preparation of the annual environmental quality report to the Congress.

The Department of Agriculture (USDA) serves all Americans daily. It works to improve and maintain farm income and to develop and expand markets abroad for agricultural products. The Department helps to curb and to cure poverty, hunger, and malnutrition. It works to enhance the environment and to maintain our production capacity by helping landowners protect the soil, water, forests, and other natural resources. Rural development, credit, and conservation programs are key resources for carrying out national growth policies. USDA research findings directly or indirectly benefit all Americans. The Department, through inspection and grading services, safeguards and ensures standards of quality in the daily food supply.

The act of Congress approved May 15, 1862, created the Department of Agriculture, which was administered by a Commissioner of Agriculture until 1889 (12 Stat. 387; 5 U.S.C. 511, 514, 516). By act of February 9, 1889, the powers and duties of the Department were enlarged. The Department was made the eighth executive department in the Federal Government, and the Commissioner became the Secretary of Agriculture.

Staff Offices

Administration The Assistant Secretary for Administration serves as the principal adviser to the Secretary on all administrative management and related matters. Six departmental staff offices report to the Assistant Secretary and assist in providing staff support to top policy officials and program agencies to ensure the efficient and effective management and operation of the Department. These are the Office of Personnel, the Office of Finance and Management, the Office of Information Resources Management, the Office of Advocacy and Enterprise, and the Office of Operations. These offices coordinate the Department's personnel management program; equal opportunity and civil rights activities; safety and health activities; management improvement programs; accounting, fiscal, and financial activities; automated data processing administration; procurement and contracts; and management of real and personal property.

In addition, two quasi-judicial agencies, the Office of Administrative Law Judges and the Board of Contract Appeals, report to the Assistant Secretary. Both organizations operate autonomously when adjudicating cases and deciding contract disputes.

The Assistant Secretary for Administration serves as the Department's Director of Equal Employment Opportunity and oversees all equal opportunity and civil rights programs within USDA.

General Counsel The General Counsel is the principal legal adviser to the Secretary and is responsible for providing all legal advice and representation in the Department.

Inspector General The Office of Inspector General was established administratively by the Secretary of Agriculture in 1962. The Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. app.) created statutory inspectors general in the Department of Agriculture and a number of other Federal executive departments and independent agencies. The Inspector General conducts and supervises all audits and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the Department. The Office also is responsible for coordinating, conducting, or supervising all other activities carried out by the Department for the purpose of promoting program economy and efficiency and preventing and detecting fraud. The investigation of employee complaints, physical security of the Secretary, review of legislation and regulations for their impact on program efficiency and susceptibility to abuse, and relations with governmental and nongovernmental units concerning program efficiency and prevention of fraud also are responsibilities of the Office. The Office is headed by an Inspector General who is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

For further information, call 202-447-8091.

Office of Budget and Program Analysis The Office of Budget and Program Analysis coordinates the preparation of departmental budget estimates and legislative reports; administers systems for the management and control of funds; provides policy, program, and budgetary analysis of USDA proposals; and provides staff assistance to USDA agencies in meeting their responsibilities for the development and review of regulations.

Office of Governmental and Public Affairs The Office of Governmental and Public Affairs (GPA) provides policy direction, review, and coordination of all information programs of the Department. The Office is assigned responsibility for maintaining the flow of information and providing liaison between the Department of Agriculture and the Congress, the mass communication media, State and local governments, and the public.

Judicial Officer The Judicial Officer serves as the final deciding officer, in the place of the Secretary, in regulatory proceedings and appeals of a quasi-judicial nature where a hearing is statutorily required.

Small Community and Rural Development

Farmers Home Administration

[For the Farmers Home Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 7, Part 1800]

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), an agency within the Department of Agriculture, provides credit for those in rural America who are unable to get credit from other sources at reasonable rates and terms.

The Agency operates principally under the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921) and title V of the Housing Act of 1949 (42 U.S.C. 1471).

Applications for loans are made at the Agency's 2,200 local county and district offices, generally located in county seats. A county or area committee of three individuals, at least two of whom are farmers, certifies or recommends as to eligibility of individual farm loan applicants and reviews borrowers' progress.

The Farmers Home Administration makes loans from three revolving funds (Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund, Rural Housing Insurance Fund, Rural Development Insurance Fund) and with funds derived from sales to the Federal Financing Bank of Certificates of Beneficial Ownership, which represent actual loans made by the agency.

FmHA provides financial and management assistance through the following types of loans:

Operating Loans Operating loans are made to farmers who operate family-size farms and who cannot get the credit they need from conventional sources. They may be farming as individuals, joint operators, cooperatives, or corporations. Operating loan funds may be used to acquire needed resources, to make improved use of their land and labor resources, and to make adjustments necessary for successful farming and nonfarm enterprises. Funds may be advanced to pay for equipment, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer, other farm and home operating needs; refinance chattel debts; provide operating credit to fish farmers; carry out forestry purposes; and develop income-producing, nonfarm enterprises.

For loans made directly by FmHA, the interest rate is set periodically, based on the Federal Government's cost of borrowing. For loans made by other lenders and guaranteed by FmHA, the interest rate is negotiated between the lender and the borrower. The limit on farm operating loans made by FmHA is $200,000, and on guaranteed loans the limit is $400,000. Loans may be repaid over 1 to 7 years. Other reliable agricultural credit sources are encouraged to furnish as much as possible of the essential needs of loan applicants with the balance being supplied with operating loan funds from the Farmers Home Administration. Operating loan borrowers are expected to refinance their operating loans and return to conventional credit when able to do so.

Youth Project Loans FmHA makes loans to individual rural residents between 10 and 21 years of age to establish and operate income-producing enterprises of modest size, either on the farm or in other locations. The interest rate is determined by formula periodically. Repayment terms depend upon the type of project for which the loan is made.

Emergency Loans FmHA emergency loans are made to eligible farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture operators for losses arising from natural disasters. Only family-size farms qualify for these loans.

Each loan is scheduled for repayment as rapidly as feasible, in annual installments, consistent with the borrower's reasonable ability to pay. The schedule varies according to the purpose of the loan.

The interest rate for emergency loans offsetting actual losses is 5 percent on the first $100,000 loaned and 8 percent on the remainder. Loans are limited to $500,000 or 80 percent of actual losses.

Farm Ownership Loans Farm ownership loans enable farmers and ranchers to buy farms and owners of inadequate or underimproved farms to enlarge or develop farms. Loans are limited to farms that are not larger than family-size farms. Loans may include funds to construct or repair farm homes and service buildings and facilities; improve land; develop water, forestry, and fish farming resources; establish nonfarm enterprises to supplement farm income; and refinance debts.

Repayment is scheduled according to the borrower's ability to repay, but the maximum term is 40 years. The interest rate is set periodically, based on the cost of Government borrowing. The maximum for insured loans is $200,000 and for guaranteed loans $300,000. The loan may not exceed the market value of the farm or other security.

Loans to Limited-Resource Farmers FmHA makes loans to help low-income farmers and ranchers improve their farming and earn a better living. These loans are made on easier terms than ordinary farm loans and are intended to give the limited-resource farmer a chance to become more successful in farming.

Limited-resource farmers are owners or tenants of small farms yielding low production and low income due to factors such as lack of land, equipment, or opportunity to get necessary financing, or limited education in farming or management.

Loans to limited-resource farmers may be made for farm purchases or operating expenses. Loans for the purchase of farm real estate are made at lower interest rates. Production loans also are made at lower interest rates and evaluated every 2 years. The borrower pays an interest rate that he or she can afford as long as it is not less than the initial rate charged or more than the full rate ordinarily charged for FmHA farm loans. Repayment terms vary according to the purposes of the loan. While the needs of limited-resource farmers are usually well below FmHA's limits, the Agency can make a real estate loan and a production loan of up to $200,000 under this program.

Soil and Water Conservation Loans Loans are made to owners or operators of farms and ranches, including farming partnerships and domestic corporations to assist them in developing, conserving, and making proper use of their land and other resources. Loans are repayable in not more than 40 years. Loans may be made by FmHA or by other lenders with a FmHA guarantee.

Loans to Indian Tribes Loans to Indian tribes and tribal corporations are made for the acquisition of lands, including interests therein within the reservation or community. Loans are made for up to 40 years. The interest rate is set periodically, based on the cost of Government borrowing.

Loans to Associations Loans may be made to eligible groups of farmers and ranchers to carry out soil conservation measures and for shifts in land use to develop grazing areas and forest lands.

Rural Housing Loans Loans are made to families of low and moderate incomes for housing located in open country and small rural communities with populations of not more than 10,000 and in rural towns of 10,000 to 20,000 where there is a lack of housing mortgage credit. Loans are made to build, buy, and repair needed homes and to buy and improve building sites. The maximum term is 33 years. The basic interest rate is determined periodically. Cosigners on promissory notes are permitted in the case of applicants who are deficient in repayment ability.

Builders may obtain from the Agency "conditional commitments" that are assurances to a builder or seller that if their houses meet FmHA lending, design, and construction requirements, then the Agency will make loans to qualified borrowers to buy them.

An owner-occupant who cannot qualify for a regular rural housing loan may obtain a loan or, in the case of senior citizens, a grant of up to $5,000 to remove hazards to the health and safety of the family. These loans, available only to very low income families, are made at 1-percent interest.

Loans are made to private, nonprofit corporations, consumer cooperatives, State or local public agencies, and individuals or organizations operating on a profit or limited profit basis to provide rental or cooperative housing in rural areas for persons of low and moderate income. Maximum term is 50 years. Rental assistance may be given to help defray rent paid by low-income families.

Loans and grants are authorized for housing for farm laborers.

Loans repayable in 2 years are authorized to nonprofit organizations to purchase and develop land for resale as homesites for persons of low-to-moderate income.

Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Loans These loans enable local organizations approved by the Soil Conservation Service to finance projects that protect and develop land and water resources in small watersheds.

Loans may be repaid over 50 years at an interest rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. Total loans outstanding on any one watershed project may not exceed $5 million. Authority for these loans is contained in section 8 of the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act of 1964 (16 U.S.C. 1006a).

Resource Conservation and Development Loans These loans enable sponsors of projects approved for operation by the Soil Conservation Service to finance projects for natural resource conservation and development in designated areas. Such loans may be made for periods up to 30 years with repayment of principal and interest deferred up to 5 years, if necessary. Authority for these loans is contained in section 32(e) of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act (7 U.S.C. 1011(e)) and subtitle A of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921).

Community Facility Loans Loans are authorized to public and quasi-public bodies and nonprofit associations and to certain Indian tribes for essential community facilities, such as water and waste disposal systems and other facilities useful to the entire community. Necessary related equipment may also be purchased.

The interest rate is set periodically and is based on yields of municipal bonds. Water and waste disposal projects may serve residents of open country and rural towns of not more than 10,000 population. Community facility loans may be made in towns of up to 20,000.

Grants may be made for up to 75 percent of the cost for water and waste disposal projects when necessary to bring user costs to a reasonable level.

Business and Industry Loans The Agency is authorized to make or guarantee loans to public, private, or cooperative associations organized for profit or nonprofit; to certain Indian tribes or tribal groups; or to individuals for the purpose of improving, developing, or financing business, industry, and employment and improving the economic and environmental climate in rural communities.

The purpose is to develop business enterprises in rural areas and cities of up to 50,000 population, with priority to applications for projects in open country, rural communities and towns of 25,000 and smaller.

Private lenders initiate, process, close, service, and supervise guaranteed loans; the Farmers Home Administration guarantees a lender against loss on up to 90 percent of principal and interest. Interest rates are determined between borrower and lender.

Rural Electrification Administration

[For the Rural Electrification Administration statement of organization, see the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 7, Part 1702]

The Rural Electrification Administration (REA) is a credit agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture that assists rural electric and telephone utilities to obtain financing. This assistance may include loans from REA, guarantees of loans made by others, and REA approval of security arrangements that permit the borrower to obtain financing from other lenders without a guarantee. Approximately 1,000 rural electric and approximately 1,000 rural telephone utilities in 46 States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Rota, Saipan, and Tinian have received REA loans, loan guarantees, or other assistance from REA in obtaining financing to construct rural electric and telephone utility systems.

REA was established by Executive Order No. 7037 of May 11, 1935, as part of a general program of unemployment relief. REA was given statutory authority by the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C. 901–950b), as amended by an act of May 11, 1973, to permit REA to guarantee loans made by non-REA lenders.

The REA Administrator is appointed by the President subject to Senate confirmation.

Electric Program The Rural Electrification Act of 1936 (7 U.S.C 901–950b), as amended, established REA as a lending agency with responsibility for developing a program for rural electrification.

The act requires that preference be given to nonprofit and cooperative associations and to public bodies. With REA's assistance, rural electric utilities have obtained financing to construct electric generating plants and transmission and distribution lines to provide initial and continued adequate electric service to persons in rural areas.

Telephone Program In 1949 REA was authorized to make loans to improve and extend telephone service in rural areas. Congress directed that the rural telephone program be conducted to "assure the availability of adequate telephone service to the widest practicable number of rural users of such service." About 75 percent of the telephone systems financed by REA are commercial companies, and about 25 percent are subscriber-owned cooperatives.

REA Loans REA loans are made from the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund (RETRF), established in 1973 in the U.S. Treasury. By law, REA loans are made at a 5-percent interest rate. The REA Administrator may approve loans at interest rates as low as 2 percent where there is a finding of hardship.

Since 1973 REA has advanced more loan funds to its borrowers than it has received in payments on loans. The RETRF obtains the additional funds necessary to meet its interest expenses and advances on loans to borrowers through the U.S. Treasury, either from direct borrowing or through sales of beneficial ownership in borrowers' notes held in trust by REA. The interest rates on funds obtained from the Treasury are several points higher than interest rates charged to borrowers.

REA Loan Guarantees REA also guarantees loans made by other lenders, mainly for large-scale electric and telephone facilities. Guarantees are considered if such loans could have been made by REA under the Rural Electrification Act, and may be obtained from any legally organized lending agency qualified to make, hold, and service the loan. All policies and procedures of REA are applicable to a guaranteed loan. In 1974 REA entered into an agreement with the Federal Financing Bank (FFB), whereby FFB agreed to purchase obligations guaranteed by the REA Administrator. REA acts as the agent for the FFB and all borrower dealings are with REA. In 1981 the Rural Electrification Act was amended to require FFB to make loans under an REA guarantee if requested to do so by a borrower with such a guarantee. Most loans received by REA borrowers under guarantee are provided by FFB.

Supplemental Financing A 1973 amendment of the Rural Electrification Act states that it is the policy of Congress that "rural electric and telephone systems should be encouraged and assisted to develop their resources and ability to achieve the financial strength needed to enable them to satisfy their credit needs from their own financial organizations and other sources."

When REA approves electric loans it requires most borrowers to obtain 30 percent of their loan needs from non-REA sources without an REA guarantee. These non-REA sources include the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC), which was formed by and is owned by electric cooperatives, the Bank for Cooperatives, and other sources.

Telephone borrowers obtain supplemental financing from the Rural Telephone Bank (RTB), an agency of the United States that was established in 1971. RTB loans are made in preference to REA loans to telephone systems able to meet RTB's requirements. Bank loans are made for the same purposes as loans made by REA but bear interest at a rate consistent with the Bank's cost of money.

The Rural Telephone Bank is managed by a 13-member board of directors. The Administrator of REA serves as Governor of the Bank until conversion to private ownership, control, and operation. This will take place when 51 percent of the Class A stock issued to the United States and outstanding at any time after September 30, 1995, has been fully redeemed and retired. The Bank board holds at least four regularly scheduled meetings a year. Activities of the Bank are carried out by REA employees and the Office of the General Counsel of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Federal Crop Insurance Corporation

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) was created within the Department of Agriculture under title V of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, cited as the Federal Crop Insurance Act, approved February 16, 1938 (52 Stat. 72; 7 U.S.C. 1501), as amended.

The primary goal of FCIC is to improve the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance.

All capital stock of FCIC is owned by the United States. The management of FCIC is vested in the Board of Directors, subject to the general supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture. A manager, appointed by the Secretary, is charged with running the day-to-day operations of the Corporation and providing policy leadership to achieve the Corporation's goals.

The Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 1312; 7 U.S.C. 1501) lifted many of the previous limitations that restricted the growth of the crop insurance program. The most significant areas affected by the act of 1980 are the expansion of crop insurance availability and the number of crops eligible, and changes in the delivery system.

For 1985, crop insurance is available for 42 crops in over 3,000 counties in 49 States. Crop insurance is available in all of the counties formerly covered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) low-yield disaster payments.

The program delivery system has been shifted largely to the private sector to comply with the mandate in the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980. The act requires that, to the maximum extent possible, the Corporation contract with private insurance companies and encourage the sale through licensed agents and brokers. In response to the congressional mandate, the Corporation now offers insurance through two basic delivery systems: Sales and Service Agencies (Master Marketers) and private insurance companies that it reinsures. Compensation rates are different under each sales agreement because the amount of risk assumed and service provided under each delivery system is different. Master Marketers provide management, supervision of at least 25 or more agents, and contract servicing, with the exception of loss adjustment. All loss adjustment and claims functions on policies sold by Master Marketers are carried out by FCIC, as well as many other activities, including agent and loss adjuster training, marketing services, and quality control. Reinsured companies offer crop insurance under their own brand names and provide marketing, distribution, servicing, training, quality control, premium collection, and loss adjustment functions. The Corporation reinsures these companies against extraordinary operational and actuarial losses. In certain areas of the country where an adequate private sales and service force is not available, FCIC will utilize the services of ASCS county offices.

Federal Crop Insurance covers unavoidable production losses due to any adverse weather conditions including drought, excessive rain, hail, wind, hurricanes, tornadoes, and lightning. It also covers unavoidable losses due to insect infestation, plant disease, floods, fires, and earthquakes.

Crop insurance does not cover losses due to neglect, poor farming practices, or theft. Nor does it cover financial losses resulting from low prices received for farm products. Participation in the program is voluntary and the producer must pay a premium for the protection.

The flexibility of crop insurance policies offers choices of guaranteed yield amounts and prices to be paid on each bushel or pound of loss. The cost of insurance, which is a fully deductible business expense, depends on the level of protection selected. Farmers can insure their crops for 50, 65, or 75 percent of yield. If their harvest is less than the insured level because of natural conditions, the insurance pays the difference. Farmers select their own rate of payment by electing one of the three levels of payment when they buy the insurance. Growers get special low-cost premium rates because the Government pays 30 percent of the premium cost up to the 65-percent coverage level.

Crop insurance is now more specifically tailored to the individual farmer's needs by the Actual Production History (APH) Program. APH allows yield guarantees based upon the individual's verifiable production history.

APH is being extended to all basic crops and gives greater credit for higher yields, thus making it more attractive for productive farmers to elect crop insurance coverage.

The Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 directs the Corporation to develop an actuarially sound system of insurance so that the premiums will cover indemnities paid and build a reasonable premium reserve.

Administrative and other costs are financed by annual appropriations. Premium rates vary throughout the Nation and even within counties reflecting differences in productivity and the risk of loss.

Marketing and Inspection Services

Agricultural Cooperative Service

The Agricultural Cooperative Service helps farmers to help themselves through the use of cooperative organizations. Studies are conducted to support cooperatives that market farm products, purchase production supplies, and perform related business services. These studies concentrate on the financial, organizational, legal, social, and economic aspects of cooperative activity in U.S. agriculture. The Service provides technical assistance and research to improve cooperative performance in organizing new cooperatives, the merits of merging cooperatives, the changing business structure, and developing strategies for growth. Applied research is conducted to give farmers relevant and expert assistance pertaining to their cooperatives.

The Service also collects and publishes basic statistics regarding the role and scope of cooperative activity in U.S. agriculture. Its monthly magazine, Farmer Cooperatives, reports current developments and research for cooperative management.

For further information, contact the Agricultural Cooperative Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250. Phone, 202–447–8870.

Agricultural Marketing Service

The Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) was established by the Secretary of Agriculture on April 2, 1972, under the authority of Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953 (67 Stat. 633) and other authorities. AMS administers standardization, grading, inspection, market news, marketing orders, and research and regulatory programs.

Market News This Service provides current, unbiased information to producers, processors, distributors, and others to assist them in the orderly marketing and distribution of farm commodities. Information is collected on supplies, demand, prices, movement, location, quality, condition, and other market data on farm products in specific markets and marketing areas. The data is disseminated nationally via a modern satellite system.

Standardization, Grading, Classing, and Testing AMS develops grade standards for agricultural commodities to help buyers and sellers trade on agreed-upon quality levels. U.S. grade standards have been established for more than 300 agricultural products. Standards are developed with the benefit of views from those in the industries directly affected and others interested. Grading and classing services also are provided to certify the grade and quality of products. These services are provided to buyers and sellers of live cattle, swine, sheep, meat, poultry, eggs, rabbits, fruits, vegetables, tree nuts, peanuts, dairy products, tobacco, wool, and mohair. Classing and testing services are provided to buyers and sellers of cotton and cotton products. These services are mainly voluntary and are provided upon request and for a fee. AMS also is responsible for the certification of turpentine and other naval stores products, and the standardization and testing of seed.

Food Quality Assurance Under a Government-wide quality assurance program, AMS is responsible for the development and revision of specifications used by Federal agencies in food procuring for military and civilian uses. AMS coordinates and approves certification programs designed to ensure that purchased products conform to the specification requirements.

Section 32 Programs Under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U.S.C. 612c), 30 percent of customs receipts collected during each calendar year are automatically appropriated for expanding outlets for various commodities. Portions of these funds are transferred to the Food and Nutrition Service of USDA and to the Department of Commerce. Remaining funds are used to purchase commodities for the National School Lunch Program and other feeding programs, for diversion to other outlets, and for administering agreement and order programs.

Regulatory Programs AMS administers several regulatory programs designed collectively to protect producers, handlers, and consumers of agricultural commodities from financial loss or personal injury resulting from careless, deceptive, or fraudulent marketing practices.

AMS regulatory programs encourage fair trading practices in the marketing of fruits and vegetables (Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 46 Stat. 531; 7 U.S.C. 499a–499s); require truth in seed labeling and advertising (Federal Seed Act, 53 Stat. 1275; 7 U.S.C. 1551-1611), cover the licensing, bonding, and examination of warehouses operating under provisions of the U.S. Warehouse Act (7 U.S.C. 241–273) and the examination of warehouses operating under storage agreements or contracts with the Commodity Credit Corporation; and protect farmers' rights to organize cooperatives (Agricultural Fair Practices Act, 82 Stat. 93; 7 U.S.C. 2301–2306).

Under the Egg Products Inspection Act (84 Stat. 1620 et seq.; 21 U.S.C. 1031-1056), AMS provides mandatory inspection for wholesomeness in all plants processing liquid, dried, or frozen egg products, and controls the disposition of restricted shell eggs—eggs that are a potential health hazard.

Marketing Agreements and Orders These programs, under authority of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), help to establish and maintain orderly marketing conditions for certain commodities. Milk marketing orders establish minimum prices that handlers or distributors are required to pay producers. Programs for fruits, vegetables, and related specialty crops like nuts and spearmint oil help stabilize supplies and market prices. In some cases, they also authorize research and market development activities, including advertising supported by assessments that handlers pay. Through orderly marketing, adjusting the supply to demand, and avoiding unreasonable fluctuations during the marketing season, the income of producers is increased by normal market forces, and consumer interests are protected through quality and quantity control.

AMS does not seek to impose these programs upon farm industries. Instead, the agency furnishes technical guidance to farmers and handlers who want to make use of the programs. In carrying out the Government role, AMS ensures that persons interested in the development and operation of the programs have a fair hearing and that each marketing order works according to Federal law and established rules and guidelines.

Plant Variety Protection Program Under authority of the Plant Variety Protection Act (7 U.S.C. 2321 et seq.), AMS administers a program that provides for the issuance of "certificates of plant variety protection." These certificates afford developers of novel varieties of sexually reproduced plants exclusive rights to sell, reproduce, import, or export such varieties, or use them in the production of hybrids or different varieties for a period of 18 years.

Research and Promotion Programs AMS monitors certain industry-sponsored research, promotion, and information programs authorized by Federal laws. These programs provide farmers with a means to finance and operate various research, promotion, and information activities for cotton, potatoes, eggs, milk and dairy products, beef, pork, wheat, wool, lamb, and mohair.

Other Marketing Services Other marketing service activities of AMS include financial grants to States for marketing improvement projects. AMS also has responsibility for the conduct of studies of the facilities and methods used in the physical distribution of food and other farm products; for research designed to improve the handling of all agricultural products as they move from farm to consumers; and for increasing marketing efficiency by developing improved operating methods, facilities, and equipment for processing, handling, and distributing dairy, poultry, and meat products.

Field Organization AMS programs and activities in the field are carried out through a variety of different types of organizations reporting to their respective Washington components.

For further information, contact the Information Staff, Agricultural Marketing Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250. Phone, 202-447-8999.

Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service

[For the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 7, Part 371]

The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) was reestablished by the Secretary of Agriculture March 14, 1977, pursuant to authority contained in 5 U.S.C. 301 and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953.

APHIS was established to conduct regulatory and control programs to protect and improve animal and plant health for the benefit of man and the environment. In cooperation with State governments, the Service administers Federal laws and regulations pertaining to animal and plant health and quarantine, humane treatment of animals, and the control and eradication of pests and diseases.

Plant Protection and Quarantine Programs Plant protection officials are responsible for programs to control or eradicate plant pests and diseases. These programs are carried out in cooperation with the States involved, other Federal agencies, farmers, and private organizations. Programs are carried out in cooperation with Canada, Mexico, and other nations when the pest is a joint problem or presents a threat to this country. Pest control programs use a single tool or a combination of pest control techniques, both chemical and nonchemical, which are both effective and safe.

Agricultural quarantine inspection officials administer Federal regulations that prohibit or restrict the entry of foreign pests and plants, plant products, animal products and byproducts, and other materials that may harbor pests. Inspection service is maintained at all major ocean, air, border, and interior ports of entry in the continental United States and in Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, American Virgin Islands, Bahamas, and Bermuda. Services also are provided on a regular or on-call basis at some 500 outlying ports and military installations throughout the country. In addition, inspectors work in several foreign countries. Other responsibilities include the inspection and certification of domestic commodities for export, regulation of the import and export of endangered plant species, and ensuring that imported seed is free of noxious weeds.

Veterinary Services Programs Veterinary Services officials are responsible for determining the existence and extent of outbreaks of communicable diseases and pests affecting livestock and poultry. They organize and conduct control and eradication programs in cooperation with State officials, and cooperate with animal health officials in other countries in planning and conducting disease control efforts in those countries. Veterinary Services officials maintain inspection and quarantine service at designated ports of entry for imported animals and birds. They are responsible for the health certification of livestock and poultry exported to other countries. Veterinary Services also administers Federal laws concerned with the humane handling of livestock and poultry in interstate commerce and governing the transportation, sale, and handling of dogs, cats, circus and zoo animals, and other animals intended to be sold at the wholesale level or to be used in laboratory research or for exhibition. Veterinary Services is responsible for enforcement of the Horse Protection Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1404; 15 U.S.C. 1821 note), a Federal law that prohibits soring of horses shipped interstate to be shown or sold.

Veterinary Services officials are also responsible for administering a Federal law intended to ensure that all biological products produced for use in the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of animal diseases are pure, safe, potent, and effective. This responsibility is met through a program regulating biologics manufacturers that produce products subject to the act. This includes licensing the manufacturing establishment and its products; inspecting production facilities and production methods; and testing surveillance by Veterinary Services.

Animal Damage Control Animal Damage Control officials cooperate with States, counties, local communities, and agricultural producer groups to reduce crop and livestock depredations caused by birds, rodents, and predators. The officials conduct research into predator-prey relationships, new control methods, and more efficient and safe uses of present methods such as toxicants, repellants and attractants, biological controls, scare devices, and habitat alteration. Using methods and techniques that are biologically sound, environmentally acceptable, and economically feasible, they participate in efforts to educate and advise farmers and ranchers on proper uses of control methods and techniques; they suppress serious nuisances and threats to public health and safety caused by birds, rodents, and other wildlife in urban and rural communities; and they work with airport managers to reduce risks of bird strikes.

Federal Grain Inspection Service

The Federal Grain Inspection Service (FGIS) was established in the U.S. Department of Agriculture on November 20, 1976. The primary task of the agency is to carry out the provisions of the U.S. Grain Standards Act (7 U.S.C. 71 et seq.), to ensure integrity in the inspection, weighing, and handling of American grain. An Administrator, appointed by the President and subject to Senate confirmation, heads the agency.

FGIS is responsible for establishing official U.S. standards for grain and other assigned commodities and administrating a nationwide system of official inspection and weighing. In addition to FGIS, private and State agencies may, upon application, be authorized to perform official services under the authority contained in the Act.

FGIS is headquartered in Washington, DC, with most employees working in field offices around the Nation.

Inspection The U.S. Grain Standards Act requires that, with some exceptions, all U.S. export grain be officially inspected. At export port locations, inspection is performed by FGIS or by State agencies that have been delegated export inspection authority by the Administrator.

For domestic grain, marketed at inland locations, the Administrator designates private and State agencies to provide official inspection services on request and payment of a fee.

To ensure that the official U.S. grain standards are applied uniformly nationwide, FGIS field offices provide oversight, guidance, and assistance to non-Federal agencies performing inspection activities, both at export and inland inspection points.

Buyers and sellers dissatisfied with inspection results can request appeal inspections, first from a FGIS field office and then, if desired, from the Board of Appeals and Review. A quality control program provides for the monitoring of the national inspection system, ensuring that all field locations apply uniformly the U.S. grain standards.

Weighing At export port locations, official weighing is performed by FGIS or by State agencies that have been delegated export weighing authority by the Administrator.

For domestic grain marketed at inland locations, the weighing services may be provided by FGIS or by designated private or State agencies. Such services would be provided on request and payment of a fee.

As with inspection, FGIS field offices provide oversight, guidance, and assistance to non-Federal agencies performing official weighing activities. Through support from the Association of American Railroads and user fees, FGIS conducts a railroad track scale testing program.

Standardization Establishing and maintaining official U.S. standards, when needed, is the responsibility of FGIS. Such standards exist for corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, flaxseed, sorghum, soybeans, triticale, and mixed grain. FGIS has been given authority to perform applied research for the purpose of developing methods to improve accuracy and uniformity in grading grain.

When the Secretary of Agriculture established FGIS, he assigned the agency standardization and inspection responsibilities for rice, dry beans, peas, lentils, hay, straw, and hops under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 1082; 7 U.S.C. 1621), as amended.

Food Safety and Inspection Service

The Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) was established by the Secretary of Agriculture June 17, 1981, pursuant to authority contained in 5 U.S.C. 301 and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953. The Service is responsible for ensuring that meat and poultry products moving in interstate and foreign commerce for human consumption are safe, wholesome, and accurately labeled.

Meat and Poultry Inspection Federal inspection is provided for all meat, poultry, and related products processed by plants shipping in interstate and foreign commerce as mandated by law. The work includes inspection of poultry and animals at the time of slaughter and of processed products during various stages of production and handling to assure wholesomeness of products and truthfulness in labeling. Plant facilities and equipment are checked for adherence to Federal sanitation standards. Federal inspectors also conduct surveillance of foreign inspection systems and establishments producing meat and poultry products for export to the United States (21 U.S.C. 451-470 and 601-691).

Other activities include:

Monitoring livestock slaughter activities to ensure that humane slaughter techniques are effectively applied under the Humane Slaughter Act (7 U.S.C. 1901-1906);

Providing voluntary Meat and Poultry Inspection and Certification Service relating to wholesomeness of edible products not subject to Federal meat inspection laws and certification of meat and poultry products for use as food for dogs, cats, and other carnivores (7 U.S.C. 1622, 1624); and Cooperating with State agencies in the performance of meat and poultry inspection in federally inspected establishments (7 U.S.C. 450).

For further information, contact the Director of Information and Legislative Affairs, Food Safety and Inspection Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250. Phone, 202-447-7943.

Office of Transportation

The Office of Transportation (OT) is responsible for formulating agricultural transportation policy in USDA and promoting an efficient transportation system that improves farm income, expands exports, and meets the needs of rural America. The Office carries out its programs under the following legislation: Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 31; 7 U.S.C. 1281); Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 1087; 7 U.S.C. 1621); Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 454; 7 U.S.C. 1691); Rural Development Act of 1972 (86 Stat. 657; 7 U.S.C. 1921 note); International Carriage of Perishable Foodstuffs Act (96 Stat. 1603; 7 U.S.C. 4401); Cooperative Marketing Act of 1926 (44 Stat. 802, 803; 7 U.S.C. 451-457).

OT has four major program areas:

Transport System Performance The Office of Transportation assists the agricultural community in solving domestic and/or international transportation problems and represents farmers and agricultural shippers before the various regulatory agencies to help them obtain equitable transportation rates and services. OT also performs economic analyses designed to develop USDA policy recommendations for addressing current or anticipated problems in agricultural transportation and for assisting agricultural shippers and receivers in resolving issues of transportation services.

Rural Transportation Development The Office of Transportation facilitates educational activities and assists State and community leaders in fostering local, State, and Federal partnerships for the identification and solution of transportation problems affecting rural communities.

International Transportation Development The Office of Transportation assists agricultural exporters in developing foreign market opportunities by trying to reduce international transportation barriers and by assisting exporters achieve improved transportation rates and services for U.S. agricultural products to reach foreign markets.

Physical Distribution Systems The Office of Transportation conducts technical research and development concerned with transporting and handling agricultural products to domestic and overseas destinations. The Office's activities are designed to extend technological innovations to the needs of the agriculture and transportation industries and consumers.

Packers and Stockyards Administration

[For the Packers and Stockyards Administration statement of organization, see the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 9, Part 204]

The Packers and Stockyards Administration administers the provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act of 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181-229), as amended; the Truth in Lending and Fair Credit Billing Acts (15 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.); and the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (15 U.S.C. 1691 et seq.) with respect to firms subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The Packers and Stockyards Act is an antitrust, trade practice, and financial protection law. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition and fair trade practices in livestock, meat, and poultry for the protection of livestock and poultry producers. Members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair or monopolistic practices of competitors. The act also protects consumers against unfair business practices in marketing of meats and poultry and against restrictions of competition that could unduly raise meat and poultry prices.

The provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act are enforced by investigations of complaints and violations of the act with emphasis on detecting instances of commercial bribery, fraud in livestock marketing and false weighing; requiring adequate bond coverage for commission firms, dealers, and packers; and the surveillance of marketing methods at public markets and in geographical market areas of the country.

Food and Consumer Services

Food and Nutrition Service

[For the Food and Nutrition Service statement of organization, see the Federal Register of June 6, 1970, 35 FR 8835]

The Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) is the agency of the Department that administers the programs to make food assistance available to people who need it. These programs are operated in cooperation with States and local governments.

FNS was established on August 8, 1969, by the Secretary of Agriculture, under authority of 5 U.S.C. 301 and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953.

Family Nutrition Program Principal of these food assistance activities is the Food Stamp Program, which, through State and local welfare agencies, provides food coupons to needy persons to increase their food purchasing power so they may feed their families properly. The coupons are used by program participants to buy food in any retail store that has been approved by FNS to accept and redeem the food coupons.

Special Nutrition Programs FNS administers several programs designed to improve the nutrition of children, and particularly those who come from low-income families.

Principal of these is the National School Lunch Program that provides financial assistance to public and nonprofit private schools of high school grade and under, with tuitions of $1,500 or less, in operating nonprofit school lunch programs.

The School Breakfast Program provides cash assistance to State educational agencies to help schools in operating nonprofit breakfast programs meeting established nutritional standards. It is especially important in improving the diets of needy children who may receive breakfast free or at reduced prices.

The Summer Food Service Program for Children helps to get nutritious meals to needy preschool and school-aged children in schools, residential summer camps, or during vacations in areas operating under a continuous school calendar. Through grants-in-aid, States can initiate, maintain, and expand nonprofit food service programs for children through cooperating service institutions.

The Child Care Food Program is a companion activity that helps to get nutritious meals to preschool and school-aged children in child care facilities. Through grants-in-aid States can initiate, maintain, or expand nonprofit food service programs for children in institutions providing child care.

The Special Milk Program for Children, administered in schools and institutions that do not participate in any other Federal food program, is designed to help child nutrition by paying a share of the cost of increased servings of fluid milk made to children.

Food Distribution The Food Distribution Program makes foods available, in kind, to eligible recipients. Foods purchased by the Department are made available principally to children in school lunch and breakfast programs, in summer camps and child care centers, and to the nutrition program for the elderly. Also, dairy products and certain other commodities are being distributed to needy families through food banks, charitable institutions, and local government agencies.

The program on Indian reservations provides Indians on or near reservations with access to a wide range of donated foods, including meat, fruit, vegetables, and dairy and grain products.

Supplemental Food Programs The Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children—the WIC Program—provides specified nutritious food supplements to pregnant and nursing women up to 6 months postpartum, and to children up to 5 years of age. Participants are determined by competent professionals (physicians, nutritionists, nurses, and other health officials) to be health risks because of inadequate nutrition and low income.

Cash grants are made available to participating State health departments or comparable State agencies, or recognized Indian tribes, bands, or groups. The State agencies distribute funds to the local agencies, and the funds are used to provide foods for WIC recipients and to pay specified administrative and clinical costs.

Commodity Supplemental Food Program The Commodity Supplemental Food Program provides supplemental foods to infants and children and to pregnant, postpartum, and breastfeeding women with low incomes who are vulnerable to malnutrition and reside in approved project areas. The Department purchases the foods for distribution through State agencies.

Nutrition Education and Training Under this program funds are granted to the States for the dissemination of nutrition information to children and for in-service training of food service and teaching personnel.

No person may be discriminated against—in the operation of any of the programs administered by the Food and Nutrition Service—because of race, color, sex, creed, national origin, or handicap.

For further information, contact the Public Information Officer, Food and Nutrition Service, Department of Agriculture, Alexandria, VA 22302. Phone, 703–756–3276.

Human Nutrition Information Service

The Human Nutrition Information Service (HNIS) performs research in human nutrition to improve professional and public understanding of the nutritional adequacy of diets and food supplies as well as the nutritive value of food. It helps develop knowledge needed to improve the nutritional quality of diets, thereby improving the general health of the American public.

Activities in HNIS fall into two broad categories: research, analysis, and technical assistance; and information collection and dissemination. The National Food Consumption Surveys monitor food and nutrient consumption of households and individuals in the United States. The Nutrient Data Bank compiles information on the nutritive value of foods and publishes representative values in Agriculture Handbook No. 8, Composition of Foods. Additional activities include nutrition education research, dissemination of information through technical and nontechnical publications, machine-readable forms, professional journals, and responses to individual requests.

For further information, contact the Human Nutrition Information Service, Department of Agriculture, Hyattsville, MD 20782. Phone, 301–436–7725.

Office of Consumer Advisor

The Office of Consumer Advisor (OCA) serves as the focal point for coordinating USDA actions on problems and issues of importance to consumers. The Office consults and advises USDA policymakers on issues and questions of importance to consumers; represents the Department in policy discussions related to consumer-oriented issues before Congress, in meetings with other departments and agencies, and in various public forums; monitors the policies, practices, and procedures of USDA programs in the area of consumer affairs; assists in informing consumers of USDA's functions, policies, and procedures so that consumers may know where services are to be found, what regulations consist of, and how to participate in these activities; develops and monitors procedures for handling consumer complaints and followup actions; and analyzes consumer complaints for policy and program evaluation purposes.

For further information, contact the Office of Consumer Advisor, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250. Phone, 202–382–9681.

International Affairs and Commodity Programs

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) was established June 5, 1961, by the Secretary of Agriculture under authority of revised statutes (5 U.S.C. 301), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, as well as all other statutes and prior reorganization plans vesting authority in the Secretary of Agriculture.

ASCS is the agency of the Department of Agriculture that administers commodity and related land use programs designed for voluntary production adjustment, resource protection, and price, market, and farm income stabilization.

In each State, operations are supervised by a State committee of three to five members appointed by the Secretary. A State Executive Director, appointed by the Secretary, and staff carry on day-to-day operations of the State office. The State Director of the Agricultural Extension Service is an ex officio member of the State committee.

In each of approximately 3,080 agricultural counties, a county committee of three farmer members is responsible for local administration. While two are held over, one is elected yearly, either directly by farmers or by farmer-elected delegates, to a county convention. The county agricultural Extension agent is a nonvoting ex officio member or secretary of the county committee. A county executive director, with other necessary staff, is employed to carry on day-to-day operations of the county office, usually located in the county seat.

Commodity Programs ASCS administers the Commodity Credit Corporation's (CCC) commodity stabilization programs for wheat, corn, cotton (upland and extra long staple), seed cotton, soybeans, peanuts, rice, tobacco, milk, wool, mohair, barley, oats, sugarbeets, sugarcane, grain sorghum, rye, and honey.

Commodity stabilization is achieved through commodity loans, purchases, and payments to eligible producers.

For most commodities, loans are made directly to producers on the unprocessed commodity through ASCS county offices. Some commodities are also purchased from producers. Price support loans and purchases also can be made available through cooperative marketing associations. The price of milk is stabilized through purchases of processed dairy products. Price stabilization programs for tobacco and peanuts are carried out through loans to producer associations that, in turn, make program benefits available to producers. Stabilization of sugarbeet and sugarcane prices is carried out through loans to sugar processors, who in turn make program benefits available to producers.

Loans to producers, except for seed cotton, are "nonrecourse." If market prices rise above loan levels, producers or their agents can pay off their loans and market their commodity. If market prices fail to rise above loan levels, producers or their agents can forfeit or deliver the commodity to CCC, thereby discharging their obligations in full.

Commodity stabilization for wool and mohair is accomplished through the National Wool Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 910; 7 U.S.C. 1781 note) by making payments to producers to bring the national average price received by all producers up to a support level required by the act.

Indemnity Program The Dairy Indemnity Payment Program provides indemnity payments to dairy farmers whose milk has been removed from the commercial market because it contained residues of chemicals or toxic substances, including nuclear radiation or fallout.

Eligibility for commodity loans, purchases, and payments is, in most cases, conditional upon participation in acreage reduction, paid-land diversion, payment-in-kind (PIK), allotment, or quota programs in effect for the particular crop.

Under the Food Security Act of 1985 (99 Stat. 1354; 7 U.S.C. 1281 note), payments are limited to an annual ceiling of $50,000 per person on the total payments of upland cotton, extra long staple cotton, wheat, rice, and feed grain programs for the 1986 through 1990 crops.

The 1986 Production Adjustment Program requires acreage reductions of 20 percent for feed grains, 35 percent for rice, 25 percent for upland cotton, and 10 percent for extra long staple cotton. These reductions include a 2.5-percent land diversion for wheat and feed grain producers. Advance payments of 40 percent of projected deficiency payments will be made in the form of 75 percent cash and 25 percent in payment-in-kind or commodity certificates.

Emergency Assistance Emergency assistance programs offered farmers in emergency-designated areas may include any or all of the following:

Furnishing CCC-owned feed grains and wheat to eligible livestock producers when available at reduced prices, and, in some instances, by donation of feed grains;

Cost-sharing with farmers who carry out emergency conservation practices to rehabilitate farmland damaged by natural disaster; and

Allowing haying and grazing on acreage diverted to conserving uses under the commodity programs on a county-by-county basis, as needed, in the event of drought or excess moisture.

Farm Facility Loan Program Under the Farm Facility Loan Program, CCC offers loans to producers needing on-farm storage for various agricultural commodities. New loans are not being made at present because current on-farm storage is considered adequate.

Dairy Termination Program This program gives the producer the opportunity to terminate milk production and dispose of his whole herd by selling for slaughter or export all the female dairy cattle in which he has a financial interest.

Farmer-Owned Reserve Program This program, authorized for farmer-owned wheat, corn, grain sorghum, oats, and barley under the Food Security Act of 1985, provides 3-year extended loans to producers, who receive annual storage payments under the contract. Program provisions stipulate when interest is charged and provide a release price at which storage payments cease and producers may repay their loans. A new Special Producer Storage Loan Program will allow the producer to obtain a new loan for an additional year. Producers will receive annual advance storage payments at the same rates currently earned under the reserve program and may repay the loan at any time during the 1-year period.

ASCS also administers programs prescribed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency as a result of a Presidential declaration of disaster or emergency.

ASCS is responsible for defense preparedness plans and programs relating to food production, conservation, and stabilization; food processing, storage, and wholesale distribution; controlled distribution of farm machinery, equipment and repair parts, distribution of fertilizer, feed, and seed; and the handling, storage, and distribution of all grains before export or processing.

ASCS also provides services relating to expansion of productive capacity, materials, and facilities under the Defense Production Act of 1950 (64 Stat. 798; 50 U.S.C. 2061), as amended; plans for management, control, and allocation of water to be used for agricultural production and food processing; consolidates all claims for material, labor, equipment, supplies, and services needed to support the defense responsibilities of USDA; and guarantees payments or makes loans, as needed, for the continuation of food and agriculture activities in a national defense emergency.

ASCS provides the accounting and budget support for the General Sales Manager of the Foreign Agricultural Service in administering CCC export credit sales and guarantee programs and Food for Peace programs.

To carry out the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) of 1978 (92 Stat. 1263; 7 U.S.C. 3501), the Department assigned ASCS the primary responsibility of collecting information through a reporting system involving all States and most counties.

ASCS assesses penalties on late filed information and refusals to file. The Administrator of ASCS rules on appeals resulting from penalties assessed for violations of the AFIDA.

Resource Conservation Programs The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), authorized by the Food Security Act of 1985, conserves and improves soil and water resources on highly erodible cropland. The program participant establishes and maintains a cover of grass or trees, implements a conservation plan, reduces the acreage bases, allotments, and quotas for the 10-year contract period, and does not allow grazing or harvesting on the land.

The Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP) provides cost-sharing of up to 80 percent with farmers to carry out needed conservation and environmental measures under annual and long-term agreements. The emphases of the program are to meet some of the more pressing farm-related conservation and environmental problems; to practice long-range preservation of the environment, which will provide substantial benefits to the public at the least possible cost; and to increase forest production.

The Forestry Incentives Program (FIP), authorized in 1973, provides cost-sharing for tree planting and timber stand improvement with private landowners. The Federal share of these costs ranges up to 65 percent. The maximum cost-share is $10,000 annually. The aims of the program are to increase production of timber and to improve the environment.

The Water Bank Program, authorized in 1970, provides that persons having eligible wetlands in important migratory waterfowl nesting, breeding, and feeding areas could enter into 10-year agreements and receive annual payments for preventing the serious loss of wetlands and for preserving, restoring, and improving inland fresh water and designated adjacent areas.

The Experimental Rural Clean Water Program (RCWP), authorized in agricultural appropriations legislation for 1980 (93 Stat. 821) and 1981 (94 Stat. 3095), provides cost-sharing and technical assistance for installing measures that control nonpoint source pollution and improve water quality in rural America. The Federal cost-share level for project areas is not to exceed 75 percent unless waived. The participants enter into long-term (3 to 10 years) contracts with the Government.

Commodity Credit Corporation

The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) was organized October 17, 1933, pursuant to Executive Order 6340 of October 16, 1933, under the laws of the State of Delaware, as an agency of the United States. From October 17, 1933, to July 1, 1939, CCC was managed and operated in close affiliation with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. On July 1, 1939, CCC was transferred to the Department of Agriculture by the President's Reorganization Plan No. I of 1939. Approval of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act on June 29, 1948 (62 Stat. 1070; 15 U.S.C. 714), subsequently amended, established CCC, effective July 1, 1948, as an agency and instrumentality of the United States under a permanent Federal charter.

The purpose of CCC is to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, to assist in maintaining balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities and their products, and to facilitate the orderly distribution of commodities.

CCC is managed by a board of directors, subject to the general supervision and direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, who is an ex officio director and chairman of the board. The board consists of seven members (in addition to the Secretary of Agriculture), who are appointed by the President of the United States.

The Corporation is capitalized at $100 million and has statutory authority to borrow up to $25 billion from the U.S. Treasury.

CCC utilizes the personnel and facilities of ASCS and, in certain foreign assistance operations, the Foreign Agricultural Service to carry out its activities.

A commodity office in Kansas City, MO, has specific responsibilities for the acquisition, handling, storage, and disposal of commodities and products held by CCC.

Commodity Stabilization CCC loan, purchase, and/or payment programs are administered by ASCS for wheat, corn, upland and extra-long staple cotton, peanuts, rice, tobacco, milk, wool, mohair, honey, barley, oats, grain sorghum, rye, soybeans, sugarbeets, and sugarcane.

Commodities acquired under the stabilization program are disposed of through domestic and export sales, transfers to other Government agencies, and donations for domestic and foreign welfare use. CCC also is authorized to exchange surplus agricultural commodities it has acquired by CCC for strategic and other materials and services produced abroad.

Foreign Assistance Under Public Law 480, the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, CCC carries out assigned foreign assistance activities, such as financing the sale of agricultural commodities abroad using favorable credit terms. Major emphasis is also being directed toward meeting the needs of developing nations under the Food for Peace Act of 1966 that further amends the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954. Under these authorities, agricultural commodities are procured and exported to combat hunger and malnutrition and to encourage economic development in the developing countries.

CCC also finances export sales of commodities through short-term and intermediate credit sales programs and encourages U.S. financial institutions to provide financing to developing countries under the Export Credit Guarantee Program. The Foreign Agricultural Service Administers the program under titles I and II of Public Law 480 and the CCC Export Credit and Guarantee Programs.

Foreign Agricultural Service

The Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) is the export promotion and service agency for the Department of Agriculture. It was created in 1953 (7 CFR, Part 1520) to stimulate overseas markets for U.S. agricultural products.

FAS fulfills its role as the promotional agency for the world's largest agricultural export business through its network of agricultural counselors, attachés, and trade officers stationed overseas and its backup team of analysts, marketing specialists, negotiators, and related specialists.

The work of FAS covers several broad areas:

FAS maintains a worldwide agricultural intelligence and reporting system through its attaché service. This service consists of a team of about 100 U.S. professional agriculturalists posted at approximately 70 American embassies and consulates around the world. Their areas of responsibility encompass about 110 countries. They represent the Department of Agriculture and handle all matters of trade, information needs, market development, export programs, and other agricultural endeavors.

The Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1685; 7 U.S.C. 1761) established the diplomatic title of counselor for agricultural representatives abroad. About one-half of FAS' overseas office heads are now at the counselor level.

Attaché reporting includes information and data on foreign government agricultural policies, analysis of supply and demand conditions, commercial trade relationships, and market opportunities. Attachés report not only on more than 200 farm commodities but also on weather, economic factors, and related subjects affecting agriculture and agricultural trade.

In FAS/Washington, agricultural economists and marketing specialists analyze these and other reports. This analysis is supplemented by accumulated background information and by the Crop Condition Assessment (CCA) system, which analyzes Landsat satellite, weather, and other data.

FAS also has a continuing market development program to develop, service, and expand commercial export markets for U.S. agricultural products. FAS marketing activities involve work with nonprofit commodity groups called cooperators, trade associations, State agriculture departments and their regional associations, and promotional and trade-servicing operations, such as trade fairs and sales teams.

By virtue of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, FAS received authority to open at least 6 and not more than 25 agricultural trade offices overseas to develop, maintain, and expand international markets for U.S. agricultural commodities. Fourteen of these offices have been established and are located in key markets such as West Germany, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, and Venezuela.

To improve access for U.S. farm products abroad, FAS international trade policy specialists coordinate and direct USDA's responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations. They maintain an ongoing effort to reduce foreign trade barriers and practices that discourage the export of U.S. farm products.

To follow foreign governmental actions that affect the market for U.S. agricultural commodities, FAS relies on its agricultural counselors and attachés. Special offices are maintained to work with the headquarters of the European Community in Brussels, Belgium; the International Negotiations Center in Geneva, Switzerland; and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) in Rome, Italy.

In Washington, a staff of international trade specialists analyzes the trade policies and practices of foreign governments to ensure conduct in conformance with international treaty obligations. During international negotiations, FAS provides the staff and support work for U.S. agricultural representation.

The Office of the General Sales Manager in FAS also manages the Public Law 480 Program, titles I and III (Food for Peace Program), section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 1058; 7 U.S.C. 1431), the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) Export Credit Programs, the Export Enhancement Program, and direct sales of CCC-owned surplus commodities. FAS also participates in the Public Law 480, title II donations program administered by the Agency for International Development (AID). Public Law 480 is aimed at long-range improvement in the economies of developing countries. The commercial programs provide exporter-risk insurance for financing the agricultural products purchased by countries with market growth potential and direct credit when used in a blended credit program.

Title I, the concessional sales section of Public Law 480, provides for low-interest, long-term credit to recipients of U.S. farm commodities. Payment is made in dollars, and proceeds from sales into commercial channels are used by the recipient country for agricultural self-help measures and general economic development.

New provisions under title III permit multiyear programming and forgiveness of dollar payments, provided the recipient country undertakes specific agricultural and economic development projects for commodities delivered under title I agreements.

The title II program authorizes the donation of agricultural commodities to foreign governments, voluntary relief agencies, or intergovernmental organizations. The commodities are donated for use abroad in meeting famine or other urgent or extraordinary relief requirements, economic development, and school lunch programs in developing areas. USDA chairs the overall Food AID Subcommittee that is responsible for the U.S. Food Aid Program. More specifically, AID and USDA share responsibility for the title II program.

Section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 authorizes CCC to donate wheat and dairy products overseas. Certain sales and barter of the commodities are also authorized. The program functions are shared between USDA and AID. CCC has the responsibility for determining the types and quantities of products for programming and for making funds available in any fiscal year for programming and related specific expenditures. Program proposals must be approved by the appropriate interagency groups.

The CCC Export Credit Guarantee Program (GSM-102) encourages the development or expansion of overseas markets for U.S. agricultural commodities by providing guarantees on private financing of U.S. exports to foreign buyers purchasing on credit terms.

The foreign buyer contracts for the purchase of U.S. commodities on a deferred payment basis of 3 years or less, and the foreign buyer's bank issues a letter of credit to guarantee payment to the U.S. exporter or an assignee U.S.

bank. To receive the payment guarantee, the exporter registers the sale with CCC and pays a guarantee fee. The payment guarantee is implemented only if the foreign bank fails to pay the exporter or the assignee bank.

CCC will consider coverage on sales of any agricultural commodities that have the potential of expanding U.S. export markets. A U.S. exporter, private foreign buyer, or foreign government may submit requests for coverage.

The Export Enhancement Program is designed to allow U.S. commodities to compete against subsidized competition in target markets.

FAS is also responsible for sales of government-owned (CCC) surplus commodities to private trade, foreign government, and nonprofit organizations. Direct sales may be negotiated on a case-by-case basis and on a cash or credit basis. The only criteria for financing direct sales are a 3-year maximum credit plan and the arrangement of suitable payment terms.

Office of International Cooperation and Development

The programs of the Office of International Cooperation and Development (OICD) focus on sharing knowledge of agriculture through development assistance and cooperation with other countries.

The Office's primary activities are providing technical assistance and training in agriculture to other countries, particularly the developing world; working with international food and agricultural organizations to solve world food problems; and sponsoring scientific exchanges and research that help farmers both here at home and abroad.

In recent activities, OICD has been working closely with the Agency for International Development (AID) on the President's Caribbean Basin Initiative. OICD is responsible for USDA efforts under the program. OICD has worked with the Secretary's Agribusiness Promotion Council to build investment in the Caribbean Basin by U.S. companies.

OICD programs in international cooperation and development benefit the U.S. economy, American agriculture, and our foreign neighbors. Information gathered in scientific exchanges and cooperative research improves America's food production and helps control insect pests and weeds that damage U.S. crops. An added benefit of these programs is that OICD's activities forge closer ties between the United States and nations of the developing and developed world, thus improving foreign relations.

Science and Education

Agricultural Research Service

The Agricultural Research Service (ARS) administers fundamental and applied research to solve problems in animal and plant protection and production; the conservation and improvement of soil, water, and air; the processing, storage, and distribution of farm products; and human nutrition. The research applies to a wide range of goals, commodities, natural resources, fields of science, and geographic, climatic, and environmental conditions.

Research activities are carried out at 138 domestic locations, including Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and in 8 foreign countries. Much of this research is conducted in cooperation with State partners in the universities and experiment stations, other Federal agencies, and private organizations. A national program staff, headquartered at Beltsville, MD, is the focal point in the overall planning and coordination of the ARS national research programs. Day-to-day management of the various national research programs for specific field locations is assigned to 11 area offices.

Cooperative State Research Service

The Cooperative State Research Service (CSRS) participates in a nationwide system of research program planning and coordination between the States and the Department of Agriculture that encourages and assists in the establishment and maintenance of cooperation within and among the States and between the States and their Federal research partners. The primary function of the Service is the administration of acts of Congress that authorize Federal appropriations for agricultural research carried on by the State agricultural experiment stations of the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Micronesia, and the District of Columbia; approved schools of forestry; the 1890 land-grant institutions and Tuskegee University; colleges of veterinary medicine; and other eligible institutions.

Research programs administered by the CSRS include the formula-funded Hatch Act research program at the State agricultural experiment stations, the cooperative forestry research program, the 1890 land-grant colleges and Tuskegee University research program, grants to upgrade 1890 land-grant college research facilities, the animal health and disease research program, a special research grants program on specific problems in agriculture, and a basic competitive research grants program. The scientific staff reviews research proposals received from the institutions and individuals for compliance with provisions of the act, conducts on-site reviews of research in progress, gives national leadership in planning and coordinating agricultural research, and encourages cooperation by and between the cooperating institutions.

The administration of payments to States and grants involves the approval of research proposals submitted by a State agricultural experiment station or other institution to be financed in whole or in part from Federal grant funds and the disbursement of the funds. The research programs and expenditures are continuously reviewed and evaluated.

The program coordination and planning is performed by CSRS staff, located in Washington, DC.

Extension Service

The Extension Service (ES) is the educational agency of the Department of Agriculture and the Federal partner in the Cooperative Extension System. As a nationwide educational network, the Cooperative Extension System links research, science, and technology to the needs of people where they live and work.

The Cooperative Extension System is comprised of ES, USDA as the Federal partner; the 1862 land-grant universities in 50 States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, Micronesia, and the District of Columbia, plus 16 1890 land-grant universities and Tuskegee University as the State partner; and more than 3,150 county offices representing local governments as the other partner. All three partners share in financing, planning, and conducting ES's educational programs.

This nationwide network and resource of professional staff and community volunteers is a unique and integrated partnership involving Federal/State/county governments, research, agribusiness, and the private sector.

Key functions include:

Providing nationwide leadership in adapting and transferring science and technology;

Anticipating and responding educationally to critical national issues affecting the food and agricultural system;

Mobilizing resources to respond to natural disasters and catastrophes;

Initiating target educational programs necessary for implementation of Federal regulations and policies; and

Developing a cadre of approximately 3 million volunteers prepared to serve the Nation, the State, and the community.

The Extension System's educational programs are designed to access and apply USDA- and university-generated knowledge and research to critical issues in every State and county in America. Current national issues being addressed include: restoring profitability in agriculture through improved management; improving human nutrition and health; managing soil, water, and other natural resources; developing human capital and resources; transferring relevant new technology; and revitalizing rural America.

ES was created by the Smith-Lever Act of 1914 (7 U.S.C. 341-349), as amended. Its program responsibilities have been broadened and strengthened by amendments to the original act and other legislation, including the second Morrill Act of August 30, 1890 (7 U.S.C. 321-326, 328); the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, as amended (91 Stat. 920; 7 U.S.C. 1621-1627); the District of Columbia Public Education Act (92 Stat. 25); the Rural Development Act of 1972, as amended (7 U.S.C. 2661-2668, 2670); the Renewable Resources Extension Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 349; 16 U.S.C. 1671); and the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977, as amended (91 Stat. 981; 7 U.S.C. 3101-3336).

ES USDA has a small professional staff that provides national-level policy formulation; program leadership, management, organization, coordination, and representation; and accountability and evaluation systems in support of the Cooperative Extension System.

The Cooperative Extension Services at the land-grant universities have professional staff located at the State, county, and area level. These staff work together to assess clientele needs and develop results-oriented educational programs to assist farmers, families, individuals, and communities in developing problem-solving and decision-making skills. Extension staff at all levels apply new communications technologies, including computers, video, satellites, and teleconferencing, in developing and delivering educational programs to people.

Through this partnership, ES maintains a corps of competent professional staff throughout the Nation—a staff that understands local conditions and anticipates and responds to the needs of the food and agriculture system and of rural America as they arise. The national Cooperative Extension System also assures citizens access to research findings and information from anywhere in the Nation.

National Agricultural Library

The National Agricultural Library, with 1.8 million volumes, is one of the largest U.S. Government libraries. It is the largest agricultural library in the United States, covering botany, zoology, chemistry, veterinary medicine, forestry, plant pathology, livestock, poultry, entomology, and general agriculture.

Information in the Library's collection is disseminated through loans, photocopies, and reference services. Bibliographic data is stored in the AGRICOLA (Agricultural OnLine Access) system, a group of data bases that consists of indexes to information on general agriculture, food and nutrition, and agricultural economics. The Current Awareness Literature Service (CALS) provides selective dissemination of information from 12 multidisciplinary bibliographic data bases, including AGRICOLA, to USDA scientists.

The products and services of the Library are available to Department of Agriculture personnel, the agricultural community worldwide, other Federal agencies, land-grant universities, and others with an interest in the Library's resources.

The main Library is located at 10301 Baltimore Boulevard, Beltsville, MD 20705. The D.C. Reference Center, located in Room 1052, South Building, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250, has an extensive collection covering agricultural economics, statistics, management, and administration.

For further information, contact the Education and Information Staff, National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, MD 20705. Phone, 301–344–3778.

Office of Grants and Program Systems

The Office of Grants and Program Systems (OGPS) administers a program of competitive extramural grants to State agricultural experiment stations, colleges and universities, other research institutions and organizations, Federal agencies, private organizations or corporations, and individuals to promote basic research, including biotechnology in food, agriculture, and related areas. OGPS administers the Department's competitive grants program for small business innovative research and programs in aquaculture, domestic rubber and other critical materials, programs in higher education, and small farms resources development programs. Extramural research grants funded through the Cooperative State Research Service are administratively managed by the Office of Grants and Program Systems. OGPS also provides support and assistance for the Joint Council on Food and Agricultural Sciences and the National Agricultural Research and Extension Users Advisory Board.

For further information, contact the Office of the Administrator, Office of Grants and Program Systems, Department of Agriculture, Room 324–A Administration Building, Washington, DC 20250. Phone, 202–475–5720.

Natural Resources and Environment

Forest Service

[For the Forest Service statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 36, Part 200.1]

The Forest Service was created by the Transfer Act of February 1, 1905 (33 Stat. 628; 16 U.S.C. 472), which transferred the Federal forest reserves and the responsibility for their management from the Department of the Interior to the Department of Agriculture. The forest reserves were established by the President from the public domain under authority of the Creative Act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1103; 16 U.S.C. 471). The protection and development of the reserves (which became the national forests in 1907) are governed by the Organic Act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 34–36; 16 U.S.C. 473–478), as amended; the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215; 16 U.S.C. 528–531); the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 476; 16 U.S.C. 1601–1610); and the National Forest Management Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 2947). The Weeks law of March 1, 1911 (36 Stat. 961–963; 16 U.S.C. 480), as amended, allowed the Government to purchase and exchange land for national forests.

Objectives The Forest Service has the Federal responsibility for national leadership in forestry. Its mission is to provide a continuing flow of natural resource goods and services to help meet the needs of the Nation and to contribute to the needs of the international community. To accomplish this, it has adopted the following objectives:

Provide a sustained flow of renewable resources —outdoor recreation, forage, wood, water, wilderness, wildlife, and fish—in a combination that best meets the needs of society now and in the future;

Administer the nonrenewable resources of the National Forest System to help meet the Nation's needs for energy and mineral resources;

Promote a healthy and productive environment for the Nation's forests and rangelands;

Develop and make available scientific and technological capabilities to advance renewable natural resource management, use, and protection; and Further natural resource conservation through cooperation with other Federal agencies and State and local governments.

National Forest System The Forest Service manages 156 national forests, 19 national grasslands, and 17 land utilization projects on 191 million acres in 44 States, the Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico under the principles of multiple-use and sustained yield. The Nation's tremendous need for wood and paper products is balanced with the other vital, renewable resources or benefits that the national forests and grasslands provide: recreation and natural beauty, wildlife habitat, livestock forage, and water supplies. The guiding principle is the greatest good to the greatest number in the long run.

These lands are protected as much as possible from wildfire, epidemics of disease and insect pests, erosion, floods, and water and air pollution. Burned areas get emergency seeding treatment to prevent massive erosion and stream siltation. Roads and trails are built where needed to allow for closely regulated timber harvesting and to give the public access to outdoor recreation areas and provide scenic drives and hikes. Picnic, camping, water-sport, skiing, and other areas are provided with facilities for public convenience and enjoyment. Timber harvesting methods are used that will protect the land and streams, assure rapid renewal of the forest, provide food and cover for wildlife and fish, and have minimum impact on scenic and recreation values. Local communities benefit from the logging and milling activities. These lands also provide needed oil, gas, and minerals. Rangelands are improved for millions of livestock and game animals. The national forests provide a refuge for many species of endangered birds, animals, and fish. Some 32 million acres are set aside as wilderness and 175,000 acres as primitive areas where timber will not be harvested.

Cooperation With the States The Forest Service provides national leadership and financial and technical assistance to non-Federal forest landowners, operators, processors of forest products, and urban forestry interests. Through its cooperative State and private forestry programs, the Forest Service protects and improves the quality of air, water, soil, and open space and encourages uses of natural resources on non-Federal lands that best meet the needs of the Nation, while protecting the environment.

Cooperative programs are carried out through the State foresters or equivalent State officials, who receive grant funding under the Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 365; 16 U.S.C. 2101). Cooperators at the State and local level provide the delivery system for most State and private forestry programs.

Grant funds and technical assistance are available for rural forestry assistance, forestry incentives, insect and disease control, urban forestry assistance, rural fire prevention and control, organization management assistance, State forest resource planning, and technology implementation.

The Forest Service also cooperates with the Soil Conservation Service, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and other USDA agencies in providing leadership and technical assistance for the forestry aspects of conservation programs.

State and private forestry also is responsible for ensuring that the Forest Service and its cooperators keep abreast of the best knowledge and technology in carrying out Forest Service programs, and helping to develop technology transfer plans for implementing research results for a broad range of potential users.

Forest Research The Forest Service carries on basic research throughout the country, often in cooperation with State agricultural colleges, under the authority of the McSweeney-McNary act of May 22, 1928 (45 Stat. 699; 16 U.S.C. 581–581i), as amended and supplemented. Research is carried on in all the fields previously mentioned in addition to many others including genetics, nutrition, improved methods of harvesting, prevention, detection, and mapping of lightning fires, better processing methods for forest products, and environmental improvement.

Human Resource Programs The Forest Service operates the Youth Conservation Corps and the Volunteers in the National Forests programs and participates with the Department of Labor on several human resource programs that involve the Nation's citizens, both young and old, in forestry-related activities. Included in these programs are the Job Corps and the Senior Community Service Employment Program. These programs annually accomplish millions of dollars worth of conservation work, while providing participants with such benefits as training, paid employment, and meaningful outdoor experience.

Soil Conservation Service

[For the Soil Conservation Service statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 7, Parts 600 and 601]

The Soil Conservation Service (SCS) was established under authority of the Soil Conservation Act of 1935 (49 Stat. 163; 16 U.S.C. 590a–f). It has responsibility for developing and carrying out a national soil and water conservation program in cooperation with landowners and operators and other land users and developers, with community planning agencies and regional resource groups, and with other Federal, State, and local government agencies. SCS also assists in agricultural pollution control, environmental improvement, and rural community development.

The soil and water conservation program is carried on through technical help to locally organized and operated conservation districts; local sponsors of watershed protection projects and resource conservation and development projects; and consultative assistance to other individuals and groups. About 3,000 conservation districts cover more than 2 billion acres in the 50 States, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

Conservation Operations SCS provides technical assistance through conservation districts to landowners and operators in carrying out locally adapted soil and water conservation programs.

Technical assistance is given to district cooperators and other landowners in the development of conservation plans and application of conservation treatment. Assistance to district cooperators (individuals and communities) includes: providing a soil map and other resource data; providing information about practical alternatives for treating and using the land; developing a plan for installing the treatment measures and making the land use changes needed; and helping to apply parts of the plan that require special skills or knowledge.

Soil surveys are made to determine soil use potentials and conservation treatment needs, and publication of soil surveys with interpretations useful to cooperators, other Federal agencies, and State and local organizations. One important basis for conservation planning is the National Cooperative Soil Survey for which SCS has the Federal part of the responsibility. The work is carried out in cooperation with State agricultural experiment stations and other State and Federal agencies.

Plant materials centers are operated to assemble, test, and encourage increased use of promising plant species in conservation programs; and snow surveys in the Western States are made to develop water supply forecasts.

Under the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (91 Stat. 1407; 16 U.S.C. 2001), the Service is responsible for appraising the status and condition of soil, water, and related resources and trends in their use; designing long-range conservation programs wjth the aid of local soil conservation districts and the public; and evaluating progress in meeting conservation needs. SCS inventory and monitoring data are used at all governmental levels for conservation, use and development of land, and for protecting environmental quality. The Service also helps prepare maps showing the location of important farmlands, usually on a county basis.

River Basin Surveys and Investigations The Service, along with the Economic Research Service and Forest Service, cooperates with other Federal, State, and local agencies in studying the watersheds of rivers and other waterways. These studies include cooperative river basin surveys that serve as a basis for developing coordinated water resource programs; flood plain management studies that furnish technical data, assistance, and information for State and local governments to use in flood plain management programs; joint investigations and reports with the Department of the Army under Public Law 87–639; special studies in the Colorado River Basin to identify opportunities for reducing salt load to the river from agricultural activities; and interagency coordination.

Watershed Planning The Service has general responsibility for administration of activities consisting of investigations and surveys of proposed small watershed projects in response to requests made by sponsoring local organizations, and for assisting sponsors in the development of watershed plans.

Watershed and Flood Prevention Operations The Service has general responsibility for administration of activities that include cooperation with local sponsors, State, and other public agencies in the installation of planned works of improvement to reduce erosion, floodwater, and sediment damage; conserve, develop, utilize, and dispose of water; plan and install works of improvement for flood prevention including the development of recreational facilities and the improvement of fish and wildlife habitat; and loans to local organizations to help finance the local share of the cost of carrying out planned watershed and flood prevention works of improvement. The Farmers Home Administration administers the loan program.

SCS also has responsibility for carrying out emergency watershed protection under section 403 of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 420; 16 U.S.C. 2203).

Great Plains Conservation Program The Service has general responsibility for administration of the program designed to promote conservation and greater agricultural stability in the Great Plains area. Activities include cost-sharing of conservation practices under 3- to 10-year contracts with farmers and ranchers in designated counties of the 10 Great Plains States, and technical services to help make needed land use adjustments and install conservation measures specified in conservation plans in accordance with contract schedules.

Resource Conservation and Development Program The Service has general responsibility for assisting local units of government accelerate planning and development of land and water resources in multiple county areas. Projects include work for such things as erosion control, flood prevention, farm irrigation, water-based recreation, fish and wildlife facilities, agriculture-related pollutant control, and water quality. Efforts also are directed toward improving recreation facilities, including historic and scenic attractions; encouraging new industries to locate in the area and to process products of the area, improving markets for crop and livestock products; upgrading and protecting the quality of the environment; and long-range planning to coordinate public efforts in the area.

Activities include investigations and surveys to help develop programs and plans of land conservation and utilization, technical services and financial assistance to sponsors, local groups, and individuals, and making loans for resource improvements and developments in approved projects. The Farmers Home Administration administers the loans.

Rural Abandoned Mine Program The Service has USDA leadership for administration of the program to assist land users in reclaiming abandoned or inadequately reclaimed coal-mined lands and water, provided there is no continuing reclamation responsibility on the part of the mine operator, permit holder, or agent. The program provides cost-sharing aid ranging from 25 to 100 percent, as well as technical assistance to land users, under contracts of 5 to 10 years. The goal is to reclaim, conserve, and develop unreclaimed coal lands that adversely affect people or their environment.

Other Programs SCS gives technical help to the Farmers Home Administration in making soil and water conservation loans to landowners and operators. SCS assists landowners and operators in developing recreation areas and facilities on private land.

SCS gives technical assistance to participants in the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP), Rural Clean Water Program (RCWP), Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), Colorado River Salinity Control Program (CRSCP), and the Water Bank Program (WBP). Under these programs, SCS provides technical assistance in developing conservation plans that are the basis of long-term agreements between the Department and landowners and operators. SCS assists in the design, layout, and certification of some conservation practices installed under these programs.

Economics

Economic Research Service

The Economic Research Service (ERS) provides economic information to aid public policy officials and program managers in developing and administering agricultural and rural policies and programs.

ERS monitors economic activity, makes short-term forecasts of key economic indicators, and develops long-range projections of U.S. and world agricultural production, demand for production resources (land, water, and manufactured inputs), and demand for agricultural commodities and food products. ERS measures returns to producers and evaluates how well the agricultural and food sectors meet the needs of domestic and foreign consumers. ERS also develops economic and other social science information on the organization and institutions of the agricultural and food system, the use and conservation of natural resources, and the impacts of alternative public and private actions on farmers and other rural residents, rural communities, natural resources, and U.S. society in general.

ERS-produced information is made available to farmers, farm organizations, farm suppliers, marketers, processors, consumers, and others who make production, marketing, and purchasing decisions, as well as to legislators and other public officials at the Federal, State, and local levels. ERS information is released through research monographs, situation and outlook periodicals, staff reports, professional and trade journals, radio, television, newspapers, and direct computer access.

For further information, contact the Information Division, Economics Management Staff, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20005-4788. Phone, 202-786-1504.

National Agricultural Statistics Service

The National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) prepares estimates and reports on production, supply, price, and other items necessary for the orderly operation of the U.S. agricultural economy.

The reports include statistics on field crops, fruits and vegetables, cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, and related commodities or processed products. Other estimates concern prices received by farmers for products sold and prices paid for commodities and services, indexes of prices received and paid, parity prices, farm employment, and farm wage rates.

NASS prepares these estimates through a complex system of sample surveys of producers, processors, buyers, and others associated with agriculture. Information is gathered by mail, telephone, personal interviews, and field visits.

The 44 State-Federal offices, serving all 50 States, and the national office prepare weekly, monthly, annual, and other periodic reports for free distribution to the news media, Congress, and survey respondents. The reports are available to others on a subscription basis. Data on crop and livestock products appears in over 300 reports issued annually. Cooperative agreements with State agencies also permit preparation and publication of estimates of individual crops and livestock by counties in most States.

NASS assists other USDA agencies with statistical methods and techniques and provides consultation and support for U.S. technicians overseas.

For further information, contact the Information Division, Economics Management Staff, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20005–4788. Phone, 202–786–1504.

Economic Analysis Staff

The Economic Analysis Staff assists in developing, organizing, coordinating, and synthesizing economic and statistical analyses to be used as a basis for planning and evaluating short- and intermediate-range agricultural policy. The Staff also develops economic and statistical analyses to evaluate complex interagency domestic and foreign agricultural problems and issues.

The Staff reviews and evaluates recommendations submitted by USDA agencies, task forces, and study groups for their impact upon the agricultural economy. It analyzes the economic policy implications of legislative proposals of the Department. The Staff also represents the Department in meetings with agriculture, industry, and consumer groups to discuss the economic impact of existing and proposed Department policies.

For further information, contact the Information Division, Economics Management Staff, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20005–4788. Phone, 202–786–1504.

Office of Energy

The Office of Energy serves as the focal point for all energy-related matters within the Department. The Office is responsible for developing and coordinating all USDA energy policies, reviewing and evaluating all USDA energy and energy-related programs, and providing liaison with the Department of Energy and other Federal agencies and departments on energy activities that may affect agriculture and rural America. The Office also represents the Department in meetings with agriculture, industry, and consumer groups to discuss impacts of departmental energy policies, programs, and proposals.

For further information, contact the Information Division, Economics Management Staff, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20005–4788. Phone, 202–786–1504.

World Agricultural Outlook Board

The World Agricultural Outlook Board coordinates and reviews all commodity and aggregate agricultural and food data and analyses used to develop outlook and situation material prepared within the Department. The Board's objective is to improve the consistency, objectivity, and reliability of the material provided to the public.

The Board serves as a focal point for the Department's economic intelligence effort of gathering, interpreting, and summarizing developments affecting domestic and world agriculture. The Board brings together interagency experts to develop official estimates of supply, utilization, and prices for commodities.

The Board provides direction in methods used for making estimates and forecasts of domestic and world agriculture, while overseeing remote sensing activity particularly as it relates to food and fiber estimates. The Board participates in planning and developing research programs related to improving departmental forecasting and objective analyses, and coordinates the Department's weather, climate, and related crop monitoring activities.

Through liaison with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Board ensures that the futures market serves the best interests of both agriculture and the public.

The Board also plans and participates in departmental, interdepartmental, regional, and international outlook conferences and briefings.

For further information, contact the Information Office, World Agricultural Outlook Board, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250. Phone, 202-447-5447.

Economics Management Staff

The Economics Management Staff provides management services to the Statistical Reporting Service, the Economic Research Service, the World Agricultural Outlook Board, the Economic Analysis Staff, and the Office of Energy. These services include budget, financial management, personnel and related programs, administrative services, information, equal opportunity and civil rights, and general management assistance.

For further information, contact the Information Division, Economics Management Staff, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20005-4788. Phone, 202-786-1504.

Sources of Information

Consumer Activities Educational, organizational, and financial assistance is offered to consumers and their families in such fields as rural housing and farm operating programs, improved nutrition, family living and recreation, food stamp, school lunch, donated foods, and other food programs. Phone, 202-447-2791.

Environment Educational, organizational, technical, and financial assistance is offered to local citizens, their organizations and communities in such fields as watershed protection, flood prevention, soil and water conservation practices to reduce erosion and sedimentation, community water and waste disposal systems, safe use of pesticides, and the development of pesticide alternatives.

Contact the nearest county Extension agent or USDA office, or write to the Office of Governmental and Public Affairs, Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250, for information on consumer activities and environment, as described above. Phone, 202-447-2791.

The Graduate School, U.S. Department of Agriculture, is a nonprofit school for adults. It is self-supporting and does not receive direct appropriated funds from Congress or the Department of Agriculture. Fees charged individuals and Government agencies are nominal. Courses are planned with the help of Government professionals and specialists.The faculty is mostly part-time and is drawn from throughout Government and the community at large. They are selected because of their professional and specialized knowledge and experience and thus bring a practicality and currency to their classrooms. Faculty members are paid an honorarium. Faculty holding regular Government positions take annual leave or leave without pay when they teach during their normal working hours. The school does not grant degrees but does provide planned sequences of courses leading to certificates of accomplishment in a number of occupational and career fields important to Government. It offers occasional free public lectures on current affairs of special interest to Government employees and supports a press that publishes some of those lectures, films, video tapes, and other manuscripts.

The Graduate School's objective is to improve Government services by providing needed continuing education and training opportunities for Government employees and agencies. The Graduate School, administered by a Director and governed by a General Administration Board appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, was established by the Secretary of Agriculture on September 2, 1921, pursuant to the act of May 15, 1862 (R.S. 520; 7 U.S.C. 2201), the Joint Resolution of April 12, 1892 (27 Stat. 395). and the Deficiency Appropriation Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1039; 20 U.S.C. 91).

The Department of Commerce encourages, serves, and promotes the Nation's international trade, economic growth, and technological advancement. Within this framework and together with a policy of promoting the national interest through the encouragement of the competitive free enterprise system, the Department provides a wide variety of programs. It offers assistance and information to increase America's competitiveness in the world economy; administers programs to prevent unfair foreign trade competition; provides social and economic statistics and analyses for business and government planners; provides research and support for the increased use of scientific, engineering, and technological development; works to improve our understanding and benefits of the Earth's physical environment and oceanic resources; grants patents and registers trademarks; develops policies and conducts research on telecommunications; provides assistance to promote domestic economic development; promotes travel to the United States by residents of foreign countries; and assists in the growth of minority businesses.

The Department was designated as such by the act of March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 736; 15 U.S.C. 1501), which reorganized the Department of Commerce and Labor, created by the act of February 14, 1903 (32 Stat. 825; 15 U.S.C. 1501), by transferring all labor activities into a new, separate Department of Labor. The Department of Commerce is composed of the Office of the Secretary and the operating units.

Office of the Secretary

Secretary The Secretary is responsible for the administration of all functions and authorities assigned to the Department of Commerce and for advising the President on Federal policy and programs affecting the industrial and commercial segments of the national economy.

Deputy Secretary The Deputy Secretary of Commerce serves as the principal deputy of the Secretary, performing continuing and special duties as the Secretary may assign. The Deputy Secretary serves as acting Secretary in the Secretary's absence.

Inspector General The Office of the Inspector General is responsible for conducting and supervising audits, inspections, and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the Department. The Office provides leadership and coordination for, and recommends policies and corrective actions concerning activities designed to promote economy and efficiency and prevent and detect fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement in departmental programs and operations. The Office provides a means for keeping the Secretary and Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies in the administration of such programs and operations and the necessity for corrective action.

General Counsel The Office of the General Counsel supervises all legal activities and is responsible for development of the legislative program of the Department.

Administration The Assistant Secretary for Administration is responsible for the administrative management functions of the Department, including program planning, budget, management analysis and controls, productivity improvement, personnel, finance, ADP management, contracting and procurement, and administrative services, as well as for equal employment activities.

International Trade The Department's international trade, investment, industry analysis, and related economic activities are the responsibility of the Under Secretary for International Trade.

Economic Affairs The Under Secretary for Economic Affairs advises the Secretary and other departmental officials on economic affairs and supervises the Department's statistical data, economic analyses, and economic policy activities. The Under Secretary also supervises, through the Assistant Secretary for Productivity, Technology and Innovation, the Department's programs designed to stimulate private sector productivity, technological innovation, and economic growth.

Communications and Information The Assistant Secretary for Communications and Information advises the Secretary on telecommunications policies pertaining to the Nation's economic and technological advancement and to the regulation of the telecommunications industry, authorizes radio frequencies and develops procurement policies relating to Federal telecommunications systems, and administers the public telecommunications facilities program. The Assistant Secretary also is Administrator of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA).

Tourism The Under Secretary for Travel and Tourism advises the Secretary on all matters related to tourism, establishes and maintains relations with government and industry officials to facilitate tourism policies and programs, serves as Vice Chairman of the Tourism Policy Council, and serves as a member of the Travel and Tourism Advisory Board.

Congressional and Intergovernmental Affairs The Assistant Secretary for Congressional and Intergovernmental Affairs directs both the Office of Congressional Affairs and the Office of Intergovernmental Affairs, advising the Secretary on matters of concern to the Department relating to Congress and State and local officials. The Assistant Secretary is also responsible for advising Congress and State and local officials on the Department's programs and policies and for communicating to the Secretary the concerns that are most significant to these officials.

Public Affairs The Director of Public Affairs is the principal adviser on public affairs matters and is responsible for the overall public information program of the Department, supervising the information activities of the 11 bureaus within the Department. The Director serves as the primary departmental public affairs liaison with other Federal departments and the White House.

For further information, call 202-377-3263.

Office of Business Liaison The Office of Business Liaison develops and promotes a cooperative working relationship and ensures effective communication between the Department of Commerce and the business community. The Office's objectives are to keep the business community aware of Department and administration resources, policies, and programs; keep Department and administration officials aware of issues of concern to business; promote business involvement in departmental policymaking and program development; provide technical assistance to businesses that desire help in dealing with the Government; and serve as the focal point for all Department of Commerce agencies' contact with the business community.

For further information, call 202-377-1360.

Office of Consumer Affairs The Office of Consumer Affairs works with the business community on behalf of consumers and assists consumers with marketplace problems. To help businesses improve their customer relations, the Office develops cooperative projects with companies, trade and professional associations, consumer organizations, and Federal, State, and local agencies. Current projects include: working with the private sector to encourage business use of plain language in customer documents, and assisting industry groups, on request, by providing consumers' viewpoints concerning development of voluntary standards for consumer products. The Director is the Department's representative to the White House Consumer Affairs Council.

For further information, call 202-377-5001.

Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization The Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization (OSDBU) was established under Pub. L. 95-507 (92 Stat. 1757). OSDBU serves as a focal point in the Department of Commerce's efforts to set aside procurements for the socio-economic programs. OSDBU, in conjunction with the Small Business Administration, establishes procurement goals for small and/or disadvantaged businesses and women-owned businesses. It also provides an outreach network to encourage and assist those small businesses in becoming a Federal contractor.

For further information, call 202-377-3387.

Economic Development The domestic economic development activities of the Department are the responsibility of the Assistant Secretary for Economic Development, who serves as the principal adviser to the Secretary on economic development affairs.

National Technical Information Service

[For the National Technical Information Service statement of organization, see the Federal Register of May 5, 1976, 41 FR 18538]

As a cornerstone of the technological publishing structure in the United States, the National Technical Information Service (NTIS) is a key participant in the development of advanced information products and services for the achievement of U.S. productivity and innovational goals in the 1980's.

Among the principal areas in which development is well underway are the public availability of Federal computer software, programs, and data files; the planned systematic acquisition of generally unpublished foreign technology of particular interest to U.S. industrialists; the promotion of U.S. Government-owned patents for licensing by U.S. manufacturers; and expansion of the Center for Utilization of Federal Technology (CUFT), which alerts U.S. industry to selected Federal technology having immediate practical value.

NTIS is the central source for the public sale of U.S. Government-sponsored research, development, and engineering reports, as well as foreign technical reports and other analyses prepared by national and local government agencies, their contractors, or grantees. It is the central source for federally generated machine processible data files and manages the Federal Software Center for intragovernmental distribution. NTIS is one of the world's leading processors of specialty information.

NTIS information collection exceeds 1.5 million titles, about 300,000 of which contain foreign technology or marketing information. All are permanently available for sale, either directly from the 80,000 titles in shelf stock or from the microfiche masters of titles less in demand. Seventy to eighty thousand new reports of completed research are added to the data base annually. Each year, NTIS supplies its customers with more than 6 million documents and microforms. It ships about 23,500 information products daily.

Full summaries of current U.S. and foreign research reports and other specialized information, in hundreds of subject categories, are published regularly by NTIS in a wide variety of weekly newsletters, a biweekly journal, an annual index, and in various subscription formats for other Federal agencies. The complete texts of the reports cited are sold in printed form and microform.

Anyone seeking the latest technical reports or wanting to compile unique subject groups of abstracts may search the NTIS Bibliographic Data Base online, using the services of organizations that maintain the data base for public use through contractual relationships with NTIS. The entire data base also may be leased in machine readable form directly from NTIS. The more timely abstracts are continually grouped by NTIS into paperbound Published Searches, covering some 3,000 topical subject areas.

Customers with well-defined, continuing interests subscribe to a standing order microfiche service (SRIM), which enables them automatically to receive the full texts of only those documents relating to their individual requirements. A similar service provides the automatic distribution of paperbound reports.

NTIS sells its technical information products and services under the provisions of title 15 of the United States Code. The law establishes a clearinghouse for scientific, technical, and engineering information and directs NTIS to be self-supporting.

NTIS, therefore, is a Government agency sustained only by its customers. It operates very much as a business, but in the public service. All the costs of NTIS products and services, including rent, telephone, salaries, marketing, postage, and all other usual costs of doing business are paid from sales income, not from tax-supported congressional appropriations.

An NTIS Information Center and Bookstore is located in Room 1098, Department of Commerce, Washington, DC 20230. Phone, 202-377-0365. The NTIS operations center is in Springfield, VA.

For further information, contact the National Technical Information Service, Department of Commerce, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, VA 22161. Phone, 703-487-4600.

Bureau of the Census

[For the Bureau of the Census statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Sept. 16, 1975, 40 FR 42765]

The Bureau of the Census was established as a permanent office by act of Congress on March 6, 1902 (32 Stat. 51). The major functions of the Bureau are authorized by the Constitution, which provides that a census of population shall be taken every 10 years, and by laws codified as title 13 of the United States Code. The law also provides that the information collected by the Bureau from individual persons, households, or establishments be kept strictly confidential and be used only for statistical purposes.

The Bureau is a general purpose, statistical agency that collects, tabulates, and publishes a wide variety of statistical data about the people and the economy of the Nation. These data are utilized by the Congress, by the executive branch, and by the public generally in the development and evaluation of economic and social programs.

In addition to its headquarters at Suitland, MD, the Bureau includes a Data Preparation Division at Jeffersonville, IN, a Personal Census Service Branch at Pittsburg, KS, and 12 regional offices.

The principal functions of the Bureau include: decennial censuses of population and housing; quinquennial censuses of agriculture, State and local governments, manufacturers, mineral industries, distributive trades, construction industries, and transportation; current surveys that provide information on many of the subjects covered in the censuses at monthly, quarterly, annual, or other intervals; and compilation of current statistics on U.S. foreign trade, including data on imports, exports, and shipping.

In addition, the Bureau conducts special censuses at the request and expense of States and local government units; publishes estimates and projections of the population; provides current data on population and housing characteristics; and issues current reports on manufacturing, retail and wholesale trade, services, construction, imports and exports, State and local government finances and employment, and other subjects.

The principal products of the Bureau are its printed reports, computer tapes, and special tabulations. However, it also produces statistical compendia, catalogs, guides, and directories that are useful in locating information on specific subjects. Upon request, the Bureau makes searches of decennial census records and furnishes certificates to individuals for use as evidence of age, relationship, or place of birth. A fee is charged for such searches.

Bureau of Economic Analysis

[For the Bureau of Economic Analysis statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Dec. 29, 1980, 45 FR 85496]

The Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA), formerly the Office of Business Economics, was established by the Secretary of Commerce on December 1, 1953, and operates under authorities contained in Department Organization Order No. 35-1A.

The goal of BEA is to provide a clear picture of the U.S. economy through the preparation, development, and interpretation of the national income and product accounts, summarized by the gross national product (GNP); the wealth accounts, which show the business and other components of national wealth; the input-output accounts, which trace the interrelationships among industrial markets; personal income and related economic series by geographic area; the U.S. balance of payments accounts and associated foreign investment accounts; and measures relating to environmental change within the framework of the national economic accounts.

The work on the national economic accounts is supplemented by the preparation and analysis of other measures of business activity, including various tools for forecasting economic developments, such as surveys of investment outlays and plans of U.S. business, econometric models of the U.S. economy, and a system of leading, coincident, and lagging economic indicators. The data and analyses prepared by BEA are disseminated mainly through its monthly publications, the Survey of Current Business, including periodic supplements to the Survey, and Business Conditions Digest.

For further information, contact the Public Information Office, Bureau of Economic Analysis, Department of Commerce, Washington, DC 20230. Phone, 202-523-0777.

Economic Development Administration

[For the Economic Development Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 13, Part 301, Subpart C]

The Economic Development Administration (EDA) was established under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 552; 42 U.S.C. 3121), to generate new jobs, to help protect existing jobs, and to stimulate commercial and industrial growth in economically distressed areas of the United States. EDA assistance is available in rural and urban areas of the Nation experiencing high unemployment, low income quotas, or sudden and severe economic distress. The basic programs include:

Public works grants to public and private nonprofit organizations and Indian reservations to help build or expand public facilities essential to industrial and commercial growth. Typical projects are industrial parks, access roads, water and sewer lines, and port and airport terminal developments. EDA also makes grants to help in the construction of useful public facilities in areas of high unemployment;

Loan guarantees to industrial and commercial firms, local development companies, and Indian-owned business enterprises. Proceeds from the loans may be used for working capital to maintain and expand operations or for fixed assets such as purchase of land, construction of plants, and the purchase of machinery and equipment;

Technical assistance and grants to enable communities and firms to find solutions to problems that stifle economic growth. Under the technical assistance program, funds are used for studies to determine the economic feasibility of resource development to establish jobs and to provide on-the-scene assistance to help businesses overcome a wide range of management and technical problems through university centers;

Planning grants to States, cities, districts, and Indian reservations to help pay for the expertise needed to plan, implement, and coordinate comprehensive economic development programs; and

Special economic adjustment assistance to assist State and local governments in solving recent and anticipated severe adjustment problems, resulting in abrupt and serious job losses, and to help areas implement strategies to reverse and halt long-term economic deterioration.

International Trade Administration

The International Trade Administration (ITA) was established on January 2, 1980, by the Secretary of Commerce to promote world trade and to strengthen the international trade and investment position of the United States.

ITA is headed by the Under Secretary for International Trade. The Under Secretary coordinates all issues concerning trade administration, international economic policy and programs, and trade development. ITA is responsible for nonagricultural trade operations of the U.S. Government and supports the trade policy negotiation efforts of the U.S. Trade Representative.

The Office of the Under Secretary includes a Deputy Under Secretary, a planning and evaluation staff, and the Director of Administration, who is responsible for providing administrative management and support services for ITA. The Under Secretary is assisted by three Assistant Secretaries and the Director General of the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service.

International Economic Policy The Assistant Secretary for International Economic Policy advises on the analysis, formulation, and implementation of international economic policies of a bilateral, multilateral, or regional nature. Reporting to the Assistant Secretary are four Deputy Assistant Secretaries (for Europe; the Western Hemisphere; East Asia and the Pacific; and Africa, the Near East and South Asia) who have responsibility for trade and investment issues with particular countries and regions of the world. These officials maintain in-depth commercial and economic information on the countries and regions for which they are responsible. In addition, there is a Deputy Assistant Secretary for International Economic Policy who has responsibility for multilateral affairs and for overall policy coordination.

Trade Administration The Assistant Secretary for Trade Administration develops policies pertaining to, and implements departmental programs dealing with import and export administration issues, including industrial resource administration, foreign boycotts, and export enforcement. The Assistant Secretary exercises the functions of the "administering authority" and "Secretary" of U.S. antidumping and countervailing duty laws within the meaning of title VII of the Tariff Act of 1930 (46 Stat. 590), as amended. The Assistant Secretary also administers programs dealing with foreign trade zones, watch quotas, and other statutory import programs.

Trade Development The Assistant Secretary for Trade Development advises on international trade and investment policies pertaining to U.S. industrial sectors and carries out programs to strengthen domestic export competitiveness and promotes the U.S. industry's increased participation in international markets. The Assistant Secretary manages an integrated Trade Development Program that includes policy development, industry analysis, and promotion organized by U.S. industry sectors such as aerospace, automotive affairs and consumer goods, basic industries, capital goods and international construction, science and electronics, services, and textiles and apparel. The Assistant Secretary implements and monitors the sectoral aspects of the Multilateral Trade Negotiations and obtains industry's views of trade policy issues through 17 industry sector advisory committees; gathers, analyzes, and disseminates trade information; reports on foreign investment in the United States; serves as the Department's primary source of information and analysis on U.S. industrial sectors; manages Federal participation in international expositions held in the United States; and promotes the formation of export trading companies and issues certificates of review providing them with limited exemption from liability under the antitrust laws.

U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service The Director General of the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service develops, produces, markets, and manages an effective line of high-quality products and services geared to the marketing information needs of the U.S. exporting and international business community and manages the delivery of ITA programs through 50 district offices and 17 branch offices located in the United States and 127 posts located in 66 countries throughout the world. The Director General manages trade fairs and exhibitions, trade missions, overseas trade seminars, and other promotional events; promotes products and services through export development offices overseas; conducts conferences and seminars in the United States; assists State and private sector organizations on export financing; supports the President's Caribbean Basin Initiative; and promotes the export of U.S. fish by working with the domestic fishing industry and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Minority Business Development Agency

[For the Minority Business Development Agency statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Mar. 17, 1972, 37 FR 5650, as amended]

The Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA), formerly the Office of Minority Business Enterprise, was established by the Secretary of Commerce on November 1, 1979, and operates under the authority of Executive Order 11625 of October 13, 1971. MBDA's purpose is to develop and coordinate a national program for minority business enterprise.

The Agency was created to assist minority business in achieving effective and equitable participation in the American free enterprise system and in overcoming social and economic disadvantages that have limited their participation in the past. MBDA provides national policies and leadership in forming and strengthening a partnership of business, industry, and government with the Nation's minority businesses.

Management and technical assistance is provided to minority firms on request, primarily through a network of minority business development centers funded by the Agency. Specialized business assistance is available to minority firms or potential entrepreneurs.

MBDA promotes and coordinates the efforts of other Federal agencies in assisting or providing market opportunities for minority business, primarily through its affiliate network of Minority Business Development Centers. The Agency coordinates opportunities for minority firms in the private sector through the funding of business and industry trade associations. Through such public and private cooperative activities, MBDA promotes the participation of Federal, State, and local governments, and business and industry in directing resources for the development of strong minority businesses. The Agency also operates an Information Clearinghouse for catalogs, publications, and other information for and about the Nation's minority businesses.

The Minority Business Development Agency conducts most of its activities through its six Regional Offices (Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, New York, San Francisco, Washington) and four District Offices.

National Bureau of Standards

Headquarters: Gaithersburg, MD (Route I-270 and Quince Orchard Road)
Mailing address: Gaithersburg, MD 20899
Phone, 301-921-1000

[For the National Bureau of Standards statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Apr. 13, 1978, 43 FR 15473]

The National Bureau of Standards (NBS) was established by act of Congress of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1449; 15 U.S.C. 271). The Bureau's overall goal is to strengthen and advance the Nation's science and technology and to facilitate their use for public benefit. NBS is the only Federal laboratory with the explicit goal of serving U.S. industry and science. To this end, the Bureau conducts research providing groundwork for the Nation's physical measurement system as well as scientific and technological services for industry and government. These activities offer a technical basis for increasing productivity and innovation, promoting international competitiveness in American industry, ensuring U.S. involvement in domestic and international product standardization activities, maintaining equity in trade, and promoting public safety. NBS works cooperatively with industry, other government agencies, and academia. The Bureau's technical work is performed by its National Measurement Laboratory, the National Engineering Laboratory, the Institute for Materials Science and Engineering, and the Institute for Computer Sciences and Technology.

Engineering The National Engineering Laboratory (NEL) fosters inproved engineering standards and practices. Its programs are based on long-term fundamental studies in the following areas: statistical, computational, and mathematical modeling methods for use in engineering and science research; advancing measurement capabilities for electromagnetics, electronics, and semiconductor technology; developing metrology and engineering standards for computer-aided design, manufacturing, and inspection; the usefulness, safety, and economy of buildings; the prevention and control of hazardous fires; and chemical and biotechnical engineering including unit operations and processes and the thermophysical properties of fluids and solids. NEL publishes new engineering data, measurement techniques, and test methods, proposes improved engineering standards and codes, and provides calibration and measurement assurance services. The Laboratory consists of the following centers: Applied Mathematics, Electronics and Electrical Engineering, Manufacturing Engineering, Building Technology, Fire Research, and Chemical Engineering.

Physical and Chemical Measurements The National Measurement Laboratory develops and maintains the scientific competence and experimental facilities necessary to provide the Nation with physical and chemical standards, measurement methods, reference data, and essential measurement services central for ensuring accurate and uniform physical and chemical measurement throughout government, industry, universities, and commerce; coordinates the Nation's measurement system with measurement systems of other nations and provides advisory and research services to other government agencies; conducts physical and chemical research; develops, produces, and distributes standard reference materials; provides standard reference data; and provides measurement calibration services. The Laboratory consists of the following centers: Basic Standards, Radiation Research, Chemical Physics, and Analytical Chemistry.

Materials Science The Institute for Materials Science and Engineering develops and maintains the scientific competence and experimental facilities necessary to provide the Nation with a central basis for uniform physical measurements, measurement methodology, and measurement services fundamental to the processing, characterization, properties, and performance of materials and to other essential areas in materials science; provides government, industry, universities, and consumers with standards, measurement methods, data, and quantitative understanding concerning metals, polymers, ceramics, composites, and glasses; characterizes the structure of materials, chemical reactions, and physical properties that lead to the safest, most efficient uses of materials—improves materials technology, provides the bases for advanced material technology in basic and high-technology industries, and encourages recycling; obtains accurate experimental data on the behavior and properties of materials under service conditions to ensure effective use of raw and manufactured materials; provides technical information such as reference data, materials measurement methods, and standards to processors, designers, and users for the selection of cost-effective combinations of materials, processes, designs, and service conditions; uses the NBS reactor facilities to develop neutron measurement methodology and develop sophisticated structure characterization techniques, reference data, and standards; oversees a Bureau-wide technical program in nondestructive evaluation; and disseminates generic technical information to basic and high-technology industries, Government agencies, universities, and other scientific organizations through conventional distribution mechanisms and special cooperative institutional arrangements. The Institute consists of the following organizational units: Ceramics Division, Fracture and Deformation Division, Polymers Division, Metallurgy Division, Reactor Radiation Division, and Office of Nondestructive Evaluation.

Computer Sciences and Technology The Institute for Computer Sciences and Technology, in accordance with Public Law 89–306, dated October 30, 1965 (79 Stat. 1127; 40 U.S.C. 759), develops and recommends Federal information processing standards and participates in the development of voluntary industry standards for computer and network technologies; conducts research in the science and technologies of automatic data processing, computers, and related systems; provides scientific and technical advisory services to the Office of Management and Budget and the General Services Administration to support the formulation of Federal automatic data processing policies; provides advisory services and technical assistance to other Government agencies, and builds and maintains the competence in computer science and engineering necessary to carry out these programs. The Institute consists of the following centers: Programming Science and Technology, and Computer Systems Engineering.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration

U.S. Department of Commerce, Washington, DC 20230
Phone, 202–377–2985

[For the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Feb. 13, 1978, 43 FR 6128]

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) was formed on October 3, 1970, by Reorganization Plan No. 4 of 1970. Its principal functions are authorized by title 15, chapter 9, United States Code (National Weather Service); title 33, chapter 17, United States Code (National Ocean Survey); and title 16, chapter 9, United States Code (National Marine Fisheries Service). NOAA's mission was further defined by the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972, the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972, the Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act of 1972, the Weather Modification Reporting Act of 1972, the Endangered Species Act of 1973, the Offshore Shrimp Fisheries Act of 1973, the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, and the Land Remote Sensing Act of 1984.

The mission of NOAA is to explore, map, and chart the global ocean and its living resources and to manage, use, and conserve those resources; to describe, monitor, and predict conditions in the atmosphere, ocean, Sun, and space environment; to issue warnings against impending destructive natural events; to assess the consequences of inadvertent environmental modification over several scales of time; and to manage and disseminate long-term environmental information.

Among its principal activities, NOAA reports the weather of the United States and its possessions and provides weather forecasts to the general public; issues warnings against such destructive natural events as hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, and tsunamis; and provides services in support of aviation, marine activities, agriculture, forestry, urban air-quality control, and other weather-sensitive activities. The Agency also monitors and reports all non-Federal weather modification activities conducted in the United States.

NOAA conducts an integrated program of management, research, and services related to the protection and rational use of living marine resources and their habitats, and protects marine mammals and endangered marine species. The Agency prepares and issues nautical and aeronautical charts, provides the Nation's precise geodetic surveys, and conducts broad research programs in marine and atmospheric sciences, solar-terrestrial physics, and experimental meteorology, including weather modification. NOAA also predicts tides, currents, and the state of the oceans; conducts research and development aimed at providing alternatives to ocean dumping; and develops sound national policies in the areas of ocean mining and energy. It provides Federal leadership in promoting wise and balanced management of the Nation's coastal zone.

In addition, NOAA provides satellite observations of the environment by operating a national environmental satellite system; and conducts an integrated program of research and services relating to the oceans and inland waters, the lower and upper atmosphere, space environment, and the Earth to increase understanding of the geophysical environment. NOAA acquires, stores, and disseminates worldwide environmental data through a system of meteorological, oceanographic, geodetic, and seismological data centers.

NOAA also administers and directs the National Sea Grant college program by providing grants to institutions for marine research, education, and advisory services; develops a system of data buoys for automatically obtaining and disseminating marine environmental data; and promotes the development of technology to meet future needs of the marine community.

National Telecommunications and Information Administration

The National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) was established in 1978 in response to Executive Order 12046 of March 27, 1978.

The reorganization that accompanied this Executive order combined within NTIA the resources of the Office of Telecommunications of the Commerce Department and the Office of Telecommunications Policy from the Executive Office of the President. It thus provided a broad national role in telecommunication and information issues for the Department of Commerce.

NTIA's broad goals include formulating policies to support the development and growth of telecommunications, information, and related industries; furthering the efficient development and use of telecommunications and information services; providing policy and management for Federal use of the electromagnetic spectrum; and providing telecommunications facilities grants to public service users.

Patent and Trademark Office

[For the Patent and Trademark Office statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Apr. 14, 1975, 40 FR 16707]

The patent system, administered by the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO), was established by Congress ". . . to promote the progress of . . . the useful arts. . ." under Article I, section 8, U.S. Constitution (see also 66 Stat. 792, 35 U.S.C. 1–293; 88 Stat. 1949, 35 U.S.C. 1 note; 89 Stat. 685, 35 U.S.C. 351–376; 60 Stat. 427, 15 U.S.C. 1051; 94 Stat. 3015, 35 U.S.C. 301–307; 96 Stat. 322, 35 U.S.C. 294).

PTO examines applications for three kinds of patents: design patents (issued for 14 years), plant patents, and utility patents (issued for 17 years), including reissue patents. Reexamination of patents still in force began July 1, 1981. Under legislation effective May 8, 1985, PTO began issuing Statutory Invention Registrations, which have the defensive but not the enforceable attributes of a patent. PTO also processes international applications for patents under the provisions of the Patent Cooperation Treaty. More than 75,000 patents were issued for fiscal year 1985 that provide inventors with exclusive rights to the results of their creative efforts. The patent system is intended to promote incentives to invent, to invest in research and development, to commercialize new technology, and to make public inventions that would otherwise go unnoticed.

More than 71,000 trademarks were registered for fiscal year 1985, and 5,855 trademark registrations were renewed. A trademark includes any distinctive word, name, symbol, device, or any combination thereof adopted and used by a manufacturer or merchant to identify his goods or services and distinguish them from those manufactured or sold by others. Trademarks, registered for 20 years with renewal rights, are examined by PTO for compliance with various statutory requirements to prevent unfair competition and consumer deception.

In addition to the examination of patent and trademark applications, issuance of patents, and registration of trademarks, PTO sells printed copies of issued patents and trademark registrations; records and indexes documents transferring ownership; maintains a scientific library and search files containing over 27 million documents, including U.S. and foreign patents and U.S. trademarks; provides search rooms for the public to research their applications; hears and decides appeals from prospective inventors and trademark applicants; participates in legal proceedings involving the issue of patents or registration of trademarks; helps represent the United States in international efforts to cooperate on patent and trademark policy; compiles the Official Gazettes—a weekly notice of patents issued and trademarks registered by PTO, including other information; and maintains a roster of patent agents and attorneys qualified and recognized to practice before PTO.

For further information, contact the Office of Public Affairs, Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, DC 20231. Phone, 703–557–3341. PTO operations are located at 2021 Jefferson Davis Highway, Arlington, VA 20231.

United States Travel and Tourism Administration

The United States Travel and Tourism Administration (USTTA) was established by the National Tourism Policy Act of 1981 (95 Stat. 1011; 22 U.S.C. 2121 note).

USTTA advises the Secretary of Commerce on the formulation and execution of national tourism policy. Its primary objectives are to: fully utilize the contribution of the tourism and recreation industries to economic prosperity, full employment, and the international trade balance; eliminate unnecessary trade barriers to the U.S. tourism industry operating throughout the world; ensure the compatibility of tourism and recreation with other national interests; and assist in the collection, analysis, and dissemination of tourism data.

USTTA conducts a marketing program to expand tourism exports and to strengthen the international trade position of the United States. The principal elements are to educate and motivate travel agents and operators abroad to select and market U.S. destinations; provide information and services to prospective individual consumers; coordinate U.S. and overseas tourism interests for international marketing projects and programs; stimulate demand for travel in the United States abroad; and assist international associations in the selection of U.S. locations for future meetings.

USTTA has 10 regional offices that are located in Amsterdam, Frankfurt, London, Mexico City, Milan, Paris, Sydney, Tokyo, and Toronto; an International Congress Office is located in Paris, France.

For further information, contact the United States Travel and Tourism Administration, Department of Commerce, Washington, DC 20230. Phone, 202-377-3811.

[For the Department of Defense statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 32, Chapter I, Parts 40–399]

The Department of Defense is responsible for providing the military forces needed to deter war and protect the security of our country.

The major elements of these forces are the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force, consisting of about 2.2 million men and women on active duty. Of these, some 515,000—including about 70,000 on ships at sea—are serving outside the United States. They are backed, in case of emergency, by the 2.5 million members of the reserve components. In addition, there are about 1.2 million civilian employees in the Defense Department.

Under the President, who is also Commander in Chief, the Secretary of Defense exercises direction, authority, and control over the Department, which includes the separately organized military departments of Army, Navy, and Air Force, the Joint Chiefs of Staff providing military advice, the unified and specified combatant commands, and various defense agencies established for specific purposes.

Every State in the Union has some defense activities. Central headquarters of the Department is at the Pentagon, the "world's largest office building."

The Department of Defense (DOD) is the successor agency to the National Military Establishment created by the National Security Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 495). It was established as an executive department of the Government by the National Security Act Amendments of 1949, with the Secretary of Defense as its head (63 Stat. 578; 5 U.S.C. 101). Since that time, major amendments have been made to the act by Reorganization Plan 6 of 1953, effective June 30, 1953, and the Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1958 (67 Stat. 638; 72 Stat. 514). The act of October 21, 1977 (91 Stat. 1172), provided for the establishment of the two positions of Under Secretary of Defense for Policy and Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering.

The Inspector General Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1101), as amended, provided for the establishment of the Inspector General within the Department of Defense, effective May 2, 1983.

The Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1984 (97 Stat. 614), provided for the establishment of the following positions: Director of Operational Test and Evaluation, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Reserve Affairs), Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications, and Intelligence), Assistant Secretary of Defense (Development and Support), and Assistant Secretary of Defense (Research and Technology).

In February 1985, under authority of 10 U.S.C. 136, the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Development and Support) was disestablished, and the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Logistics) was established.

Structure

The Department of Defense includes the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Armed Forces Policy Council, the military departments and the military services within those departments, the unified and specified commands, and such other agencies as the Secretary of Defense establishes to meet specific requirements.

In providing immediate staff assistance and advice to the Secretary of Defense, the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, though separately identified and organized, function in full coordination and cooperation.

The Office of the Secretary of Defense includes the offices of the Deputy Secretary of Defense, the Executive Secretary of the Department of Defense, the Assistant to the Secretary and the Deputy Secretary of Defense, the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy, the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering, 11 Assistant Secretaries of Defense, the General Counsel, the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation, the Director for Program Analysis and Evaluation, the Inspector General, and such other staff offices as the Secretary of Defense establishes to assist him in carrying out his duties and responsibilities. The heads of these offices are civilian staff advisers to the Secretary and perform such functions as he assigns to them.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff are the principal military advisers to the Secretary of Defense as well as the President and the National Security Council. Each member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, other than the Chairman, is the senior military officer of his respective service and is responsible for keeping the Secretary of his military department fully informed on matters considered or acted upon by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Each military department (the Department of the Navy includes naval aviation and the United States Marine Corps) is separately organized under its own Secretary and functions under the direction, authority, and control of the Secretary of Defense. The Secretary of a military department is responsible to the Secretary of Defense for the operation of his department as well as its efficiency. Orders to the military departments are issued through the Secretaries of these departments, or their designees, by the Secretary of Defense or under authority specifically delegated in writing by the Secretary of Defense or provided by law.

Commanders of unified and specified commands are responsible to the President and the Secretary of Defense for the accomplishments of the military missions assigned to them. The chain of command runs from the President to the Secretary of Defense and through the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the commanders of unified and specified commands. Orders to such commanders are issued by the President or the Secretary of Defense, or by the Joint Chiefs of Staff by authority and direction of the Secretary of Defense. These commanders have full operational command over all forces assigned to them.

The Armed Forces Policy Council (AFPC) advises the Secretary of Defense on matters of broad policy relating to the Armed Forces and such other matters as the Secretary may direct. Its members report regularly on important matters that are of interest to the Department of Defense. In addition to the members identified below, such other officials of the Department of Defense and other departments and agencies in the executive branch as may be designated by the Secretary of Defense are invited to attend appropriate meetings of the AFPC. Council membership is as follows: Secretary of Defense, Chairman; Deputy Secretary of Defense; Secretaries of the military departments; Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff; Under Secretaries of Defense; Chief of Staff, Army; Chief of Naval Operations; Chief of Staff, Air Force; and Commandant, Marine Corps.

Office of the Secretary of Defense

The Department of Defense is administered by the Secretary of Defense, who is the principal assistant to the President in all matters relating to the Department of Defense. Under the direction of the President, and subject to the provisions of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, the Secretary of Defense exercises control over the Department of Defense. He is appointed from civil life by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. He is assisted in the administration of the Department by a Deputy Secretary of Defense who acts for, and exercises the powers of, the Secretary of Defense and is responsible for the supervision and coordination of the activities of the Department of Defense as directed by the Secretary of Defense.

Executive Secretary of the Department of Defense The Executive Secretary supports the Secretary and Deputy Secretary by performing the following duties: coordinates DOD participation in the interagency process involving national security management, defense policy, programs, and resources for DOD and with the White House, the National Security Council, the State Department, the Central Intelligence Agency, and other agencies, as appropriate; acts as the Secretariat for both the Armed Forces Policy Council (AFPC) and the Secretary's Performance Review Board; performs liaison with the White House Military Office, including Presidential support activities; serves as the DOD point of contact for intergovernmental affairs; processes requests for DOD support from the White House and Federal departments and agencies; processes special air mission transportation requests for the Office of the Secretary of Defense and non-DOD agencies; manages and controls all correspondence, information, and action documents for the Secretary and Deputy Secretary; and performs any special project directed by either the Secretary or Deputy Secretary.

Assistant to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of Defense The Assistant to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of Defense staffs noncareer positions throughout DOD; approves staffing for DOD boards and committees; recommends candidates for Presidential boards and committees; approves appointments for DOD headquarters-level experts and consultants; acts as the noncareer DOD contact with the Office of the Assistant to the President for Intergovernmental Affairs; and serves as primary DOD liaison with the White House Personnel Office in dealing with such matters.

Acquisition and Logistics The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Logistics) is the principal staff assistant and adviser to the Secretary of Defense for management of DOD production procurement, development of procurement regulations, career management of the procurement work force, logistics, installations, associated support functions, and other related matters. The Assistant Secretary participates in the total weapon system acquisition process and specifically chairs the Defense Acquisition Review Council (DSARC) Milestone III review. The Assistant Secretary develops policies, conducts analyses, provides advice, makes recommendations, and issues guidance on DOD plans and programs and requirements determination; develops systems and standards for the administration and management of approved DOD plans and programs; develops plans, programs, and actions to ensure adherence to DOD policies and national security objectives; reviews and evaluates DOD component plans and programs to ensure adherence to approved policies and standards; participates in planning, programming, budgeting, and followup activities related to the Assistant Secretary's responsibilities; promotes coordination, cooperation, and mutual understanding of all matters related to assigned activities, both inside and outside of the Department of Defense, including oversight and policy formulation for international logistics and military construction agreements and implementation of coproduction agreements with North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) allies and other friendly nations in coordination with the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy and the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering; serves as the primary focal point and principal spokesman and serves on boards, committees, and other groups pertaining to assigned functional areas; develops, coordinates, and maintains regulations as necessary and appropriate to implement the procurement regulatory responsibilities of the Secretary of Defense. The Assistant Secretary also exercises direction, authority, and control over the Defense Logistics Agency and the Armed Forces Pest Management Board.

Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence (C^3I)) is the principal adviser and assistant to the Secretary of Defense for DOD telecommunications, command, control, and intelligence matters, including related warning, electronic combat, special operations, and reconnaissance activities. The Assistant Secretary serves as the principal DOD focus for staff coordination on all matters concerning these areas and is the principal DOD official responsible for preparing and defending the Department's C^3I program before the Congress. The Assistant Secretary exercises direction, authority, and control over the Defense Mapping Agency, the Defense Communications Agency, the Joint Tactical C^3 Agency, and primary staff responsibility over the Defense Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency/Central Security Service.

Comptroller This functional area includes advice and assistance to the Secretary of Defense and Defense components in the performance of the Secretary's programming, budgeting, fiscal management, organizational and management planning, and administrative functions and the design and installation of resource management systems throughout the Department of Defense. Resource management information is collected, analyzed, and reported for the Office of Management and Budget, the Congress, the General Accounting Office, and other agencies outside the Department of Defense. Supervision, direction, and review of the preparation and execution of the Defense budget is provided, and services pertaining to automatic data processing and central data services are administered. The Comptroller provides assistance in identifying, diagnosing, and correcting organizational or management problems. The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) exercises direction, authority, and control over the Defense Contract Audit Agency and the Washington Headquarters Services (WHS) through the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Administration), who has collateral responsibility as Director, WHS.

Health Affairs The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs) is responsible for Department of Defense health matters, including preventive medicine, medical readiness, health care delivery, drug and alcohol abuse prevention, and procurement, development, and retention of medical personnel. The Assistant Secretary is required to develop policies, provide advice, make recommendations, and issue guidance on DOD plans and programs; develop systems, standards, and procedures for the administration and management of approved plans and programs; initiate programs and actions to ensure that all DOD health programs adhere to Department policies and national health objectives; promote coordination, cooperation, and mutual understanding within DOD and between the Department and other Federal agencies and the civilian community; serve on health-related boards, committees, and other groups; establish requirements for DOD research and development programs in medical fields and keep abreast of technical developments to provide for an orderly transition to operational status; and establish requirements and standards for medical facilities and materiel acquisition programs. The Assistant Secretary also exercises direction, authority, and control over the Office of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (OCHAMPUS) and is Director of the Defense Medical Support Activity (DMSA), consisting of the Defense Medical Facilities Office (DMFO) and the Defense Medical Systems Support Center (DMSSC), which includes both the Tri-Service Medical Information System (TRIMIS) and the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS).

Legislative Affairs This functional area includes maintenance of direct liaison with the Congress, the Executive Office of the President, and other Government agencies with regard to legislative investigations and other pertinent matters affecting the relations of the Department of Defense with the Congress; advice and assistance to the Secretary of Defense and other officials of the Department of Defense on congressional aspects of departmental policies, plans, and programs; coordination of departmental actions relating to congressional consideration of the legislative program of the Department; coordination of the development, clearance, and furnishing of information in response to requests received in the Office of the Secretary of Defense from Members of the Congress and the committees of the Congress and their staffs; and arrangements for witnesses from the Office of the Secretary of Defense, Defense agencies, and the military departments at congressional hearings on Defense matters.

Force Management and Personnel The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel) is responsible for the following functional areas:

Civilian and military personnel policy, including force structure analysis as related to quantitative and qualitative manpower requirements, manpower utilization, manpower programs development, and control of military and civilian manpower strengths; civilian and military personnel management programs and systems, including attraction and retention of military personnel; personnel utilization; compensation; retired pay; per diem, travel, and transportation allowances; civilian and military personnel career development, training, and education; labor-management relations; morale, discipline, and welfare; community services; nonappropriated fund activities; commercial affairs, credit unions, commissaries, and post exchanges;

Equal opportunity, including employment and utilization of personnel, education in race and human relations, and contractor compliance with equal opportunity requirements of Defense contracts;

Family policy and support, including dependents' education, health affairs liaison, accident prevention, occupational health, and safety;

Resource managment and support, including the provision of Department resources to other agencies for drug and narcotics enforcement efforts; coordination of Department efforts for mobilization of conventional forces; Federal-State relations; force readiness and sustainability; goal-setting and management supervision for the force management and personnel research program;

Mobilization planning and requirements, including coordination of Department efforts for mobilization of conventional forces.

The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel) also exercises direction, authority, and control over the Armed Forces Chaplains Board, DOD Dependents Schools, Office of Economic Adjustment, DOD Explosives Safety Board, Equal Opportunity Management Institute, Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services, Defense Manpower Data Center, Training Data and Analysis Center, Manpower Research Digest, and DOD Task Force on Drug Enforcement.

Policy The Under Secretary of Defense for Policy is the principal staff assistant to the Secretary of Defense for policy matters relating to overall international security policy and political-military affairs. Functional areas include NATO affairs; net assessments; foreign military sales; arms limitation agreements; international trade and technology; regional security affairs; intelligence analysis and collection requirements; integration of departmental plans and policies with overall national security objectives; and issuance of policy guidance affecting departmental programs. The Under Secretary exercises direction, authority, and control over the Deputy Under Secretaries of Defense for Policy, Trade Security Policy, and Planning and Resources; the Assistant Secretaries of Defense for International Security Affairs and International Security Policy; the Director of Net Assessment; the Defense Investigative Service; and the Defense Security Assistance Agency.

The Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Policy provides advice and recommends policies, validates requirements, establishes priorities, and issues guidance to DOD components with respect to activities and programs in the areas of special activities; emergency preparedness; counterintelligence; outer space; personnel, information, physical, and industrial security; international information and communications; psychological operations; and investigative program management and resource control. The Deputy Under Secretary also develops organization and procedures for the discharge of Office of the Secretary of Defense functions in national emergencies, and provides support to DOD and other U.S. Government or State agencies on civil defense and related matters.

The Deputy Under Secretary for Trade Security Policy serves as the focal point within DOD for the planning and management of all international trade and technology matters of Defense interest and their impact upon U.S. national security. The Deputy Under Secretary also has primary responsibility within the policy cluster for analysis of the interaction of international economic and export control factors affecting U.S. national security and the subsequent development, preparation, and coordination of related DOD positions, plans, procedures, and policy recommendations. He plans, directs, and coordinates a program of policy research pertaining to technology security. Specific topics include international trade in defense-related commodities and technologies, the impact of such trade on U.S. security interests, East-West and free world trade, munitions control, technical information control, and the international aspects of mobilization policy. The Deputy Under Secretary also formulates and recommends policy positions on East-West and free world trade and technology transfer cases reviewed by the multilateral Coordinating Committee (COCOM), reviews munitions license applications for the Under Secretary, and represents DOD at interagency meetings and in discussions with representatives of foreign governments.

The Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Planning and Resources serves as the principal deputy and adviser to the Under Secretary on all resource- and acquisition-related matters that arise within the PPB and systems acquisition processes. The Deputy Under Secretary manages day-to-day operations of the Defense guidance and exercises direction, authority, and control over the Defense guidance staff; serves as principal deputy and adviser to the Under Secretary on all international financial and economic policy matters of Defense interest, with special emphasis on NATO and other European and Soviet affairs and their impact on U.S. national security. He is responsible for directing the development and coordination of DOD policies, positions, plans, and procedures that relate to the impact of OECD, European, and East-West international financial and economic policy matters on U.S. security interests, mobilization capability, and related interests of U.S. allies. The Deputy Under Secretary additionally is designated to take the overall lead within Defense in coordinating the DOD's participation in interagency review of the national security aspects of U.S. international trade, economic, and financial policies.

International Security Affairs The Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs provides advice and recommends policies, formulates programs, develops plans, and issues guidance to DOD components regarding political-military activities related to international affairs, excluding NATO, other European countries, and the USSR. Oversight is provided for DOD activities relating to law of the sea. The Assistant Secretary provides supervision in the areas of security assistance (i.e., foreign military sales and military assistance programs), Military Assistance Advisory Groups and Missions, and the negotiation and monitoring of agreements with foreign governments, excluding NATO, other European countries, and the USSR. In the area of international economic and energy affairs, the Assistant Secretary provides advice and recommends policies, formulates programs, develops plans, and issues guidance to DOD components. The Assistant Secretary formulates plans and policy related to general purpose forces, non-European regional security requirements, and related budget considerations. The Assistant Secretary provides defense policy oversight on matters pertaining to POW/MIA affairs and acts as principal adviser to the Secretary of Defense on such matters.

International Security Policy The Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy serves as the focal point for policy planning on strategic international security matters concerning European and NATO affairs, strategic and theater nuclear force planning, and all matters concerning nuclear and conventional, bilateral and multilateral negotiations on arms reductions, defense and space, and East-West security negotiations. The Assistant Secretary formulates policy related to strategic offensive and defensive forces, theater nuclear matters and capabilities, European conventional defense, and the relationship between strategic and theater force planning and budgets. Responsibilities also include implementing policy on nuclear nonproliferation matters and other treaties and agreements, as well as oversight of DOD activities related to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and bilateral issues with European countries. He additionally oversees the formulation of East-West economic policy, including East-West trade, technology transfer and security issues, including strategic trade and export licensing of dual-use items controlled for national security reasons, and munitions items, and covering issues affecting the defense industrial mobilization base.

Net Assessment The Director of Net Assessment is under the direction, authority, and control of the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy, but maintains a direct channel to the Secretary of Defense while keeping the Under Secretary informed. The Director formulates, plans, conducts, and prepares net assessments for the Secretary of Defense.

Program Analysis and Evaluation With the direction of the Secretary of Defense, this staff formulates the force planning, fiscal, programming, and policy guidance upon which DOD force planning and program projections are to be based. From the Secretary's guidance the staff defines the Defense objectives, policies, and fiscal constraints to be used as the basis for force planning and for developing changes to the Defense program. The staff analyzes and evaluates military forces, weapons systems, and equipment in relation to projected threats, U.S. objectives, resource constraints, and priorities established by the Secretary of Defense. This staff also identifies issues and analyzes and evaluates alternative programs in terms of how well the programs meet objectives; proposes, guides, monitors, and evaluates studies and analyses by other DOD components; and conducts or participates in special studies as directed by the Secretary of Defense.

Public Affairs This functional area includes Defense public and internal information and audiovisual activities and community relations. Liaison is maintained with and assistance is provided to information media and national and civic organizations with respect to matters relating to activities of the Department of Defense. Approvals are required for military participation in public exhibitions, demonstrations, and ceremonies of national or international significance. The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) ensures a free flow of news and information to the media, appropriate forums, and the American people, limited only by national security constraints and statutory considerations. The Assistant Secretary exercises direction, authority, and control over the Defense Information Services Activity and the American Forces Information Service.

Research and Engineering The Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering is the principal adviser and assistant to the Secretary of Defense for DOD scientific and technical matters; basic and applied research; environmental services; and development of weapons systems. The Under Secretary has responsibility for research, development, and development testing of all DOD weapons systems. The Under Secretary exercises direction, authority, and control over the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Research and Technology), the Assistant to the Secretary of Defense (Atomic Energy), the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, the Defense Nuclear Agency, and the Defense Systems Management College.

Reserve Affairs The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Reserve Affairs) is responsible for exercising overall supervision of Reserve component matters in the Department of Defense: manpower, personnel, and compensation; research, studies, and evaluation; operations, training, and force structure; mobilization, demobilization, and reconstitution; force mix; weapons systems, equipment, and materiel; construction, installations, and facilities; and readiness and sustainability. In addition, the Assistant Secretary exercises direction, authority, and control over the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve and provides administrative staff support to the Reserve Forces Policy Board.

General Counsel The General Counsel is the chief legal officer of the Department of Defense with responsibility for all legal services performed within or involving the Department of Defense. The General Counsel is responsible for the preparation and processing of legislation, executive orders and proclamations, and reports and comments thereon. In addition, the General Counsel serves as Director of the Defense Legal Services Agency, providing legal advice and service for the Office of the Secretary of Defense and its field activities, and the Defense agencies.

Operational Test and Evaluation The Director of Operational Test and Evaluation serves as the principal staff assistant and adviser to the Secretary of Defense on operational test and evaluation (OT&E) in the Department of Defense and the principal OT&E official within the senior management of DOD. The Director of OT&E prescribes policies and procedures for the conduct of OT&E within DOD; provides advice and makes recommendations to the Secretary of Defense and issues guidance to and consults with the heads of DOD components with respect to OT&E in the Department in general, and to specific OT&E programs to be conducted in connection with a major defense acquisition program; monitors and reviews all OT&E programs in DOD to ensure adherence to approved policies and standards; and reviews and makes recommendations to the Secretary of Defense on all budgetary and financial matters relating to OT&E, including operational test facilities and equipment. The Director approves the adequacy of service operational test plans for major programs prior to execution and provides to the Secretary of Defense and Congress an assessment of the operational effectiveness and suitability of the system before it proceeds beyond a low rate of production.

Inspector General of the Department of Defense The Inspector General serves as an independent and objective official in the Department of Defense who is responsible for conducting, supervising, monitoring, and initiating audits, investigations, and inspections relating to programs and operations of the Department of Defense. The Inspector General provides leadership and coordination and recommends policies for activities designed to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness in the administration of, and to prevent and detect fraud and abuse in, such programs and operations. The Inspector General is also responsible for keeping the Secretary of Defense and the Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies relating to the administration of such programs and operations and the necessity for, and progress of, corrective action.

Intelligence Oversight The Assistant to the Secretary of Defense (Intelligence Oversight) conducts oversight inspections of DOD intelligence and counterintelligence activities to ensure legal compliance and standards of propriety; independently inspects as well as reviews results of additional inspections by the Inspectors General of the National Security Agency and Defense Intelligence Agency, and military service intelligence organizations; evaluates inquiries into allegations of questionable activities to ensure that investigations are rigorously and thoroughly accomplished and that appropriate corrective measures are implemented; reports jointly with the DOD General Counsel to the Secretary of Defense and the President's Intelligence Oversight Board (established under Executive Order 12334 of December 4, 1981) at least quarterly on any DOD intelligence activities of questionable legality or propriety and on significant oversight activities undertaken to ensure compliance with Executive Order 12333, "United States Intelligence Activities," and DOD policies.

Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization (SADBU) Under the direction of the Secretary of Defense, SADBU administers Department responsibilities under the Small Business Act (92 Stat. 1760; 15 U.S.C. 631), as amended. The Director, SADBU, ensures that a fair share of Department procurements are placed with small businesses, small disadvantaged businesses, and women-owned small businesses; conducts surveillance reviews of selected Department contracting activities' small business programs as well as those of major Department prime contractors; establishes and reviews policies, procedures, and initiatives for inclusion in the Defense supplement to the Federal Acquisition Regulation for the improvement of Department small business and small disadvantaged business programs; manages the Department's labor surplus program; develops and reviews legislative initiatives for increased small business participation in Department procurements; and manages the small business research and development program.

Field Activities

American Forces Information Service

The American Forces Information Service (AFIS), established in 1977 under the supervision of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs), is responsible for the DOD internal information program and DOD visual information policy. The Armed Forces Radio and Television Service (AFRTS), the American Forces Press and Publications Service (AFPPS), and the AFRTS Broadcast Center (AFRTS-BC) function under the Director of AFIS. In addition, AFIS provides policy guidance and oversight for DOD periodicals and pamphlets, Stars and Stripes newspapers, military command newspapers, the broadcast elements of the military departments, DOD audiovisual matters, and the Defense Information School (DINFOS).

(American Forces Information Service, Department of Defense, Room 210, 1735 N. Lynn Street, Arlington, VA 22209–2086. Phone, 202–696–5284)

Defense Information Services Activity

The Defense Information Services Activity (DISA) was established in 1985 under the policy guidance and operational direction of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs). DISA implements DOD policies and programs that pertain to the release of information to the American people. DISA functions include reviewing information intended for public release to ensure compliance with security policies; implementation of the Freedom of Information Act and the Federal Privacy Act programs within the Department of Defense; long-range coordination and planning of public schedules of senior Defense officials; providing editorial services to the Secretary of Defense and the Deputy Secretary of Defense; and serving as the DOD focal point for defense information and publications.

(Defense Information Services Activity, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs), Washington, DC 20301-1400. Phone, 202–697–1180)

Department of Defense Dependents Schools The Department of Defense Dependents Schools (DODDS) was established in 1974. Under the policy guidance of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel), DODDS is charged with providing quality education, from kindergarten through grade twelve, to eligible minor dependents of military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense stationed overseas. DODDS, in turn, advises the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel) on all matters pertaining to Dependents Schools.

(Department of Defense Dependents Schools, Room 152, Hoffman Building, Alexandria, VA 22331. Phone, 202-325-0188)

Office of Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services

The Office of Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (OCHAMPUS) was established as a field activity in 1974 under the policy guidance and operational direction of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs). The mission of OCHAMPUS is to administer a civilian health and medical care program for retirees and the spouses and dependent children of active duty, retired, and deceased service members. Also included are spouses and dependent children of totally disabled veterans. OCHAMPUS also administers, for the Uniformed Services, a program for payment of emergency medical/dental services provided to active duty service members by civilian medical personnel.

(Office of Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services, Department of Defense, Denver, CO 80045. Phone, 303-361-8606)

Defense Medical Support Activity

The Defense Medical Support Activity is comprised of two principal elements: the Defense Medical Systems Support Center and the Defense Medical Facilities Office.

The Defense Medical Systems Support Center, under the policy guidance and operational direction of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs), provides control for both information management policy and systems policy within the military health systems arena. The mission of the Defense Medical Systems Support Center is to ensure that information systems and related communications function efficiently, are supportive of DOD functional requirements for both peacetime and contingency operations, and are integrated to support a planned systems architecture. The four principal subdivisions are the Tri-Service Medical Information System (TRIMIS); the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS); the Office of Mobilization Support and Communications; and the Management Information Support Directorate.

Office of Economic Adjustment The Office of Economic Adjustment is responsible for planning and managing DOD economic adjustment programs and for assisting Federal, State, and local officials in cooperative efforts to alleviate any serious social and economic side effects resulting from major DOD realignments or other actions. The Office also supports the Secretary of Defense in his capacity as Chairperson of the Economic Adjustment Committee, an interagency group established by Executive Order 12049 of March 27, 1978, to coordinate Federal economic adjustment activities. In addition, the Director of the Office of Economic Adjustment also serves as the economic adjustment policy adviser on the staff of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel).

(Office of Economic Adjustment, Department of Defense, Room 3D968, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20301. Phone, 202-697-9155)

Washington Headquarters Services Washington Headquarters Services (WHS) was established in 1977. The Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Administration) serves in a dual capacity as the Director, WHS. The mission of WHS is to provide administrative and operational support to certain Department of Defense activities in the National Capital region. Such support includes budget and accounting, personnel management, office services, security, correspondence, directives and records management, travel, building administration, computer services, information and data systems, voting assistance program, and other administrative support as required.

Joint Tactical Command, Control, and Communications Agency The Joint Tactical Command, Control, and Communications Agency (JTC^{3}A) was established in July 1984 by combining assets of the Joint Tactical Communications Program (TRI-TAC) and the Joint Interoperability of the Tactical Command and Control Systems Program (JINTACCS). JTC^{3}A is a joint field activity of the Department of Defense under the control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence. JTC^{3}A also responds directly to the Joint Chiefs of Staff on policies, tactical operations matters, and C^3 requirements of a joint and combined nature. The mission of the Agency is to ensure the interoperability of tactical command, control, and communications (C^3) systems for joint or combined operations, including nonstrategic nuclear forces, through the development and maintenance of a joint architecture, interface standards, and interface definitions for tactical mobile C^3 systems.

The Agency is manned in three geographic locations: Fort Monmouth, NJ; Washington, DC; and Fort Huachuca, AZ.

Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff

Joint Chiefs of Staff

The Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) are the principal military advisers to the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of Defense. They constitute the immediate military staff of the Secretary of Defense, serving in the chain of command that extends from the President to the Secretary of Defense, through the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to the commanders of unified and specified commands.

Subject to the authority and direction of the President and the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in addition to such other duties as the President and the Secretary of Defense may direct, have the following responsibilities:

Preparation of strategic plans and provision for the strategic direction of the Armed Forces;

Preparation of integrated plans for military mobilization and integrated logistic plans;

Recommending to the Secretary of Defense the establishment and force structure of unified and specified commands and the assignment to the military departments of responsibility for providing support to such commands;

Review of plans and programs of commanders of unified and specified commands;

Review of major personnel, materiel, and logistic requirements of the Armed Forces in relation to strategic and logistic plans;

Establishment of doctrines for unified operations and training and for coordination of the military education of members of the Armed Forces;

Providing the Secretary of Defense with statements of military requirements and strategic guidance for use in the development of budgets, foreign military aid programs, industrial mobilization plans, and programs of scientific research and development;

Recommending to the Secretary of Defense the assignment of primary responsibility for any function of the Armed Forces requiring such determination and the transfer, reassignment, abolition, or consolidation of such functions; and Providing the United States representation on the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations, and when authorized, on other military staffs, boards, councils, and missions.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff consist of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; the Chief of Staff, United States Army; the Chief of Naval Operations; the Commandant of the Marine Corps; and the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force. The Joint Chiefs of Staff are assisted in the performance of their responsibilities by the Joint Staff and the other agencies of the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff

The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff while holding such office takes precedence over all officers of the armed services. Besides participating as a member, the Chairman serves as presiding officer of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, provides agenda for the meetings, works to ensure that business is carried out promptly, and determines when issues under consideration by the Joint Chiefs of Staff will be decided. He informs the Secretary of Defense on issues before the Joint Chiefs of Staff, including those upon which agreement has not been reached. Subject to the authority, direction, and control of the Secretary of Defense, the Chairman serves as the spokesman for the unified and specified commanders on operational requirements. In consultation with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and with the approval of the Secretary of Defense, he selects the Director of the Joint Staff and manages the Joint Staff through its Director. The appointment of officers to and tenure of officers on the Joint Staff are subject to his approval.

Joint Staff

The Joint Staff, headed by the Director of the Joint Staff, is composed of not more than 400 officers selected in approximately equal numbers from the Army, the Navy (including the Marine Corps), and the Air Force. The Joint Staff is organized into Directorates concerned with manpower and personnel, operations, logistics, plans and policy, and communications, command, and control systems.

Other Agencies

The other agencies of the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff are the Joint Analysis Directorate; the Strategic Plans and Resource Analysis Agency; the Joint Special Operations Agency; the Joint Secretariat; the Directorate for Information and Resource Management; the Office of the Inspector General; and the Advisor for Mapping, Charting, and Geodesy Support. The Joint Materiel Priorities and Allocations Board, Joint Transportation Board, and Military Communications-Electronics Board are concerned with equitable distribution of resources. There are four organizations involving various aspects of hemispheric defense. They are vehicles for promoting military-political cooperation with Canada, Mexico, and other American nations. These organizations are the U.S. Delegation, Inter-American Defense Board; U.S. Section, Canada-U.S. Military Cooperation Committee; U.S. Military Representative, Permanent Joint Board on Defense, Canada-U.S.; and the U.S. Section, Joint Mexican-U.S. Defense Commission. The Joint Electronic Warfare Center provides analytical support to the electronic warfare military aspects of military operations. The Joint Strategic Target Planning Staff and the Joint Deployment Agency are tasked with coordinating plans in critical areas. Additionally, the facilities of the National Military Command System are operationally and administratively responsible to the Operations Directorate of the Joint Staff.

Other major organizations reporting to or through the Joint Chiefs of Staff include the National Defense University; the U.S. Delegation, United Nations Military Staff Committee; and the U.S. Representative to the Military Committee, North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Defense Agencies

For operational matters and requirements associated with joint planning that are of primary concern to the Chiefs, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff may assign tasks and communicate directly with the Defense Communications Agency, the Defense Nuclear Agency, and the Defense Mapping Agency. The Defense Intelligence Agency, in addition to serving as the intelligence adviser to the Secretary of Defense, is responsible for intelligence and intelligence staff support to the JCS and for intelligence support to the unified and specified commands.

The Department of the Air Force is responsible for providing an Air Force that is capable, in conjuction with the other armed forces, of preserving the peace and security of the United States.

The Department of the Air Force was established as part of the National Military Establishment by the National Security Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 495) and came into being on September 18, 1947. The National Security Act Amendments of 1949 redesignated the National Military Establishment as the Department of Defense, established it as an executive department, and made the Department of the Air Force a military department within the Department of Defense (63 Stat. 578).

The Department of the Air Force is separately organized under the Secretary of the Air Force. It operates under the authority, direction, and control of the Secretary of Defense (10 U.S.C. 8010). The Department consists of the Office of the Secretary of the Air Force, the Air Staff, and the field organization.

Office of the Secretary

The Office of the Secretary includes the Under Secretary, three Assistant Secretaries, the Administrative Assistant, the General Counsel, and the Directors of Legislative Liaison, Public Affairs, Space Systems, International Affairs, Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, and Auditor General. The heads of these offices are staff advisers to the Secretary for functions he assigns to them.

The Department of the Air Force is administered by the Secretary of the Air Force who is responsible for and has the authority to conduct all affairs of the Department. The principal assistant is the Under Secretary, who acts with full authority of the Secretary on all affairs of the Department. Additionally, the Under Secretary provides overall direction, guidance, and supervision for Air Force space programs and activities. The Special Assistant (International Affairs) is the principal assistant to the Secretary concerning international Air Force activities, politico-military affairs, and international security policy and affairs.

Assistant Secretaries The Assistant Secretary (Manpower, Reserve Affairs and Installations) is responsible for the formulation, review, and execution of Air Force manpower, reserve affairs, and installations plans, policies, and programs. In addition, this person serves as a member of the Reserve Forces Policy Board, the Per Diem, Travel and Transportation Allowance Committee, the Air Force Policy Council, and the Air Force Systems Acquisition Review Council.

The Assistant Secretary (Financial Management) is responsible for the policies and procedures in Air Force planning, programming, and budgeting; cost analysis; accounting; internal audit; management systems, banking, and information systems management. Other responsibilities include reporting for weapons systems, major programs, and management of products and services from the computer industry.

The Assistant Secretary (Research, Development and Logistics) is responsible for the formulation and execution of Air Force research, development, and logistics policies and programs. As the Air Force acquisition executive, this person is responsible to the Secretary for all decisions relating to the acquisition of weapons systems and the command and control systems that support them.

Supporting Offices The Administrative Assistant serves as principal adviser to the Secretary of the Air Force and other statutory appointees on all phases of internal administration and management policies and assures administrative continuity in the Office of the Secretary during changes of top officials.

The General Counsel is the final legal authority on all matters arising within or referred to the Department of the Air Force, except those relating to the administration of military justice and such other matters as may be assigned to the Judge Advocate General.

The Director of Legislative Liaison advises and assists the Secretary and all other principal civilian and military officials of the Department concerning Air Force legislative affairs and congressional relations.

The Director of Public Affairs assists the Secretary and all military personnel and civilians in the Department concerning communication with the Air Force team, community relations, and media relations.

The Director of Space Systems is primarily responsible for assisting the Secretary in discharging his responsibility for the direction, supervision, policy, security, and control of space systems.

The Air Force Audit Agency provides independent internal audit and appraisal of financial, operational, management, and support activities as a service to all levels of management.

The Director of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization is responsible for the implementation and execution of the Air Force's program to aid, counsel, and assist small and disadvantaged firms in obtaining a fair proportion of Air Force prime contracts and subcontracts. The Director is also responsible for the Air Force's Labor Surplus Area Contracting Program and for assisting women-owned business firms in obtaining contracts.

Air Staff

Mission The mission of the Air Staff is to furnish professional assistance to the Secretary, the Under Secretary, the Assistant Secretaries of the Air Force, and the Chief of Staff.

Structure The Air Staff is a management headquarters functional organization under the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force. Titles throughout all organizational levels reflect the functions involved. In addition, there is a board structure, a Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force, a foreign liaison office, and an administrative management function.

Functions and Activities Air Staff functions are specialized into well-defined areas to effect the management principles of functionality, integration, flexibility, simplicity, and decentralization. The Air Staff retains those management functions that legally cannot be delegated or decentralized, are needed by the Secretary and Chief of Staff, are essential to respond promptly to the Secretary of Defense, or are required to determine the design and structure of the Air Force in the future.

Chief of Staff The Chief of Staff is directly responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force for the efficiency and operational readiness of the Air Force. He is a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) of the Department of Defense. He is assisted in all responsibilities, except for JCS, by the Vice Chief of Staff. The Assistant Vice Chief of Staff assists the Chief and Vice Chief in the discharge of their duties.

Special Staff The Special Staff is an adjunct to the Chief of Staff, independent of the basic staff structure, and provides advisory and support services to both the Chief of Staff and the Air Staff. The Special Staff consists of: Chief, Office of Air Force History; USAF Scientific Advisory Board; Surgeon General; Chief of Chaplains; Judge Advocate General; Chief of Air Force Reserve; Chief, National Guard Bureau; Director, Air National Guard; the Inspector General; Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence; Assistant Chief of Staff, Information Systems; Assistant Chief of Staff, Studies and Analyses; and the Director of Administration.

Deputy Chiefs of Staff The Deputy Chiefs of Staff (DCS's) function primarily as a coordinating level on policy matters and represent the corporate structure. Substantive functions are organized under the DCS's in homogeneous groups that are called Directorates. Under the directorates, functions are further broken down into descriptive groups, divisions, and branches.

Comptroller of the Air Force The Comptroller of the Air Force functions in the same manner as the DCS's except that he or she is directly responsible to the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Financial Management with concurrent responsibility to the Chief of Staff.

Board Structure The board structure in the Air Staff consists of the Air Force Council and below it the Air Staff Board. The Air Force Council presents the recommendations of the DCS's on an agenda item to the Chief of Staff. The Air Staff Board presents the recommendations of the directors on an agenda item to the staff responsible or sponsors the recommendation before the Air Force Council. Membership on the Council is at DCS, Comptroller, Special Staff level while membership on the Board is at Directorate level.

Field Organization

The major commands, separate operating agencies, and direct reporting units together represent the field organization of the United States Air Force. These commands are organized primarily on a functional basis in the United States and on an area basis overseas. Commands are given the responsibility for accomplishing certain phases of the worldwide activities of the USAF. They are responsible for organizing, administering, equipping, and training their subordinate elements for the accomplishment of assigned missions.

Air Force Logistics Command The Air Force Logistics Command provides worldwide logistical support to the Air Force. This includes procurement, storage, and distribution of supplies and the performance of or arrangement for the performance of depot level maintenance on materiel.

Air Force Systems Command The responsibility of the Air Force Systems Command is to advance aerospace technology, adapt it into operational aerospace systems, and acquire qualitatively superior aerospace systems and material needed to accomplish the United States Air Force mission.

Air Training Command The Air Training Command is responsible for Air Force recruiting and individual training for Air Force officers and airmen. Training includes basic training and indoctrination for recruits; Air Force ROTC flying training; and technical, field, and special training.

Air University The Air University is a major command and is responsible for the higher education of Air Force officers. Education activities include the Air War College, Air Command and Staff College, Air Force Institute of Technology, Civil Air Patrol, Extension Course Institute, and the Air University Center for Professional Development.

Military Airlift Command The Military Airlift Command is a major command of the United States Air Force and a Joint Chiefs of Staff specified command. Its primary mission is to provide air transportation for personnel and cargo for all the military services on a worldwide basis. In addition, it furnishes weather, rescue, special operations, and audiovisual services for the Air Force.

Strategic Air Command The Strategic Air Command is a major command of the United States Air Force and a Joint Chiefs of Staff specified command. Its primary mission is to organize, train, equip, administer, and prepare strategic air forces for combat, including bombardment, missile, special mission, and strategic reconnaissance units, and to conduct strategic air operations.

Tactical Air Command The Tactical Air Command's mission is to organize, train, and equip forces to participate in tactical air operations. This includes tactical fighter, tactical air reconnaissance, air defense, close combat air support, and joint amphibious and airborne operations. It is the Air Force component of the U.S. Readiness Command, the U.S. Atlantic Command, and provides the Air Force component of the U.S. Central Command. It participates with other services in developing doctrine, procedures, tactics, techniques, training, and equipment for joint operations. It provides combat ready air elements to the Readiness and Central Commands.

Electronic Security Command The Electronic Security Command monitors Air Force communications in all parts of the world to ensure compliance with established communication security practices and procedures. In addition, Electronic Security Command units occasionally conduct research in communication phenomena in support of various elements of the U.S. Government.

Air Force Communications Command The Air Force Communications Command provides base and point-to-point communications, flight facilities, air traffic control, and automated data processing (ADP) services, primarily to the Air Force, but also to other agencies, governmental and civil, national and foreign.

United States Air Forces in Europe The United States Air Forces in Europe is a major command of the United States Air Force and is the Air Force component of the U.S. European Command. Its primary mission is to organize, train, equip, administer, and prepare assigned forces for combat, including tactical fighter, tactical air reconnaissance, tactical air control, close air support, and defense suppression units to conduct defensive and offensive air operations. It provides combat ready air elements to the U.S. European Command and participates in joint and combined air operations.

Pacific Air Forces The Pacific Air Forces is a major command of the United States Air Force and is the Air Force component of the U.S. Pacific Command. Its primary mission is to organize, train, equip, administer, and prepare assigned forces for combat, including tactical fighter, tactical air reconnaissance, tactical air control, close air support, and defense suppression units to conduct defensive and offensive air operations. It provides combat ready air elements to the U.S. Pacific Command and participates in joint and combined air operations.

Alaskan Air Command The Alaskan Air Command is a major command of the United States Air Force. Its primary mission is to conduct aerospace defense operations according to tasks assigned by the Commander in Chief, North American Aerospace Defense Command (CINCNORAD). The Command plans, conducts, controls, and coordinates offensive and defensive air operations, and is the coordinating authority for all joint military administrative and logistical matters in Alaska, and is the military point of contact for the State of Alaska.

Air Force Space Command The Air Force Space Command provides resource management and operation of assigned assets for space control, space force application, force enhancement, space support, and strategic aerospace defense. The Command provides a close link between its space activities and, through the Commander in Chief, Aerospace Defense Command and Unified Space Command, the unified and specified command structure.

Separate Operating Agencies The Air Force Accounting and Finance Center provides technical supervision, advice, and guidance to Air Force accounting and finance field activities and finance operation.

The Air Force Audit Agency provides independent internal audit and appraisal of financial, operational, management, and support activities as a service to all levels of management.

The Air Force Inspection and Safety Center directs the Air Force inspection and safety programs, evaluating operational readiness, accident prevention, and management systems

The Air Force Office of Special Investigations provides criminal, counterintelligence, personnel security, and special investigative services to Air Force activities; collects, analyzes, and reports significant information about these matters.

The Air Force Military Personnel Center executes personnel plans and programs and supervises procedures applicable to the worldwide management and administration of Air Force military personnel.

The Air Force Intelligence Service provides specialized intelligence service in support of USAF operations through the conduct of comprehensive research, direction of collection activities, processing and dissemination of intelligence information and intelligence, and the exercise of management and control of intelligence systems and special security systems.

The Air Force Operational Test and Evaluation Center manages the Air Force Operational Test and Evaluation (OT&E) program; assesses the operational utility of all major and selected nonmajor Air Force systems using, implementing, and supporting commands as required; and is responsible for recommending policy and for planning, directing, evaluating, and reporting on the Air Force OT&E program.

The Air Force Engineering and Services Center provides specialized engineering and services, technical assistance, and operating support to Air Force bases and organizations. This includes food, laundry, dry cleaning, and linen exchange services; regional civil engineering; and the highly specialized, interdisciplinary civil engineering functions.

The Air Force Commissary Service provides subsistence support to appropriated and nonappropriated fund food activities and to authorized individual patrons. It also operates a resale store system to provide service and facilities for the sale of Department of Defense authorized merchandise at the lowest practical price to authorized patrons.

The Air Force Legal Services Center provides Air Force-wide legal services in the functional areas of military justice, patents, claims and tort litigation, general litigation, labor law, preventive law, and legal aid. It also administers the Federal Legal Information Through Electronics (FLITE) Program for the Air Force as Executive Agent for the Department of Defense.

The Air Force Service Information and News Center plans and executes the USAF internal information program for all military and civilian personnel. It develops, produces, and distributes materials in support of information, orientation, motivation, and unit morale goals and provides information about Air Force people and missions to hometown news media and national commercial magazines.

The Air Force Office of Medical Support assists and supports the Air Force Surgeon General in developing and implementing practices for health care in peacetime and wartime environments. It also performs studies and research on how Air Force medical policies and programs are executed and recommends appropriate modifications to the Air Force Surgeon General.

The Air Force Office of Security Police develops operational policies and practices in peacetime and wartime environments to carry out programs for the security of Air Force resources and information and the delivery of law enforcement services. The Office implements plans, policies, and programs for base defense, management of security police personnel, training, systems and equipment programs, and the physical security of Air Force resources; the information, personnel and industrial security programs and the wartime information security program; maintenance of law and order; prisoner rehabilitation and corrections programs; vehicle traffic management; and the military working dog program.

The Air Force Reserve performs the USAF Chief of Staff field responsibilities of command of the Air Force Reserve and is responsible for participation in the formulation of plans for the management, administration, and execution of programs affecting Air Force Reserve (AFRes) units and mobilization of these reserves when needed.

The Air Reserve Personnel Center develops personnel management policies, plans, and programs pertaining to Air Force Reserve personnel when they are not on extended active duty and provides personnel management for reserve forces of the Air Force and personnel support for mobilization of these forces.

The Air Force Management Engineering Agency develops and maintains Air Force manpower standards for the purpose of improving manpower utilization; implements the Air Force Management Engineering Program; and exercises direct supervision over assigned Management Engineering teams engaged in developing specialized and functional manpower standards and related data.

Direct Reporting Units The Air Force Combat Operations Staff provides readiness-oriented, combat-related support to the Chief of Staff, U.S. Air Force. The Staff serves as a permanent nucleus of a centralized, highly responsive, and integrated combat support structure. It includes the combat-related activities of functions such as operations, operations plans, intelligence, logistics, and personnel.

The Air Force Civilian Personnel Management Center directs, develops, manages, and evaluates the wide range of Federal and internal policies and programs affecting Air Force civilians, including foreign nationals, worldwide.

The Air Force Review Boards Office supervises the activities of the Air Force Board for Correction of Military Records (AFBCMR), the Air Force Civilian Appellate Review Agency (AFCARA), and the Air Force Personnel Council. AFBCMR and AFCARA ensure compliance with appropriate legal and policy guidelines in the correction of military records and in resolving civilian employee complaints. The Personnel Council advises the Air Force Secretariat on matters relating to various personnel policies and the effective management of active and reserve components of the Air Force.

The Air Force Technical Applications Center operates and maintains the United States Atomic Energy Detection System (AEDS) to monitor compliance of signatories to nuclear test ban treaties. AEDS consists of a worldwide network of sensors and collection equipment, analysis laboratories, a depot to support AEDS, and a headquarters staff to perform operational management functions.

The Air National Guard Support Center is responsible for the maintenance, operational, and technical functions essential for the combat readiness of the Air National Guard forces.

The USAF Historical Research Center provides historical and reference services for the Air Force. It serves as a repository for Air Force historical documents and prepares books, monographs, research reports, studies, unit histories, and other historical works relating to the U.S. Air Force and military aviation. The Center carries out various special programs to acquire historical documents and data and answers requests for historical information from both official sources and the public.

The United States Air Force Academy provides a 4-year educational curriculum for cadets that includes a baccalaureate level education in airmanship, related sciences, and the humanities. Besides a classical education, each cadet is trained to appreciate the role of airpower, its capabilities and limitations, high ideals of individual integrity, patriotism, loyalty, honor, physical fitness, sense of responsibility, and a dedication of selfless and honorable service.

The Air Force District of Washington (AFDW) provides logistical and administrative support to Air Force activities in the Washington, DC, area that do not have their own internal support, including Headquarters USAF and the Air Force Secretariat. In addition, AFDW represents the Air Force in matters pertaining to the National Capital Region.

The Air Force Center for Studies and analyses performs studies to assist and support the decision-making process of the Air Force. The Center performs independent studies and evaluations of Air Force requirements, proposals, plans, and programs, while providing comparisons and trade-off analysis. The Center also evaluates critical technical and operational issues and monitors applicable tests and evaluations that address such issues.

The Air Force Center for International Programs provides direction and guidance for the Air Force portion of the military Security Assistance Program for foreign nations and international activities. The Center also coordinates Air Force politico-military policies as they affect Security Assistance matters pertinent to DOD, State Department, and other agencies of the Federal Government.

The American Continental Army, now called the United States Army, was established by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1775, more than a year before the Declaration of Independence.

The mission of the Department of the Army is to organize, train, and equip active duty and reserve forces for the preservation of peace, security, and the defense of our nation. It serves as part of our national military team, whose members include the Navy, Air Force, Marines, and Coast Guard. The Army's mission focuses on land operations; its soldiers must be trained with modern arms and equipment and be ready to respond quickly.

The Army also administers programs aimed at protecting the environment, improving waterway navigation, flood and beach erosion control, and water resource development. It supports the National Civil Defense Program, provides military assistance to Federal, State, and local government agencies, including natural disaster relief assistance, and provides emergency medical air transportation services.

The Department of War was established as an executive department at the seat of government by an act approved August 7, 1789. The Secretary of War was established as its head and his powers were those entrusted to him by the President (1 Stat. 49; 5 U.S.C. 181).

The National Security Act of 1947 created the National Military Establishment, and the Department of War was designated the Department of the Army. The title of its Secretary became Secretary of the Army (61 Stat. 499; 5 U.S.C. 171).

The National Security Act Amendments of 1949 established the Department of Defense as an executive department of the Government and provided that the Department of the Army be a military department within the Department of Defense (63 Stat. 578; 5 U.S.C. 171).

The Army Organization Act provided the statutory basis for the internal organization of the Army and the Department of the Army. The act consolidated and revised the numerous earlier laws, incorporated various adjustments made necessary by the National Security Act of 1947 and other postwar enactments, and provided for the organization of the Department of the Army in a single comprehensive statute, with certain minor exceptions. In general, the act followed the policy of vesting broad organizational powers in the Secretary of the Army, subject to delegation by him, rather than specifying duties of subordinate officers (10 U.S.C. 3012, 3062).

The Command of the Army is exercised by the President through the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Army, who directly represent him; and, under the law and decisions of the Supreme Court, their acts are the President's acts, and their directions and orders are the President's directions and orders.

Office of the Secretary of the Army

Secretary The Secretary of the Army is the head of the Department of the Army. Subject to the direction, authority, and control of the President as Commander in Chief and of the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Army is responsible for and has the authority to conduct all affairs of the Department of the Army, including its organization, administration, operation, efficiency, and such other activities as may be prescribed by the President or the Secretary of Defense as authorized by law.

The Secretary is also responsible for certain civil functions, such as oversight of the Panama Canal Commission and execution of the Panama Canal Treaty; the civil works program of the Corps of Engineers; Arlington and Soldiers' Home National Cemeteries; and such other activities of a civil nature as may be prescribed by higher authority or authorized by law.

Principal Assistants Subject to the direction and control of the Secretary of the Army, the Under Secretary of the Army, Assistant Secretary of the Army (Civil Works), Assistant Secretary of the Army (Financial Management), Assistant Secretary of the Army (Installations and Logistics), Assistant Secretary of the Army (Manpower and Reserve Affairs), Assistant Secretary of the Army (Research, Development and Acquisition), General Counsel, the Administrative Assistant, Deputy Under Secretary of the Army, Deputy Under Secretary of the Army (Operations Research), Chief of Legislative Liaison, Chief of Public Affairs, and Director, Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization are authorized and directed to act for the Secretary of the Army within their respective fields of responsibility and as further directed by the Secretary.

This authority extends not only to actions within the Department of the Army but also to relationships and transactions with the Congress and other governmental and nongovernmental organizations and individuals. These officials are responsible for the exercise of direction and supervision over matters pertaining to the formulation, execution, and review of policies, plans and programs within their respective functional areas, including the establishment of objectives and appraisal of performance. Officers of the Army report to the Under Secretary of the Army, Assistant Secretaries of the Army, General Counsel, the Administrative Assistant, Deputy Under Secretary of the Army, Deputy Under Secretary of the Army (Operations Research), Chief of Legislative Liaison, Chief of Public Affairs and the Director, Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization regarding matters within their respective fields of responsibility.

Army Policy Council The Army Policy Council is the senior policy advisory council of the Department of the Army. It provides the Secretary of the Army and his principal civilian and military assistants with a forum for the discussion of Army subjects of significant policy interest and an opportunity for members to consult with other members on matters arising within their specific areas of responsibility.

For further information, call 202–695–7922.

Armed Forces Policy Council The Secretary of the Army serves as a member of the Armed Forces Policy Council, which advises the Secretary of Defense on broad policy matters relating to the Armed Forces.

For further information, call 202–695–0028.

Army Staff

The Army Staff, presided over by the Chief of Staff, is the military staff of the Secretary of the Army. It includes a General Staff, a Special Staff, and a Personal Staff. The Army Staff renders professional advice and assistance to the Secretary of the Army, the Under Secretary of the Army, the Assistant Secretaries of the Army, and other officials of the Army Secretariat.

It is the duty of the Army Staff to: prepare for employment of the Army and for such recruiting, organizing, supplying, equipping, training, mobilizing, and demobilizing of the Army as will assist the execution of any power, duty, or function of the Secretary or the Chief of Staff; investigate and report upon the efficiency of the Army and its preparation for military operations; act as the agent of the Secretary of the Army and the Chief of Staff in coordinating the action of all organizations of the Department of the Army; and perform such other duties not otherwise assigned by law as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Army.

Chief of Staff The Chief of Staff is the principal military adviser to the Secretary of the Army and is charged by him with the planning, development, execution, review, and analysis of the Army programs. The Chief of Staff, under the direction of the Secretary of the Army, supervises the members and organization of the Army and performs the duties prescribed for him by the National Security Act of 1947 and other laws. He is directly responsible to the Secretary of the Army for the efficiency of the Army, its state of preparation for military operations and plans therefor.

The Chief of Staff serves as the Army member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and as a member of the Army Policy Council and the Armed Forces Policy Council. As a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he is one of the principal advisers to the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of Defense.

Army General Staff Under the direction of the Chief of Staff, the Army General Staff renders professional advice and assistance to the Secretary, the Under Secretary, the Assistant Secretaries of the Army, and other Secretariat officials in providing broad basic policies and plans for the guidance of the Department of the Army. The Army General Staff specifically assists the Secretary in the preparation and issuance of directives to implement plans and policies and in the supervision of the execution and implementation of these directives.

Special Staff The Special Staff provides advice and assistance to the Secretary of the Army, the Chief of Staff, other members of the Army Secretariat and Army Staff, and elements of the Department of the Army on specialized matters specifically within their respective fields of responsibility.

The heads of certain Special Staff agencies exercise dual functions of staff and command. These two functions, although vested in a single individual, are separate and distinct in that each involves different responsibilities and duties.

Personal Staff The Personal Staff to the Chief of Staff includes his aides, the Inspector General and his Staff agency, the Chief of Chaplains, the Judge Advocate General, the Auditor General, and any other Army Staff member whose activities he desires to coordinate and administer directly.

[For the Department of the Navy statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 32, Part 700]

The primary mission of the Department of the Navy is to protect the United States, as directed by the President or the Secretary of Defense, by the effective prosecution of war at sea including, with its Marine Corps component, the seizure or defense of advanced naval bases; to support, as required, the forces of all military departments of the United States; and maintain freedom of the seas.

The United States Navy was founded on October 13, 1775, when Congress enacted the first legislation creating the Continental Navy of the American Revolution. The Department of the Navy and the Office of Secretary of the Navy were established by act of Congress approved April 30, 1798 (1 Stat. 553; 10 U.S.C. 5011, 5031). For 9 years prior to that date, by an act of Congress approved August 7, 1789 (1 Stat. 49), the conduct of naval affairs was under the Secretary of War.

The National Security Act Amendments of 1949 established the Department of Defense as an executive department of the Federal Government, and provided that the Department of the Navy be a military department within the Department of Defense (63 Stat. 578).

The Secretary of the Navy is appointed by the President as the head of the Department of the Navy and is responsible to the Secretary of Defense for the operation and efficiency of the Navy (10 U.S.C. 5031).

The organization of the Department of the Navy is reflected in the organization chart and personnel listing. The Department of the Navy includes the U.S. Coast Guard when it is operating as a Service in the Navy.

Office of the Secretary of the Navy

Secretary of the Navy

The Secretary of the Navy is the head of the Department of the Navy. Under the direction, authority, and control of the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Navy is responsible for the policies and control of the Department of the Navy, including its organization, administration, operation, and efficiency. The members of the Secretary's executive administration assist in the discharge of the responsibilities of the Secretary of the Navy.

During the temporary absence of the Secretary of the Navy, the Under Secretary of the Navy is next in succession to act as the Secretary of the Navy. The Under Secretary functions as deputy and principal assistant to the Secretary, and acts with full authority of the Secretary in the general management of the Department.

Civilian Executive Assistants

The Civilian Executive Assistants to the Secretary are the principal advisers and assistants to the Secretary of the Navy on the administration of the affairs of the Department of the Navy as a whole and are assigned Department-wide responsibilities for areas essential to the efficient administration of the Department of the Navy.

The Civilian Executive Assistants to the Secretary of the Navy are the Under Secretary of the Navy, the Assistant Secretaries of the Navy, and the General Counsel of the Navy. It is the policy of the Secretary to assign Department-wide responsibilities essential to the efficient administration of the Department of the Navy to the Civilian Executive Assistants.

Each Civilian Executive Assistant, within an assigned area of responsibility, is the principal adviser and assistant to the Secretary on the administration of the affairs of the Department of the Navy. The Civilian Executive Assistants carry out the duties in harmony with the statutory position of the Chief of Naval Operations as the principal naval adviser and naval executive to the Secretary on the conduct of activities of the Department of the Navy and the responsibilities of the Chief of Naval Operations and the Commandant of the Marine Corps. Each is authorized and directed to act for the Secretary within his assigned area of responsibility.

The Under Secretary of the Navy is designated as the deputy and principal assistant to the Secretary of the Navy to act with full authority of the Secretary in the general management of the Department and to supervise the offices and organizations as assigned by the Secretary.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Financial Management) is the Comptroller of the Navy and is responsible for all matters related to the financial management of the Department, including budgeting, accounting, disbursing, financing, internal review, progress and statistical reporting, automatic data processing systems and equipment (ADPE), except ADPE integral to a weapon system, and supervision of offices and organizations as assigned by the Secretary. Under the Comptroller, the Deputy Comptroller of the Navy shall, in addition to other duties, serve as an adviser and assistant to the Chief of Naval Operations and the Commandant of the Marine Corps with respect to financial and budgetary matters.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs) is responsible for the overall supervision of manpower and reserve component affairs of the Department, including policy and administration of affairs related to military (active and inactive) and civilian personnel, and supervision of offices and organizations as assigned by the Secretary, specifically the Naval Council of Personnel Boards and the Board for Correction of Naval Records.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Shipbuilding and Logistics) is responsible for all stages of the acquisition of naval ships funded by the appropriation "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy;" all Department of the Navy acquisition programs following full-scale production decision (Milestone III); the business, contractual, manpower, and logistic support aspects of the Department's acquisition programs, including policy and administration of affairs related thereto; the maintenance, alteration, supply, distribution, and disposal of material; all transportation matters; the acquisition, construction, utilization, improvement, alteration, maintenance, and disposal of real estate and facilities, including capital equipment, utilities, housing, and public quarters; industrial preparedness planning; labor relations with respect to contractors with the Department of the Navy; industrial security; the Mutual Defense Assistance Program as related to the supplying of material, including foreign military sales; and supervision of offices and organizations as assigned by the Secretary.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Research, Engineering and Systems) is responsible for all matters related to research, development, engineering, test, and evaluation efforts within the Department, including management of the appropriation, "Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Navy;" oceanography, ocean engineering, and closely related matters; the technical aspects of production management and maintenance or alteration of material; Navy acquisition programs through the full-scale production decision (Milestone III), including policy and administration of affairs related thereto, with the exception of the acquisition of naval ships funded by the appropriation "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy;" and supervision of offices and organizations as assigned by the Secretary.

The General Counsel provides legal advice, counsel, and guidance to the Secretary of the Navy and the other Civilian Executive Assistants and their staffs on any issue or matter involving the Department of the Navy. The General Counsel provides legal services relating to: general legal issues, litigation, business and commercial law, real and personal property, civilian personnel law, patent law, and procurement of services, including the fiscal, budgetary, and accounting aspects for the Navy and the Marine Corps.

The Staff Assistants

The Staff Assistants to the Secretary of the Navy are the Auditor General of the Navy, the Chief of Information, the Chief of Legislative Affairs, the Director, Office of Program Appraisal, and the heads of such other offices and boards as may be established by law or by the Secretary for the purpose of assisting the Secretary or one or more of the Civilian Executive Assistants in the administration of the Department of the Navy. Each supervises all functions and activities internal to that office and assigned shore activities, if any. Each is responsible to the Secretary or to one of the Civilian Executive Assistants for the utilization of resources by, and the operating efficiency of, all activities under their supervision. The duties of the individual Staff Assistants and their respective offices are provided by law or assigned by the Secretary.

Naval Research The Office of Naval Research, established by the act of August 1, 1946 (60 Stat. 779; 10 U.S.C. 5150–5153), is headed by a Chief of Naval Research who is appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and is authorized to act for the Secretary of the Navy on all assigned matters. The Chief of Naval Research is responsible to the Secretary, through the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Research, Engineering and Systems), for the performance of assigned functions, duties, and responsibilities. The Chief of Naval Research is responsible for the encouragement, promotion, planning, initiation, and coordination of naval research; the conduct of naval research in augmentation of and in conjunction with the research and development conducted by the bureaus, system commands, and other agencies and offices of the Department; the supervision, administration, and control of activities within or on behalf of the Department relating to patents, inventions, trademarks, copyrights, and royalty payments, and matters connected therewith.

Office of Naval Research Detachments are located in Bay St. Louis, Boston, Chicago, and Pasadena. A branch office is located in London, England. Other field activities are: the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, DC; the Naval Biosciences Laboratory, Oakland, CA; the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity, Bay St. Louis, MS; and the Office of Naval Research Liaison Office, Far East. In addition, the Office of Naval Research has various resident representatives in geographical areas of extensive research activity.

(Office of Naval Research, Department of the Navy, Ballston Tower No. 1, 800 N. Quincy Street, Arlington, VA 22217. Phone, 202-696-4258.)

Judge Advocate General The Judge Advocate General is the senior officer of the Judge Advocate General's Corps of the Navy and is the Commander of the Naval Legal Service Command. The Judge Advocate General supervises the administration of military justice throughout the Navy, performs the functions required or authorized by the Uniform Code of Military Justice, provides technical supervision for the Naval Justice School at Newport, RI, and has responsibility for such legal duties and services throughout the Department of the Navy as are not provided by the General Counsel of the Navy. The Judge Advocate General maintains a close working relationship with the General Counsel on all matters of common interest and has responsibility for liaison with other departments and agencies of the Government in appropriate cases.

Officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps and Judge Advocates of the Marine Corps provide legal services in such matters as legal assistance and tax advice to naval personnel and their dependents, investigations, claims, admiralty, international relations, courts-martial, nonjudicial punishment, civilian personnel law at field activities (under the overall coordination and policy guidance of the Office of Civilian Personnel Law), military personnel law, labor relations, conservation, and environmental protection.

For further information concerning activities of the Judge Advocate General's Corps, contact the Office of the Judge Advocate General, Code 004, Department of the Navy, 200 Stovall Street, Alexandria, VA 22332. For telephone inquiries, contact the Public Affairs Officer, phone, 202–325–9820.

Comptroller Pursuant to the provisions of 10 U.S.C. 5061, the Secretary of the Navy established the Office of the Comptroller of the Navy on June 1, 1950.

The Comptroller is responsible for financial management of the Navy, including budgeting, accounting, progress and statistical reporting, administrative organization, and related managerial procedures.

Auditor General of the Navy The Auditor General of the Navy is responsible for developing and implementing Navy internal audit policies, programs, and procedures within the framework of Government auditing standards and serving as Director of the Naval Audit Service.

The function of internal audit is to objectively evaluate and make recommendations concerning the integrity and reliability of financial and other data used to make management decisions; the adequacy of policies and procedures affecting the expenditure of funds, the safeguarding and efficient use of resources, and the accomplishment of management objectives and program results; and the extent of compliance with applicable policies, procedures, laws, and regulations.

Audits are accomplished through four Naval Audit Service regional offices with support from Naval Audit Service Headquarters. Each regional office has audit responsibility within an assigned geographic area, including responsibility for permanent audit sites and mobile audit teams.

(Auditor General of the Navy, Department of the Navy, Post Office Box 1206, Falls Church, VA 22041–0206. Phone, 703–756–2117.)

Chief of Information The Chief of Information is the direct representative of the Secretary of the Navy and of the Chief of Naval Operations in all public affairs and internal relations matters and is authorized to implement Navy public affairs and internal relations policies and to coordinate those Navy and Marine Corps activities that are of mutual interest.

The Chief of Information is responsible for keeping Navy commands informed of Department of Defense policies and requirements and is the only principal component within the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations authorized to deal directly with the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs).

Principal functions of the Office of Information include making available accurate and timely information about the Navy so that the general public, the press, and Congress may understand and assess the Navy's programs, operations, and needs; coordination of Navy participation in community events; supervision of the Navy's internal information programs as well as Freedom of Information and Privacy Act coordination.

Field activities of the Chief of Information include six Navy Information Offices (NAVINFO's), two Navy Public Affairs Centers (NAVPACEN's), and one Fleet Home Town News Center (FHTNC).

(Office of Information, Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20350. Phone, 202–697–5342.)

Naval Council of Personnel Boards The Naval Council of Personnel Boards, comprised of the Naval Discharge Review Board, Naval Complaints Review Board, Naval Clemency and Parole Board, Employee Appeals Review Board, the Disability Evaluation System, and Naval Physical Disability Review Board, administers, under the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs), personnel services and support as indicated by each component board's title.

Naval Discharge Review Board: The board reviews, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 1553, upon its own motion or upon request by or on behalf of former Navy and Marine Corps members, the type and reason for discharge or dismissal received by that former member, except a discharge or dismissal by reason of the sentence of general court-martial. It determines whether, under reasonable standards of naval law and discipline, a discharge or dismissal should be changed and, if so, what change should be made.

Naval Complaints Review Board: The Board reviews, upon request, decisional documents and/or index entries created by the Naval Discharge Review Board after April 1, 1977. The Naval Complaints Review Board determines whether decisional documents conform to those applicable regulations of the Department of Defense and the Department of the Navy.

Naval Clemency and Parole Board: The Board reviews, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 953–954, Navy and Marine Corps court-martial cases referred to it and grants or denies clemency; and, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 952, reviews and directs that parole be granted or denied in cases referred to it for review.

Employee Appeals Review Board: The Board renders final decisions, and directs implementation of them, on civilian employee complaints alleging discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, age, physical or mental handicap or national origin and other civilian employee grievances and appeals properly referred to it.

Disability Evaluation System: The System organizes and administers disability evaluations within the Department of the Navy pursuant to 10 U.S.C., chapter 61, and other applicable provisions of law and regulation. It is comprised of the Central Physical Evaluation Board, regional Physical Evaluation Boards at Bethesda, MD, Great Lakes, IL, and San Diego, CA, the Physical Review Council, and disability evaluation system counselors located at major medical centers. The system considers evidence concerning disabilities of personnel and determines the appropriate disposition in each case.

Physical Disability Review Board: The Board reviews appropriate appeals from the Physical Review Council and renders advisory opinions to the Board for Correction of Naval Records, ensuring conformity with accepted medical principles, pertinent law and regulation, and established personnel policies in each case.

(Naval Council of Personnel Boards, Department of the Navy, Room 905, 801 N. Randolph Street, Arlington, VA 22203. Phone, 202–696–4356.)

Board for Correction of Naval Records

The Board for Correction of Naval Records is a statutory civilian board, established pursuant to the provisions of 10 U.S.C. 1552, to relieve the Congress of the burden and necessity of considering private relief legislation for the correction of errors and injustices suffered by members and former members of the Navy and Marine Corps. The Secretary of the Navy, acting through this board of civilians of the executive part of the Department, is authorized to take action consistent with law and regulation to correct naval or military records of the Department of the Navy where such action is necessary or appropriate to correct an error or to remove an injustice. The Board represents the highest echelon of review of administrative errors and injustices. The Board reviews, on application, actions taken by various boards and officials in the Department.

(Board for Correction of Naval Records, Department of the Navy, Room 2432, Navy Annex, Washington, DC 20370. Phone, 202–694–1765.)

United States Navy

Chief of Naval Operations

The Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) is the senior military officer of the Department of the Navy and takes precedence above all other officers of the naval service, except an officer of the naval service who is serving as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He is the principal naval adviser to the President and the Secretary of the Navy on the conduct of war, and the principal naval adviser and naval executive to the Secretary on the conduct of the activities of the Department of the Navy. He is the Navy member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The Chief of Naval Operations, under the Secretary of the Navy, exercises command over certain central executive organizations, assigned shore activities, and the Operating Forces of the Navy.

The Chief of Naval Operations plans for and provides the manpower, material, weapons, facilities, and services to support the needs of the Navy, with the exception of the Fleet Marine Forces; maintains water transportation services, including sea transportation services for the Department of Defense; directs the Naval Reserve; and exercises authority for matters of naval administration, including matters related to customs and traditions of the naval service, security, intelligence, discipline, naval communications, and naval operations.

The Chief of Naval Operations exercises area coordination authority over all shore activities of the Department of the Navy to ensure that total efforts afford adequate support to the combatant forces and are coordinated among themselves to assure economy and efficiency of operation.

Operating Forces of the Navy

The Operating Forces of the Navy are responsible for naval operations necessary to carry out the Department of the Navy's role in upholding and advancing the national policies and interests of the United States. The Operating Forces of the Navy include the several fleets, seagoing forces, Fleet Marine Forces and other assigned Marine Corps forces, the Military Sealift Command, and other forces and activities as may be assigned by the President or the Secretary of the Navy. The Chief of Naval Operations is responsible for the command and administration of the Operating Forces of the Navy.

The Pacific Fleet is composed of ships, submarines, and aircraft operating throughout the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

The Atlantic Fleet is composed of ships, submarines, and aircraft that operate throughout the Atlantic Ocean and Mediterranean Sea.

The Naval Forces, Europe, includes forces assigned by the Chief of Naval Operations or made available from either the Pacific or Atlantic Fleet to operate in the European theater.

The Military Sealift Command provides ocean transportation (by Government-owned or commercial vessels) for personnel and cargo of all components of the Department of Defense and as authorized for other Federal agencies; operates and maintains underway replenishment ships and other vessels providing mobile logistic support to elements of the combatant fleets; and operates ships in support of scientific projects and other programs for Federal agencies.

Other major commands of the Operating Forces of the Navy are the Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Central Command; Commander, U.S. Naval Forces Southern Command; Commander, Operational Test and Evaluation Force; Commander, Mine Warfare Command; and Commander, Naval Reserve Force.

Navy Command Structure

The Chief of Naval Operations manages and supports the Operating Forces of the Navy through the following executive and functional organization structure.

Office of the Chief of Naval Operations The Office of the Chief of Naval Operations (OPNAV) is the headquarters of the Navy which advises and assists the CNO in the discharge of his responsibilities. The Office of the Chief of Naval Operations was established basically in its present structure by Executive Order 9635 of September 29, 1945, and later by act of March 5, 1948 (38 Stat. 929, 62 Stat. 66; 10 U.S.C. 141, 171, 5036(b), 5081–5088).

Naval Sea Systems The Commander, Naval Sea Systems Command, provides material support to the Navy and Marine Corps for ships, submarines, and other sea platforms, shipboard combat systems and components, other surface and undersea warfare and weapons systems, and ordnance expendables not specifically assigned to other system commands.

(Commander, Naval Sea Systems Command, Washington, DC 20362–5101. Phone, 202–692–3328.)

Naval Air Systems The Commander, Naval Air Systems Command, provides for the material support to the Navy and Marine Corps for aircraft, airborne weapon systems, avionics, related photographic and support equipment, ranges, and targets.

(Commander, Naval Air Systems Command, Washington, DC 20361–0001. Phone, 202–692–2260.)

Space and Naval Warfare Systems The Commander, Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command, provides material and technical support to the Navy and Marine Corps for space systems, command, control, communications, and intelligence, electronic warfare, and undersea surveillance; provides force warfighting architecture and requirements integration among total naval battle forces; and has responsibility for management of the Navy research and development centers and university laboratories.

(Commander, Space and Naval Warfare Systems Command, Washington, DC 20363–5100. Phone, 202–692–8768.)

Naval Supply Systems The Commander, Naval Supply Systems Command, provides for the material support to the Navy and Marine Corps for materials, supplies, and supporting services by providing supply management policies and methods and administering related support service systems, and administers the security assistance program.

(Commander, Naval Supply Systems Command, Washington, DC 20376–5000. Phone, 202–695–4009.)

Naval Facilities The Commander, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, provides for material and technical support to the Navy and Marine Corps for shore facilities, real property, and utilities, fixed ocean systems and structures, transportation and construction equipment, energy, environmental, and natural resources management, and support of the Naval Construction Forces.

(Commander, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, 200 Stovall Street, Alexandria, VA 22332–2300. Phone, 202–325–8543.)

Strategic Systems The Director, Strategic Systems Program provides for the development, production, and material support to the Navy for fleet ballistic missile and strategic weapon systems, including the missiles, platforms, and associated equipment; security, training of personnel, and the installation and direction of necessary supporting facilities.

(Director, Strategic Systems Program Office, Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20376–5002. Phone, 202–695–2158.)

Bureau of Naval Personnel The Chief of Naval Personnel directs the procurement, distribution, administration, and career motivation of the military personnel of the regular and reserve components of the United States Navy to meet the quantitive and qualitative manpower requirements determined by the Chief of Naval Operations. He also directs the management and administration of the Navy Civilian Personnel/EEO Programs and develops servicewide programs for improved human resources management.

(Bureau of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Federal Office Building No. 2, Washington, DC 20370–5000. Phone, 202–694–1271.)

Naval Medical Command The Commander, Naval Medical Command, directs the provision of medical and dental services for Navy and Marine Corps personnel and other persons authorized by law; ensures that health care program policies are optimally executed through the acquisition and effective utilization of financial and manpower resources; maintains all assigned activities in a proper state of material and personnel readiness to fulfill assigned peacetime and contingency mission taskings; administers the execution and implementation of contingency support plans and programs that provide for an effective medical and dental readiness capability; acquires, trains, and maintains a force of professional and technical personnel; provides professional and technical medical and dental service to the Fleet, Fleet Marine Force, and shore activities of the Navy; ensures that assigned activities are able to achieve successful accreditation and recognition by appropriate governmental and civilian agencies and commissions; and ensures cooperation with civil authorities in matters pertaining to public health disasters and other emergencies, in conjunction with maintaining and safeguarding the health of Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

(Naval Medical Command, Department of the Navy, 23d and E Streets NW., Washington, DC 20372–5120. Phone, 202–653–1327.)

Oceanography The Commander, Naval Oceanography Command, and the Superintendent, U.S. Naval Observatory, are responsible for the science, technology, engineering, operations, and those personnel and facilities associated with each, which are essential to explore the ocean and the atmosphere and to provide astronomical data and time for naval and related national objectives. Oceanography examines how naval operations are influenced by the physical environment and applies its findings to the development of technology and methods for improving naval operations.

The Naval Oceanographic Program embraces five major disciplines of physical science to investigate the nature and behavior of the ocean environment in which the Navy operates. They are:

Hydrography—to collect data for the charting of the oceans and to establish geodetic references for navigation;

Oceanography—to define the characteristics of the water volume for use in ocean reporting and prediction, and studies of underwater acoustics, water dynamics, corrosion, and other factors influencing the performance of naval systems;

Meteorology—to define the characteristics of the atmosphere for use in weather reporting and prediction, and studies of upper atmosphere winds and currents, refractive indices for radar performance, and similar factors;

Astrometry—to determine the position and motions of celestial bodies required for accurate navigation, operational support, and use in calculating precise geodetic positions and azimuth references on Earth; and

Precise Time—to determine, provide, and manage the distribution of precise time and time interval (frequency), both atomic and astronomical, for use in electronic navigation and command, control, and communications.

(Oceanographer of the Navy, U.S. Naval Observatory, Washington, DC 20390–5100. Phone, 202–653–1295. Commander, Naval Oceanography Command, NSTL Station, Bay St. Louis, MS 39529. Phone, 601–688–4726. Superintendent, Naval Observatory, Washington, DC 20390–5000. Phone, 202–653–1538.)

Naval Space Command The Commander, Naval Space Command, provides operational space systems support to naval forces worldwide and helps prepare the naval service for extended future involvement in space. The Command has operational responsibility for all Navy space-related systems, plus coordination responsibility with other operational activities so that space capabilities are integrated into the Navy's operational plans. The Command identifies fleet operational requirements for space systems, which will be translated into specific program planning and budgeting. The Command has operational responsibility for the Navy Navigation Satellite System, the Naval Space Surveillance System, and elements supporting the Fleet Satellite Communications System of the Naval Telecommunications Systems.

The Command has responsibility for the Relocatable Over-the-Horizon Radar System, a broad area surveillance high-frequency radar that will have the capability to be relocated to prepared global sites to support naval forces; and the Navy Remote Ocean Sensing System, which is being developed to support fleet users with important oceanographic data supplied from space.

(Naval Space Command, Department of the Navy, Dahlgren, VA 22448. Phone, 703–663–7841.)

Naval Legal Service Command The Commander, Naval Legal Service Command, under the command of the Chief of Naval Operations, is responsible for administering the legal services program within the Department of the Navy and providing command direction for all Naval Legal Service Command activities and resources.

(Commander, Naval Legal Service Command, Hoffman Building No. 2, 200 Stovall Street, Alexandria, VA 22332. Phone, 202–325–9850.)

Naval Telecommunications The Commander, Naval Telecommunications Command, exercises configuration control of the Naval Telecommunications System; commands, operates, and maintains the Naval Telecommunications Command; serves as the operations and maintenance manager of assigned elements of the Defense Communications System; and serves as technical adviser for Navy telecommunications training.

(Commander, Naval Telecommunications Command, 4401 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20390–5290. Phone, 202–282–0357.)

Cryptology The Commander, Naval Security Group Command, performs cryptologic functions; provides, operates, and maintains an adequate Naval Security Group; approves requirements for the use of existing Naval Security Group capabilities and resources; and coordinates the execution of approved cryptologic programs.

Naval Intelligence The Commander, Naval Intelligence Command, ensures the fulfillment of the intelligence requirements and responsibilities of the Department of the Navy.

(Naval Intelligence Command, Department of the Navy, 4600 Silver Hill Road, Washington, DC 20389. Phone, 202–763–3552; hotline, 202–763–3556.)

Naval Security and Investigative Command The Commander, Naval Security and Investigative Command, commands a worldwide organization, with representation in more than 160 geographic locations, to provide criminal investigative, counterintelligence, law enforcement and physical security, and information and personnel security support to the Navy and Marine Corps, both ashore and afloat. The Naval Security and Investigative Command is comprised of law enforcement professionals who are investigators, crime laboratory technicians, technical investigative specialists, counterintelligence analysts, physical security specialists, and administrative support personnel.

(Naval Security and Investigative Command, Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20388. For general information, call 301–763–3783, or contact the Operations Control Center/Headquarters Duty Officer, 301–763–3780.)

Naval Education and Training The mission of the Chief of Naval Education and Training is to provide assigned shore-based education and training for Navy, certain Marine Corps, and other personnel in support of the Fleet, Naval Shore Establishment, Naval Reserve, Interservice Training Program, and Security Assistance Program; develop specifically designated education and training afloat programs for the Fleet; execute the Navy's responsibility for voluntary education and dependents education; participate with research and development activities in the development and implementation of the most effective teaching and training systems and devices for optimal education and training; and perform such other functions as directed.

United States Marine Corps

Commandant of the Marine Corps,
Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20380–0001
Phone, 202–694–2500

The United States Marine Corps was initially established on November 10, 1775, by resolution of the Continental Congress. The present composition, missions, and functions of the Marine Corps are set forth in the National Security Act of 1947, as amended in 1952.

The primary mission assigned to the Marine Corps is to provide Fleet Marine Forces of combined arms, together with supporting air components, for service with the Fleet in the seizure or defense of advanced naval bases and for the conduct of such land operations as may be essential to the prosecution of a naval campaign. Collateral functions of the Marine Corps are to provide detachments and organizations for service on armed vessels of the Navy and security detachments aboard naval stations/bases and other governmental installations. The Marine Corps is also responsible for developing, in coordination with the other military services, the tactics, doctrine, techniques, and equipment employed by landing forces in amphibious operations. An additional function is to prepare for wartime expansion, in accordance with joint mobilization plans, which may require activation of reserve forces when necessary. Included as a Marine Corps mission is the all-encompassing statement of "performing such other duties as the President may direct."

Structure The National Security Act, as amended in 1978, reaffirms the Marine Corps as a separate service within the Department of the Navy and seats the Commandant of the Marine Corps as a full member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The Marine Corps is composed of Operating Forces and a Supporting Establishment. The actual Operating Forces include three active divisions, one reserve division, three active aircraft wings, one reserve aircraft wing, three force service support groups, and one reserve force service group. The largest of the Operating Forces is the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific (FMFPAC), with major subordinate commands located on the west coast, Hawaii, and in Japan. Included under FMFPAC are two Marine divisions, two Marine aircraft wings, and two Force Service Support Groups. In addition, the headquarters of two Marine Amphibious Forces, four Marine Amphibious Brigades, and two Marine Amphibious Units are being permanently formed. The Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic (FMFLANT), commands the Operating Forces located on the east coast. These forces consist of a Marine division, a Marine aircraft wing, and a supporting Force Service Support Group, and the permanent headquarters of one Marine Amphibious Force, two Marine Amphibious Brigades, and two Marine Amphibious Units.

Marine Corps organization emphasizes the close integration of air-ground operations. Normally, a separate headquarters is task organized for command and control of air-ground units for combat operations, for deployments afloat in amphibious shipping and during training exercises. Marine air-ground task forces, of varying size and capabilities, are organized from the Fleet Marine Forces.

The Marine Corps Supporting Establishment recruits and trains Marines, provides supply and equipment support to the Operating Forces, and maintains permanent Marine bases, installations, and formal schools. Supporting the active forces is the Marine Corps Reserve, which includes the 4th Marine Division, the 4th Marine Aircraft Wing, and the 4th Force Service Support Group.

Functions and Activities The Marine Corps' top priority is combat readiness. Its traditional peacetime role is to serve as a force-in-readiness. The Marine Corps has a global outlook, and Marines stand ready to be deployed to any part of the world to carry out their assigned missions. The Marines emphasize physical fitness and intensive training. The Marine Corps maintains three rapid response air-ground task forces, elements of which are continuously forward deployed in the Mediterranean Sea, the Western Pacific Ocean, and, intermittently, in the Indian Ocean. These ready forces are responsive to a variety of contingencies worldwide, as directed.

Consumer Activities Research programs of the Office of Naval Research cover a broad spectrum of scientific fields, primarily for the needs of the Navy, but much information is of interest to the public. Inquiries on specific programs should be directed to the Assistant Chief for Research, Department of the Navy, 800 N. Quincy Street, Arlington, VA 22217-5000. Phone, 202-692-4261.

Environment The Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Shipbuilding and Logistics) is responsible for the conduct of the environmental protection program of the Navy and Marine Corps, and serves as the focal point for the Department in establishing policy in environmental affairs. This is the contact for liaison at the highest level with other Federal and State agencies in addition to private agencies organized on a national level. All environmental impact statements that originate within the Navy and Marine Corps for submission to the Environmental Protection Agency, in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act, are processed by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Shipbuilding and Logistics). This Office maintains close liaison with the Council on Environmental Quality, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Environment) in the implementation of the environmental protection program. Other responsible offices within the Department of the Navy are the Environmental Protection, Occupational Safety and Health Division in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, and the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Installations and Logistics, Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps.

Astronomy The United States Naval Observatory provides the astronomical data and precise time required by the Navy and other components of the Department of Defense for navigation, precise positioning, and command, control, and communications. These data also are made available to other Government agencies and to the general public. To broaden the understanding of the mission, functions, and programs of the Naval Observatory, regular night tours and special group day tours are conducted. The night tours are open to the general public and are given every Monday night, except on Federal holidays. Daytime group tours are available if scheduled in advance. Information concerning activities of the observatory and public tours may be obtained by writing to the Superintendent, Naval Observatory, Washington, DC 20390-5100. Phone, 202-653-1543.

Contract Information and Small Business Activities Information in these areas can be obtained from the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Shipbuilding and Logistics), Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20350 (phone, 202-692-2202); or from the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Research, Engineering, and Systems), Department of the Navy, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20350 (phone, 202-695-6315). Information pertaining specifically to the Marine Corps in the areas of small businesses, minority-owned businesses, and labor surplus activities can be obtained from the Marine Corps Small Business Specialist (LBS), Installations and Logistics Department, Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps, Washington, DC 20380. Phone, 202-694-1939.

Employment Information Information about civilian employment opportunities within the Department of the Navy in the Washington, DC, metropolitan area can be obtained from the Naval Civilian Personnel Command, Capital Region, 801 N. Randolph Street, Arlington, VA 22203. Phone, 202-696-4567; or the Commandant of the Marine Corps Code (MPC-30), Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps, Washington, DC 20380. Phone, 202-694-1046.

Speakers and Films Information on how to obtain speakers, films, and exhibits concerning the Navy can be obtained by writing the Office of Information, Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20350 (phone, 202-697-8711); information on how to obtain Marine Corps speakers can be obtained by writing to the Director of Public Affairs, Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps, Washington, DC 20380-0001 (phone, 202-694-4080); or by contacting the Director of any Marine Corps District.

General Information Navy and Marine Corps recruiting offices, installation commanders, and Directors of Marine Corps Districts (see above) can answer general inquiries concerning the Navy and Marine Corps and their community and public information programs.

Military Career Opportunities

Navy. Information concerning the numerous career fields available within the Navy, as well as the various enlisted and officer training programs, can be obtained by writing the Commander, Navy Recruiting Command (Code 30), 4015 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22203-1991, or by calling toll free, the Navy Information Center, 800-327-NAVY.

Naval Reserve. Information concerning Naval Reserve opportunities can be obtained from the Commander, Naval Reserve Force, New Orleans, LA 70146-5000 (Code 004). Phone, 504-948-1240.

Marine Corps. The Marine Corps conducts enlisted and officer training programs requiring various lengths of service and provides the assurance of specialized skill training and other benefits.

The Marine Corps provides opportunities for training in a variety of technical skills that are necessary in support of ground and aviation combat operations. Radar operation and repair, meteorology, engineer equipment and automotive mechanics, artillery and armor repair, data processing, communications-electronics, jet aircraft repair, avionics, and air control are but a few specialized fields available.

The Marine Corps participates in the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Program for commissioning officers in the Marine Corps.

Platoon Leaders Class (PLC) is a Marine Corps program for commissioning officers in the Marine Corps Reserve. Freshmen, sophomores, or juniors in an accredited college may apply for the PLC. The PLC Program provides for financial assistance to undergraduates.

The Officer Candidate Class (OCC) is another program for commissioning officers in the Marine Corps Reserve. Applicants for OCC must be college graduates or must be in their senior year.

Information on the above programs is available at most civilian educational institutions and Navy and Marine Corps recruiting stations. Local telephone directories list the address and telephone number of the Recruiting Station and Officer Selection Officer under U.S. Government. Interested persons also may write directly to the Commandant of the Marine Corps (MR), Washington, DC 20380-0001. Phone, 202-694-2914.

Information concerning Marine Corps Reserve opportunities can be obtained from local Marine Corps recruiting stations or Marine Corps Reserve Drill Centers. Interested persons may also write directly to the Commandant of the Marine Corps (RES), Washington, DC 20380-0001.

United States Naval Academy

Annapolis, MD 21402
Phone, 301-267-4361 (Office of the Dean of Admissions—Candidate Guidance)

The United States Naval Academy offers a 4-year program of academic, military, and professional instruction for the education and training of young men and women for the naval service. Completion of the program normally leads to a commission in the United States Navy or the United States Marine Corps, and to one of seven designated Bachelor of Science degrees in engineering fields, or an undesignated Bachelor of Science degree with major options in 11 fields. Information concerning the United States Naval Academy may be obtained by writing the Superintendent, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, MD 21402-5000.

For further information concerning the Navy and Marine Corps, contact the Office of Information, Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20350 (phone, 202-697-7391); or the Director, Division of Public Affairs, Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps, Washington, DC 20380 (phone 202-694-1492).

The Advanced Research Projects Agency, established in 1958 as an operating agency under the Director of Defense Research and Engineering, was redesignated as the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) on March 23, 1972. It is a separate agency of the Department of Defense under the control of the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering.

DARPA has the responsibility to manage high-risk, high-payoff basic research and applied technology programs in projects as may be designated by the Secretary of Defense. The Agency's objective is to select and pursue revolutionary technology developments that minimize the possibility of technological surprise and/or offer potential for major increases in national defense capability. Research and development on projects is taken to the demonstration stage where feasibility and practicality can be assessed, and then the projects are transferred to the appropriate military services. In the performance of its work, the Agency utilizes the services of the military departments, other Government agencies, private industrial and public entities, individuals, and educational or research institutions.

The Defense Communications Agency (DCA) was established by direction of the Secretary of Defense on May 12, 1960. It is a separate agency of the Department of Defense under the direction, authority, and control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence). DCA also responds directly to the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, on operational matters and communication requirements associated with joint planning that are of primary concern to the Chiefs.

DCA is organized into a Headquarters and field activities acting for the Director in assigned areas of responsibility. The field organizations also include the White House Communications Agency and Defense Commercial Communications Office.

The mission of DCA is to:

Perform system engineering for the Defense Communications System (DCS) and ensure that DCS is planned, improved, operated, maintained, and managed effectively, efficiently, and economically to meet the long haul, point-to-point, and switched network telecommunications requirements of the National Command Authorities (NCA), the Department of Defense, and, as authorized and directed, other governmental agencies;

Provide system engineering and technical support to the National Military Command System (NMCS) and the Minimum Essential Emergency Communications Network (MEECN);

Provide other engineering and technical support to the Worldwide Military Command and Control System (WWMCCS), as assigned;

Perform system architect functions for current and future Military Satellite Communications (MILSATCOM) Systems;

Provide analytical and automated data processing (ADP) support to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of Defense, and other DOD components as directed and authorized; and Procure leased communications circuits, services, facilities, and equipment for the DOD where authorized, and for other Government agencies as directed by the Secretary of Defense. Initiate or process actions relating to regulatory and tariff matters, including rates for communications facilities leased by the Department of Defense.

The Defense Contract Audit Agency (DCAA) was established in 1965 and operates under Department of Defense Directive 5105.36. It is a separate agency under the direction, authority, and control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller).

DCAA performs all necessary contract audit functions for the Department of Defense and provides accounting and financial advisory services to all Defense components responsible for procurement and contract administration. These services are provided in connection with the negotiation, administration, and settlement of contracts and subcontracts. They include evaluating the acceptability of costs claimed or proposed by contractors and reviewing the efficiency and economy of contractor operations. Other Government agencies may request DCAA's services under appropriate arrangements.

DCAA manages its operations through six regional offices responsible for approximately 430 field audit offices throughout the United States and overseas. Each region is responsible for the contract auditing function in its assigned area.

The Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) was established as an agency of the Department of Defense by DOD Directive 5105.21, effective October 1, 1961. DIA, under provisions of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, operates under the control of the Secretary of Defense. Staff supervision of DIA is exercised for the Secretary of Defense by the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence). Additionally, the Director of DIA reports to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the specific purposes of providing the military intelligence support required to perform their statutory and assigned responsibilities and of ensuring that the necessary intelligence support is available to the Unified and Specified Commands.

Under its Director, the Defense Intelligence Agency is responsible for producing and disseminating military intelligence to satisfy the intelligence requirements of the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, major components of DOD, and other authorized requirements. It accomplishes this either by use of internal resources; through the management, control, and coordination of the intelligence functions of other DOD activities; or through cooperation with other intelligence agencies.

DIA provides military intelligence for national foreign intelligence and counterintelligence products and staff support to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

DIA reviews and coordinates those DOD intelligence functions retained by or assigned to the military departments. It also develops guidance for the conduct and management of such functions for review, approval, and promulgation by the Secretary of Defense.

DIA also has the responsibility of supervising the execution of all approved plans, programs, policies, and procedures for those DOD general intelligence functions and activities for which DIA has management responsibility. It assists in obtaining the maximum economy and efficiency in the use and management of DOD intelligence resources.

The Defense Investigative Service (DIS) was established by the Secretary of Defense, effective January 1, 1972. DIS is chartered by DOD Directive 5105.42, dated June 14, 1985, and operates under the direction, authority, and control of the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy.

DIS consists of a Headquarters, 2 Operations Centers, the Defense Security Institute, 9 regional offices and their subordinate field offices and resident agencies located in the 50 States and Puerto Rico, the Office of Industrial Security, International-Europe, in Brussels, Belgium; a field office in Mannheim, Federal Republic of Germany; and the Office of Industrial Security, International-Far East, in Yokohama, Japan.

DIS conducts all Personnel Security Investigations (PSI's) for DOD components and when authorized also conducts PSI's for other U.S. Government activities. These PSI's include investigation of allegations of subversive affiliations, adverse suitability information, or any other situation that requires resolution to complete the PSI.

DIS is responsible for the three major programs involving industrial security: the Defense Industrial Security Program for Safeguarding Classified Information; the Industrial Facilities Protection Program; and the Defense Sensitive Conventional Arms, Ammunition and Explosives Security Program.

DIS also manages the Defense Central Index of Investigations (DCII), a centralized list of all Defense components investigative files, and security clearance information pertaining to Army and Air Force personnel.

Established pursuant to authority vested in the Secretary of Defense, the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) is an agency of the Department of Defense (DOD) under the direction, authority, and control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Logistics) and subject to DOD policies, directives, and instructions.

DLA consists of a Director, a Deputy Director, a Deputy Director for Acquisition Management, a Headquarters establishment, and 25 primary level field activities and their subordinate activities. Some of the subordinate activities of the Defense Fuel Supply Center, the Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service, and the Defense Personnel Support Center operate in overseas areas. There also are a number of Headquarters management support offices that are controlled by Headquarters staff elements.

The mission of DLA is to provide effective and economical support to the military services, other DOD components, Federal civil agencies, foreign governments, and others as authorized, for assigned materiel commodities and items of supply, including weapons systems, logistics services directly associated with the supply management function, contract administration services, and other support services as directed by the Secretary of Defense. Furthermore, DLA administers the operation of DOD programs as assigned.

Under the direction and operational control of its Director, DLA is responsible for the performance of the following major functions:

Materiel management encompassing item management classification, requirements and supply control, procurement, quality and reliability assurance, industrial mobilization planning, storage, inventory and distribution, transportation, maintenance and manufacture, provisioning, technical logistics data and information, value engineering and standardization;

Contract administration services provided in support of the military departments and other DOD components, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, other designated Federal and State agencies, and foreign governments;

Providing scientific and technical information support services to the Defense Research, Development, Testing and Evaluation community through operation of the centralized management information and technical report data banks at the Defense Technical Information Center and administrative management of nine contractor-operated DOD Information Analysis Centers in selected fields of science and technology;

Administering assigned DOD programs including the DOD Coordinated Procurement Program, Federal Catalog System, DOD Excess, Surplus, and Foreign Excess Personal Property Disposal Program, DOD Retail Interservice Support Program (DRIS), Defense Materiel Utilization Program, DOD Industrial Plant Equipment Program, Foreign Military Sales, operating Military Parts Control Advisory Groups (MPCAG) for standardization of parts at the system equipment design stage, DOD-wide program for redistribution/reutilization of excess Government-owned and rented automation equipment, Defense Automatic Addressing System, Defense Precious Metals Recovery Program, Executive Agent for Materiel Redistribution via the Defense European and Pacific Redistribution Activity (DEPRA), assigned logistics operations contingent to the Federal Emergency Management Program, assigned aspects of the DOD Food Service Management Program, DOD-wide Interchangeable/Substitutable Program, Military Standard Logistics Systems, Logistics Data Element Standardization and Management Program, Defense Procurement Management Review, providing manpower data support to DOD and other Government agencies assigned, the DOD Hazardous Materiel Data System, and the Program Manager for the Defense Energy Information System;

Monitoring DOD supply relationships with the General Services Administration;

Serving as the operating agency for the DOD Automated Placement Programs, and providing administrative support to the Centralized Referral Activity whose functions are under Assistant Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Logistics) supervision. These programs are the Centralized Referral System that provides for the placement of displaced DOD employees and returning overseas career employees, the Overseas Employment Referral Program, and the Automated Career Management System (ACMS) for placement of employees registered in the DOD-wide career program for Acquisition/Contracting and Quality Assurance personnel; and Systems analysis and design, procedural development, and maintenance for supply and service systems as assigned by the Secretary of Defense.

Primary Level Field Activities

Supply Centers The six supply centers are responsible for materiel management of assigned commodities and items of supply relating to food, clothing, textiles, medical, chemical, petroleum, industrial, construction, electronics, and general items of supply. The Defense Fuel Supply Center is also responsible for contracting for commercial petroleum services and coal, as well as all crude oil and petroleum products for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. Two of the supply centers also perform depot operations functions for assigned commodities.

For further information, call 202-274-6000 or 6001.

Service Centers The six service centers furnish varied support services as follows:

The Defense Logistics Services Center is responsible for maintenance of the Federal Cataloging System records including the development and dissemination of cataloging and item intelligence data to the military services and other authorized customers;

The Defense Industrial Plant Equipment Center (DIPEC) is responsible for the DOD General Reserve of industrial plant equipment. DIPEC maintains visibility records of all DOD equipment in use by government facilities and contractors and provides specified supply support of industrial plant equipment to the military departments;

The Defense Technical Information Center is responsible for the development, maintenance, and operation of the management information system in the field of scientific and technical information; acquisition, storage, announcement, retrieval, and provision of secondary distribution of scientific and technical reports; and primary distribution of foreign technical reports;

The DLA Administrative Support Center provides administrative support and common service functions to DLA activities within the Washington, DC, metropolitan area;

The Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service is responsible for the integrated management of worldwide personal property disposal operations, including reutilization of serviceable assets, in support of the military services and other authorized customers; and

The DLA Systems Automation Center is responsible for the operational execution of the DLA ADP Program and the DLA Telecommunications Program.

For further information, call 202-274-6000 or 6001.

Depots These activities are responsible for depot operations functions for assigned commodities.

Contract Administration Services Regions (DCASR's) The nine DCASR's provide contract administration services including the performance of contract administration, production, quality assurance, and data and financial management activities, and small business/labor surplus programs, within the United States and such external areas as specifically authorized.

For further information, call 202-274-6000 or 6001.

The Defense Mapping Agency (DMA) has some 9,000 employees in more than 50 locations around the world. The mission of the Agency is to:

Enhance national security and support the Nation's strategy of deterrence by producing and distributing to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Unified and Specified Commands, Military Departments and other Department of Defense users, complete, credible, and effective mapping, charting, and geodetic products, services, and training at the right place and in the right quantity and the right time;

Ensure that U.S. war-fighting forces have available to them effective mapping, charting, and geodetic support should the strategy of deterrence fail;

Provide nautical charts and marine navigational data to the worldwide merchant marine and private vessel operators; and

Maintain liaison with civil agencies and other national and international scientific and operational organizations engaged in mapping, charting, and geodetic activities.

The Defense Mapping Agency was established in 1972, when mapping, charting, and geodesy functions of the Defense Community were combined into this joint DOD agency. DMA is under the direction and control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence). The director of DMA, a flag officer, is responsible to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for operational matters.

DMA Components

The mapping, charting, and geodesy functions of DMA are principally conducted by its two major production Centers. Aerospace products and support to aerospace manned and unmanned weapons systems are provided to Department of Defense users primarily by the DMA Aerospace Center

(DMAAC), which is located in St. Louis, MO. The DMA Hydrographic/Topographic Center (DMAHTC), located in Brookmont, MD, primarily provides nautical products, topographic products, land combat support, and support to ground weapons and naval weapons systems.

The DMA Office of Distribution Services (DMAODS) is primarily responsible for the distribution of DMA products to the military services and other users. Its headquarters is also located in Brookmont, MD.

The Defense Mapping School (DMS), located at Fort Belvoir, VA, is responsible for providing personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and other Government agencies with training in all aspects of mapping, charting, and geodesy.

The DMA Inter-American Geodetic Survey (DMAIAGS), headquartered at Fort Sam Houston, TX, conducts a cooperative program to promote and encourage cartographic studies in the Latin American countries. Its goal is to assist Latin American nations in becoming self-sufficient in cartography.

The DMA Special Program Office for Exploitation Modernization (DMASPOEM), located in McLean, VA, is responsible for developing the capability of producing DMA products using softcopy or computerized production techniques.

The DMA Office of Telecommunications Services (DMAOTS), located in Reston, VA, provides overall operational direction and management supervision of DMA Telecommunications Systems and operates and maintains the long-haul systems linking major production centers and field activities.

Public Sale of Maps and Charts

Aeronautical Charts Aeronautical charts, published by the DMA Aerospace

Center covering foreign areas, are available for sale by the National Ocean Service (NOS) and may be purchased from the following offices:

Distribution Branch (N/CG33), National Ocean Service, Riverdale, MD 20737-1199. Phone, 301-436-6990.

National Ocean Service, Chart Sales and Control Data Office, 632 Sixth Avenue, Room 405, Anchorage, AK 99501. Phone, 907-271-4470.

Domestic aeronautical charts are produced by NOS and may be purchased from NOS Sales Agents established at the principal civil airports or from the offices listed above.

Topographic Maps The DMA Hydrographic/Topographic Center publishes topographic maps of foreign areas. A listing of topographic maps available to the public is contained in the Defense Mapping Agency Public Sale Catalog, which is available free of charge from the DMA Office of Distribution Services, Attn: DOCS, Washington, DC 20010. Phone, 202-227-2816.

Topographic maps of the continental United States and Hawaii are not available from DMA, but may be purchased as indicated below:

—For maps east of the Mississippi: U.S. Geological Survey, Eastern Distribution Branch, 1200 South Eads Street, Arlington, VA 22202. Phone, 703-557-2781.

—For maps west of the Mississippi: U.S. Geological Survey, Western Distribution Branch, Federal Center, P.O. Box 25286, Denver, CO 80225. Phone, 303-234-3832.

Nautical Charts A complete list of charts available for sale by the DMA Office of Distribution Services, as well as its authorized sales agents, is tabulated in the DMA Catalog of Maps, Charts, and Related Products, Part 2—Hydrographic Products (Volumes I-X). Detailed ordering instructions, as well as the sales agents list, are found in Volume X, Miscellaneous and Special Purpose Navigational Charts, Sheets and Tables. These volumes are available for $2.25 each from the DMA Office of Distribution Services, Attn: DDCP, Washington, DC 20315-0010. Phone, 202-227-2495.

Nautical charts of coastal waterways of the continental United States, Hawaii, Alaska, and U.S. territories may be purchased from NOS, whose address is shown above in the section on aeronautical charts.

The Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA) is the oldest of the Defense agencies. Its history began in 1942 with the creation of the "Manhattan Project," which developed the first atomic bomb. The "Manhattan Project" was dissolved by the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, which also established the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project. The Project was redesignated as the Defense Atomic Support Agency in 1959 and renamed again in 1971 as the Defense Nuclear Agency. The Director, DNA, is under the direction, authority, and control of the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering. The authority for DNA activities is included in DOD Directive 5105.31.

The majority of DNA activity is associated with nuclear weapons effects research and testing. DNA plans, coordinates, and supervises DOD efforts in this area, including tests assessment, construction and management of simulation facilities, and field experiments. DNA is the central DOD agency for coordination of nuclear weapons development and testing with the Department of Energy. DNA manages the DOD nuclear weapons stockpile and its associated report system and conducts technical investigations and field tests to enhance the safety and security of theater nuclear forces. DNA provides advice and assistance to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Services on all nuclear matters, including such related areas as site security, tactics, vulnerability, radiation effects, and biomedical effects.

To accomplish its mission, DNA is organized with its headquarters in Washington, DC, the Field Command in Albuquerque, NM, and the Armed Forces Radiobiology Research Institute (AFRRI) in Bethesda, MD. DNA retains management of Johnston Atoll in the Pacific to ensure its availability as a test site. In addition, DNA managed the restoration of Enewetak Atoll from a nuclear test site to a life-supporting condition that has permitted the return of natives to their home island.

The purpose of the Defense Security Assistance Agency (DSAA) is to direct, administer, and supervise the execution of approved security assistance plans and programs, such as military assistance and foreign military sales.

The Defense Security Assistance Agency was established on September 1, 1971, by the Department of Defense Directive 5105.38, dated August 11, 1971, as an agency of the Department of Defense. It operates under the direction, authority, and control of the Under Secretary of Defense for Policy. The Director also serves as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Security Assistance to the Assistant Secretaries of International Security Affairs and International Security Policy on matters pertaining to security assistance policy.

The Defense Security Assistance Agency works closely with the U.S. Security Assistance Offices worldwide.

National Security Agency/Central Security Service

Fort George G. Meade, MD 20755
Phone, 301–688–6311

Lt. Gen. William E. Odom, USA	Director
Charles R. Lord	Deputy Director

The National Security Agency/Central Security Service is responsible for centralized coordination, direction, and performance of highly specialized technical functions in support of U.S. Government activities to protect U.S. communications and produce foreign intelligence information. The National Security Agency was established by Presidential directive in 1952 as a separately organized agency within the Department of Defense. In this directive, the President designated the Secretary of Defense Executive Agent for the signals intelligence and communications security activities of the Government. The Agency was charged with an additional mission, computer security, in a 1984 Presidential directive.

In 1972 the Central Security Service was established, in accordance with a Presidential memorandum, to provide a more unified cryptologic organization within the Department of Defense and appointed the Director, National Security Agency, as Chief of the Central Security Service.

The National Security Agency/Central Security Service has three primary missions: a communications security mission, a computer security mission, and a foreign intelligence information mission. To accomplish these missions, the Director has been assigned the following responsibilities:

Prescribing certain security principles, doctrines, and procedures for the U.S. Government;

Organizing, operating, and managing certain activities and facilities for the production of foreign intelligence information;

Organizing and coordinating the research and engineering activities of the U.S. Government that are in support of the Agency's assigned functions;

Regulating certain communications in support of Agency missions; and Operating the DOD Computer Security Center in support of his role as national manager for telecommunications security and automated information systems security.

Executive Order 12333 of December 4, 1981, describes in more detail the responsibilities of the National Security Agency.

The Strategic Defense Initiative Organization (SDIO) was established as a separate agency of the Department of Defense under the direction, authority, and control of the Secretary of Defense.

The mission of SDIO is to manage and direct the conduct of research through advanced technology programs that will provide the technological basis for an informed decision regarding feasibility of eliminating the threat posed by nuclear ballistic missiles and increasing the contribution of defensive systems to U.S. and allied security. In the performance of its research, the agency utilizes the services of the military departments, the Department of Energy, private industries, and educational and research institutions.

National Defense University

Fort Lesley J. McNair, Fourth and P Streets SW., Washington, DC 20319-6000
Phone, 202-475-0811

Lt. Gen. Richard D. Lawrence, USA	President
Ambassador L. Bruce Laingen	Vice President

The National Defense University (NDU) was established by the Department of Defense on January 16, 1976, thereby merging the Industrial College of the Armed Forces and the National War College to form a university. Because the two senior service colleges are located at Fort Lesley J. McNair, Washington, DC, their close affiliation reduces administrative costs, provides for the sharing of faculty expertise and educational resources, and promotes a constructive dialog, which benefits both colleges. On August 16, 1981, the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, VA, an institution educating mid-career officers, was incorporated into the National Defense University. This action united the Department of Defense's three joint colleges under one university and allowed NDU to coordinate the curricula and professional development of its students and share resources. At the direction of the Secretary of Defense, the Department of Defense Computer Institute (DODCI) became an element of NDU on September 26, 1982. DODCI, located in the Washington Navy Yard, is responsible for teaching information resources management to senior military and civilian executives within the Department of Defense. Also in 1982, an Institute for Higher Defense Studies was established to provide specialized education in joint matters to both general and flag officers, and Allied officers from selected foreign nations.

The mission of NDU is to ensure excellence in professional military education in the essential elements of national security and their interrelationships in order to enhance the preparation of selected personnel of the Departments of Defense and State, and other governmental agencies for the exercise of senior policy, command and staff functions, the planning of national strategy, and the management of resources for national security.

NDU is pursuing numerous initiatives designed to ensure that its curriculum focuses on critical issues associated with the Nation's current security posture. At the same time, increased emphasis has been placed on achieving a closer relationship between research and education. This is reflected in the studies programs of the two senior colleges. Basic improvements in the scope and thrust of the curricula of both colleges are designed to enrich the educational process while emphasizing the important role played by research in the University's mission.

That role has been enhanced by the establishment of an Institute for National Strategic Studies composed of a publication arm, the NDU Press, and three research-oriented centers: The Strategic Concepts Development Center (SCDC) emphasizes studies in theater-level war fighting, employment planning, and the use of joint and combined forces in warfare. The Mobilization Concepts Development Center (MCDC) stresses studies on industrial preparedness, mobilization planning, and management and deployment planning. The War Gaming and Simulation Center (WGSC) provides simulation and gaming activities to support the educational and research objectives of the University.

In addition to the resident courses taught at the National War College and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, the University conducts, through its Academic Affairs Directorate, three other programs based on the resident courses, as well as regional and topical symposia. The Reserve Components National Security Seminar is a 2-week course presented to selected reserve component officers at various military installations. Both seminar programs are developed to reflect the NDU resident programs and are conducted by faculty members of NDU, the National War College, and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. A correspondence course on national security management is offered to regular and reserve officers and civilians who hold key positions in Government or who may be expected to fill such positions in time of emergency mobilization.

The National War College (NWC) provides education in politico-military affairs to selected military officers and career civil service employees of Federal departments and agencies concerned with national security. It is the only senior service college with the primary mission of offering a course of study that emphasizes national security policy formulation and the planning and implementation of national strategy. The 10-month academic program is an issue-centered study in U.S. national security. It consists of a prescribed curriculum and an elective study program. The prescribed portion of the curriculum combines interwoven themes: international politics and the process and substance of security policy formulation. Emphasis is placed on the role of force in national security policy and strategy through the study of major issues likely to affect the national security of the United States. The elective program is designed to permit each student to tailor his academic experience to meet individual professional development needs. Electives include tutorial research, writing, and reading, in addition to individual courses offered at NWC and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces (ICAF).

The Industrial College of the Armed Forces (ICAF) provides senior-level education in management of resources and mobilization in support of national security to selected military officers and career civil service employees of Federal departments and agencies. It is the only senior service college with the primary mission of offering a course of study in resource management for national security. The 10-month academic program focuses on the role of the executive in the national security structure, with emphasis on the allocation and management of resources in dealing with national security problems. The prescribed portion of the curriculum addresses management skills and practices related to human and materiel resources, analytical techniques, global resources issues, and the national economy. The Department of Defense, particularly its management philosophy, systems, and practices, receives major attention. Opportunity is provided the student to choose from a variety of electives offered within the National Defense University. A cooperative M.B.A. program is available with the George Washington University.

Maj. Gen. K.A. Jolemore, USA	Commandant
Col. R. Maury Browne, USMC	Deputy Commandant
Maj. Alphonso Maldon, USA	Executive Officer

The Armed Forces Staff College, established on August 13, 1946, is a joint educational institution operating under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The College conducts two 5 ½-month courses each year. The course concentrates on management of resources, national strategy, and communicative arts, coupled with the makeup, capabilities, and missions of each of the military services, and detailed step-by-step development of a joint and combined plan. Given military scenarios, the students are taught how to combine the various units of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps for a successful joint operation, to include both the transportation and supply requirements to sustain the mission.

Two primary methods of instruction are used. First, the students are assigned to seminars of 20 officers each (with mixed specialties and backgrounds), and this group becomes, in effect, a miniature joint staff. In this environment, the officers learn from each other while assimilating the school's curriculum. The second method of instruction is a guest-lecture program in which major military and civilian leaders, including members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, address each class and then participate in wide-ranging question-and-answer periods.

Authorized by act of Congress, approved September 21, 1972 (86 Stat. 713; 10 U.S.C. 2112), the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences was established to educate career-oriented medical officers for the military services. It is a separate agency of the Department of Defense, directly responsible to the Secretary of Defense (Department of Defense Directive 5105.45).

The University currently incorporates the F. Edward Hébert School of Medicine and graduate and continuing education programs. It is located on the Naval Medical Command reservation in Bethesda, MD.

Students are selected by procedures recommended by the Board of Regents and prescribed by the Secretary of Defense. The actual selection is carried out by a faculty committee on admissions and is based upon motivation and dedication to a career in the uniformed services and an overall appraisal of the personal and intellectual characteristics of the candidates without regard to sex, race, religion, or national origin. Applicants must be U.S. citizens. Matriculants will be commissioned officers in one of the uniformed services. They must meet the physical and personal qualifications for such a commission and must give evidence of a strong commitment to serving as a uniformed medical officer. The graduating medical student is required to serve a period of obligation of not less than 7 years.

Currently, there are approximately 625 officers training for their M.D. degrees in the University's F. Edward Hébert School of Medicine and approximately 100 individuals enrolled in one of the University's graduate programs in the basic sciences.

The University's graduate program is fully accredited and is available to both civilian and military applicants. Graduates may receive the PH.D. degree in one of the biomedical sciences, the master of public health degree, or the master of tropical medicine and hygiene degree. In addition, the University serves as the focus for a vigorous continuing medical education program that supports the military services by providing unique training opportunities both at the University's Bethesda campus and at military bases around the world, where such training would not otherwise be available.

The Defense Systems Management College, established July 1, 1971, is a joint service educational institution operating under the direction of the Defense Systems Management College Policy Guidance Council chaired by the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering. It is the mission of the College to conduct advanced courses of study that will prepare selected military officers and civilian personnel for assignments in program management and to conduct, research, and disseminate information concerning new methods and practices in program management.

The College conducts a 138-day resident course to educate selected intermediate level military officers and civilian personnel in a broad spectrum of program management activities through formal studies, simulation exercises, and case studies. The College also conducts an executive refresher course in program management for senior-level managers and an orientation in systems acquisition for selected generals of the Army and Air Force, flag officers of the Navy, and supergrade civilians in each of the services and the Department of Defense. In addition, special courses are routinely scheduled to disseminate new concepts and methods in program management and respond to the needs of the military departments and Defense agencies. Most of the courses are available to selected persons from other Federal agencies and the defense industry on a space-available basis.

The Defense Institute of Security Assistance Management (DISAM), established on January 1, 1977, is a joint service educational institute operating under the direction of the Defense Institute of Security Assistance Management Policy Guidance Council, chaired by the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs.

The mission of DISAM is to provide educational, research, and consultation services to managers at all operational levels within the U.S. security assistance community and worldwide. Security assistance is a worldwide program whereby the United States furnishes military and related economic assistance through sales, grants, or loans to more than 100 allied and friendly foreign nations.

DISAM conducts a series of resident and nonresident study courses for U.S. Government and foreign military and civilian personnel, and representatives of defense-related industries assigned to security assistance management positions. These courses are tailored to meet the specific educational requirements of these management personnel and to enlarge their capacity for effective management decisions. Instruction covers security assistance management topics, ranging from the study of governing legislative and policy provisions through the examination of the requisites of program planning and the implementation of financial, logistics, and training management functions.

A basic 15-day course is provided for mid-level managers who are assigned to functional security assistance positions within the United States. Foreign personnel attend a comparable course, and an expanded 20-day course is provided to U.S. personnel assigned to management positions at overseas locations. A variety of 5-day courses are also offered, including a comprehensive executive course for senior-level American managers and officials and a similar course for foreign executive personnel; advanced specialized courses in financial management and program/case management; an industry-oriented course for representatives of U.S. defense-related firms; and a course for U.S. Government personnel assigned as administrative managers of foreign students engaged in technical training and professional education programs at U.S. military installations. Nonresident instruction includes comprehensive, short courses conducted on-site, as required, for U.S. military agencies and mobile training teams, which travel abroad to conduct courses for foreign personnel.

The Institute also engages in a broad research and consultation program directed toward curriculum enhancement and applied research. Unique textbooks and handbooks covering security assistance management topics have been developed and published by DISAM. The Institute also publishes the quarterly DISAM Journal of International Security Assistance Management, which serves as an informational channel for members of the global security assistance community. Consultation services are available to all U.S. and foreign agencies engaged in security assistance management. The Institute's library houses a comprehensive repository of worldwide security assistance-related materials.

Daniel M. Arons	Vice Chairman
William J. Ruberry	Vice Chairman
George L. Hawkes	Recorder

The Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals was established jointly by the Secretaries of Defense, Army, Navy, and Air Force by charter dated March 20, 1962, as amended on May 1, 1969, September 1, 1973, and July 1, 1979.

Board members, designated as administrative judges, are qualified attorneys at law with at least 5 years of public contract law experience at the time of appointment. The Chairman and two Vice Chairmen are appointed from among Board members jointly by the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering and the Assistant Secretaries of the military departments responsible for procurement. Decisions are routinely made by majority vote within Board divisions comprised of a division head, two other members, the Board Chairman, and a Vice Chairman. Appeals of unusual difficulty, dispute, or precedential significance are, on reference by the Chairman, decided by majority vote of the Board's Senior Deciding Group comprised of all division heads, the Vice Chairman, and the Chairman.

Pursuant to the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 (41 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) and provisions of the Board's charter, the Board determines with administrative finality (subject only to judicial review) appeals from final decisions of contracting officers on disputes relating to contracts made by elements of the Department of Defense and several civilian agencies under separate delegations of authority. Proceedings are quasi-judicial. Decisions are made strictly on the evidentiary record (testimony and documents) and applicable regulations, statutes, and general law.

In accordance with the Contract Disputes Act and Board rules, the contractor may elect an optional accelerated procedure where the controversial sum does not exceed $50,000 or may elect a small claims (expedited) procedure where the controversial sum does not exceed $10,000.

For further information, contact the Chairman, Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals, Hoffman Building II, 200 Stovall Street, Alexandria, VA 22332–0700. Phone, Chairman: 202–325–8000 or Recorder: 202–325–9070.

The Department of Education is the Cabinet-level department that establishes policy for, administers, and coordinates most Federal assistance to education.

The Department of Education was created by the Department of Education Organization Act (93 Stat. 668; 20 U.S.C. 3401), approved October 17, 1979, with the first Secretary of Education sworn in on December 6, 1979.

Office of the Secretary

Secretary The Secretary of Education advises the President on education plans, policies, and programs of the Federal Government. The Secretary directs Department staff in carrying out the approved programs and activities of the Department and promotes general public understanding of the Department's goals, programs, and objectives. The Secretary also carries out certain Federal responsibilities for four federally aided corporations: the American Printing House for the Blind, Gallaudet College, Howard University, and the National Technical Institute for the Deaf. The Under Secretary, the Deputy Under Secretaries, the Assistant Secretaries, the Inspector General, and the General Counsel aid the Secretary in the overall management of the Department.

Under Secretary The Under Secretary serves as Acting Secretary in the absence of the Secretary and performs on behalf of the Secretary such functions and duties as the Secretary may designate; coordinates regional and field activities; and coordinates Federal-State relations.

Intergovernmental and Interagency Affairs The Deputy Under Secretary for Intergovernmental and Interagency Affairs is responsible for providing overall leadership in establishing and directing effective intergovernmental and interagency services for the Department, including communication with a wide variety of intergovernmental, interagency, and public advocacy groups and constituencies affected by Department policy, programs, and operations.

Inspector General The Inspector General is responsible for conducting and supervising audits and investigations relating to programs and operations of the Department. The Office provides leadership, coordination, and policy recommendations to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness; and to prevent and detect fraud and abuse in the administration of the Department's programs and operations. The Office also provides a means for keeping the Secretary and Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies relating to the administration of such programs and operations, and the necessity of corrective action.

General Counsel The General Counsel provides legal advice to the Secretary and to the components of the Department.

Bilingual Education The Director of the Office of Bilingual Education and Minority Languages Affairs ensures access to equal educational opportunity and improves the quality of programs for limited English proficiency and minority languages populations by providing support for programs, activities, and management initiatives meeting the special educational needs of those populations. The Office also provides assistance for the development, adoption, and implementation of plans for the desegregation of public schools.

Management The Deputy Under Secretary for Management provides advice and guidance to the Secretary on administrative and financial management and provides for the direction and coordination of these activities throughout the Department on a day-to-day basis. The activities include financial management, personnel, training, grants and procurement management, management evaluation, ADP, and other support functions.

Planning, Budget and Evaluation The Deputy Under Secretary for Planning, Budget and Evaluation coordinates Department activities in the preparation of the departmental budget, program analysis, and planning activities, and ensures that Department policy and program planning appropriately reflects the results of these activities. The Office also conducts activities designed to inform the general public and the Nation's educational community about Department programs and activities.

Legislation The Assistant Secretary for Legislation and Public Affairs serves as the principal adviser to the Secretary on matters concerning the Department's legislative program and congressional relations.

Civil Rights The Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights is responsible for the administration and enforcement of civil rights laws related to education and the handicapped. The Office is responsible for ensuring compliance in programs and activities receiving Federal financial assistance and by employers holding Federal contracts.

Elementary and Secondary Education The Assistant Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Education formulates policy for, directs, and coordinates the activities relating to preschool, elementary, and secondary education in the Department. Included are programs of grants to State educational agencies and local school districts for Indian and migrant education, programs of financial and technical assistance to school districts to meet special needs incident to the elimination of racial segregation and discrimination, and grants for the education of neglected and delinquent students.

Educational Research and Improvement The Assistant Secretary for Educational Research and Improvement administers functions of the Department concerning research, development, demonstration, dissemination, and assessment. The Office also administers a wide variety of discretionary grant programs to maximize individual program impact on school improvement.

Vocational and Adult Education The Assistant Secretary for Vocational and Adult Education administers programs of grants, contracts, and technical assistance for vocational and technical education, education professions development, community schools, and comprehensive employment and training. The Office is also responsible for providing a unified approach to rural and rural family education through the coordination of programs within the Department.

Special Education and Rehabilitative Services The Assistant Secretary for Special Education and Rehabilitative Services is responsible for special education programs and services expressly designed to meet the needs and develop the full potential of handicapped children; and comprehensive rehabilitation service programs specifically designed to reduce human dependency, to increase self-reliance, and to fully utilize the productive capabilities of all handicapped persons. Programs include support of training for teachers and other professional personnel; grants for research; financial aid to help States initiate, expand, and improve their resources; and media services and captioned films for the deaf.

Postsecondary Education The Assistant Secretary for Postsecondary Education formulates policy and directs and coordinates programs for assistance to postsecondary educational institutions and students pursuing a postsecondary education. Programs include assistance for the improvement and expansion of American educational resources for international studies and services, grants to improve instruction in crucial academic subjects, and construction assistance for academic facilities. Also included are programs of student financial assistance, including Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Grants to States for State Student Incentives, Direct Loans to Students in Institutions of Higher Education, Work-Study, Cooperative Education, Insured Loans to Students in Health Professions Schools, and the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

Regional Offices Each regional office serves as a center for the dissemination of information and provides technical assistance to State and local educational agencies and other institutions and individuals interested in Federal education activities. At present, offices are located in 10 cities: Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, and Seattle.

The Columbia Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, and the Blind was incorporated by act of February 16, 1857 (11 Stat. 161-2). An amendatory act of February 23, 1865 (13 Stat. 436), changed the name to The Columbia Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb. The name was subsequently changed to Columbia Institution for the Deaf by act of March 4, 1911 (36 Stat. 1422). The act approved June 18, 1954 (68 Stat. 265; 20 U.S.C. 691 et seq.), changed its name to Gallaudet College.

Gallaudet College was established to provide a liberal higher education for deaf persons who need special facilities to compensate for their loss of hearing. The primary purpose of the college is to afford its students the intellectual and spiritual development that can be acquired through a study of the liberal arts and sciences. The college intends to produce men and women who have the power of sound independent judgment and who are well informed about the world around them, about their civilization and its achievements, and about themselves as human beings. This purpose is served through required courses in general education, though it is intended to pervade all the work of the college.

In addition to his or her general studies, the student is encouraged to concentrate in a field consonant with his or her interest that may lead either to a career or to a graduate school.

In addition to its undergraduate program, Gallaudet College operates a graduate program at the master's level for preparing teachers and other professional personnel to work with persons who are deaf, a research program focusing on problems related to deafness, and a preschool for young deaf children.

Accreditation Gallaudet College is accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, and the Council on Social Work Education.

For further information, contact the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, 3624 Market Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104. Phone, 215-6_2-5605.

Model Secondary School for the Deaf The Model Secondary School for the Deaf (MSSD) was established by the act of October 15, 1966 (80 Stat. 1027), when the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare entered into an agreement with Gallaudet College for the establishment and operation, including construction, of such a facility.

MSSD was established as an exemplary educational facility for deaf students of high school age from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Delaware. The school is to provide maximum flexibility in curricula and to encourage originality, imagination, and innovation needed to satisfy deaf students' high levels of aspirations.

The objectives of MSSD are to provide day and residential facilities for deaf youth of high school age, in order to prepare some for college and other advanced study and to provide terminal education for others; to prepare all students to the maximum extent possible to be independent, contributing members of society; and to stimulate the development of similar programs throughout the Nation.

Kendall Demonstration Elementary School The Kendall School for the Deaf, located on the campus of Gallaudet College and now serving approximately 165 students, became the Nation's first demonstration elementary school for the deaf by the act of December 26, 1970 (84 Stat. 1579), which authorized Gallaudet College to operate and maintain the school as a model that will experiment in techniques and materials, and to disseminate information from these and future projects to educational facilities for deaf children throughout the country.

National Technical Institute for the Deaf

M. Richard Rose	President of Rochester Institute of Technology
William E. Castle	Vice President for Government Affairs/ Director of the National Technical Institute for the Deaf

The National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) was established by an act of June 8, 1965 (79 Stat. 125), and after several years of planning, programs began in 1968. Funded through the U.S. Department of Education, it is an integral part of a larger institution known as the Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT).

NTID's presence at RIT is the first effort to educate large numbers of deaf students within a college campus planned primarily for hearing students. Unique in the world, NTID is a vital part of RIT's main 1,300-acre campus in suburban Rochester, NY. It provides educational opportunities for qualified students from every State in the Nation and, through educational outreach, publications, and related service, serves deaf persons throughout the world. In addition, NTID conducts research to better understand the role of deafness in education and employment, and to develop innovative teaching techniques. It develops training activities for its faculty and staff, as well as for other professionals working with deaf persons across the country.

One of the major reasons for NTID's success in helping deaf students join the mainstream of American life is its close working relationship with other RIT colleges in developing career-oriented programs of study. One of RIT's main strengths over the years has been its ability to adapt its educational programs to technological and social change. NTID helps keep that RIT tradition alive and has served more than 2,600 deaf students since 1968. NTID offers a wide range of certificate, diploma, and associate degree programs. Its technical education programs include: business careers, accounting, office practice and procedures, computer careers, business data processing, construction, industrial and engineering courses, architectural technology, civil technology, industrial drafting and technology, electromechanical technology, manufacturing processes, numerical control, applied health/science careers, medical laboratory and medical record technology, optical finishing and technology career, media production and technologies careers, photography careers, applied photography, printing careers, printing production technology, art careers, applied art, and social service careers (programs available through cross-registration into RIT College of General Studies).

NTID students may also enroll in any of nearly 200 other degree programs offered through RIT's nine other colleges—Business, Continuing Education, Engineering, Fine and Applied Arts, General Studies, Graphic Arts and Photography, Science, Institute College, and Eisenhower College. Approximately 25 percent of NTID students attend classes on a regular basis in one of these other RIT colleges, and another 50 percent attend such classes occasionally.

Deaf graduates from RIT have found employment throughout the Nation or have moved on to advanced academic studies. Of those who pursued employment, more than 90 percent have been placed in jobs; 93 percent in jobs commensurate with their educational preparation. Of those employed, 80 percent work in business and industry, more than 11 percent in government, and the remainder in education.

An applicant for NTID at RIT must be a U.S. resident. An overall eighth grade achievement level or above is required, and, except under special circumstances, an applicant must have completed a secondary program. An applicant also must show evidence of need for special services because of hearing loss and have an unaided better ear average of 70dB ISO. References are requested.

RIT and NTID are accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. RIT also has been accredited by the Engineers' Council for Professional Development; National Association of Schools of Art; Committee on Professional Training of American Chemical Society; Council on Social Work Education; and the National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Sciences.

The Department of Energy (DOE) provides the framework for a comprehensive and balanced national energy plan through the coordination and administration of the energy functions of the Federal Government. The Department is responsible for long-term, high-risk research and development of energy technology; the marketing of Federal power; energy conservation; the nuclear weapons program; energy regulatory programs; and a central energy data collection and analysis program.

The Department of Energy was established by the Department of Energy Organization Act, approved August 4, 1977 (91 Stat. 569; 42 U.S.C. 7131), and effective October 1, 1977, pursuant to Executive Order 12009 of September 13, 1977. The act consolidates the major Federal energy functions into one Cabinet-level Department, transferring to DOE all the responsibilities of the Energy Research and Development Administration; the Federal Energy Administration; the Federal Power Commission; and the Alaska, Bonneville, Southeastern, and Southwestern Power Administrations, formerly components of the Department of the Interior, as well as the power marketing functions of the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Reclamation. Also transferred to DOE were certain functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Departments of Commerce, Housing and Urban Development, the Navy, and the Interior.

The Secretary and Deputy Secretary are the principal officers of the Department. They are responsible for the overall planning, direction, and control of departmental activities. The Under Secretary has the primary responsibility for developing the Department's overall policies regarding energy conservation and renewable energy technology and for encouraging non-Federal entities to engage in imaginative and progressive utilization of conservation and renewable forms of energy.

Supporting DOE in matters of Department-wide scope are support offices, including the Offices of the Assistant Secretaries for Management and Administration; Environment, Safety and Health; International Affairs and Energy Emergencies; Congressional, Intergovernmental, and Public Affairs; the Director of Policy, Planning and Analysis; the General Counsel; the Inspector General; the Director of Minority Economic Impact; the Director of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization; the Director of Hearings and Appeals; and the Chairman of the Board of Contract Appeals.

Programs requiring large budget outlays are the responsibility of the Director of Energy Research, the Director of the Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management, and four program Assistant Secretaries (Fossil Energy; Nuclear Energy; Conservation and Renewable Energy; and Defense Programs).

The Department's organization also includes the Economic Regulatory Administration, the Energy Information Administration, and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which is an independent regulatory organization within the Department.

In addition to headquarters' components, the Department has an extensive field structure that plays an integral part in the implementation and management of departmental projects and programs.

Office of the Secretary

Secretary The Secretary directs and supervises the administration of the Department, decides major energy policy and planning issues, and acts as the principal spokesman for the Department. The Secretary is the principal adviser to the President on energy policies, plans, and programs.

In the absence of the Secretary, the Deputy Secretary acts for the Secretary and oversees energy policy development and related policy analysis activities. As chief operating officer for the Department, the Under Secretary assists the Secretary in overall departmental program management through oversight of headquarters and field activities involving research, development, testing, production, operations, environmental, safety, health, emergency preparedness, international affairs, regulatory, energy information, and related programs. In addition, the Under Secretary bears primary responsibility for energy conservation programs.

Staff Offices

General Counsel The General Counsel provides diverse legal services to the Secretary and the Department, including legal support and counseling for all Department activities, except for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission; conducts the Department's patent and standards of conduct programs; and carries out traditional legal functions such as certain aspects of litigation and the development of legislative proposals.

Policy, Planning and Analysis The Office of Policy, Planning and Analysis formulates and recommends the overall national energy policy, coordinates the analysis and evaluation of policies and programs, and conducts a continuing assessment of the national energy situation.

The Office develops legislative proposals to support policy objectives and reviews program and management plans and budgets to ensure integration of new policy proposals. The Office also prepares the Department's proposed biennial National Energy Policy Plan to be transmitted by the President to the Congress.

Environment, Safety and Health The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Environment, Safety and Health ensures that departmental programs are in compliance with environmental safety and health regulations and that environmental and safety impacts of Department programs receive managemental review.

Management and Administration The Office of the Assistant Secretary, Management and Administration provides a wide range of institutional support services to the headquarters' organizations and to the Department as a whole. The major areas of responsibility include overall management and control of financial resources; administrative management, including personnel, organization and management systems, and the provision of administrative services; procurement, contracting, Federal assistance agreements, and real and personal property management; equal employment opportunity and civil rights activities; and scientific and technical information management. In addition, the Assistant Secretary provides support services in the area of document control and action assignment, coordination, and followup.

Congressional, Intergovernmental, and Public Affairs The Assistant Secretary for Congressional, Intergovernmental, and Public Affairs establishes public affairs policy and manages the overall public affairs program; establishes policy and procedures for the conduct of relations with Congress; serves as the principal point of departmental contact with the Congress and provides guidance to Department staff on congressional matters and interests; advises the Secretary on departmental relations with State, local, Indian, and territorial governments and labor organizations; provides policy direction for oversight of the consumer activities of the Department and responds to citizen-oriented energy initiatives. It also ensures that all DOE policies and programs promote competition in the energy industry and that consumer impact is considered in decisionmaking.

Office of Minority Economic Impact The Director of Minority Economic Impact advises the Secretary on the effects of energy policies, regulations, and other actions of the Department and its components on minorities, minority business enterprises, and minority educational institutions; and advises the Secretary on ways to ensure that minorities are afforded an opportunity to participate in energy programs of the Department.

Inspector General The Office of Inspector General coordinates, supervises, and conducts inspections, investigations, and audits of all departmental internal activities, including those of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, to ensure honesty and efficiency. When necessary, these activities are coordinated with other Federal, State, and local agencies and with nongovernment entities. The Office also recommends corrective actions and identifies and refers for prosecution participants in fraud and abuse cases.

Hearings and Appeals The Office of Hearings and Appeals reviews and issues all final DOE orders of an adjudicatory nature, other than those involving matters over which the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission or the Energy Board of Contract Appeals exercises final jurisdiction. The Office is responsible for considering and issuing decisions on appeals from orders of a regulatory nature issued by DOE components and requests for exception or exemption from any regulatory or mandatory requirements.

Board of Contract Appeals The Board of Contract Appeals hears and resolves appeals pertaining to contract-related matters. The Board may act as the Department's Contract Adjustment Board, the Financial Assistance Appeal Board, or the Invention Licensing Appeal Board.

Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization The Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization is responsible for the policy, plans, and oversight of Department functions under sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act (72 Stat. 389, 644; 15 U.S.C. 637, 644) relating to preferred programs for small businesses, disadvantaged businesses, labor surplus area concerns, and women-owned businesses. The Office also provides functional direction and oversight to headquarters and field personnel regarding implementation of these programs.

Programs

Energy Research

The Office of Energy Research advises the Secretary on the physical and energy research and development programs of the Department, the use of multipurpose laboratories, education, and training for basic and applied research, and financial assistance and budgetary priorities for these activities.

The Office manages the basic energy sciences, high energy physics, and fusion energy research programs; administers DOE programs supporting university researchers; funds research in mathematical and computational sciences critical to the use and development of supercomputers; and administers a financial support program for research and development projects not funded elsewhere in the Department. The Office also manages a research program directed at determining the generic environmental, health, and safety aspects of energy technologies and programs.

The Office monitors DOE research and development programs for deficiencies or duplication of effort and, in conjunction with the Assistant Secretary for International Affairs and Energy Emergencies, monitors the international exchange of scientific and technical personnel.

For further information, contact the Deputy Director of Management. Phone, 301-353-4944.

Fossil Energy

The Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy is responsible for research and development programs involving fossil fuels—coal, petroleum, and gas. The fossil energy program involves applied research, exploratory development, and limited proof-of-concept testing targeted to high-risk and high-payoff endeavors. The objective of the program is to provide the general technology and knowledge base that the private sector can use to complete development and initiate commercialization of advanced processes and energy systems. The Assistant Secretary also manages and directs the program execution, project management, and in-house technology development efforts of the various field laboratories and Energy Technology Centers, the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, and the Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves.

For further information, contact the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Management, Planning and Technical Coordination. Phone, 301-353-2617.

Conservation and Renewable Energy

The Assistant Secretary for Conservation and Renewable Energy is responsible for formulating and directing programs designed to increase the production and utilization of renewable energy (solar, biomass, wind, geothermal, alcohol fuels, etc.) and improving the energy efficiency of transportation, buildings, industrial systems, and related processes through support of long-term, high-risk research and development activities. The Assistant Secretary also has responsibility for administering statutorily mandated assistance programs that provide financial assistance for State energy planning, weatherization of housing owned by the poor and disadvantaged, and the implementation of energy conservation measures by schools and hospitals, local units of government, and public care institutions. In addition, the Office coordinates and oversees the operations of three power marketing administrations.

For further information, contact the Director of Management and Review. Phone, 202-252-6768.

International Affairs and Energy Emergencies

The Assistant Secretary for International Affairs and Energy Emergencies develops, manages, and directs programs and activities relating to the international aspects of overall energy policy; ensures that U.S. international energy policies and programs conform to national goals, legislation, and treaty obligations; advises the Secretary on international energy negotiations; assesses world price and supply trends; and coordinates cooperative international energy programs with foreign governments and international organizations.

The Assistant Secretary also directs and coordinates the Department's energy emergency preparedness and emergency operations efforts; develops contingency plans and tests and evaluates response plans; develops and maintains continuity of government and national emergency plans.

For further information, contact the Director of Management Services. Phone, 202-252-5924.

Defense Programs

The Assistant Secretary for Defense Programs directs the Nation's nuclear weapons research, development, testing, production, and surveillance program, as well as the production of the special nuclear materials used by the weapons program within the Department, and management of defense nuclear waste and byproducts.

The Office also manages research in inertial fusion; the safeguards and security program; classification, declassification, and reclassification of documents; unclassified controlled nuclear information; departmental intelligence; export control; test ban treaty verification and monitoring technology; defense- and energy-related intelligence activities; and the Department's emergency preparedness activities.

For further information, contact the Director of Plans and Resource Management. Phone, 301-353-3276.

Nuclear Energy

The Assistant Secretary for Nuclear Energy administers the Department's research and development programs associated with fission energy. This includes programs relating to nuclear reactor development, both civilian and naval; nuclear fuel cycle; space nuclear applications; and uranium enrichment. In addition, the Assistant Secretary conducts technical analyses and provides advice concerning nonproliferation; assesses alternative nuclear systems and new reactor and fuel cycle concepts; and evaluates proposed advanced nuclear fission energy concepts and technical improvements for possible application to nuclear powerplant systems.

For further information, contact the Director of Support Programs. Phone, 202-252-6452.

Civilian Radioactive Waste Management The Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management was established by the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 2261; 42 U.S.C. 10224). The Office has responsibility for the Nuclear Waste Fund and for the management of Federal programs for recommending, constructing, and operating repositories for disposal of high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel; interim storage of spent nuclear fuel; monitored retrievable storage; and research, development, and demonstration regarding disposal of high-level radioactive waste and spent nuclear fuel.

For further information, contact the Associate Director for Resource Management. Phone, 202-252-9116.

Energy Information Administration

The Energy Information Administration (EIA) is responsible for the timely and accurate collection, processing, and publication of data in the areas of energy resource reserves, energy production, demand, consumption, distribution, and technology.

Analyses of energy data to assist government and nongovernment users in understanding energy trends are also performed. Specifically, analyses are prepared on complex, long-term energy trends and the microeconomic and macroeconomic impacts of energy trends on regional and industrial sectors. Special purpose analyses are prepared involving competition within the energy industries, the capital/financial structure of energy companies, and interfuel substitution. Audits are conducted to ensure the validity of regulatory and other energy data.

The Energy Information Administration provides data publication and distribution services within DOE, throughout the Government, and for the public. It is a clearinghouse for general information on energy and coordinates its activities with the Department's Technical Information Center.

For further information, contact the Director, National Energy Information Center. Phone, 202-252-2363.

Economic Regulatory Administration

The Economic Regulatory Administration (ERA) administers the Department's regulatory programs other than those assigned to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

For further information, contact the Director of Management and Information Systems. Phone, 202-252-4241.

Federal Energy Regulatory Commission

An independent, five-member commission within the Department of Energy, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) has retained many of the functions of the Federal Power Commission, such as setting rates and charges for the transportation and sale of natural gas and for the transmission and sale of electricity and the licensing of hydroelectric power projects. In addition, the Commission establishes rates or charges for the transportation of oil by pipeline, as well as the valuation of such pipelines.

For further information, contact the Executive Director. Phone, 202-357-8300.

Field Structure

Operations Offices and Contractor-Operated Field Installations

The vast majority of the Department's energy research and development, uranium enrichment and nuclear weapons research and development, and testing and production activities are carried out by contractors who operate Government-owned facilities. Management and administration of the Government-Owned Contractor-Operated (GOCO) facility contracts are the major responsibility of the Department's eight Operations Offices.

The Operations Offices provide a formal link between Department headquarters and the field laboratories and other operating facilities. They also manage programs and projects as assigned from headquarters. The Operations Offices report directly to the Office of the Secretary. Day-to-day, specific program direction for the Operations Offices is provided by the cognizant Assistant Secretaries and the Director or program officer.

For further information on specific Operations Offices, contact the Department of Energy Manager of the following:

Albuquerque Operations Office, P.O. Box 5400, Albuquerque, NM 87115. Phone, 505-844-7231.

Chicago Operations Office, 9800 S. Cass Ave., Argonne, IL 60439. Phone, 312-972-2110.

Idaho Operations Office, 550 2d St., Idaho Falls, ID 83401. Phone, 208-526-1322.

Oak Ridge Operations Office, P.O. Box E, Oak Ridge, TN 37831. Phone, 615-576-4444.

Richland Operations Office, P.O. Box 550, 825 Jadwin Ave., Richland, WA 99352. Phone, 509-376-7395.

San Francisco Operations Office, 1333 Broadway, Oakland, CA 94612. Phone, 415-273-7111.

Savannah River Operations Office, P.O. Box A, Aiken, SC 29801. Phone, 803-725-2277.

Other Field Offices The Department also has several field offices concerned primarily with specific programs, such as the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Project Office, two offices involved with the development of nuclear reactors for the Navy, and several offices devoted to the management of the Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves.

Regulatory Programs

The Department of Energy's enforcement program is conducted by the field staff under the supervision and direction of the Administrator of the Economic Regulatory Administration.

Power Administrations

Bonneville Power Administration The Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) was created pursuant to the act of August 20, 1937 (50 Stat. 731; 16 U.S.C. 832 et seq.), as amended. Through a regionwide, interconnecting transmission system it markets electric power and energy from Federal hydroelectric projects in the Pacific Northwest constructed and operated by the Corps of Engineers and the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Reclamation. Through interregional connections, it sells power surplus to the needs of the Pacific Northwest outside the region and participates in exchanges of power.

The Administration markets power produced by the Federal Columbia River Power System at the lowest rates, consistent with sound business practices. Preference is given to public entities.

Power is sold at wholesale to utilities and directly to electroprocess industries and other Federal agencies. The Administration also exchanges electric power; prepares wholesale rates and repayment schedules; and constructs, operates, and maintains a transmission system that integrates Federal power projects and interconnects with non-Federal utility systems.

In addition, the Administration is responsible for energy conservation, renewable resource development, and fish and wildlife enhancement under the provisions of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 2697; 16 U.S.C. 839 note).

The Administration, in cooperation with the Corps of Engineers, represents the United States in implementing the provisions of the Columbia River Treaty.

By an act of Congress approved October 18, 1974 (88 Stat. 1376; 16 U.S.C. 838), the Bonneville Power Administration has the authority, in lieu of appropriations, to use its revenues and to sell revenue bonds to the U.S. Treasury to finance its programs.

For further information, contact the Bonneville Power Administration, 1002 NE. Holladay Street, P.O. Box 3621, Portland, OR 97208.

Southeastern Power Administration The Southeastern Power Administration was created by the Secretary of the Interior in 1950 to carry out functions assigned to the Secretary by the Flood Control Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 890), which pertain to the transmission and disposition of surplus electric power and energy generated at reservoir projects that are or may be under the control of the Department of the Army in the States of West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky. The Southeastern Power Administration was transferred from the Department of the Interior to the Department of Energy by the Department of Energy Organization Act, approved August 4, 1977 (91 Stat. 578; 42 U.S.C. 7152), effective October 1, 1977.

The Administration transmits and disposes of the surplus electric power and energy generated at the Federal reservoir projects in such manner as to encourage the most widespread use. The Administration sets the lowest possible rates to consumers, consistent with sound business principles, and gives preference in the sale of such power and energy to public bodies and cooperatives.

The program of the Administration includes the negotiation, preparation, execution, and administration of contracts for the disposition of electric power; the preparation of wholesale rates and repayment schedules; the provision by construction, contract, or otherwise, of transmission and related facilities to interconnect reservoir projects and to serve contractual loads; and activities pertaining to the planning and operation of power facilities.

For further information, contact the Southeastern Power Administration, Elberton, GA 30635.

Alaska Power Administration The Alaska Power Administration is responsible for operating and marketing power for Federal hydroelectric projects in Alaska and for planning programs for future water and power developments. Legislative authorities for this work include the Eklutna Project Act (64 Stat. 382); the Snettisham Project authorization in the Flood Control Act of 1962 (76 Stat. 1194); the power marketing provision of the Flood Control Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 890); the act of August 9, 1955, Investigation of Water Resources, Alaska; and section 201 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 2944).

Planning programs involve engineering, economic, and environmental analyses of potential future power projects, as well as transmission system and power marketing studies. Close cooperation is maintained with other Federal, State, and local entities.

Power operations and marketing functions involving the Eklutna and Snettisham Hydroelectric Projects include projects' transmission systems serving the Anchorage and Juneau areas.

For further information, contact the Alaska Power Administration, Federal Building, P.O. Box 50, Juneau, AK 99802.

Southwestern Power Administration The Southwestern Power Administration was created by the Secretary of the Interior in 1943 to carry out the Secretary's responsibility for the sale and disposition of electric power and energy generated at certain projects constructed and operated by the Department of the Army. For these projects, the Administration carries out the functions assigned to the Secretary by the Flood Control Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 890; 16 U.S.C. 825s) in the States of Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas. Since October 1, 1977, the Southwestern Power Administration has been functioning under the direction of the Secretary of the Department of Energy, pursuant to section 302(a)(1) of the Department of Energy Organization Act (91 Stat. 578; 42 U.S.C. 7152).

The headquarters office is located at Tulsa, OK. There are three area offices at Springfield, MO; Muskogee, OK; and Jonesboro, AR; four maintenance units; and two dispatching offices.

The Southwestern Power Administration transmits and disposes of the electric power and energy generated at the Federal reservoir projects, supplemented by power purchased from public and private utilities, in such manner as to encourage the most widespread and economical use. The Administration sets the lowest possible rates to consumers, consistent with sound business principles, and gives preference in the sale of power and energy to public bodies and cooperatives.

The Administration develops, negotiates, and administers contracts for the sale and interchange of electric power and energy on a wholesale basis; prepares rate and repayment studies; designs and constructs transmission lines and related facilities to interconnect hydroelectric projects of the Administration's system and other systems, both public and private; operates and maintains the high-voltage transmission system to serve contractual loads, maintain reliable interconnections, and utilize excess capacity to provide transmission service to others; develops long-range marketing programs for maximum utilization of power from existing and proposed hydroelectric projects; and conducts and participates in the comprehensive planning of water-resource development in the Southwest.

For further information, contact the Southwestern Power Administration, P.O. Box 1619, Tulsa, OK 74101.

Western Area Power Administration

The Western Area Power Administration (WAPA) was established on December 21, 1977, pursuant to section 302 of the Department of Energy Organization Act (91 Stat. 578; 42 U.S.C. 7152). The Administration is responsible for the Federal electric power marketing and transmission functions in 15 central and western States, encompassing a 1.3 million square-mile geographic area. The Administration sells power to 532 customers, consisting of cooperatives, municipalities, public utility districts, private utilities, Federal and State agencies, and irrigation districts. The wholesale power customers, in turn, provide service to millions of retail consumers in the States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, and Wyoming.

The Western Area Power Administration is responsible for the operation and maintenance of 16,178 miles of transmission lines, 228 substations, and various appurtenant power facilities in the aforementioned geographic areas and also for planning, construction, and operation and maintenance of additional Federal transmission facilities that may be authorized in the future. Electric power marketed by Western is generated by the Bureau of Reclamation, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the International Boundary and Water Commission, which operates 47 hydropower generating plants in Western's service area. In addition, Western markets the United States entitlement from the Navajo coal-fired plant near Page, AZ. Western's current installed generating capacity is 8,321 megawatts.

In carrying out the Federal power marketing program, Western's organization consists of the Headquarters Office located in Golden, CO, and five Area Offices located in Billings, MT; Boulder City, NV; Loveland, CO; Sacramento, CA; and Salt Lake City, UT.

In addition, there are five District Offices and one power systems operations office.

For further information, contact the Western Area Power Administration, P.O. Box 3402, Golden, CO 80401.

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is the Cabinet-level department of the Federal executive branch most concerned with people and most involved with the Nation's human concerns. In one way or another—whether it is mailing out social security checks or making health services more widely available—HHS touches the lives of more Americans than any other Federal agency. It is literally a department of people serving people, from newborn infants to our most elderly citizens.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare was created on April 11, 1953. The Department was redesignated as the Department of Health and Human Services by the Department of Education Organization Act (93 Stat. 695; 20 U.S.C. 3508), approved October 17, 1979.

Office of the Secretary

The Secretary of HHS advises the President on health, welfare, and income security plans, policies, and programs of the Federal Government. The Secretary directs Department staff in carrying out the approved programs and activities of the Department and promotes general public understanding of the Department's goals, programs, and objectives. The Secretary administers these functions through the Office of the Secretary and the five Operating Divisions, which include: the Social Security Administration, the Health Care Financing Administration, the Office of Human Development Services, the Office of Community Services, and the Public Health Service.

The Under Secretary, the Assistant Secretaries, the General Counsel, the Inspector General, and other senior officials aid the Secretary with the overall management responsibilities of the Department.

Since the Secretary is accountable to the Congress and the public for the way the Department spends taxpayers' money, the Secretary and top staff spend a considerable amount of time testifying before committees of the Congress, making speeches before national organizations, and meeting with the press and the public to explain HHS actions. They also prepare special reports on national problems that are available to the public through the Department and the Government Printing Office. In addition, the Secretary submits to the President and the Congress periodic reports required by law that further explain how tax money was spent, progress was achieved, or social problems resolved.

Under Secretary The Under Secretary serves as Acting Secretary in the absence of the Secretary and performs on behalf of the Secretary such functions and duties as the Secretary may designate; coordinates regional and field activities; and coordinates Federal-State relations.

Inspector General The Office of the Inspector General is responsible for conducting and supervising audits, investigations, and inspections relating to programs and operations of the Department. The Office provides leadership and coordination for, and recommends policies and corrective actions concerning activities designed to promote economy and efficiency in the administration of, and prevent and detect fraud and abuse in the Department's programs and operations. The Office provides a means for keeping the Secretary and Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies relating to the administration of such programs and operations, and the necessity of corrective action.

Civil Rights The Office for Civil Rights is responsible for the administration and enforcement of departmental policies under title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 that prohibits discrimination with regard to race, color, or national origin in programs and activities receiving Federal financial assistance; sections 799A and 845 of the Comprehensive Health Manpower and Nurse Training Acts of 1971; section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973; the community services assurance under the Hill-Burton Act; the nondiscrimination provisions of the health care and related block grant statutes; and the Age Discrimination Act of 1975.

Consumer Affairs The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs advises the Secretary on consumer-related policy and programs and constitutes the staff of the Special Assistant to the President responsible for handling consumer matters; analyzes and coordinates implementation of all Federal activities in the area of consumer protection; and recommends ways in which governmental consumer programs can be made more effective.

Public Affairs The Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs serves as the Secretary's principal public affairs adviser; provides functional management of public affairs activities throughout the Department; reviews and approves all publications and audio visual material released throughout the Department; communicates on behalf of the Department with various segments of the public, special interest groups, news media, and other government agencies at all levels; and administers the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts.

Legislation The Assistant Secretary (Legislation) serves as principal adviser to the Secretary in the development and implementation of the Department's legislative program and maintains liaison with the Members and committees of Congress and their staffs.

Planning and Evaluation The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation coordinates Department activities in economic and social analysis, program analysis and planning, and evaluation activities; and ensures that Department policy and program planning appropriately reflects the results of these activities.

General Counsel The General Counsel furnishes legal advice to the Office of the Secretary and to the Operating and Staff Components of the Department.

Management and Budget The Assistant Secretary for Management and Budget provides advice and guidance to the Secretary on administrative and financial management, excluding personnel management, and provides for the direction and coordination of these activities throughout the Department on a day-to-day basis. The activities include overseeing the preparation of the departmental budget, maintenance of a Department-wide system for developing and administering financial operating plans, review and analysis of organizations and information systems, and policy development and regulations for grants and procurement management.

Personnel Administration The Assistant Secretary for Personnel Administration promotes effective personnel management and personnel administration in the Department. The Assistant Secretary advises and acts for the Secretary on personnel management and training matters, formulating policies and plans for broad programs under which the personnel and training functions will be carried out; maintains cognizance of such policies and programs; and represents the Department on personnel and training matters with the Office of Personnel Management, other Federal agencies, the Congress, and the public. The Assistant Secretary for Personnel Administration also advises the Secretary on and provides departmentwide leadership and guidance to equal employment opportunity programs and activities and oversees the establishment, staffing, and operation of departmental advisory committees.

Regional Offices The 10 Regional Directors of the Department of Health and Human Services are the Secretary's representatives in direct, official dealings with State and local government organizations. They provide a central focus in each region for departmental relations with Congress and promote general understanding of Department programs, policies, and objectives. They also advise the Secretary on the potential effects of decisions and provide administrative services and support to Department programs and activities in the regions.

Office of Human Development Services

The Office of Human Development Services (HDS) serves as the adviser to the Secretary and Under Secretary on human development services and provides leadership and direction to human services programs for the elderly, children and youth, families, Native Americans, persons living in rural areas, handicapped persons, and public assistance recipients; recommends to the Secretary actions and strategies that improve coordination of human services programs among HHS programs, other Federal agencies, State and local governments, and private sector organizations; directs and coordinates programs with the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment and Training; manages and provides leadership in planning and developing HDS programs; supervises the use of research and impact evaluation funds; promotes the development of simplified and coherent human services delivery systems; provides support and coordination for key advisory bodies; controls equal employment opportunity and civil rights policies and programs for HDS; and directs public affairs, regional operations, and correspondence and assignment tracking activities.

Office of the Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services provides executive direction, leadership, and guidance to all HDS headquarters and regional components; and serves as the Director of Equal Employment Opportunity for HDS.

Administration on Aging The Administration on Aging (AOA) is the principal agency designated to carry out the provisions of the Older Americans Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 218; 42 U.S.C. 3001), as amended. AOA advises the Secretary, HHS components, and other Federal departments and agencies on the characteristics and needs of older people and develops programs designed to promote their welfare; conducts training programs; and provides advice and assistance to promote the development of State-administered community-based systems of comprehensive social services for older people. AOA also serves as the primary agency within HDS on all issues concerning aging; advocates for the needs of the elderly in HDS program planning and policy development; develops standards, provides technical assistance, issues best practices guidelines, and initiates policy relative to services provided to older Americans funded by HDS.

For further information, contact the Acting Commissioner on Aging. Phone, 202–245–0556.

Administration for Children, Youth, and Families The Administration for Children, Youth, and Families (ACYF) advises the Secretary, through the Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services, on matters relating to children, youth, and families; serves as the principal adviser at the Federal level concerning such matters and is the focal point in the Department to support and encourage the sound development of children, youth, and families by planning, developing, and implementing a broad range of activities; administers State grant programs under titles IV–A, B, and E of the Social Security Act (49 Stat. 627; 42 U.S.C. 601), as amended; manages the adoption opportunities program; administers discretionary grant programs providing Head Start services and runaway youth facilities; administers provisions of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (88 Stat. 4; 42 U.S.C. 5101 et seq.); supports and encourages services that prevent or remedy the effects of abuse and/or neglect of children and youth; and manages the national clearinghouse on child abuse and neglect and administers the child abuse and neglect State grant programs.

Together with other units of HDS, the Administration develops and implements research, demonstration, and evaluation strategies for discretionary funding of activities designed to improve and enrich the lives of children and youth and to stengthen families; administers child welfare services training and child welfare services research demonstration programs authorized by title IV–B of the Social Security Act; administers the Runaway and Homeless Youth Act authorized by title III of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (91 Stat. 1048; 42 U.S.C. 5601 note); and manages initiatives that involve the private and voluntary sectors in the areas of children, youth, and families.

For further information, contact the Commissioner, Administration for Children, Youth, and Families. Phone, 202–755–7762.

Administration for Native Americans The Administration for Native Americans (ANA) represents the concerns of American Indians, Alaska Natives, and Native Hawaiians (hereafter referred to as Native Americans) and advises the Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services on their behalf. The Administration has primary responsibility for developing policy, legislative proposals, and guidance on matters involving the social and economic development and self-sufficiency of Native Americans; serves as departmental liaison with other Federal agencies on Native American affairs; administers a grant program to promote the social and economic development of Native Americans; and explores new program concepts and methods. In addition, the Administration ensures that information about departmental services and benefits and eligibility criteria is conveyed to Native Americans; fosters self-determination in Native Americans and their operation of Native American programs and enterprises; serves as the primary agency within HDS on all issues concerning Native Americans; advocates for the needs of Native Americans in HDS program planning and policy development; and develops standards, provides technical assistance, issues best practices guidelines, and initiates policy relative to HDS-funded services provided to Native Americans.

For further information, contact the Commissioner, Administration for Native Americans. Phone, 202–245–7776.

Administration on Developmental Disabilities The Administration on Developmental Disabilities (ADD) assists States to increase the provision of quality services to persons with developmental disabilities, through the development and implementation of a comprehensive State plan that makes optimal use of all existing resources for the provision of treatment, services, and habilitation in least restrictive environments, and protection of the rights of individuals with developmental disabilities. ADD administers formula grants programs to address these goals and oversees project grants that provide administrative and operations support to interdisciplinary training programs for specialized personnel, clinical services, and research program services for the developmentally disabled; administers grants for projects aimed at removing physical, mental, social, and environmental barriers encountered by developmentally disabled persons. ADD advises the Assistant Secretary for Human Development Services on the formulation, development, implementation, and review of legislation and policies affecting developmentally disabled persons; serves as the primary agency within HDS on all issues concerning the developmentally disabled; advocates for the needs of the handicapped in HDS program planning and policy development; develops standards, provides technical assistance, issues best practices guidelines, and initiates policy relative to HDS-funded services provided to developmentally disabled Americans.

For further information, contact the Commissioner, Administration on Developmental Disabilities. Phone, 202–245–2890.

Public Health Service

The Public Health Service (PHS) has its origin in an act of July 16, 1798 (ch. 77, 1 Stat. 605), authorizing marine hospitals for the care of American merchant seamen. Subsequent legislation has vastly broadened the scope of its activities.

The Public Health Service Act of July 1, 1944 (58 Stat. 682; 42 U.S.C. 201), consolidated and revised substantially all existing legislation relating to the Public Health Service. The basic Public Health Service legal responsibilities have been broadened and expanded many times since 1944. Major organizational transfers have included vital statistics (1946), health services for the American Indians and Alaska Natives (1955), the National Library of Medicine (1956), and the Food and Drug Administration (1968).

Other important functions added include expanding grants to States for health services, financial assistance to health professions educational institutions, and national health surveys; grants to State and local agencies for comprehensive health planning; and funds for research in improving the delivery of health services.

The mission of the Public Health Service is to promote the protection and advancement of the Nation's physical and mental health. This is accomplished by coordinating with the States to set and implement national health policy and pursue effective intergovernmental relations; generating and upholding cooperative international health-related agreements, policies, and programs; conducting medical and biomedical research; sponsoring and administering programs for the development of health resources, prevention and control of diseases, and alcohol and drug abuse; providing resources and expertise to the States and other public and private institutions in the planning, direction, and delivery of physical and mental health care services; and enforcing laws to assure the safety and efficacy of drugs and protection against impure and unsafe foods, cosmetics, medical devices, and radiation-producing projects.

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Health consists of general and special staff offices that support the Assistant Secretary for Health and the Surgeon General plan and direct the activities of the Public Health Service. The Office also consists of two major operating centers—the National Center for Health Statistics and the National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment.

National Center for Health Statistics The National Center for Health Statistics collects, analyzes, and disseminates health statistics on vital events and health activities to reflect the health status of people, health needs, and health resources; stimulates and conducts basic and applied research in health data systems and statistical methodology; provides national leadership in health statistics and epidemiology; and fosters research, consultation, and training programs in international statistical activities.

For further information, call 301–436–8500.

National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment The National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment plans, develops, and administers a program of intramural and extramural health services research, evaluations, research training, and related grant and contract supported research on the financing, organization, quality, and utilization of health services. The Center disseminates research findings and provides technical assistance to other Federal programs and health service providers.

For further information, call 301–443–5650.

Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration

The mission of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration (ADAMHA) is to provide a national focus for the Federal effort to increase knowledge and promote effective strategies to deal with health problems and issues associated with the use and abuse of alcohol and drugs and with mental illness and mental health.

In carrying out these responsibilities, the Administration:

Conducts and supports research on the biological, psychological, behavioral, and epidemiological aspects of alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health and illness;

Conducts and supports research on the delivery of alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health treatment and prevention services;

Supports the training of scientists to conduct research in the alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health fields;

Gathers and analyzes data about the extent of alcohol, drug abuse, and mental health problems and the national response to these needs in terms of planning, establishing, and evaluating alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health programs;

Collaborates with, provides assistance to, and encourages other Federal agencies, national, foreign, State, and local organizations, hospitals, and voluntary groups to facilitate and expand programs for the prevention and treatment of alcohol, drug abuse, and mental health problems; and Provides information on alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health to the public and to the scientific community.

For further information, call 301–443–3875.

Major Components

National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism The Institute provides a national focus for the Federal effort to increase knowledge and promote effective strategies to deal with health problems and issues associated with alcohol abuse and alcoholism. In carrying out these responsibilities, the Institute conducts and supports research on alcohol-related disorders in its own laboratories and through extramural projects; supports epidemiological studies and national and community surveys to assess the risks for alcohol abuse among various population groups; plans, directs, supports, and evaluates research to identify new and improved alcoholism prevention, intervention, and treatment methods and techniques for application in the Nation's health care system; supports training and development of scientists for participation in alcohol research programs and activities; collaborates with other research institutes and Federal programs relevant to alcohol abuse and alcoholism and provides coordination of Federal alcohol abuse and alcoholism research activities; serves as a national resource for the collection, analysis, and dissemination of scientific findings and improved methods of alcoholism prevention and treatment services; maintains continuing relationships with institutions and professional associations and with international, national, State, and local officials, and voluntary agencies and organizations engaged in alcohol-related work; conducts policy studies and activities that have broad implications for alcoholism treatment, prevention, and rehabilitation activities; performs data collections and analyses, and provides technical assistance/technology transfer to State and local governments and community and voluntary organizations in the areas of policy development, program assessment, establishment of treatment standards, accreditation, and resource utilization; and supports public education activities to inform the public of the risks and consequences associated with alcohol abuse and alcoholism.

For further information, call 301–443–4373.

National Institute on Drug Abuse The Institute provides a national focus for the Federal effort to increase knowledge and promote effective strategies to deal with health problems and issues associated with drug abuse. In carrying out these responsibilities, the Institute conducts and supports research on the biological, psychological, psychosocial, and epidemiological aspects of narcotic addiction and drug abuse; supports research training of individuals and institutions who are training individuals in the biological and psychological sciences and epidemiological aspects of narcotic addiction and drug abuse to enable them to pursue careers in research; collaborates with and provides technical assistance to State drug abuse authorities, and encourages State and community efforts in planning, establishing, maintaining, coordinating, and evaluating more effective narcotic addiction and drug abuse programs; collaborates with and encourages other Federal agencies, national, foreign, State and local organizations, hospitals, and volunteer groups to enable them to facilitate and extend programs for the prevention of narcotic addiction and drug abuse, and for the care, treatment, and rehabilitation of drug abusers; and carries out administrative and financial management, policy and program development, planning and evaluation, and public information functions that are required to implement such programs.

For further information, call 301–443–6487.

National Institute of Mental Health The Institute provides a national focus for the Federal effort to increase knowledge and advance effective strategies to deal with health problems and issues in the promotion of mental health and the prevention and treatment of mental illness. In carrying out these responsibilities, the Institute conducts and supports research and research training on the biological, psychological, behavioral, epidemiological, and social science aspects of mental health and illness; conducts and supports research on the development and improvement of mental health services and prevention programs and on their administration and financing; collaborates with and provides technical assistance and data to State and local authorities to assist them in planning, establishing, maintaining, coordinating, and evaluating more effective mental health programs; collaborates with, provides assistance to, and encourages other Federal agencies and national, foreign, State, and local organizations, hospitals, professional associations, and volunteer groups to facilitate and extend programs to promote mental health and prevent mental illness and to provide for the care, treatment, and rehabilitation of mentally ill persons; collects, analyzes, and disseminates scientific findings and data on the incidence, prevalence, and resources for the treatment of mental illness; carries out administrative and financial management, policy development, planning and evaluation, and public information functions that are required to implement such programs; and exercises administrative and policy oversight for the operation of Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

For further information, call 301–443–3877.

Centers for Disease Control

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC), established as an operating health agency within the Public Health Service by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare on July 1, 1973, is the Federal agency charged with protecting the public health of the Nation by providing leadership and direction in the prevention and control of diseases and other preventable conditions and responding to public health emergencies. It is composed of nine major operating components: Epidemiology Program Office, International Health Program Office, Laboratory Program Office, Center for Prevention Services, Center for Environmental Health, National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, Center for Health Promotion and Education Center for Professional Development and Training, and Center for Infectious Diseases.

CDC administers national programs for the prevention and control of communicable and vector-borne diseases and other preventable conditions. CDC develops and implements programs to deal with environmental health problems, including responding to environmental, chemical, and radiation emergencies. CDC directs and enforces foreign quarantine activities and regulations; provides consultation and assistance in upgrading the performance of public health and clinical laboratories; and participates in a nationwide program of research, information, and education in the field of smoking and health.

To ensure safe and healthful working condition for all working people, occupational safety and health standards are developed, and research and other activities are carried out, through the CDC's National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health.

CDC also provides consultation to other nations in the control of preventable diseases, and participates with national and international agencies in the eradication or control of communicable diseases and other preventable conditions.

For further information, call 404–329–3286.

Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry

The Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) was established as an operating agency within the Public Health Service by the Secretary of Health and Human Services on April 19, 1983. The mission of ATSDR is to carry out the health-related responsibilities of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA), (94 Stat. 2767; 42 U.S.C. 9601), and the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), (90 Stat. 2795; 42 U.S.C. 6901), provisions of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, relating only to CERCLA or RCRA sites and substances found at those sites. ATSDR provides leadership and direction to programs and activities designed to protect both the public health and worker safety and health from exposure and/or the adverse health effects of hazardous substances in CERCLA storage sites or released in fires, explosions, or transportation accidents.

To carry out this mission, ATSDR, in cooperation with States and other Federal and local official agencies, collects, maintains, analyzes, and disseminates information relating to serious diseases and mortality and information relating to human exposure to toxic or hazardous substances; establishes appropriate registries necessary for long-term followup or specific scientific studies; establishes and maintains a complete listing of areas closed to the public or otherwise restricted in use because of toxic substance contamination; assists, consults, and coordinates with private or public health care providers in the provision of medical care and testing of exposed individuals; assists the Environmental Protection Agency in identifying hazardous waste substances to be regulated; develops scientific and technical procedures for evaluating public health risks from hazardous substance incidents and for developing recommendations to protect the public health; provides medical, epidemiological, technical, and administrative advice and consultation to protect public health and worker safety and health in instances of exposure or potential exposure to hazardous substances, and arranges for program support to ensure adequate response to public health emergencies.

Food and Drug Administration

The name "Food and Drug Administration" was first provided by the Agriculture Appropriation Act of 1931, approved May 27, 1930 (46 Stat. 392), although similar law enforcement functions had been in existence under different organizational titles since January 1, 1907, when the Food and Drug Act of 1906 (34 Stat. 768; 21 U.S.C. 1–15) became effective.

The Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) activities are directed toward protecting the health of the Nation against impure and unsafe foods, drugs and cosmetics, and other potential hazards.

Center for Drugs and Biologics The Center for Drugs and Biologics develops FDA policy with regard to the safety, effectiveness, and labeling of all drugs and biologicals for human use; plans and conducts research related to the development, manufacture, testing, and use of both new and old biological products to develop a scientific base for establishing standards designed to ensure the continued safety, purity, potency, and efficacy of biological products; inspects manufacturers' facilities for compliance with standards, tests products submitted for release, establishes written and physical standards, and approves licensing of manufacturers to produce biological products; reviews and evaluates new drug applications and notices of claimed investigational exemption for new drugs; develops and implements standards for the safety and effectiveness of all over-the-counter drugs; monitors the quality of marketed drugs and biologicals through product testing, surveillance, and compliance programs; develops and promulgates guidelines on current Good Manufacturing Practices for use by the biological and drug industry; develops and disseminates information and educational material dealing with biologicals and drugs to the medical community and the public in coordination with the Office of the Commissioner; conducts research and develops scientific standards on the composition, quality, safety, and efficacy of human drugs; collects and evaluates information on the effects and use trends of biologicals and marketed drugs; monitors prescription drug advertising and promotional labeling to assure their accuracy and integrity; analyzes data on accidental poisonings; and disseminates toxicity and treatment information on household products and medicines.

For further information, call 301–443–2894.

Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition The Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition conducts research and develops standards on the composition, quality, nutrition, and safety of food and food additives, colors, and cosmetics; conducts research designed to improve the detection, prevention, and control of contamination that may be responsible for illness or injury conveyed by foods, colors, and cosmetics; coordinates and evaluates FDA's surveillance and compliance programs relating to foods, colors, and cosmetics; reviews industry petitions and develops regulations for food standards to permit the safe use of color additives and food additives; collects and interprets data on nutrition, food additives, and environmental factors affecting the total chemical insult posed by food additives; and maintains a nutritional data bank.

For further information, call 202–245–8850.

Center for Veterinary Medicine The Center for Veterinary Medicine develops and conducts programs with respect to the safety and efficacy of veterinary preparations and devices; evaluates proposed use of veterinary preparations for animal safety and efficacy; and evaluates FDA's surveillance and compliance programs relating to veterinary drugs and other veterinary medical matters.

For further information, call 301-443-3450.

Center for Devices and Radiological Health The Center for Devices and Radiological Health develops and carries out a national program designed to control unnecessary exposure of humans to, and ensure the safe and efficacious use of, potentially hazardous ionizing and nonionizing radiation; develops policy and priorities regarding FDA programs relating to the safety, effectiveness, and labeling of medical devices for human use; conducts an electronic product radiation control program, including the development and administration of performance standards; develops, plans, and evaluates surveillance and compliance programs for medical devices and radiation exposure; plans, conducts, and supports research and testing relating to medical devices and to the health effects of radiation exposure; reviews and evaluates medical devices premarket approval applications, product development protocols, and exemption requests for investigational devices; develops, promulgates, and enforces performance standards for appropriate categories of medical devices and Good Manufacturing Practice (GMP) regulations for manufacturers; provides technical and other nonfinancial assistance to small manufacturers of medical devices; develops regulations, standards, and criteria and recommends changes in FDA legislative authority necessary to protect the public health; provides scientific and technical support to other components within FDA and other agencies on matters relating to radiological health and medical devices; and maintains appropriate liaison with other Federal, State, and international agencies, with industry, and with consumer and professional organizations.

For further information, call 301-443-4690 or 301-427-7163.

Toxicological Research The National Center for Toxicological Research conducts research programs to study the biological effects of potentially toxic chemical substances found in the environment, emphasizing the determination of the health effects resulting from long-term, low-level exposure to chemical toxicants and the basic biological processes for chemical toxicants in animal organisms; develops improved methodologies and test protocols for evaluating the safety of chemical toxicants and the data that will facilitate the extrapolation of toxicological data from laboratory animals to man; and develops Center programs as a natural resource under the National Toxicology Program.

For further information, call 301-541-4000.

Regional Operations Field operations for the enforcement of the laws under the jurisdiction of FDA are carried out by 10 Regional Field Offices located in the cities of the Department's Regional Offices, through 22 District Offices, 2 Station Offices, and 128 Resident Inspection Posts located throughout the United States and Puerto Rico.

For further information, call 301-443-1594; and for a listing of FDA Consumer Affairs Offices, see page 294.

Health Resources and Services Administration

The mission of the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) is to provide leadership and direction to programs and activities designed to improve the health services for all people of the United States and to develop health care and maintenance systems that are adequately financed, comprehensive, interrelated, and responsive to the needs of individuals and families in all levels of society. To accomplish this goal, the Administration provides leadership and support efforts designed to integrate health services delivery programs with public and private health financing programs, including the health maintenance organizations; administers the health services block grants, categorical grants, and formula grant-supported programs; provides or arranges for personal health services, including both hospital and out-patient care to designated beneficiaries; administers programs to improve the utilization of health resources through health planning; provides technical assistance for modernizing or replacing health care facilities; provides leadership to improve the education, training distribution, supply, use, and quality of the Nation's health personnel; and provides advice and support to the Assistant Secretary for Health in the formulation of health policies.

For further information, contact the Associate Administrator for Communications. Phone, 301-443-2086.

Major Components

Bureau of Health Care Delivery and Assistance The Bureau serves as a national focus for efforts to ensure the availability and delivery of health care services in medically underserved areas and to special services populations. To accomplish this goal, the Bureau assists States through program and clinical efforts to provide health care to underserved populations through the Primary Health Care Block Grant and the Maternal and Child Health Services Block Grant, which provides a principal means of support in maintaining and improving the health of mothers and children; provides, through project grants to State, local, voluntary, public, and private entities, funds to help them meet the health needs of special populations such as migrants and victims of black lung disease; provides leadership and direction for the Bureau of Prisons Medical Program, the National Hansen's Disease Program, and support for Health Unit No. 1, the Federal Employees Occupational Health Program, CHAMPUS Program; administers a comprehensive health program for designated PHS beneficiaries including active duty members of the Coast Guard, PHS, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration; and administers the National Health Service Corps Program, which ensures accessibility of health care in underserved areas.

For further information, contact the Director, Office of Program Support. Phone, 202-443-2330.

Bureau of Health Professions The Bureau provides national leadership in coordinating, evaluating, and supporting the development and utilization of the Nation's health personnel. The Bureau assesses the Nation's health personnel supply and requirements and forecasts supply and requirements for future time periods under a variety of health resources utilization assumptions; collects and analyzes data and disseminates information on the characteristics and capacities of the Nation's health personnel production systems; proposes new or modifications of existing departmental legislation, policies, and programs related to health personnel development and utilization; develops, tests, and demonstrates new and improved approaches to the development and utilization of health personnel within various patterns of health care delivery and financing systems; provides financial support to institutions and individuals for health professions education programs; administers Federal programs for targeted health personnel development and utilization; provides leadership for promoting equity in access to health services and health careers for the disadvantaged; provides technical assistance, consultation, and special financial assistance to national, State, and local agencies, organizations, and institutions for the development, production, utilization, and evaluation of health personnel; coordinates with the programs of other agencies within PHS, the Department, and in other Federal departments and agencies concerned with health personnel development and health care services; provides liaison and coordinates with non-Federal organizations and agencies concerned with health personnel development and utilization; and, in coordination with the Office of the Administrator, HRSA, serves as a focus for technical assistance activities in the international aspects of health personnel development, including the conduct of special international projects relevant to domestic health personnel problems.

For further information, contact the Information Officer. Phone, 301–443–2060.

Bureau of Resources Development The Bureau develops, administers, directs, coordinates, monitors, and supports Federal policy and programs pertaining to health planning and resources allocation for health care systems and organizations, including financial, capital, organizational, and physical matters. Specifically, the Bureau administers grant, loan, loan guarantee, and interest subsidy programs under titles VI and XVI of the Public Health Service Act, as amended, relating to the construction, modernization, conversion, or closure of health and health care organizations; administers grant programs for the construction of health professions teaching facilities and nurse training facilities under titles VII and VIII of the PHS Act; and administers PHS's responsibility for facility construction, renovation, and modification as prescribed in interagency memoranda of agreement with other Federal departments.

The Bureau also plans, directs, administers, coordinates, and evaluates national health planning and resources development program activities conducted under title XV of the PHS Act and section 1640 of the act, as amended; promotes reduction of costs associated with facility design, construction, modernization, and replacement, and nonmedical operations (e.g., energy and maintenance); serves as adviser to, and coordinates activities with other administration organizational elements, other Federal organizations within and outside the Department, State and local entities, and professional and scientific organizations on matters pertaining to the planning and development of health delivery systems; develops, promotes, and directs efforts to improve the management, operational effectiveness, and efficiency of health care systems, organizations, and facilities; provides technical assistance to planning organizations, and health care delivery systems and facilities in a wide variety of specific technical and technological systems; ensures that Federal policies with respect to planning, facility financing and distribution, and replacement and construction are carried out and administered in a consistent manner; coordinates its programs and maintains liaison with other PHS components and programs, the Department, and other Federal agencies and departments, as appropriate; and maintains liaison and coordinates with non-Federal public and private entities as necessary for the accomplishment of its missions and objectives.

For further information, contact the Information Officer. Phone, 202–443–3376.

Indian Health Service The Indian Health Service (IHS) assures a comprehensive health services delivery system for American Indians and Alaska Natives with sufficient options to provide for maximum tribal involvement in meeting their health needs. The goal of IHS is to raise the health level of the Indian and Alaska Native people to the highest possible level.

To carry out its mission and to attain its goal, IHS assists Indian tribes in developing their capacity to staff and manage their health programs through activities including health and management training, technical assistance, and human resource development; facilitates and assists Indian tribes in coordinating health planning, in obtaining and utilizing health resources available through Federal, State, and local programs in operation of comprehensive health programs and in health program evaluation; provides comprehensive health care services, including hospital and ambulatory medical care, preventive and rehabilitative services, and development of community sanitation facilities; and serves as the principal Federal advocate for Indians in the health field to assure comprehensive health services for American Indians and Alaska Natives.

For further information, contact the Public Information Officer. Phone, 202–443–1104.

National Institutes of Health

The mission of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) is to improve the health of the American people. To carry out this mission, NIH conducts and supports biomedical research into the causes, prevention, and cure of diseases; supports research training and the development of research resources; and makes use of modern methods to communicate biomedical information.

Major Components

National Cancer Institute (NCI) Research on cancer is a high priority program as a result of the National Cancer Act, which made the conquest of cancer a national goal. The Institute developed a National Cancer Program to expand existing scientific knowledge on cancer cause and prevention as well as on the diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation of cancer patients.

Research activities conducted in the Institute's laboratories or supported through grants or contracts include many investigative approaches to cancer, including chemistry, biochemistry, biology, molecular biology, immunology, radiation physics, experimental chemotherapy, epidemiology, biometry, radiotherapy, and pharmacology. Cancer research facilities are constructed with NCI support, and training is provided under university based programs. The Institute, through its cancer control element, applies research findings as rapidly as possible in preventing and controlling human cancer.

For further information, call 301–496–5737.

National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute The Institute provides leadership for a national program in diseases of the heart, blood vessels, blood, and lungs, and in the use of blood and the management of blood resources.

It conducts studies and research into the clinical use of blood and all aspects of the management of blood resources, and supports training of manpower in fundamental science and clinical disciplines for participation in basic and clinical research programs relating to heart, blood vessel, blood, and lung diseases.

It coordinates with other research institutes and with all Federal agency programs relating to the above diseases, including programs in hypertension, stroke, respiratory distress, and sickle cell anemia.

It plans, conducts, fosters, and supports an integrated and coordinated program of research, investigations, clinical trials and demonstrations relating to the causes, prevention, methods of diagnosis and treatment (including emergency medical treatment) of heart, blood vessel, lung, and blood diseases through research performed in its own laboratories and through contracts and research grants to scientific institutions and to individual scientists.

The Institute also conducts educational activities, including the collection and dissemination of educational materials about these diseases, with emphasis on the prevention thereof, for health professionals and the lay public, and maintains continuing relationships with institutions and professional associations and with international, national, and State and local officials, and voluntary agencies and organizations working in these areas.

For further information, call 301–496–2411.

National Library of Medicine The National Library of Medicine (NLM) serves as the Nation's chief medical information source. NLM is authorized to provide medical library services and on-line bibliographic searching capabilities, such as MEDLINE, TOXLINE, and others, to public and private agencies and organizations, institutions, and individuals. It is responsible for the development and management of a Biomedical Communications Network, applying advanced technology to the improvement of biomedical communications, and operates a computer-based toxicology information system for the scientific community, industry, and other Federal agencies. In addition, the Library acquires and makes available for distribution audiovisual instructional material, and develops prototype audiovisual communication programs for the health educational community. Through grants and contracts, the Library administers programs of assistance to the Nation's medical libraries that include support of a Regional Medical Library network, research in the field of medical library science, establishment and improvement of the basic library resources, and supporting biomedical scientific publications of a nonprofit nature.

For further information, call 301–496–6491.

National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases The Institute conducts, fosters, and supports basic and clinical research into the causes, prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of the various metabolic and digestive diseases. It covers the broad areas of diabetes, blood, endocrine, and metabolic diseases; digestive diseases and nutrition; and kidney and urologic diseases, joined with the Artificial Kidney/Chronic Uremia Program, through research performed in its own laboratories and clinics, research grants, individual and institutional research training awards, applied research and development programs through the contract mechanisms, field epidemiologic and clinical investigation studies on selected populations in the United States, and collection and dissemination of information on Institute programs.

For further information, call 301–496–5741.

National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases The Institute conducts and supports broadly based research and research training on the causes, characteristics, prevention, control, and treatment of a wide variety of diseases believed to be attributable to infectious agents, including bacteria, viruses, and parasites, to allergies, or to other deficiencies or disorders in the responses of the body's immune mechanisms. Among areas of special emphasis are: asthma and allergic disease, clinical immunology, including organ transplantation, venereal diseases, hepatitis, influenza and other viral respiratory infections, disease control measures, research and development, antiviral substances, and hospital-associated infections.

For further information, call 301–496–1521.

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development The Institute conducts and supports biomedical and behavioral research on child health and maternal health; on problems of human development, with special reference to mental retardation; and on family structure, the dynamics of human population, and the reproductive process. Information related to these research findings is disseminated to other researchers, medical practitioners, and the general public to improve the health of children and their families.

For further information, call 301–496–3454.

National Institute of Dental Research The Institute supports and conducts clinical and laboratory research directed toward the ultimate eradication of tooth decay and of a broad array of oral-facial disorders.

For further information, call 301–496–6621.

National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences The Institute, located in Research Triangle Park, N.C., conducts and supports fundamental research concerned with defining, measuring, and understanding the effects of chemical, biological, and physical factors in the environment on the health and well-being of man.

For further information, call 919–541–3212 or (FTS) 8–629–3211.

National Institute of General Medical Sciences The emphasis of the Institute's programs for support of research and research training is basic biomedical science. The activities range from cell biology to genetics to pharmacology and systemic response to trauma and anesthesia.

For further information, call 301–496–7714.

National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke The Institute conducts and supports fundamental and applied research on human neurological and communicative disorders such as Parkinson's disease, epilepsy, multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, head and spinal cord injuries, stroke, deafness, disorders of speech, and language development problems. The Institute also conducts and supports research on the development and function of the normal brain and nervous system in order to better understand normal processes relating to disease states.

For further information, call 301–496–5751.

National Eye Institute The Institute conducts and supports fundamental studies on the eye and visual system, and on the causes, prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of visual disorders.

For further information, call 301–496–7425.

National Institute on Aging The Institute conducts and supports biomedical and behavioral research to increase the knowledge of the aging process and associated physical, psychological, and social factors, resulting from advanced age. Incontinence, menopause, susceptibility to diseases, and memory loss are among the areas of special concern.

For further information, call 301–496–5345.

National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases The Institute conducts and supports fundamental research in the major disease categories of arthritis and musculoskeletal and skin diseases through: research performed in its own laboratories and clinics, epidemiologic studies, research contracts and grants, and cooperative agreements to scientific institutions and to individuals. It supports training of manpower in fundamental sciences and clinical disciplines, conducts educational activities, including the collection and dissemination of health educational materials on these diseases, and coordinates with the other research institutes and with all Federal health programs relevant activities in the categorical diseases.

For further information, call 301–496–4353.

Clinical Center The Center is designed to bring scientists working in the Center's laboratories into close proximity with clinicians caring for patients, so that they may collaborate on problems of mutual concern. The research institutes select patients, referred to NIH by physicians throughout the United States and overseas, for clinical studies of specific diseases and disorders. A certain percent of the patients are "normal volunteers," healthy persons who provide an index of normal body functions against which to measure the abnormal. Normal volunteers come under varied sponsorship, such as colleges, civic groups, and religious organizations.

For further information, call 301–496–3227.

Fogarty International Center The Center promotes discussion, study, and research on the development of science internationally as it relates to health and administers a number of international programs for advanced study in the health sciences.

For further information, call 301–496–4625.

Division of Computer Research and Technology The Division conducts an integrated research, developmental, and service program in computer-related physical and life sciences in support of NIH biomedical research programs.

For further information, call 301–496–5206.

Division of Research Resources The Division supports general clinical research centers, biotechnology resources, and regional primate research centers; increases and improves laboratory animal facilities and resources; makes awards for minority biomedical support; and provides general research support to institutions throughout the United States.

For further information, call 301–496–5605.

Division of Research Services The Division conducts a centralized program of scientific, engineering, and technical services in support of NIH activities; furnishes services and specialized assistance in biomedical engineering and instrumentation design and development, research animal production, care, procurement, and animal disease identification and control. The Division assists in the following areas: biomedical library and translation services, environmental health and safety programs, and medical arts and photography services.

For further information, call 301–496–6235.

Division of Research Grants The Division provides staff support to the Office of the Director, NIH, in the formulation of grant and award policies and procedures, central receipt of all PHS applications for research and research training support, and makes initial referral to PHS components.

For further information, call 301–496–7881.

Health Care Financing Administration

[For the Health Care Financing Administration statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Nov. 19, 1981, 46 FR 56911]

The Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) was established by the Secretary's reorganization of March 8, 1977, as a principal operating component of the Department.

HCFA places under one Administration the oversight of the Medicare and Medicaid Programs and related Federal medical care quality control staffs. The following major programs are directed by HCFA.

Medicare The Medicare Program is a Federal health insurance program for persons over 65 years of age and certain disabled persons. It is funded through social security contributions, premiums, and general revenue. HCFA develops and implements policies, procedures, and guidance related to program recipients, the providers of services such as hospitals, nursing homes, physicians, and the contractors who process claims. HCFA also coordinates with the States to develop departmental programs, activities, and organizations that are closely related to the Medicare Program.

Medicaid The Medicaid Program, through grants to States, provides medical services to the needy and the medically needy. HCFA is responsible for working with the States to develop approaches toward meeting the needs of those who cannot afford adequate medical care.

The Medicare/Medicaid Programs include a quality assurance focal point to carry out the quality assurance provisions of the Medicare and Medicaid Programs; the development and implementation of health and safety standards for providers of care in Federal health programs; and the implementation of the End Stage Renal Disease (ESRD) Program and the Professional Standards Review (PRO) provisions.

For further information, contact the Administrator, Health Care Financing Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, 200 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20201. Phone, 301–594–3075.

Social Security Administration

[For the Social Security Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 20, Part 422]

The Social Security Administration (SSA) was established and its predecessor, the Social Security Board, was abolished by Federal Security Agency Reorganization Plan II of 1946, effective July 16, 1946.

By Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1953, effective April 11, 1953, the Social Security Administration was transferred from the Federal Security Agency to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Department was redesignated as the Department of Health and Human Services by the Department of Education Organization Act (93 Stat. 695; 20 U.S.C. 3508), approved October 17, 1979.

The Office of the Commissioner of Social Security is directly responsible to the Secretary of Health and Human Services for all programs administered by SSA and provides executive direction and support to SSA.

The Social Security Administration, under the direction of the Commissioner of Social Security, administers a national program of contributory social insurance whereby employees, employers, and the self-employed pay contributions that are pooled in special trust funds. When earnings stop or are reduced because the worker retires, dies, or becomes disabled, monthly cash benefits are paid to partially replace part of the earnings the family has lost.

Part of the contributions go into a separate hospital insurance trust fund, so that when workers and their dependents become 65 years old they will have help with their hospital bills. They may also elect to receive help with doctor bills and other medical expenses by paying a percentage of supplementary medical insurance premiums, while the Federal Government pays the remainder. Together, these two programs are often referred to as "Medicare." Under certain conditions, Medicare protection also is provided to people who are receiving social security or railroad retirement monthly benefits based on a disability. The responsibility for the administration of the Medicare Program has been transferred to the Health Care Financing Administration. By agreement with the Department of Labor, SSA is also involved in certain aspects of the administration of the black lung benefits provisions of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended (83 Stat. 793; 30 U.S.C. 901).

Principal SSA programs include the Old Age Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI) Program, which provides monthly benefits to retired and disabled workers, their spouses and children, and to survivors of insured workers.

Effective January 1, 1974, SSA undertook administration of the supplemental security income (SSI) program for the aged, blind, and disabled. The basic Federal SSI payment program is financed out of general revenue, rather than a special trust fund. Some States, choosing to provide payments to supplement SSI benefits, have agreements with SSA under which SSA administers these supplemental payments for the States.

In addition, SSA, through a nationwide field organization of 10 regional offices, 6 program service centers, and over 1,300 local offices, guides and directs all aspects of the cash benefit program operations of SSA; and directs the activities of those offices responsible for various program operations, including retirement, survivors, and disability insurance, and supplemental security income.

The Social Security Administration also provides administrative direction to a national organization of administrative law judges, who conduct independent hearings and decide appealed determinations involving the benefit provisions of SSA programs. SSA, through its Appeals Council, reviews such appealed determinations and renders the Secretary's final decision.

Social Security Administration operations are decentralized to provide appropriate services at the local level. The United States is divided into 10 regions, each headed by a Regional Commissioner (RC). The Regional Commissioner is the principal SSA representative at the regional level, responsible for effective SSA contact with HHS, other Federal agencies, State disability determination services, and State welfare agencies. Regional Commissioners implement national operational and management plans for providing SSA services directly to the public. Regional Commissioners coordinate SSA's regional operations so that they are effective and consistent with national and regional requirements, as well as systems and policy directives.

Each region contains, under the overall direction of the RC, a network of district offices, branch offices, and teleservice centers, which serve as the contact between SSA and the public. These installations have responsibility for informing people of the purposes and provisions of programs administered by SSA and their rights and responsibilities thereunder; assisting with claims filed for retirement, survivors health or disability insurance benefits, black lung benefits, or supplemental security income; developing and adjudicating claims; assisting certain beneficiaries in claiming reimbursement for medical expenses; conducting development of cases involving earnings records, coverage, and fraud-related questions; making rehabilitation service referrals; and assisting claimants in filing appeals on SSA determinations of benefit entitlement or amount.

For further information, contact the Office of Field Operations, Social Security Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, 6401 Security Boulevard, Baltimore, MD 21235. Phone, 301-594-2520.

Family Support Administration

[For the Family Support Administration statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Apr. 4, 1986, 51 FR 11641]

The Family Support Administration (FSA) serves as the adviser to the Secretary and Under Secretary on efforts to serve America's children and families, especially low-income families; provides leadership and direction to family support programs; recommends to the Secretary actions and strategies that improve coordination of family support programs among: HHS programs; other Federal agencies State and local governments, and private-sector organizations; directs and coordinates programs with the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment and Training, who together form the Work Incentive Program (WIN) National Coordinating Committe (NCC) to administer WIN; manages and provides leadership and planning and developing FSA programs; and supervises the use of research and evaluation funds and controls equal employment opportunity programs for FSA.

Office of the Administrator for the Family Support Administration The Office of the Administrator for the Family Support Administration provides executive direction, leadership, and guidance to all FSA headquarters components; jointly administers the WIN Program nationwide; and is the Director of the Office of Child Support Enforcement.

Office of Family Assistance The Office of Family Assistance is the principal agency designated to carry out the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) Program (title IV-A of the Social Security Act) (49 Stat. 627; 42 U.S.C. 601), a Federal-State program that helps needy families in which there are children. AFDC subsidizes children who are deprived of the financial support of one of their parents due to death, disability, absence from the home, or, in some States, unemployment. The assistance payment programs are State and local programs administered by State welfare agencies under individual plans developed by each State in conformity with Federal requirements and regulations. The Office of Family Assistance also carries out the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (IHEAP), which provides assistance to low-income households in meeting the costs of home energy. The program provides funds through block grants to States, Indian tribes, Puerto Rico, and the territories for their use in programs tailored to meet the unique requirements of their jurisdictions.

For further information, contact the Office of Family Assistance, Family Support Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, 2100 Second Street, SW., Washington, DC 20024. Phone, 202–245–2000.

Office of Child Support Enforcement The Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE) was established pursuant to the act of January 4, 1975 (88 Stat. 2351; 42 U.S.C. 651). The mission of the Office of Child Support Enforcement is to provide leadership in the planning, development, management, and coordination of the Department's Child Support Enforcement programs and activities authorized and directed by title IV-D of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 651), as amended, and other pertinent legislation. The general purpose of this legislation and the Child Support Enforcement programs is to require States to enforce support obligations owed by absent parents to their children by: locating absent parents, establishing paternity when necessary, and obtaining child support.

For further information, contact the Child Support Information Officer, Office of Child Support Enforcement, Family Support Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, 6110 Executive Boulevard, Rockville, MD 20852. Phone, 301–443–4442.

Office of Community Services The Office of Community Services was established within the Department of Health and Human Services by section 676 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (95 Stat. 516; 42 U.S.C. 9905).

The Office of Community Services: administers the Community Services block grant and discretionary grant programs established by sections 672 (95 Stat. 511; 42 U.S.C. 9901) and section 681 (95 Stat. 518; 42 U.S.C. 9910) of the act; administers the Community Services transition project grants authorized by section 682 (95 Stat. 518; 42 U.S.C. 9911) for implementation during fiscal year 1982 at the discretion of State governments not electing to administer Community Services block grants in FY 1982; and manages the programmatic closeout functions related to funds awarded by the Community Services Admninistration (CSA) in FY 1981 and prior years. These closeout functions are among the functions assigned to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and were subsequently reassigned to the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

For further information, contact the Director, Office of Community Services, Family Support Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, 200 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20201. Phone, 202–475–0373.

Office of Refugee Resettlement The Office of Refugee Resettlement administers the Refugee Assistance Program, which is designed to assimilate refugees and Cuban and Haitian entrants into American society as quickly and effectively as possible (title IV of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1521) and section 501 of the Refugee Education Assistance Act of 1980 (8 U.S.C. 1522 note). The Refugee Assistance Program provides a comprehensive program of cash and medical assistance and social services for refugees.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is the principal Federal agency responsible for programs concerned with housing needs, fair housing opportunities, and improving and developing the Nation's communities.

To carry out its overall purpose of assisting the sound development of our communities, HUD administers mortgage insurance programs that help families to become homeowners; facilitates the construction and rehabilitation of rental units; rental subsidy programs for lower income families who otherwise could not afford decent housing; programs to combat housing discrimination and to affirmatively further fair housing; and programs that aid community and neighborhood preservation and development. HUD also administers programs to help protect the homebuyer in the marketplace and encourages the housing industry to provide not only housing but also a suitable living environment.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development was created to administer the principal programs that provide assistance for housing and for the development of the Nation's communities; to assist the President in achieving maximum coordination of the various Federal activities that have a major effect upon community preservation and development; to encourage the solution of problems of housing and community development through States and localities; to encourage the maximum contributions that may be made by vigorous private homebuilding and mortgage lending industries, both primary and secondary, to housing, community development, and the national economy; and to provide for full and appropriate consideration, at the national level, of the needs and interests of the Nation's communities and of the people who live and work in them.

HUD was established by the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act. The act was approved on September 9, 1965, effective November 9, 1965 (79 Stat. 667; 42 U.S.C. 3531-3537).

Office of the Secretary

Secretary The Department is administered under the supervision and direction of the Secretary, who is responsible for the administration of all programs, functions, and authorities of the Department, including the secondary mortgage market operations of the Government National Mortgage Association. The Secretary advises the President on Federal policy, programs, and activities relating to housing and community development. The Secretary formulates recommendations for basic housing and community development policies for purposes such as the Department's legislative program, the State of the Union message, and the President's budget. The Secretary works with the Executive Office of the President and other Federal agencies to ensure that economic and fiscal policies in housing and community development are consistent with other economic and fiscal policies of the Government; encourages private enterprise to serve as large a part of the Nation's total housing and urban development needs as possible; and develops the fullest cooperation with private enterprise in achieving the objectives of the Department. The Secretary also provides general oversight (as required by law) of the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Under Secretary The Under Secretary assists the Secretary in the discharge of Secretarial duties and responsibilities, and serves as Acting Secretary in the absence of the Secretary.

Staff The Secretary is assisted in performing the functions of the Department by Assistant Secretaries and other officials in program and functional areas.

The Office of the Secretary also contains staff offices having Department-wide responsibility in specialized functional areas such as coordination of field activities, Indian and Alaskan Native programs, small and disadvantaged business utilization, intergovernmental relations, labor relations, international affairs, administrative judicial proceedings, and contract appeals.

Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity The Assistant Secretary for Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity advises the Secretary and principal departmental staff on issues and policies affecting civil rights and equal opportunity in housing and related facilities, community development, and employment.

The Assistant Secretary is responsible for developing and implementing fair housing and equal opportunity policies and programs pursuant to various civil rights laws, Executive orders, and Federal regulations intended to protect affected persons from discrimination based on race, color, sex, national origin, religion, handicap, or age. Among these authorities are the Fair Housing Act of 1968 (82 Stat. 81; 42 U.S.C. 3601); title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 252; 42 U.S.C. 2000d); section 109 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 649; 42 U.S.C. 5309); sections 501, 504, and 505 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 390, 394, 92 Stat. 2982; 29 U.S.C. 791, 794, 794a); the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (89 Stat. 728–732; 48 U.S.C. 6101 note); the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (81 Stat. 602; 29 U.S.C. 601 note), as amended; section 3 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (82 Stat. 476; 12 U.S.C. 1701u), as amended; and Executive Orders 11063 (as amended), 11246, 11478, and 12259.

Public Affairs The Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs is the adviser to the Secretary and other principal departmental staff on matters involving the Department's communications with the public and the media. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for matters relating to public information, public opinion, and participation in public events. The Assistant Secretary also coordinates the activities of the various divisions of the Office of Public Affairs in providing the following services: response to requests for information by national, regional, and local news media; issuance of news releases and other publications explaining or describing departmental activities; communication support for the program activities of the Department; scheduling of the Secretary's public appearances; preparation of speeches for use by the Secretary and the Under Secretary; response to Freedom of Information requests from the media; and the review of all departmental publications.

Legislation and Congressional Relations The Assistant Secretary for Legislation and Congressional Relations is a principal adviser to the Secretary on matters affecting Congress and is responsible for providing services to Congress for all programs and activities of the Department. These responsibilities are carried out through a Deputy Assistant Secretary for Legislation and a Deputy Assistant Secretary for Congressional Relations.

Administration The Assistant Secretary for Administration is the principal adviser to the Secretary and other principal staff of the Department and the chief officer of the Department on administrative management. The responsibilities of this office are carried out through the following offices: Personnel, Training, Budget, Finance and Accounting, Administrative and Management Services, Procurement and Contracts, and Information Policies and Systems.

General Counsel The General Counsel is the chief law officer of the Department and is the legal adviser to the Secretary and other principal staff of the Department. The General Counsel provides legal opinions, advice, and services with respect to all programs and activities of the Department; and provides counsel and assistance in the development of the Department's programs and policies. The General Counsel supervises all staff assigned to the Office of the General Counsel at Headquarters and provides professional guidance for staff assigned to the Regional and Area Counsels' Offices.

Inspector General Pursuant to the Inspector General Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1101; 5 U.S.C. app.), the Inspector General is appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate to keep the Secretary and the Congress informed of fraud and other deficiencies in the Department's programs and operations. The Office of Inspector General is responsible for conducting independent audits and investigations relating to the Department's operations. The Inspector General also provides leadership and coordination for activities designed to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness in the administration of programs and operations, as well as the prevention and detection of fraud and abuse in such programs and operations. These include such activities as receiving and investigating employee complaints, reviewing proposed legislation and regulations, and chairing a Departmental Committee on Fraud, Waste and Mismanagement. The Inspector General is a member of the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency, established by the President to coordinate and implement government policies with respect to integrity and efficiency in Federal programs.

Program Areas

Community Planning and Development

The Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Development is responsible for the following programs and activities:

Community Development Block Grants The Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program was established by title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (88 Stat.633; 42 U.S.C. 5301) to meet a wide variety of community development needs in "entitlement" and "nonentitlement" communities, with its primary objective being to develop viable urban communities by providing decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities principally for persons of low and moderate income. Entitlement communities, generally cities with more than 50,000 population, central cities, and counties with more than 200,000 population, receive an annual amount of CDBG funds (their entitlement) based on a formula contained in the statute. Thirty percent of the funds appropriated for the CDBG also are allocated among States, using a formula, for use by nonentitlement communities.

Grants are awarded to entitlement communities to carry out a wide range of community development activities directed at neighborhood revitalization, economic development, and the provision of improved community facilities and services.

Entitlement communities develop their own programs and funding priorities. However, grantees must meet one of the following program objectives: benefit low- and moderate-income persons, or aid in the prevention or elimination of slums and blight. In addition, activities may be carried out that the community certifies are designed to meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs. Grantees must also certify that during a period of not more than 3 years, not less than 51 percent of its CDBG funds will be used for activities that benefit low- and moderate-income persons. Activities that do not meet one of these three broad national objectives may not be undertaken with CDBG funds. Regulations governing the entitlement portion of the program may be found in 24 CFR, part 570.

Nonentitlement communities are places that are not entitled to an annual grant. States may administer the nonentitlement CDBG funds, as a result of amendments to the act in 1981 (95 Stat. 384; 42 U.S.C. 5301). In States that do not choose to administer the nonentitlement funds, HUD administers the Small Cities Program, which was established by amendments to the act in 1977.

The HUD-administered Small Cities Program is competitive; HUD ranks each community's application according to its percentage and absolute poverty, its program's impact, its community development needs, and its performance in fair housing and equal opportunity. The most highly ranked applications are then funded to the extent funds are available.

The State-administered Small Cities Program application requirements and the methods in which funds are distributed to nonentitlement communities are established by the State. Eligible activities are the same as those for the entitlement communities, and programs must address the same program objectives. In electing to administer the program, the Governor must certify that the State has or will: plan for community development activities; provide technical assistance in connection with community development programs; provide, from State resources, funds equal to 10 percent of its CDBG allocation for community development activities; and consult with local elected officials in designing the method of funds distribution it will use. Other applicable laws and requirements may be found in the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, and in 24 CFR, part 570, subpart I.

Some of the specific activities that can be carried out with block grant funds include the acquisition of real property, relocation and demolition, rehabilitation of residential and nonresidential structures, provisions for public facilities and improvements, such as water and sewer facilities, streets, and neighborhood centers, and the conversion of schools for eligible purposes. In addition, block grant funds are available to pay for public services within certain limits, for activities relating to energy conservation and renewable energy resources, planning activities, assistance to profit-motivated businesses to carry out economic development activities, and assistance to nonprofit entities for community development activities.

For further information, contact the Office of Block Grant Assistance. Phone, 202-755-6587.

Section 108 Loan Guarantees Under Section 108, HUD guarantees loans to communities to finance the acquisition of real property and the rehabilitation of publicly owned real property, plus certain related activities. CDBG entitlement cities, such as metropolitan cities and urban counties, are eligible to apply for loan guarantee assistance under Section 108. To secure the loan guarantee, the community is required to pledge any grant approved or any grant that the community becomes eligible for under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended. Obligations guaranteed under Section 108 are purchased by the Federal Financing Bank, an agency of the Treasury Department.

For further information, contact the Office of Block Grant Assistance. Phone, 202-755-6587.

Secretary's Discretionary Fund Under title I of the act, a fund is reserved for Secretarial discretion in making community development grants to insular areas and Indian tribes and for technical assistance to improve the planning, development, and administration of title I programs.

For further information, contact the Office of Program Policy Development. Phone, 202-755-6090.

Urban Development Action Grants These grants are authorized by title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended. The Action Grant program is designed to encourage new or increased private investment in cities and urban counties that are experiencing severe economic distress. The availability of Action Grant funds permits local officials to capitalize on opportunities to stimulate economic development activity such as new, permanent jobs and increased tax revenues needed to aid in economic recovery. Action Grant funds are available to carry out projects in support of a wide variety of economic recovery activities that involve partnerships with the private sector. As a requirement for funding, a firm private-sector financial commitment must be in place. The program demonstrates the Federal Government's commitment to fostering private investment in cities.

For further information, contact the Office of Urban Development Action Grants. Phone, 202-755-6290.

Relocation and Acquisition The Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970 (Uniform Act) establishes policies and requirements to ensure the fair and equitable treatment of owners of property acquired for a federally assisted project, and persons displaced as a result of such acquisitions. The Office of Community Planning and Development develops HUD policies, standards, procedures, and advisory materials implementing the act and monitors HUD-assisted activities to ensure compliance with the law. Under the law, displaced persons receive relocation assistance, including reimbursement for moving expenses. Eligible occupants displaced from a dwelling unit also receive a replacement housing payment. Property owners are offered fair value for their property and are reimbursed for any incidental sales costs.

By regulation, the Department has adopted requirements designed to ensure that adequate relocation assistance is provided to tenants displaced by certain HUD-assisted programs that are not governed by the Uniform Act.

For further information, contact the Office of Urban Rehabilitation. Phone, 202-755-5685.

Environment The Assistant Secretary has departmental responsibility for implementing policies and procedures for the protection and enhancement of environmental quality pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and related laws and authorities, and the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended. Environmental activities encompass the development of standards, policies, and procedures for environmental assessments and impact statements, and compliance with laws and Executive orders on archaeology, historic preservation, floodplains, wetlands, aquifers, endangered species, and other resources. Activities include the development and administration of strategies for the amelioration of environmental problems and the establishment of standards, such as those for minimum distances between housing and sources of noise or hazardous storage facilities. Emphasis is placed on technical assistance and helping communities in environmental and land-use planning and environmental management practices, including urban environmental design and the quality of the built environment.

For further information, contact the Office of Environment and Energy. Phone, 202-755-7894.

Energy The 1980 and 1981 amendments to title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 added to the findings and purposes of the act: recognition that increasing energy costs have seriously undermined local community development and housing activities; called for concerted action with State and local governments to address the resulting economic and social hardships; and added as a new objective conservation, energy efficiency, and renewable sources of supply. HUD-supported activities include (1) building energy retrofit and installation of solar equipment, production (emphasizing renewable resources), aid for the assessment and (2) design of district heating and cooling systems and resource recovery projects, provision of technical assistance to State and local governments, and the preparation of comprehensive energy-use strategies. The Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Development functions as energy conservation officer for the Department and in liaison with other agencies.

Rehabilitation Loans Under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 790; 42 U.S.C. 1452b), as amended, low-interest loans for rehabilitation of residential and nonresidential properties are made in conjunction with other Federal programs that aid neighborhood revitalization, such as the Community Development Block Grant Program and Urban Homesteading.

For fiscal year 1986, approximately $11 million has been allocated for the rehabilitation of single family and multifamily properties in HUD-approved urban homesteading areas and in communities that receive Community Development Block Grant Assistance. In making section 312 loans, priority is given to applications submitted by low- and moderate-income persons who own property and will occupy it upon the completion of rehabilitation. The interest rate for single-family, owner-occupied properties (1 to 4 units) is 3 percent if the borrower's family income for the area, adjusted for family size, is within 80 percent of the median income for the area. For all other applications the rate of interest will be indexed to the weekly Federal Reserve statistical release for comparable or near terms of the U.S. Government securities. Applicants should contact the local city or county government in their area to determine that local public agency administers the program. An applicant who needs assistance in locating the local public agency should contact the HUD Field Office in his or her area for more information. The agency will provide advice and assist the applicant with the loan application.

The Department has improved its debt collection activities for the program and has increased its income from existing loans.

For further information, contact the Office of Urban Rehabilitation. Phone, 202–755–5658.

Urban Homesteading Under title VIII, section 810 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 734; 12 U.S.C. 1706e), as amended, HUD is authorized to transfer, without payment, to States, units of local government or their designated public agencies, Secretary-owned, unoccupied, unrepaired, one-to-four-family residences for use in a HUD-approved urban homesteading program. The legislation also authorized the appropriation of funds to reimburse the Department for any properties transferred under section 810.

An urban homesteading program must provide for the conditional conveyance of property to homesteaders who agree to repair it, maintain it, and live in it as their principal residence for a minimum of 5 years in exchange for full legal title. The local program must develop a coordinated plan for improving the neighborhood's services and facilities. Total appropriations for the urban homesteading program amount to $11.3 million in fiscal year 1986. These funds are used to reimburse the HUD housing loan and mortgage insurance fund for any properties transferred to localities for use in an approved local urban homesteading program.

Section 106 of the Housing Community Development Amendments of 1979 (93 Stat. 1104; 12 U.S.C. 1706e) and section 102 (a) of the Housing and Community Development Admendments of 1978 (92 Stat. 2083; 12 U.S.C. 1706e) authorized HUD to use funds as required by section 810 to reimburse the Administrator of Veterans Affairs and the Secretary of Agriculture for properties conveyed for use in a HUD-approved urban homesteading program.

Management of Discontinued Programs The Assistant Secretary has responsibility for grant completions under several repealed programs: the planning assistance (701) program for States, regional bodies and communities, and the neighborhood self-help development program for neighborhood organizations.

Residual functions of the new community development program were transferred to the community planning and development program following the abolishment of the New Community Development Corporation. Former categorical programs are administered as well, including the urban renewal, model cities, basic water and sewer facilities, open space land, and neighbor facilities programs. Finally, the Revolving Fund (Liquidating Programs), a single fund to assist in the efficient liquidation of the assets acquired under various housing and urban development programs, is administered by the Assistant Secretary.

Housing

The Assistant Secretary for Housing-Federal Housing Commissioner directs the housing programs and functions of the Department, supporting the production, financing, and management of new and substantially rehabilitated housing and the conservation and preservation of the existing housing stock.

The Assistant Secretary is responsible for the following programs: mortgage insurance and other financial and related assistance authorized by the National Housing Act (48 Stat. 1246; 12 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.); the assisted-housing program (section 8) under the United States Housing Act of 1937 (88 Stat. 662; 42 U.S.C. 1437f); the rent supplement program under title I of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 451); the repair, construction, improvement, removal, demolition or alteration, management, rehabilitation, rental, maintenance, operation, and disposition of real and related personal property managed by the Secretary; the elderly and handicapped housing loan program under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 (73 Stat. 667; 12 U.S.C. 1701q); technical and financial assistance to nonprofit sponsors under section 106 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (82 Stat. 490; 12 U.S.C. 1701x); administration and enforcement of regulatory programs aimed at consumer protection; including Interstate Land Sales Registration, Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards, the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1724; 12 U.S.C. 2601 note); and the housing development grant program under section 17 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (97 Stat. 1196; 42 U.S.C. 1437*o)*.

The Assistant Secretary also serves as the Chairman of the Mortgagee Review Board and is authorized to withdraw mortgagee approvals.

Insurance Mortgages are insured loans under the terms of the National Housing Act for the purchase, refinancing, construction, or rehabilitation of single-family housing, rental housing, cooperative housing, condominiums, and manufactured homes. Mortgage insurance also is provided for property improvement loans, housing for the elderly, nursing homes and intermediate care facilities, and nonprofit hospitals and group practice medical facilities. Special programs are provided for loan and mortgage insurance for land development, manufactured home parks, experimental housing, housing in urban renewal areas, armed services housing, and single-family housing for home ownership subsidized by interest assistance payments.

Applicants who wish to participate in the single-family mortgage insurance program must apply to a HUD-approved mortgage lender, who then applies to HUD. For multifamily projects an applicant may elect to apply for a site appraisal and market analysis or, together with an approved mortgagee, apply for a conditional or firm commitment depending upon the completeness of the drawing's specifications, and other required exhibits.

Loans and Rental Assistance The Department is authorized to provide loans to private, nonprofit borrowers to develop sound housing projects for the elderly or handicapped. In addition, interest-free loans are authorized under section 106 to cover up to 80 percent of the preconstruction costs incurred by nonprofit sponsors in planning a federally assisted section 202 housing project.

The section 8 housing assistance payments program authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 633) provides housing assistance payments to participating private owners and public housing agencies to provide decent, safe and sanitary, rehabilitated or existing housing for low-income families and elderly persons at affordable rents.

Housing Development Grants Under the housing development grant program, HUD provides grants to cities, urban counties, and States acting on behalf of local governments to support the development of rental housing in areas with severe rental housing shortages. Grantees use the HUD funds to provide capital grants or loans, interest-reduction payments, rental subsidies, or other types of assistance to facilitate the construction or substantial rehabilitation of rental projects by private owners.

Loan Management HUD-insured and Government-held mortgages are managed and serviced for all mortgage insurance programs under the National Housing Act (48 Stat. 1246) as amended, including nursing homes and intermediate-care facilities, manufactured homes and manufactured home parks, hospitals and group practice facilities, and land development.

Management and administration of assistance is offered for contracts for interest-reduction payments and rent supplements, home ownership for low- and middle-income families, operation and forbearance agreements, and assignment of mortgages.

Loans are serviced and managed for housing assisted by Department lending and grant programs.

Property Disposition Real and related property conveyed to or in the custody of the Secretary is managed, rehabilitated, rented, and disposed of by the Department.

Manufactured Home Standards Under title VI of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 700; 42 U.S.C. 5401), the Department has the responsibility to establish appropriate Federal manufactured home construction and safety standards for the construction, design, and performance of such homes. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for promulgating and enforcing standards that are required by the act. Title VI requires that every manufacturer of manufactured homes obtain approval of its building plans for each model produced and certify that every unit built meets the Federal standard in effect at the time of production. The act provides broad enforcement powers to ensure compliance with the Federal standards, including the right to subpoena witnesses and to carry out on-site inspections of manufactured home production facilities. Criminal and civil penalties are provided for violation of mandatory certification and defect notification procedures. Under the provisions of title VI, State agencies are authorized to implement the enforcement responsibilities of the act, on the condition that they submit to HUD a plan of enforcement that demonstrates the willingness and capacity of the agency to ensure effective compliance within their jurisdiction.

Public and Indian Housing

The Assistant Secretary for Public and Indian Housing is responsible for administering all public and Indian housing (PIH) programs (including but not limited to rental housing, Turnkey III housing, and mutual help housing) administered under the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1437–1437n). The Assistant Secretary advises the Secretary regarding the production, financing, and management of public and Indian housing programs, as well as the preservation, improvement, and upgrading of the management and operation of the existing housing stock.

Low-Income Public Housing Local Public Housing Agencies (PHA's) are provided with technical and financial assistance in planning, developing, and managing (including upgrading) housing for low-income families. Financial assistance is provided for planning, paying off bonds and notes issued to finance project development, and operating subsidies to ensure the low-income nature of the projects, and to enable PHA's to maintain adequate operating and maintenance services and reserve funds. Special provisions allow for purchase of such housing by low-income families. Modernization funds are provided for project upgrading.

Indian Housing The Department's Indian mutual-help home ownership opportunity program and low-income public housing program utilize delivery systems that are responsible to the special housing and community development requirements of Indian and Alaska Native communities. These programs are administered by 170 Indian Housing Authorities (IHA's). In response to congressional and administration concerns about the high cost of developing Indian housing, the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Public and Indian Housing has implemented a series of cost reduction initiatives, including a manufactured and modular housing initiative designed to show Indian housing authorities that durable and liveable homes can be manufactured off-site for significantly lower costs than those built on-site.

Interstate Land Sales Registration The Assistant Secretary exercises the Department's responsibilities under the Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act (82 Stat. 590; 15 U.S.C. 1701 note). The act provides for the administration and enforcement of the registration and disclosure requirements that apply to developers who sell land through the use of any means of interstate commerce or the mails. Safeguards for consumers are provided through statutory and regulatory penalties imposed upon developers who fail to file and maintain a current registration statement with the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration or who fail to furnish each purchaser with a copy of an approved Property Report at the specific time. Pursuant to the provisions of the act and Department regulations, developers of all nonexempt subdivisions containing 50 or more lots must file a Statement of Record with the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration and furnish each purchaser with a printed Property Report in advance of the time that they sign the sales contract. Developers who do not comply with the statutory and regulatory requirements may be subject to administrative proceedings to enjoin the acts or practices and criminal prosecution.

Real Estate Settlement Procedures The Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1724; 12 U.S.C. 2601 note), as amended, was enacted by Congress to minimize abuses and to protect home buyers. The program requires lenders to provide loan applicants "good-faith estimates" of settlement costs that are incurred and an information booklet describing the settlement process. The home buyer and seller each receive a Uniform Settlement Statement at the time of settlement, detailing services paid for the purchase of the house. The act also prohibits kickbacks and places limits on the amount of funds held in escrow by lenders.

For further information, contact the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Housing. Phone, 202-755-6600.

Government National Mortgage Association

In accordance with the general policies of the Secretary and title III of the National Housing Act (48 Stat. 1246; 12 U.S.C. 1701), the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) carries out the following programs: the GNMA mortgage-backed securities program that provides secondary market financing for most FHA and VA home loans; the management and liquidation of the portfolio of mortgages held by GNMA; and the management of three Federal asset trusts.

For further information, contact the Government National Mortgage Association. Phone, 202-755-5926.

Policy Development and Research

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research advises the Secretary on policy, program evaluation, and research. The Office evaluates and analyzes existing and proposed programs and policies. Under the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 and other statutes, the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research undertakes programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to HUD's mission. These functions are carried out by its staff and through grants, cooperative agreements, contracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, educational institutions, private foundations, and agreements with State and local governments, the private sector, and other Federal agencies.

In order to provide the Secretary and program administrators with the most complete information possible in the formulation of policy, the Office must not only assess alternative policies but also gauge their impact. An important step in that process is linking the findings of long- and short-term research with the policy issues and problems facing the Department, making maximum use of the ongoing research, evaluation, and economic analysis conducted by the divisions within the Office. The Office sets the research agendas of the divisions so that they reflect the overall policy needs of the Department. The Office also participates in all aspects of the budget and legislative development process, and reviews all departmental regulations, notices, handbooks, and forms.

The evaluation process is inseparable from policy development. Along with preparing option and quick-response papers on a wide variety of issues, the Office also conducts field studies and evaluations of all major programs in order to provide information on their impact, effectiveness, and administration and to analyze their costs and benefits. The purpose in every case is to generate the comprehensive understanding that leads to new programs and policies in tune with administration goals and a high level of efficiency.

In helping to carry out its mission to improve the Nation's communities and housing, HUD's research efforts have been narrowed and intensified to focus on such priority subjects as: improvements in public housing management and housing finance issues; the impact of proposed tax changes on low-income housing; improving the quality of life in public housing; evaluation of programs authorized by the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983; affordable housing; evaluation of current fair housing activities and development of the Department's Fair Housing Initiatives Program; and the administration's federalism policy.

For further information, contact the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research. Phone, 202-755-5600.

Field Structure

The field operations of the Department are carried out through a series of regional and field offices.

The regional offices of the Department have boundaries prescribed by the Secretary. Each regional office is headed by a Regional Administrator, who is responsible to the Secretary and the Under Secretary for the overall satisfaction of the Department's goals and objectives and for the management of the offices within the region. The Regional Administrators are also responsible to each Assistant Secretary for the execution of their respective programs.

Field offices of the Department are operational in the locations listed below.

For information concerning the detailed jurisdiction of an office, the indicated regional office should be consulted.

[For the Department of the Interior statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Apr. 14, 1978, 43 FR 15791]

As the Nation's principal conservation agency, the Department of the Interior has responsibility for most of our nationally owned public lands and natural resources. This includes fostering the wisest use of our land and water resources, protecting our fish and wildlife, preserving the environmental and cultural values of our national parks and historical places, and providing for the enjoyment of life through outdoor recreation. The Department assesses our mineral resources and works to assure that their development is in the best interests of all our people. The Department also has a major responsibility for American Indian reservation communities and for people who live in Island Territories under United States administration.

The jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior includes the administration of over 500 million acres of Federal land, and trust responsibilities for approximately 50 million acres of land, mostly Indian reservations; the conservation and development of mineral and water resources; the conservation, development, and utilization of fish and wildlife resources; the coordination of Federal and State recreation programs; the preservation and administration of the Nation's scenic and historic areas; the operation of Job Corps Conservation Centers and Youth Conservation Corps Camps, and coordination of other manpower and youth training programs; the reclamation of arid lands in the West through irrigation; and the management of hydroelectric power systems. The Department of the Interior is also concerned with the social and economic development of the territories of the United States and in the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands; and administers programs providing services to Indians and Alaska Natives.

The Department of the Interior was created by act of March 3, 1849 (9 Stat. 395; 43 U.S.C. 1451), which transferred to it the General Land Office, the Office of Indian Affairs, the Pension Office, and the Patent Office. The Department also had responsibility for supervision of the Commissioner of Public Buildings, the Board of Inspectors and the Warden of the Penitentiary of the District of Columbia, the census of the United States, and the accounts of marshals and other officers of the United States courts, and of lead and other mines in the United States.

Over the many years of its existence, other functions have been added and removed, so that its role has changed from that of general housekeeper for the Federal Government to that of custodian of the Nation's natural resources.

The Department of the Interior is composed of the Office of the Secretary, other departmental offices, and bureaus described below.

Office of the Secretary

Secretary The Secretary of the Interior, as the head of an executive department, reports directly to the President and is responsible for the direction and supervision of all operations and activities of the Department. The Secretary also has certain powers or supervisory responsibilities relating to Territorial governments.

Under Secretary The Under Secretary assists the Secretary in the discharge of Secretarial duties and serves as Acting Secretary in the absence of the Secretary. With the exception of certain matters reserved by the Secretary, the Under Secretary has the full authority of the Secretary.

Fish and Wildlife and Parks The Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks discharges the duties of the Secretary with the authority and direct responsibility for programs associated with the development, conservation, and utilization of fish, wildlife, recreation, historical, and national park system resources of the Nation. The Assistant Secretary represents the Department in the coordination of marine environmental quality and biological resources programs with other Federal agencies. The Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks exercises Secretarial direction and supervision over the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Park Service.

Water and Science The Assistant Secretary—Water and Science discharges the duties of the Secretary with the authority and direct responsibility to carry out the statutory mandate to manage and direct programs supporting the development and implementation of national water and mineral policies through encouraging and assisting the development of economically and environmentally sound resource activities, including development and conservation of the Nation's water supply and support of cost-sharing techniques for development and management of water supplies in the 17 Western States; water resource evaluation and analysis; fostering and encouraging the private sector in the orderly and economic development of domestic mineral resources; effective mineral data collection and analysis; assessment of frontier area mineral resources for long-term availability; improved focus and effectiveness of departmental research and development activities in geology, hydrology, metallurgy, mining technology, and mine health and safety, including international work supporting departmental long-term national objectives; topographic, geologic, and mineral resource investigations; Earth seismic research; and remote sensing activities. The Assistant Secretary is the science adviser to the Secretary and, as such, coordinates scientific activities in the Department; coordinates Department activities with the Board on Geographic Names; represents the Secretary on the Trade Policy Review Group to coordinate international trade policy issues, the interagency groups for Antarctic policy, ocean policy, and law of the sea, the Emergency Mobilization Preparedness Board, and other interagency efforts as appropriate.

Land and Minerals Management The Assistant Secretary—Land and Minerals Management discharges the duties of the Secretary with the authority and direct responsibility for programs associated with land use planning; public land management, including onshore and offshore minerals management; development and management of effective fuel-related mineral data collection and analysis; surface mining reclamation and enforcement functions; operations management for minerals on the Outer Continental Shelf to the outer limits of the United States economic jurisdiction; assessment of these frontier area mineral resources for long-term national availability; management of revenues from Federal mineral leases to ensure efficient collection of bonuses, rentals, and royalties; and coordination of related departmental policy. The Assistant Secretary also serves as adviser to the Secretary in the Secretary's role as a member of the Cabinet Council on Domestic Policy. The Assistant Secretary exercises Secretarial direction and supervision over the Bureau of Land Management, the Minerals Management Service, and the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement.

Indian Affairs The Assistant Secretary—Indian Affairs discharges the authority and responsibility of the Secretary for activities pertaining to Indians and Indian affairs. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for providing the Secretary with detailed and objective advice on matters involving Indians and Indian affairs; identifying and acting on issues affecting Indian policy and programs for Indians; establishing policy on Indian affairs; liaison and coordination between the Department of the Interior and other Federal agencies that provide services or funding to Indians; representing the Department in transactions with Congress; monitoring and evaluating on-going activities related to Indian affairs; undertaking or providing leadership in special assignments and projects for the Secretary; and for exercising Secretarial direction and supervision over the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Policy, Budget and Administration The Assistant Secretary—Policy, Budget and Administration discharges the authority of the Secretary for all phases of management and administrative activities and serves as the principal policy adviser to the Secretary. Responsibilities include providing detailed and objective advice on program planning, budget, and policy matters; developing and maintaining administrative policy, standards, objectives, and procedures for use throughout the Department; coordinating organizational aspects of proposed legislation with appropriate bureaus and offices; undertaking special management-related projects for the Secretary; and providing management and administrative support services for the Office of the Secretary. The Assistant Secretary performs and supervises the following activities: personnel management, property, safety, space, emergency preparedness, procurement, grants, energy conservation, law enforcement, financial management, aircraft services, printing, publications, management systems, and information resources management, including ADP, telecommunications, library and information services, and directives and regulatory management.

Secretarial offices appropriately identified with the functions previously described, and as shown on the foregoing list of principal officials, are under the Assistant Secretary's supervision.

Territorial and International Affairs The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Territorial and International Affairs was established by Secretarial Order No. 3046 of February 14, 1980. The Assistant Secretary discharges the authority and responsibility of the Secretary for activities pertaining to territorial areas and for the coordination of international affairs of the Department. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for promoting the economic, social, and political development of the U.S. territories of Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, which includes the Marshall Islands, Palau, and the Federated States of Micronesia. The Assistant Secretary also serves as the Department's focal point for analysis, development, and review of the Department's policy and programs pertaining to international activities and the opportunities for support of U.S. foreign policy through the use of the Department's natural resource and environmental expertise.

For further information, contact the Office of Territorial and International Affairs, Department of the Interior, Washington, DC 20240. Phone, 202-343-4822.

Solicitor The Solicitor is the principal legal adviser to the Secretary and the chief law officer of the Department. The Solicitor is responsible for and has supervision over all of the legal work of the Department, with the exception of that performed by the Office of Hearings and Appeals and the Office of Congressional and Legislative Affairs.

Inspector General The Inspector General is the Department's focal point for independent and objective reviews of the integrity of operations; the central authority concerned with the quality, coverage, and coordination of the audit and investigation services of the Department; and reports directly to the Secretary on these matters. The Inspector General provides the means for keeping the Secretary and Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies relating to the administration of Department programs and operations and the necessity for corrective action.

Other Departmental Offices

Office of the Solicitor

The Office of the Solicitor performs all of the legal work of the Department with the exception of that performed by the Office of Hearings and Appeals and the Office of Congressional and Legislative Affairs.

The headquarters office of the Office of the Solicitor in Washington, DC, consists of six Divisions. The Division of Conservation and Wildlife is responsible for legal matters involving the programs of the Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, the National Park Service, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The Division of Energy and Resources is responsible for legal matters involving the programs of the Assistant Secretary—Water and Science, the Assistant Secretary—Land and Minerals Management, the Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Mines, the Geological Survey, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Minerals Management Service. The Division of Indian Affairs is responsible for legal matters involving the programs of the Assistant Secretary—Indian Affairs and the Bureau of Indian Affairs. The Division of Surface Mining provides legal advice to the Assistant Secretary—Land and Minerals Management on surface mining matters and to the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement. The Division of General Law is responsible for general administrative law matters and legal matters involving programs under the jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretary—Policy, Budget and Administration, the Assistant Secretary—Territorial and International Affairs, and the Office for Equal Opportunity. The Division of Audit and Investigation is responsible for providing legal advice and services to the Office of Inspector General. Administrative and support services for the Office of the Solicitor are provided by the Division of Administration.

The field organization of the Office is divided into eight regions, each headed by a Regional Solicitor.

Office of Inspector General

The Office of Inspector General provides policy direction and conducts, supervises, and coordinates all audits and investigations; recommends policies for and conducts, supervises, or coordinates other activities in the Department designed to promote economy and efficiency or prevent and detect fraud and abuse. The Inspector General recommends policies for and conducts, supervises, or coordinates relations between the Department and other Federal, State, and local government agencies concerning (a) promoting economy and efficiency, (b) preventing and detecting fraud and abuse, and (c) identifying and prosecuting people involved in fraud or abuse.

The Office also reviews existing and proposed legislation and regulations and makes recommendations to the Secretary and Congress regarding the impact such initiatives will have on the economy and efficiency of the Department's programs and operations and the prevention and detection of fraud and abuse in such programs; keeps the Secretary and the Congress fully informed about fraud, abuses, and deficiencies in Department programs and operations, and other serious problems; recommends corrective action and reports on the progress made in correcting the problem.

For further information, contact the Office of Inspector General, Department of the Interior, Washington, DC 20240. Phone, 202-343-8231.

Office of Hearings and Appeals

The Office of Hearings and Appeals was established by the Secretary on April 8, 1970, to consolidate related functions and to provide for more effective departmental appeals procedures.

The Office of Hearings and Appeals is responsible for departmental quasi-judicial and related functions. Administrative law judges and three formal boards of appeal render decisions in cases pertaining to contract disputes; Indian probate and administrative appeals; public and acquired lands and their resources; submerged offshore lands of the Outer Continental Shelf; surface coal mining control and reclamation; claims under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act; and enforcement of the importation and transportation of rare and endangered species. The Director of the Office of Hearings and Appeals may assign administrative law judges or other officials from the Office of Hearings and Appeals for the purpose of holding rulemaking hearings and may also assign administrative law judges or establish ad hoc boards of appeal to meet special requirements of disputes not falling under one of the previously listed categories. Decisions of the boards are final for the Department.

The Office includes the headquarters organization and 3 field offices for departmental administrative law judges and 8 field offices for Indian probate administrative law judges.

For further information, contact the Office of Hearings and Appeals, Department of the Interior, 4015 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22203. Phone, 703-235-3810.

Office of Youth Programs

The Office of Youth Programs was established by Secretarial Order No. 2885 of January 7, 1965, as amended under the authority of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, and subsequent Secretarial delegations under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973, the Youth Conservation Corps Act of 1974, the Youth Demonstration Projects Act of 1977, and the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982. This Office discharges the authority of the Secretary in all matters pertaining to departmental programs of employment and training for youth, including the Job Corps Civilian Conservation Centers Program, the United States Youth Conservation Corps, and such other programs as the Secretary may designate.

The Office of Youth Programs establishes the basic policies, programs, and priorities for the Department; provides policy direction, guidance, and interpretation for the participating bureaus and offices and coordinates their activities; maintains sufficient controls to provide the Secretary with the information needed to operate the programs, to effect statutory coordination with the Departments of Agriculture and Labor, and to ensure responsiveness to the Congress and the public; performs a continuing analysis of the program's resources, needs, and expenditures; obtains, allocates, and controls the financial, manpower, and material resources necessary to carry out the programs; reviews and evaluates program performance to identify deficiencies and prescribes corrective measures; and implements management systems and procedures necessary to achieve program goals. The Office also provides consolidated administrative services support for assigned programs.

The Office of Youth Programs operates the Fort Simcoe Job Corps Civilian Conservation Center.

For further information, contact the Office of Youth Programs, Department of the Interior, Washington, DC 20240. Phone, 202-343-5951.

Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization

The Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization (OSDBU) was established by Secretarial Order No. 3041 of July 20, 1979, in compliance with Pub. L. 95-507 (97 Stat. 1757), which amended the Small Business Act and the Small Business Investment Act of 1958. The secretarial order directed that the Director of OSDBU report directly to the Under Secretary and that all employees and functions of the Branch of Minority Procurement in the Office of Administrative and Management Policy be transferred to OSDBU. Secretarial Order No. 3041 was superseded by Departmental Manual Issuance 111 DM 8.

OSDBU is responsible for the implementation and administration of programs relating to sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act, as amended by Pub. L. 95-507, as well as Pub. L. 96-302 (94 Stat. 833) (labor surplus area set-asides), Executive Order 12138 (women-owned businesses) and Executive Order 12432 (minority businesses). Responsibilities include providing department-wide liaison and coordination of all matters relating to small disadvantaged and minority businesses, labor surplus area concerns, and women-owned businesses with the Small Business Administration (SBA), Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP), Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA), and General Services Administration (GSA); assisting bureaus and offices in the development and implementation of policies and procedures required by sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act and other authorities, including the establishment of goals and the reporting of accomplishments; providing training and education to Department personnel whose functional responsibilities relate to the implementation of sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act; conducting outreach seminars and providing liaison services to small and disadvantaged businesses; researching, developing, and publishing informational brochures and documents relating to the Department's small and disadvantaged business programs; performing continuing liaison with other departments and agencies on all activities relating to small and disadvantaged business utilization; and developing, validating, and disseminating to departmental management and the public statistical data and other information on the implementation and results of the Department's business and economic development programs.

For further information, contact the Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, Department of the Interior, Washington, DC 20240. Phone, 202-343-8493.

Assistant Secretary for Territorial and International Affairs

The Office for Territorial and International Affairs has the responsibility to promote the economic, social, and political development of the territories, leading toward a goal of self-government and to further international peace and security by conducting territorial affairs in close coordination with the defense and foreign policies of the United States.

The degree to which the Office conducts activities to further these objectives in a specific territory depends on the status of the territorial government, its relationship to the Secretary of the Interior, and the extent of development already achieved within the territory.

The Office serves as the principal representative to the Office of the Secretary on all territorial matters; makes the needs of the territories known to other Federal agencies and serves as a channel of communication with the territorial governments; studies the economic, social, and political problems of the territories and proposes policies, programs, legislation, and other actions for their solution; advises the Secretary on proposed legislation and other important matters affecting the territories; provides budgetary and certain other administrative services to the Governors of the territories and the High Commissioner of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands; and coordinates all international activities of the bureaus and employees of the Department. The Office is composed of budget, legislative, economic development, and other staffs that provide assistance to the territories and the Department on matters relating to territorial and international affairs.

For further information, contact the Office of Territorial and International Affairs, Department of the Interior, Washington, DC 20240. Phone, 202-343-4822.

Bureaus

United States Fish and Wildlife Service

[For the United States Fish and Wildlife Service statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 50, Subchapter A, Part 2]

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service's national responsibility in the service of fish, wildlife, and people reaches back over 110 years to the establishment in 1871 of a predecessor agency, the Bureau of Fisheries. First created as an independent agency, the Bureau of Fisheries was later placed in the Department of Commerce. A second predecessor agency, the Bureau of Biological Survey, was established in 1885 in the Department of Agriculture.

The two Bureaus and their functions were transferred in 1939 to the Department of the Interior. They were consolidated into one agency and redesignated the Fish and Wildlife Service in 1940 by Reorganization Plan III (54 Stat. 1232).

Further reorganization came in 1956 when the Fish and Wildlife Act (70 Stat. 1119) created the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and provided for it to replace and succeed the former Fish and Wildlife Service. The Act established two Bureaus within the new Service: the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries and the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

In 1970, under Reorganization Plans 3 and 4, the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries was transferred to the Department of Commerce. The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, which remained in Interior, was renamed by an act of Congress in April 1974 (88 Stat. 92) as the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Service is composed of a headquarters office in Washington, DC, 7 regional offices in the lower 48 States and Alaska, and a variety of field units and installations. These include 434 National Wildlife Refuges and 150 Waterfowl Production Areas comprising more than 90 million acres; 12 major fish and wildlife laboratories and centers; 36 cooperative research units at universities across the country; 73 National Fish Hatcheries; and a nationwide network of wildlife law enforcement agents.

The mission of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, which is responsible for migratory birds, endangered species, certain marine mammals, inland sport fisheries, and specific fishery and wildlife research activities, is to conserve, protect, and enhance fish and wildlife and their habitats for the continuing benefit of the American people. Within this framework, the Service assists in the development of an environmental stewardship ethic for our society based on ecological principles, scientific knowledge of wildlife, and a sense of moral responsibility; works with the States to improve the conservation and management of the Nation's fish and wildlife resources; and administers a national program providing opportunities to the American public to understand, appreciate, and wisely use these resources.

In the area of resource management, the Service provides leadership for the protection and improvement of land and water environments (habitat preservation), which directly benefits the living natural resources and adds quality to human life. Activities include biological monitoring through scientific research; surveillance of pesticides, heavy metals, and thermal pollution; studies of fish and wildlife populations; ecological studies; environmental impact assessment, including hydroelectric dams, nuclear power sites, stream channelization, dredge, and fill permits; associated research; and environmental impact statement review.

The Service is responsible for improving and maintaining fish and wildlife resources by proper management of migratory birds and other wildlife. It also assists in fulfilling the public demand for recreational fishing while maintaining the Nation's fisheries at a level and in a condition that will ensure their continued survival. Specific wildlife and fishery resources programs include:

Migratory birds—wildlife refuge management for production, migration, and wintering; game law enforcement; research, including bird banding and harvest and survival rate studies; breeding, migrating, and wintering surveys; and disease studies;

Mammals and nonmigratory birds—refuge management of resident species (primarily big game); law enforcement; research on disease and population distribution, including marine mammals and species transplants; and technical assistance;

Cooperative fish and wildlife research units—located at universities to conduct research and supervise graduate student research, complementing the Service's wildlife and fishery research programs;

Coastal anadromous fish—hatchery production, stocking, and research on nutrition, disease, and habitat requirements in 16 of the 24 coastal States;

Great Lakes fisheries—hatchery production of lake trout; fishery management in cooperation with Canada and the States, and research; and

Other inland fisheries—hatchery production and stocking of Indian lands; technical assistance; and research on genetics, disease, nutrition, and taxonomy.

The Service provides national and international leadership in the area of identifying, protecting, and restoring endangered species of fish, wildlife, and plants. This program includes development of species lists, recovery plans, conduct of status surveys, coordination of efforts nationally and internationally; research on propagation methods, distribution, genetics, and behavior; operation of wildlife refuges; law enforcement, foreign importation enforcement; and consultation with foreign countries.

Public information programs include preparation of news releases, leaflets, and brochures; operation of environmental study areas on Service lands for use by school groups and teachers; operation of visitor centers, self-guided nature trails, observation towers, display ponds, and providing recreational activities, such as hunting, fishing, and wildlife photography.

The Service's Federal aid programs apportion funds to the States and territories for projects designed to conserve, develop, and enhance the Nation's fish and wildlife resources.

National Park Service

The National Park Service was established in the Department of the Interior on August 25, 1916 (39 Stat. 535; 16 U.S.C. 1).

The National Park Service administers for the American people an extensive system of national parks, monuments, historic sites, and recreation areas. The objectives of the National Park Service are to administer the properties under its jurisdiction for the enjoyment and education of our citizens, to protect the natural environment of the areas, and to assist States, local governments, and citizen groups in the development of park areas, the protection of the natural environment, and the preservation of historic properties.

The National Park Service has a Service Center in Denver that provides planning, architectural, engineering, and other professional services; and a Center for production of interpretive exhibits, audiovisual materials, and publications in Harpers Ferry, WV. There are more than 337 units in the National Park System, including national parks and monuments of noteworthy natural and scientific value; scenic parkways, riverways, seashores, lakeshores, recreation areas, and reservoirs; and historic sites associated with important movements, events, and personalities of the American past.

Activities The National Park Service develops and implements park management plans and staffs the areas under its administration. It relates the natural values and historical significance of these areas to the public through talks, tours, films, exhibits, publications, and other interpretive media. It operates campgrounds and other visitor facilities and provides—usually through concessions—lodging, food, and transportation services in many areas.

The National Park Service also administers the following programs: the State portion of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, the Nationwide Outdoor Recreation Plan and State comprehensive outdoor recreation planning, the Urban Park and Recreation Program, park and recreation technical services, planning for the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System, and the National Trails System, natural area programs, the National Register of Historic Places, national historic landmarks, historic preservation, technical preservation services, Historic American Buildings Survey, Historic American Engineering Record, and interagency archeological services.

Bureau of Mines

The Bureau of Mines was established July 1, 1910, in the Department of the Interior by the Organic Act of May 16, 1910 (36 Stat. 369; 30 U.S.C. 1, 3, 5–7), as amended. The 1910 act has been supplemented by several statutes, including those authorizing production and sale of helium, and research on environmental problems associated with minerals.

The Bureau of Mines is primarily a research and factfinding agency. Its goal is to help ensure that the Nation has adequate supplies of nonfuel minerals for security and other needs. Research is conducted to provide the technology for the extraction, processing, use, and recycling of the Nation's nonfuel mineral resources at a reasonable cost without harm to the environment or the workers involved. Typical areas of research are investigations of ways to use domestic low-grade ores as alternative sources of strategic and critical minerals that must currently be imported, mine health and safety, recycling of solid wastes, and abatement of pollution and land damage caused by mineral extraction and processing operations.

The Bureau also collects, compiles, analyzes, and publishes statistical and economic information on all phases of nonfuel mineral resource development, including exploration, production, shipments, demand, stocks, prices, imports, and exports. Special studies are frequently made on subjects of particular national interest, such as the effects of potential economic, technologic, or legal developments on resource availability. The effects of policy alternatives on mineral supply and demand are also analyzed.

Geological Survey

National Center, 12201 Sunrise Valley Drive, Reston, VA 22092

The Geological Survey was established by the act of March 3, 1879 (20 Stat. 394; 43 U.S.C. 31), which provided for "the classification of the public lands and the examination of the geological structure, mineral resources, and products of the national domain." The act of September 5, 1962 (76 Stat. 427; 43 U.S.C. 31(b)), expanded this authorization to include such examinations outside the national domain. Topographic mapping and chemical and physical research were recognized as an essential part of the investigations and studies authorized by the act of March 3, 1879, and specific provision was made for them by Congress in the act of October 2, 1888 (25 Stat. 505, 526).

Provision was made in 1894 for gauging the streams and determining the water supply of the United States (28 Stat. 398). Authorizations for publication, sale, and distribution of material prepared by the Geological Survey are contained in several statutes (43 U.S.C. 41–45; 44 U.S.C. 260–262).

The Geological Survey's primary responsibilities are: identifying the Nation's land, water, energy, and mineral resources; classifying federally owned lands for minerals and energy resources and water power potential; investigating natural hazards such as earthquakes, volcanoes, and landslides; and conducting the National Mapping Program. To attain these objectives, the Geological Survey prepares maps, collects and interprets data on energy, mineral, and water resources, performs fundamental and applied research in the sciences and techniques involved, and publishes and disseminates the results of its investigations in thousands of new maps and reports each year.

Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement

The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE) was established in the Department of the Interior by the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (91 Stat. 4450).

The primary goal of the Office is to assist the States in developing a nationwide program that protects society and the environment from the adverse effects of coal mining, while ensuring that coal surface mining can be done without permanent damage to land and water resources. The Office's main objectives, now that most coal-mining States have assumed primary responsibility for regulating coal mining and reclamation activities within their borders, are to oversee mining and reclamation in States with primary responsibility, to assist States in meeting the objectives of the act, and to regulate mining and reclamation activities in those States choosing not to assume primary responsibility.

Headquarters for the Office is located in Washington, DC. In addition, Assistant Directors in Pittsburgh (Eastern Operations) and Denver (Western Operations) coordinate the activities of 13 field offices, 8 area offices, and 2 technical centers. The field offices interact with the States and other Federal agencies, assisting the States in implementing their regulatory and reclamation programs. The technical centers are designed to give technical assistance to State regulatory authorities; to provide technical expertise on such matters as unsuitability petitions; environmental impact statements; and to perform mine plan and permit application reviews on Federal lands.

Activities Major activities of the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement are carried out through the Office of the Director, assisted by two Deputy Directors and five Assistant Directors. The Director establishes national policy for the conduct of the surface mining control and reclamation program provided for in the act; reviews and approves amendments to previously approved State programs; and provides overall direction to the agency.

Supporting the immediate Office of the Director are staff offices providing policy guidance and assistance in the areas of congressional, public, and external affairs. Program evaluation and equal opportunity offices also report to the Director.

The Deputy Director for Administration and Finance is responsible for the development and operation of an integrated and computerized financial management process that applies to the full range of collections, disbursements, and accounting for all OSMRE funds and accounts. Assisting the Deputy Director for Administration and Finance are two Assistant Directors.

The Assistant Director for Budget and Administration:

—formulates policy and provides guidance for budget formulation and execution, personnel, administrative services, and records management.

The Assistant Director for Finance and Accounting:

—manages all financial systems, including the collection of civil penalties and abandoned mine lands fees;

—audits abandoned mine land fee payments; and —provides policy and direction for all financial programs in OSMRE.

An Information Systems Management staff provides centralized ADP management services for all OSMRE offices. The staff manages the nationwide data management systems of OSMRE and provides oversight and management of all ADP contracts and procurements affecting OSMRE headquarters and field units. The Office also manages the long-range OSMRE ADP program, including the telecommunications, automated information, and micro-processing requirements of the agency.

The Deputy Director for Operations and Technical Services is responsible for managing the services of the field offices and technical centers, which are under the supervision of the Assistant Director for Eastern and Western Field Operations.

Also reporting to the Deputy Director for Operations and Technical Services is the Assistant Director for Program Operations, who is responsible for establishing technical standards and regulatory policy for OSMRE reclamation and enforcement efforts; providing guidance for environmental considerations, research, training, and technology transfer for State and Federal regulatory and abandoned mine land reclamation programs; and providing direction and leadership for the State Program Assistance Permit and Environmental Analysis, Abandoned Mine Lands, Reclamation and Technology and Regulation and Inspection Divisions.

The Assistant Directors for Eastern and Western Field Operations are responsible for managing the day-to-day operations of the OSMRE field installations. Reporting to the Assistant Director East (Pittsburgh) are the Eastern Technical Center in Pittsburgh and Field Offices in Alabama, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Reporting to the Assistant Director West (Denver) are the Western Technical Center in Denver, and Field Offices in Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Wyoming.

Bureau of Indian Affairs

The Bureau of Indian Affairs was created as part of the War Department in 1824 and transferred to the Department of the Interior at the time of its establishment in 1849. The Snyder Act of 1921 (42 Stat. 208; 25 U.S.C. 13) provided substantive law for appropriations covering the conduct of activities by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. The scope and character of the authorizations contained in this act were broadened by the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 (48 Stat. 984; 25 U.S.C. 461 et seq.), the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975 (88 Stat. 2203; 25 U.S.C. 450), and title XI of the Education Amendments of 1978 (92 Stat. 2313; 20 U.S.C. 2701 note).

The principal objectives of the Bureau are to actively encourage and train Indian and Alaska Native people to manage their own affairs under the trust relationship to the Federal Government; to facilitate, with maximum involvement of Indian and Alaska Native people, full development of their human and natural resource potential; to mobilize all public and private aids to the advancement of Indian and Alaska Native people for use by them; and to utilize the skill and capabilities of Indian and Alaska Native people in the direction and management of programs for their benefit.

Functions In carrying out these objectives, the Bureau works with Indian and Alaska Native people, other Federal agencies, State and local governments, and other interested groups in the development and implementation of effective programs for their advancement.

The Bureau seeks for them adequate educational opportunities in public education systems, assists them in the creation and management of educational systems for their own benefit, or provides from Federal resources the educational systems needed; actively promotes the improvement of their social welfare by working with them to obtain and provide needed social and community development programs and services; works with them in the development and implementation of programs for their economic advancement and for full utilization of their natural resources consistent with the principles of resource conservation.

The Bureau also acts as trustee for their lands and moneys held in trust by the United States, assisting them to realize maximum benefits from such resources.

Minerals Management Service

The Minerals Management Service (MMS) was established on January 19, 1982, by Secretarial Order No. 3071, under the authority provided by section 2 of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1950 (64 Stat. 1262). All Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) leasing responsibilities of the Department of the Interior were consolidated within MMS on May 10, 1982, by amendment 1 to Secretarial Order No. 3071. Amendment 2, dated May 26, 1982, set forth the basic organizational structure for MMS and provided for the transfer of administrative functions.

Secretarial Order No. 3087, dated December 3, 1982, and amendment 1, dated February 7, 1983, provided for the transfer of royalty and mineral revenue management functions, including collection and distribution, to the Minerals Management Service and transferred all onshore minerals management functions on Federal and Indian lands to the Bureau of Land Management.

MMS assesses the nature, extent, recoverability, and value of leasable minerals on the Outer Continental Shelf. It ensures the orderly and timely inventory and development, as well as the efficient recovery, of mineral resources; encourages utilization of the best available and safest technology; provides for fair, full, and accurate returns to the Federal Treasury for produced commodities; and safeguards against fraud, waste, and abuse.

Offshore Minerals Management MMS is responsible for resource evaluation and classification, environmental review, leasing activities (including public liaison and planning functions), lease management, and inspection and enforcement programs for Outer Continental Shelf lands.

Five-year oil and gas leasing programs are developed for leasing on OCS in consultation with the Congress, the 23 coastal States, local governments, environmental groups, industry, and the public.

MMS conducts extensive environmental studies and consultations with State officials prior to issuing leases. Once leases have been issued, MMS inspectors conduct frequent inspections of offshore operations, and MMS environmental studies personnel collect more data to ensure that marine environments are kept free of pollutants.

Royalty Management MMS is responsible for the collection of all royalty payments, rentals, bonus payments, fines, penalties, assessments, and other revenues due the Federal Government and Indian lessors as monies or royalties-in-kind from the extraction of mineral resources from Federal and Indian lands onshore and from the leasing and extraction of mineral resources on the Outer Continental Shelf.

The revenues generated by minerals leasing are one of the largest nontax sources of income to the Federal Government. As specified by law, these revenues are distributed to the States, to the general fund of the Treasury, and to Indian tribes and allottees.

The basic organization of MMS consists of a headquarters in Washington, DC, with program components located in Reston and Herndon, VA; the Royalty Management Program, headquartered in Lakewood, CO; four OCS regional offices; and three administrative service centers.

Bureau of Land Management

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) was established July 16, 1946, by the consolidation of the General Land Office (created in 1812) and the Grazing Service (formed in 1934). This was done in accordance with the provisions of sections 402 and 403 of Presidential Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1946 (5 U.S.C. app.).

The Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 2743) enacted into law on October 21, 1976, repealed and replaced many obsolete or overlapping statutes. It provides a basic mission statement for BLM and establishes policy guidelines and criteria for the management of public lands and resources administered by the Bureau.

The Bureau's basic organization consists of a headquarters in Washington, DC, a Service Center in Denver, CO, and a Fire Center in Boise, ID, which have bureau-wide support responsibilities; and a field organization of State, district, and resource area offices. The Bureau also utilizes a system of advisory councils to assist in the development of management plans and policies.

The Bureau is responsible for the total management of 342 million acres of public lands. These lands are located primarily in the Far West and Alaska; however, scattered parcels are located in other States. In addition to minerals management responsibilities on the public lands, BLM also is responsible for subsurface resource management of an additional 370 million acres where mineral rights are owned by the Federal Government.

Resources managed by the Bureau include timber, hard minerals, oil and gas, geothermal energy, wildlife habitat, endangered plant and animal species, rangeland vegetation, recreation and cultural values, wild and scenic rivers, designated conservation and wilderness areas, and open space. Bureau programs provide for the protection (including fire suppression), orderly development, and use of the public lands and resources under principles of multiple use and sustained yield. Land use plans are developed with public involvement to provide orderly use and development while maintaining and enhancing the quality of the environment. The Bureau also manages watersheds to protect soil and enhance water quality; develops recreational opportunities on public lands; administers programs to protect and manage wild horses and burros; and, under certain conditions, makes land available through sale to individuals, organizations, local governments, and other Federal agencies when such transfer is in the public interest. Lands may be leased to State and local government agencies and to nonprofit organizations for certain purposes.

The Bureau oversees and manages the development of energy and mineral leases and ensures compliance with applicable regulations governing the extraction of these resources.

The Bureau has responsibility to issue rights-of-way, in certain instances, for crossing Federal lands under other agencies' jurisdiction. It also has general enforcement authority.

The Bureau is responsible for the survey of Federal lands and establishes and maintains public land records and records of mining claims. It administers a program of payments in lieu of taxes based on the amount of federally owned lands in counties and other units of local government.

Bureau of Reclamation

The Reclamation Act of 1902 (43 U.S.C. 371 et seq.) authorized the Secretary of the Interior to locate, construct, operate, and maintain works for the storage, diversion, and development of waters for the reclamation of arid and semiarid lands in the Western States. To perform these functions, the Secretary in July 1902 established a Reclamation Service in the Geological Survey. In March 1907 the Reclamation Service was separated from the Survey, and in June 1923 the name was changed to Bureau of Reclamation. The name was changed to the Water and Power Resources Service on November 6, 1979, by Secretarial Order No. 3042. The name was changed back to Bureau of Reclamation on May 18, 1981, by Secretarial Order No. 3064.

The basic objectives of the reclamation program are authorized by the act of 1902 and subsequent amendatory and supplemental acts to assist the States, local governments, and other Federal agencies to stabilize and stimulate local and regional economies, enhance and protect the environment, and improve the quality of life through development of water, other renewable resources, and related land resources throughout the 17 contiguous Western States.

Reclamation projects serve multiple purposes, including: municipal and industrial water supply, hydroelectric power generation, irrigation water service, water quality improvement, wind power, fish and wildlife enhancement, outdoor recreation, flood control, navigation, river regulation and control, and related activities authorized by Congress. Through contracts with project beneficiaries, the Bureau arranges for repayment to the Government of reimbursable project construction, operation, and maintenance costs. About 81 percent of all direct project costs are reimbursable. Interest is paid on costs allocated to power and to municipal and industrial water service.

Major reclamation functions include: investigation and development of plans for the regulation, conservation, and utilization of water and related resources, including basin-wide water resource studies and development of new sources of fresh water supplies, power capacity, and energy; design and construction of authorized projects for which funds have been appropriated by the Congress; repair and rehabilitation of existing projects; operation and maintenance of Bureau-constructed facilities that are not transferred to local organizations; review of operation and maintenance of Bureau-built facilities that have been transferred to local organizations; administration of the Small Reclamation Projects Act of 1956, and of loans for construction or rehabilitation of irrigation systems; and negotiation, execution, and administration of repayment contracts, and water-user operation and maintenance contracts.

The Bureau of Reclamation has responsibility for the operation and maintenance of 62 hydroelectric powerplants and the construction of new hydroelectric facilities on its projects, as authorized by the Congress.

In cooperation with other agencies, the Bureau prepares and/or reviews environmental statements for proposed Federal water resource projects and renders technical assistance to foreign countries in water resource development and utilization.

[For the Department of Justice statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 28, Chapter I, Part 0]

As the largest law firm in the Nation, the Department of Justice serves as counsel for its citizens. It represents them in enforcing the law in the public interest. Through its thousands of lawyers, investigators, and agents, the Department plays the key role in protection against criminals and subversion, in ensuring healthy competition of business in our free enterprise system, in safeguarding the consumer, and in enforcing drug, immigration, and naturalization laws. The Department also plays a significant role in protecting citizens through its efforts for effective law enforcement, crime prevention, crime detection, and prosecution and rehabilitation of offenders.

Moreover, the Department conducts all suits in the Supreme Court in which the United States is concerned. It represents the Government in legal matters generally, rendering legal advice and opinions, upon request, to the President and to the heads of the executive departments. The Attorney General supervises and directs these activities, as well as those of the U.S. attorneys and U.S. marshals in the various judicial districts around the country.

The Department of Justice was established by the act of June 22, 1870 (16 Stat. 162; 28 U.S.C. 501, 503), with the Attorney General as its head. Prior to 1870 the Attorney General was a member of the President's Cabinet, but not the head of a department, the office having been created under authority of the act of September 24, 1789, as amended (1 Stat. 92, 16 Stat. 162; 28 U.S.C. 503).

The affairs and activities of the Department of Justice are generally directed by the Attorney General. The offices, divisions, bureaus, and boards of the Department are described below.

Offices

Attorney General The Attorney General, as head of the Department of Justice and chief law officer of the Federal Government, represents the United States in legal matters generally and gives advice and opinions to the President and to the heads of the executive departments of the Government when so requested. The Attorney General appears in person to represent the Government in the U.S. Supreme Court in cases of exceptional gravity or importance.

Deputy Attorney General The Deputy Attorney General advises and assists the Attorney General in formulating and implementing Department policies and programs and in providing overall supervision and direction to all organizational units of the Department.

The Deputy Attorney General is authorized to exercise all the power and authority of the Attorney General, except where such power or authority is prohibited by law from delegation or has been delegated to another official. In the absence of the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General acts as Attorney General.

In addition, the Deputy Attorney General advises and assists the Attorney General in formulating and implementing Department policies and programs relating to criminal matters and coordinates the program activities of and has directional authority over the head of the Criminal Division, the Executive Office for United States Attorneys, the offices of each of the 94 U.S. Attorneys, the Bureau of Prisons, the Federal Prison Industries, Inc., the Pardon Attorney, the United States Marshals Service, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Office of Intelligence and Policy Review, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Office of Justice Programs, and the U.S. National Central Bureau (INTERPOL).

The United States Parole Commission is under the supervision of the Deputy Attorney General for administrative purposes.

The Office also administers the attorney hiring programs of the Department.

Associate Attorney General The Associate Attorney General advises and assists the Attorney General and the Deputy Attorney General in formulating and implementing policies and programs of the Department pertaining to civil matters and the overall management of the Department. He coordinates and has directional authority over the activities of the Antitrust, Civil, Civil Rights, Land and Natural Resources, and Tax Divisions, as well as the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees and the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. In the absence of the Attorney General and the Deputy Attorney General, he acts as Attorney General.

Solicitor General The Solicitor General represents the U.S. Government in cases before the Supreme Court. He decides what cases the Government should ask the Supreme Court to review and what position the Government should take in cases before the Court, and he supervises the preparation of the Government's Supreme Court briefs and other legal documents and the conduct of the oral arguments in the Court. He or his staff argue most of the Government's cases in the Supreme Court. The Solicitor General's duties also include deciding whether the United States should appeal in all cases it loses before the lower courts.

Legal Counsel The Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Office of Legal Counsel assists the Attorney General in his function as legal adviser to the President and all the executive branch agencies. The Office drafts legal opinions of the Attorney General rendered in response to requests from the President and heads of the executive departments. It also provides its own written opinions and informal advice in response to requests from the various agencies of the Government as well as offices within the Department and from Presidential staff and advisers. Such requests typically deal with legal issues of particular complexity and importance about which two or more agencies are in disagreement or with pending legislation. The Office also is responsible for providing legal advice to the executive branch on all constitutional questions.

All Executive orders and proclamations proposed to be issued by the President are reviewed by the Office of Legal Counsel for form and legality, as are various other matters that require the President's formal approval.

In addition to serving as, in effect, outside counsel for the other agencies of the executive branch, the Office of Legal Counsel also functions as general counsel for the Department itself. It reviews all proposed orders of the Attorney General, and all regulations requiring his approval.

The Office coordinates the work of the Department with respect to treaties, executive agreements, and international organizations. It performs a variety of special assignments referred by the Attorney General or the Deputy Attorney General.

The Office of Legal Counsel is not authorized to give legal advice to private persons.

Legislative Affairs The Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Office of Legislative Affairs is responsible for liaison between the Department and Congress. The Office prepares reports and recommendations with respect to pending legislation originating in the Department of Justice or elsewhere in the Government. The Office coordinates all departmental efforts to advise the Congress on departmental views and to secure enactment of the Department's legislative agenda.

Office of Legal Policy A strategic legal "think tank" serving as the Attorney General's principal policy development staff, the Office of Legal Policy devotes itself to the study of issues central to the Department's policy agenda. Acting at the direction of the Attorney General and generating its own proposals as well, the Office undertakes the provision of legal and policy analysis necessary to undergird new Department initiatives. The Office's attorneys work to produce concrete strategies for legal reform in a wide variety of areas.

The Office works closely with other departmental divisions in establishing legislative and litigative approaches and with other agencies to help coordinate administration positions. The Office is charged also with a variety of continuing responsibilities, such as monitoring the potential impact on federalism posed by specific pending litigation, and coordinating efforts to assist the Attorney General in advising the President on potential Federal judicial nominees.

The Office of Information and Privacy, a separate office reporting to the Office of Legal Policy, manages departmental and government-wide duties related to the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act. Chief among the Office of Legal Policy's responsibilities is its long-term planning role in helping to shape the terms of national debate on critical legal policy issues.

Pardon Attorney The Office of the Pardon Attorney, in consultation with the Attorney General or his designee, assists the President in the exercise of Executive clemency as authorized under Article II, section 2, of the Constitution. Generally, all requests for Executive clemency are directed to the Pardon Attorney for investigation and review. Executive clemency may take several forms, including pardon, commutation (reduction of sentence), remission of fine, and reprieve.

Community Relations Service The Community Relations Service (CRS) was created by title X of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000g et seq.). CRS is under the general authority of the Attorney General and is headed by a Director, appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Service fulfills its mission by providing onsite dispute resolution assistance through its field staff of mediators and conciliators working out of 10 regional offices. Under its mandate CRS is not restricted to issues stemming from alleged violations of a particular antidiscrimination statute, but can offer assistance in resolving any problem relating to race, color, or national origin discrimination. CRS not only aids in resolving disputes and difficulties as they erupt but also seeks to assist and support communities in developing local mechanisms to address future problems.

Primary activities of CRS include the use of conciliation and/or mediation processes to settle differences through a common understanding and voluntary action. Each process is composed of certain specialized techniques designed to deal with complex racial and ethnic issues. The goal of each, however, is the immediate reduction of community tension and the establishment of viable alternatives for resolving difficulties, short of coercion, violence, or litigation.

In conciliation, trained CRS experts serve as outside resources, providing an independent, objective perspective, as well as making recommendations for settlement of the issues involved.

Mediation is a more formal process in which the CRS professional mediator acts as a third party intervenor, assisting disputants to reach a mutually satisfactory settlement, with built-in, self-enforcing mechanisms.

Inherent in both processes is the technical assistance that CRS provides. This ranges from conducting training in conflict resolution to providing resource materials, program tools, and models indicating how other community groups or agencies dealt effectively with similar problems or issues.

CRS offers its assistance either on its own motion, when in its judgment peaceful relations among the citizens of a community are threatened, or upon request of appropriate State or local officials or other interested persons. The cooperation of the appropriate State and local, public and private agencies is sought in carrying out the agency's mission.

CRS also is responsible for continuing efforts to integrate into the United States almost 180,000 Cubans and Haitians who have entered the country since 1980 without documentation or imminent prospects of returning to their homelands. Effective March 6, 1983, CRS assumed responsibility for the Cuban/Haitian Reception Processing Program, substantially increasing its role in assisting with refugee-immigrant problems. This program was authorized by section 501(c) of the Refugee Education Assistance Act (94 Stat. 1799; 8 U.S.C. 1522 note) and was formerly administered by the Office of Refugee Settlement in the Department of Health and Human Services.

Justice Management Division Under the direction of the Assistant Attorney General for Administration, the Justice Management Division provides assistance to senior management officials relating to basic Department policy for auditing, evaluation, budget and financial management, personnel management and training, equal opportunity programs within the Department, automatic data processing and telecommunications, security, records management, procurement, real property and materiel management, and for all other matters pertaining to organization, management, and administration.

The Division provides direct administrative support services, such as procurement, budget, and finance, to the offices, boards, and divisions of the Department, certain services to the U.S. Marshals Service, and operates several central services such as personnel and payroll. The Division supplies automated litigation support as required to the Department of Justice and to other Federal agencies involved in litigation. It also oversees and coordinates the implementation of a Department of Justice case management system.

The Division develops and promulgates Department-wide policies, standards, and procedures for the management of automated information processing resources and for the directive system and reviews their implementation. The Division collects, organizes, and disseminates recorded information that is necessary for the Department to carry out its statutory mandate and provides general research and reference assistance regarding information to Department staff, other Government attorneys, and members of the public.

Professional Responsibility The Office of Professional Responsibility conducts investigations of allegations of misconduct by Department employees. The head of this Office is the Counsel on Professional Responsibility who serves as a special reviewing officer and adviser to the Attorney General and the Deputy Attorney General.

The Counsel and his staff receive and review information or allegations concerning conduct by a Justice Department employee that may violate the law, Department orders or regulations, or applicable standards of conduct.

The Counsel is authorized to conduct inquiries into such allegations. Those cases in which there appears to be a violation of the law may be referred to the investigative agency that has jurisdiction to investigate such violations. Other matters may be referred to the head of the organizational unit to which the employee is assigned or to its internal inspection unit.

In some cases, the matter will be referred directly to the Attorney General with a recommendation from the Counsel's Office as to whether the Counsel should conduct an investigation or whether a task force or an individual should be assigned to the Counsel's Office to make the investigation.

Office of Intelligence Policy and Review The Office of Intelligence Policy and Review, under the direction of the Counsel to the Attorney General for Intelligence Policy, is responsible for advising the Attorney General on all matters relating to the national security activities of the United States. The Office prepares and files all applications for surveillance under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978, assists Government agencies by providing legal advice on matters of national security law and policy and represents the Department of Justice on a variety of interagency committees such as the National Foreign Intelligence Council. The Office also comments on and coordinates other agencies views regarding proposed legislation affecting intelligence matters.

The Office serves as adviser to the Attorney General and various client agencies, including the Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Defense and State Departments concerning questions of law, regulation, and guidelines as well as the legality of domestic and overseas intelligence operations.

Executive Office for United States Attorneys Under the supervision of the Deputy Attorney General, the Executive Office for United States Attorneys (EOUSA) provides general executive assistance and supervision to the 94 offices of United States attorneys, including evaluating the performance of the offices of the United States attorneys, making appropriate reports and inspections, and taking corrective action where indicated. EOUSA directs the coordination of other organizational units of the Department with the United States attorneys' offices. In addition, EOUSA allocates personnel and financial resources and publishes and maintains the United States Attorneys' Manual and the United States Attorneys' Bulletin. EOUSA also supervises the operation of the Office of Legal Education, which includes the Attorney General's Advocacy Institute and the Legal Education Institute, which develops and conducts practical professional training for all Federal legal personnel. The Executive Office for United States Attorneys provides staff assistance, financial resources necessary to support the Attorney General's Advisory Committee of United States Attorneys and acts as administrator for the law enforcement coordinating committees of the Department of Justice.

EOUSA has an integral role in the appointment process of all assistant

United States attorneys, special assistant United States attorneys, as well as the appointment of United States attorneys. EOUSA provides legal opinions, interpretations, and advice to United States attorneys on concerns such as legislation, regulations, ethics, and departmental guidelines. EOUSA also drafts, reviews, and testifies on legislative proposals and regulations, and is responsible for maintaining effective liaison and guidance in intergovernmental legal affairs.

U.S. Trustee Program The Bankruptcy code of 1978 (92 Stat. 2549, 2662; 11 U.S.C. 101 et seq.) established the U.S. Trustee Program as a pilot effort in 10 geographic areas encompassing 18 Federal judicial districts. The mission of the U.S. trustees is to ensure compliance with the bankruptcy laws and to supervise the administration of bankruptcy cases and trustees, leaving traditional judicial functions as the sole concern of bankruptcy judges.

The U.S. trustees administer three of the four types of bankruptcy proceedings defined under the Bankruptcy code. These are: proceedings under chapter 7 in which the assets of the debtor are liquidated; reorganization proceedings under chapter 11 for rehabilitation of the business debtor; and adjustment of debts of an individual with regular income under chapter 13, pursuant to which an individual can discharge debts by arranging for payments over a period of time, usually not to exceed 36 months. The U.S. trustee has no role in proceedings under chapter 9, which relates to the adjustment of debts of a municipality.

Specific responsibilities of the U.S. Trustees include appointing and supervising the performance of private trustees in individual cases; appointing and convening creditors' committees in chapter 11 corporate reorganization cases; reviewing applications for the retention of professionals and the payment of fees; reviewing disclosure statements and submitting statements to the court regarding their adequacy; appointing trustees or examiners in such cases as needed; recommending court approval of trustees or examiners in such cases as needed; ensuring that the assets involved in bankruptcy cases are protected during the administration of cases; and serving as trustees in chapters 7 and 13 cases where private trustees are unwilling to serve.

Executive Office for U.S. Trustees The Attorney General is charged with the appointment, supervision, and coordination of the U.S. trustees and assistant U.S. trustees. Day-to-day policy and legal direction, coordination, and control are provided by the Director of the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees. The Executive Office also provides administrative and management support to the individual Trustee Offices.

Divisions

Antitrust Division

The Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Antitrust Division is responsible for promoting and maintaining competitive markets by enforcing the Federal antitrust laws. Such enforcement, which is the principal function of the Division, involves investigating possible antitrust violations, conducting grand jury proceedings, preparing and trying antitrust cases, prosecuting appeals, and negotiating and enforcing final judgments. The antitrust laws affect virtually all industries and apply to every phase of business, including manufacturing, transportation, distribution, and marketing. They prohibit a variety of practices that restrain trade, such as price-fixing conspiracies, corporate mergers likely to reduce the competitive vigor of particular markets, and predatory acts designed to achieve or maintain monopoly power. The Division prosecutes serious and willful violations of the antitrust laws by filing criminal suits, which can lead to large fines and jail sentences. Where criminal prosecution is not appropriate, the Division seeks a court order forbidding future violations of the law and requiring steps by the defendant to remedy the anticompetitive effects of past violations.

The Division also is responsible for acting as an advocate of competition within the Federal Government. This involves formal appearances in Federal administrative agency proceedings, development of legislative initiatives to promote deregulation and eliminate unjustifiable exemptions from the antitrust laws, participation on executive branch policy task forces, and publication of reports on regulated industry performance. The Division provides formal advice to other agencies on the competitive implications of proposed transactions requiring Federal approval, such as construction of nuclear powerplants and mergers of financial institutions. It also consults with Federal agencies on a variety of other matters, including the issuance of Federal coal and oil drilling leases and the disposition of surplus Government property.

In addition, the Antitrust Division represents the United States in judicial proceedings to review certain orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Maritime Commission, Federal Communications Commission, and Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and provides direct court representation for the Secretary of the Treasury. It also participates in Federal Trade Commission cases before the Supreme Court.

In the international law area, the Division represents the United States on the Restrictive Business Practices Committee of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, participates in the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, and, through the Department of State, maintains liaison with foreign governments on antimonopoly laws and policies.

Civil Division

The Civil Division litigates on behalf of the United States, its departments and agencies, members of Congress, Cabinet officers, and other Federal employees acting in their official capacities. The work of the Division is as broad and varied as the activities of Government. Since the departments and agencies of the Government engage in innumerable commercial ventures, such as buying, selling, construction, shipping, production of energy, insurance and banking, the litigation arising from such activities encompasses the complete spectrum of legal problems encountered by private business enterprises. In addition, the Division confronts significant policy issues, often rising to constitutional dimensions, in defending and enforcing various Federal programs.

The Civil Division's litigation involves cases in all Federal district courts, the U.S. Courts of Appeals, U.S. Claims Court, and other Federal and State courts, and the courts of foreign nations. This litigation is conducted by attorneys of the Division or U.S. attorneys and by foreign counsel acting under the supervision of the Division and with its assistance. The Division is composed of seven major groups: Torts Branch, Commercial Litigation Branch, Federal Programs Branch, Office of Immigration Litigation, Office of Consumer Litigation, Appellate Staff, Regulatory and Legislative Affairs Staff, and an Executive Office.

Torts The Torts Branch is responsible not only for suits under the Federal Tort Claims Act, including medical malpractice, aviation disasters, occupational health, and radiation exposure, but also maritime litigation and suits against individual officers or employees seeking personal money judgments against them.

This area of litigation more specifically includes defense of all Federal Tort Claims Act suits against the United States or against cost-plus-fixed-fee contractors with the Government and the prosecution of suits in tort on behalf of the United States. Suits and administrative claims for death, personal injury, and property damage brought under the Tort Claims Act allege negligence on the part of Government employees acting within the scope of their employment and involve matters ranging from the operation of Government vehicles and maintenance of Government premises to the performance of Federal services and regulatory functions, such as the furnishing of medical treatment and hospital care, and control of commercial airline traffic.

It also involves all legal proceedings by and against the United States relating to ships, shipping, navigable waters, and workmen's compensation. Admiralty litigation includes suits for personal injury and property damage involving vessels, shore installations, and maritime personnel, equipment and cargoes; suits arising out of contracts involving shipping, chartering of vessels, and the construction, repair, and salvaging of vessels; proceedings to enforce navigation and shipping laws; and litigation based on international maritime agreements.

Commercial Litigation The Commercial Litigation Branch is responsible for litigation involving all contract actions, cases arising under grants, subsidies, or insurance undertakings by the Government, foreclosures, bankruptcies, renegotiation suits, suits under the Customs laws, military and civilian pay suits, patent or copyright infringement suits, as well as civil fraud, bribery and antikickback cases, the collection of civil fines and penalties, foreign law and judgment enforcement.

This area of litigation includes all monetary suits involving contracts, express or implied; treble damage claims under the Elkins Act, and claims under various other statutes; actions to foreclose on FHA housing project mortgages and other Government mortgages and liens; bankruptcy and insolvency proceedings; and suits against guarantors and sureties.

In the fraud area, it involves all civil actions under the False Claims Act and related statutes for the recovery of double damages and civil penalties, or comparable remedies, upon proof of loss to the Government sustained through fraud in the award or performance of Government contracts; false claims presented in connection with Federal programs; the submission of false statements and vouchers to Government agencies; the use of other fraudulent devices in transactions with the Government; and suits to recover sums paid to bribe Government officials and kickbacks in Government procurement.

This Branch is responsible for all cases in the U.S. Court of International Trade, including suits brought by importers of merchandise to challenge the appraisement or classification of imported goods or other decisions of the U.S. Customs Service arising out of the administration of the tariff laws and schedules.

Litigation responsibilities in the Claims Court include all cases in this court, except those assigned to the Land and Natural Resources and Tax Divisions. Included are patent cases and suits arising out of construction, procurement, service contracts, and claims arising out of contract terminations; claims involving freight rate disputes arising out of the transportation of Government property; claims for just compensation under the fifth amendment; claims for salary or retirement by civilian and military personnel; cases assigned by congressional reference or special legislation and defense of excessive profit determinations by the Renegotiation Board.

Effective October 1, 1982, the United States Court of Claims and the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals were consolidated as a new national circuit court known as the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. There was also created a new United States Claims Court, whose decisions are reviewed by the new circuit court and that performs the trial functions of the former Court of Claims. Attorneys from the Commercial Litigation Branch represent the United States in the majority of cases before the new courts.

In the area of patent, copyright, and trademark cases, the Branch handles all litigation involving the rights, liabilities, and administrative functions of the Government with respect to these matters. This includes the defense of patent infringement suits based on the liability of the United States for infringements in connection with the performance of Government contracts; legal proceedings to establish Government priority of invention; suits for specific performance to require transfer of rights and title and payment of royalties; suits to cancel patents acquired by fraud upon the Patent Office; the defense of administrative acts of the Register of Copyrights; and actions on behalf of the Government involving the use of trademarks.

The Office of Foreign Litigation in the Commercial Litigation Branch is responsible for all legal proceedings in foreign tribunals against diplomatic and consular agents of the United States and civilian or military personnel stationed abroad who are being sued for acts that they have performed in the course of their Government service; assertion of sovereign immunity in suits against foreign states in American domestic courts, in instances where the Department of State has recognized such immunity; and rendering international judicial assistance to foreign and international tribunals.

In addition, this Branch handles enforcement of all money judgments, arising in connection with cases under the jurisdiction of the Civil Division or referred to it by other agencies, and of compromise and settlement agreements providing for deferred payments. Such activities include the obtaining and enforcement of liens and writs of executions and garnishment; instituting actions to set aside fraudulent conveyances and for restitution of diverted and converted assets; the establishment of receiverships and assertion of claims therein and in bankruptcy, decedent estate, and trustee proceedings; and supplementary proceedings and other post-judgment investigative and collection activities.

The Branch also is concerned with alien property cases and administrative functions that include all suits in Federal courts and administrative claims resulting from seizure and vesting of alien property during World War II and the management and liquidation of all such assets vested.

Federal Programs The Federal Programs Branch defends approximately 100 Government agencies when they are sued concerning their programs, policies, and decisions. Generally, these suits are injunctive or mandamus actions alleging that particular statutes, regulations, or Presidential initiatives are invalid under the Constitution or other laws. The Federal Programs Branch defends suits seeking judicial review of agency actions or decisions, suits concerning Federal personnel practices, and suits concerning access to or the protection of Government information. It is also responsible for bringing affirmative litigation to prevent or remedy violations of Federal statutes and regulations.

This area of litigation includes the defense of suits against the heads of Federal departments and agencies and other officials of the Government to enjoin official action and suits for judicial review of the orders of administrative agencies; the defense and prosecution of suits involving national security, including suits to protect sensitive intelligence sources and materials; prosecution of all suits to prevent interference with Government operations; intervention in litigation challenging the constitutionality of acts of the Congress; suits under the Taft-Hartley Act to enjoin strikes and lockouts; actions to enforce provisions of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959; and general litigation under various Federal statutes.

It also involves the defense in the courts of all litigation involving suits brought under the Freedom of Information, Privacy, Federal Advisory Committee, and Sunshine Acts and related causes of action, on behalf of most Government departments and agencies.

Appellate Staff The Appellate Staff's work encompasses all the areas of the Division's litigation. The Appellate Staff directly handles approximately 1300 appeals from United States District Courts to the Courts of Appeal, or approximately two-thirds of the yearly caseload in appellate civil litigation. The Staff's handling of these appeals includes preparing the Government's briefs and presenting oral argument. In addition, the Appellate Staff participates in drafting all documents, including briefs on the merits, petitions for certiorari, and jurisdictional statements, filed in the United States Supreme Court in Civil Division cases.

Office of Consumer Litigation The Office of Consumer Litigation is responsible for litigation and related matters arising under various consumer protection statutes, including the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, Federal Trade Commission Act, Consumer Product Safety Act, Hazardous Substances Act, and the Truth in Lending Act. The Office also maintains liaison with State and local enforcement agencies and other Federal agencies for referral of consumer complaints outside the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

Office of Immigration Litigation The Office of Immigration Litigation is responsible for the conduct of civil litigation under the Immigration and Nationality Act and related laws, and representation of the United States in civil litigation brought against employees of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. In addition, this Office handles district court litigation, deportation review proceedings, habeas corpus review and general advice, and immigration-related appellate matters.

Regulatory and Legislative Affairs Staff The Regulatory and Legislative Affairs Staff is responsible for developing the Division's regulatory and legislative policy program and advising the Assistant Attorney General on regulatory and legislative proposals and enactments affecting the Civil Division. The Office coordinates the Division's affirmative legislative program and preparation of congressional testimony, preparation of responses to legislative inquiries and communications with the Department's Office of Legislative Affairs and the Office of Management and Budget.

Civil Rights Division

The Civil Rights Division, headed by an Assistant Attorney General, was established in 1957 in response to the need to secure effective Federal enforcement of civil rights.

This Division is responsible for enforcing Federal civil rights laws that prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, religion, and in some instances, sex, or handicap in the areas of voting, education, employment, housing, credit, the use of public facilities and public accommodations, and in the administration of federally assisted programs. The congressional statutes enforced are, inter alia, the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 (71 Stat. 634; 42 U.S.C. 1975), 1960 (74 Stat. 88, 90; 42 U.S.C. 1971, 1974), 1964 (78 Stat. 241; 42 U.S.C. 2000a–h), and 1968 (82 Stat. 73, 81; 18 U.S.C. 245, 42 U.S.C. 3601–3619, 3631), the Voting Rights Act of 1965 , as amended (79 Stat. 437,445; 42

U.S.C. 1971,1973), the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, as amended in 1976 (90 Stat. 251; 15 U.S.C. 1691), and the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 349; 42 U.S.C. 1997).

The Division also is responsible for the implementation of Executive Order 12250 of November 2, 1980, which requires coordination of efforts of Executive agencies and Departments to eliminate discrimination based on race, color, national origin, sex, religion, and handicap in programs receiving Federal financial assistance and discrimination based on handicap in federally conducted programs.

The Civil Rights Division also has the obligation to enforce specific criminal statutes including those concerning willful deprivation of constitutional rights under color of law or through conspiracy and violent interference with federally protected activities (18 U.S.C. 241, 242, 245).

The Civil Rights Division is divided into eight organizational units, each of which has jurisdiction over particular subject areas and related statutes. With the approval of the Assistant Attorney General and, where necessary, the Attorney General and Solicitor General, each litigating section undertakes or authorizes investigations, conducts negotiations, and initiates and conducts litigation. An appellate section handles most appeals.

For further information, contact the Executive Officer, Civil Rights Division, Department of Justice, Tenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20530. Phone, 202–633–4224.

Criminal Division

The Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Criminal Division formulates criminal law enforcement policies, enforces, and exercises general supervision over all Federal criminal laws except those specifically assigned to the Antitrust, Civil Rights, Land and Natural Resources, and Tax Divisions. The Criminal Division also supervises certain civil litigation incidental to Federal law enforcement activities.

Organized Crime and Racketeering Section The Organized Crime and Racketeering Section conducts investigations and prosecutes cases to suppress the illicit activities carried on by organized crime groups in major U.S. cities. Most of the attorneys in this section are assigned to organized crime strike forces and field offices housing representatives of Federal enforcement agencies and, in some instances, State and local enforcement agencies operating in 25 major cities around the country.

Narcotic and Dangerous Drugs Section The Narcotic and Dangerous Drugs Section investigates and prosecutes high-level drug traffickers and members of criminal organizations involved in the importation, manufacture, shipment, or distribution of illicit narcotics and dangerous drugs, with particular emphasis on litigation attacking the financial bases of those criminal organizations.

Internal Security Section The Internal Security Section investigates and prosecutes cases affecting the national security, foreign relations, and the export of military and strategic commodities and technology. It also administers and enforces the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938 and related statutes. The Section has exclusive prosecutorial responsibility for criminal statutes regarding espionage, sabotage neutrality, and atomic energy.

Fraud Section The Fraud Section directs and coordinates the Federal effort against fraud and white-collar crime, focusing primarily upon frauds against government programs and procurement, transnational and multidistrict fraud, the security and commodity exchanges, banking practices, and consumer victimization. The Section conducts investigations and prosecutes certain fraud cases of national significance or great complexity.

Public Integrity Section The Public Integrity Section investigates and prosecutes corruption cases involving public officials and the elective system at the Federal, State, and local levels.

Appellate Section The Appellate Section assists the Office of the Solicitor

General in obtaining favorable constitutional and statutory interpretations in criminal cases being heard on appeal before the United States Supreme Court and the 12 United States Courts of Appeals.

General Litigation and Legal Advice Section The General Litigation and Legal Advice Section investigates and prosecutes crimes under a broad spectrum of Federal criminal statutes regarding crimes against the Government and the public. The Section also handles certain civil matters, including the defense of civil actions to obtain information on or to interfere with criminal justice and national security operations and the defense of suits against actions taken by the Bureau of Prisons and the U.S. Parole Commission.

Office of International Affairs The Office of International Affairs supports the Department's legal divisions, the U.S. attorneys, and the State and local prosecutors regarding international criminal justice enforcement matters pursuant to treaties concerning extradition, mutual legal assistance, and prisoner exchange. The Office also engages in treaty negotiations with the State Department.

Office of Enforcement Operations The Office of Enforcement Operations oversees the use of sensitive and sophisticated investigative tools, such as witness protection and electronic surveillance. The Office also assists and supports government prosecutors by reviewing requests for authorization to compel testimony (immunity) and responding to inquiries under the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts.

Office of Legislation The Office of Legislation develops legislative proposals, legal memoranda, and congressional testimony and prepares comments upon pending and proposed legislation affecting the Federal criminal justice system. It also provides legal support to the Advisory Committee on Criminal Rules of the Judicial Conference regarding the Federal rules of criminal procedure.

Office of Policy and Management Analysis The Office of Policy and Management Analysis develops and recommends positions on policy and management issues for Department and Division officials, including developing priorities and objectives, program planning and evaluation, management improvement, and research liaison.

Office of Special Investigations The Office of Special Investigations detects, identifies, and takes appropriate legal action leading to the denaturalization and/or deportation of Nazi war criminals in the United States who were involved in the atrocities committed against civilian populations during the Second World War and who subsequently entered the United States illegally.

Office of Administration The Office of Administration provides all administrative support to each of the various sections, base offices, and field offices of the Division, including administrative management, automated data processing, procurement, the development of budget proposals, and the execution of financial plans.

Asset Forfeiture Office The Asset Forfeiture Office develops uniform policies and assists in the prosecution of both civil and criminal asset forfeiture cases, particularly regarding narcotics trafficking and organized crime. The Office adjudicates all judicial petitions for remission or mitigation of forfeited assets and determines equitable sharing of judicially forfeited assets with State and local law enforcement agencies.

Land and Natural Resources Division

The Land and Natural Resources Division represents the United States in litigation involving public lands and natural resources, environmental quality, Indian lands and claims, and wildlife resources. The fastest growing area of responsibility involves civil and criminal enforcement of environmental statutes. Although the cases filed by the Division in the area of hazardous chemical wastes are the most visible and complex, enforcement of the clean air and water laws is also a prominent part of the docket. Thus, the Division brings civil and criminal enforcement cases primarily on behalf of the Environmental Protection Agency for the control and abatement of pollution of air and water resources, the regulation and control of toxic substances, as well as the environmental hazards posed by hazardous wastes. In the hazardous waste area, most cases are brought under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 2767; 42 U.S.C. 9601) for the purposes of protecting public health and ensuring that responsible parties, rather than the public, bear the burden of abating hazardous waste pollution.

The various environmental enforcement statutes also generate a great deal of defensive litigation since many of the provisions of those laws also apply to Federal programs or activities. This litigation generally falls into one of two categories: suits by industry and environmental groups challenging agency regulations, and challenges to agency decisions relating to individual activities such as permits, grants, and variances.

The Division is also responsible for prosecuting and defending criminal and civil cases arising under the Federal wildlife laws and laws concerning the conservation and mangement of marine fish and mammals. Prosecutions focus on major smugglers of and black market dealers in protected species.

In addition, the Division represents the United States in cases where the Government supports rights claimed by individual Indians or Indian tribes. These include suits to establish water rights, to establish and protect hunting and fishing rights, to collect damages for trespassing on Indian lands, and to establish reservation boundaries and rights to land.

For much of the Division's 75 year history, its litigation has principally involved the management and development of the lands and resources owned by the United States. The Division acquires land for the Federal Government, either by direct purchase or condemnation proceedings, and seeks to implement the protections of the fifth amendment in a way that is fair to both property owners and taxpayers.

For further information, contact the Office of the Assistant Attorney General, Land And Natural Resources Division, Department of Justice, Tenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20530. Phone, 202-633-2701.

Tax Division

The Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Tax Division has responsibility for representing the United States and its officers in all civil and criminal litigation arising under the internal revenue laws, other than proceedings in the United States Tax Court. While the Division's primary client is the Internal Revenue Service, it also represents Federal officials and employees in actions arising out of their performance of their official duties, as well as representing other Federal departments and agencies in their dealings with State and local tax authorities. In civil tax litigation the Division's responsibility involves cases in the United States District Courts, the United States Claims Court, the United States Courts of Appeals, and the United States Supreme Court, including oral arguments on assignment by the Solicitor General, as well as cases in the State courts.

The Division represents the United States in many different types of disputes, both civil and criminal, dealing with the interpretation of Federal tax laws. For example, when the Internal Revenue Service challenges a tax return and assesses a deficiency, the taxpayer must pay the full amount of tax assessed and then bring a suit against the Government for refund. The Division defends the Government in these refund actions.

Other areas of civil litigation in which the Tax Division is involved on behalf of the Federal Government include suits brought by individuals to foreclose mortgages or to quiet title to property in which the United States is named as a party defendant because of the existence of a Federal tax lien on the property; suits brought by the United States to collect unpaid assessments, to foreclose Federal tax liens or determine the priority of such liens, to obtain judgments against delinquent taxpayers, to enforce summonses, and to establish tax claims in bankruptcy, receivership, or probate proceedings; proceedings involving mandamus, injunctions, and other specific writs arising in connection with internal revenue matters; suits against Internal Revenue Service employees for damages claimed because of alleged injuries caused in the performance of their official duties; suits against the Secretary of the Treasury, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, or similar officials to test the validity of regulations or rulings not in the context of a specific refund action; proceedings brought against the Tax Division and the Internal Revenue Service for disclosure of information under the Freedom of Information Act; and intergovernmental immunity suits in which the United States resists attempts to apply a State or local tax to some activity or property of the United States.The Division also administers and coordinates efforts to obtain the collection of outstanding judgments, fines, and penalties, and ensures the provision of effective monitoring of, and assistance to, the various United States attorneys' offices involved in the collection of outstanding judgments, fines, and penalties in tax cases.

With respect to criminal tax litigation, the Division has the responsibility of prosecuting or supervising the prosecution of all criminal offenses committed under the internal revenue laws, including attempts to evade and defeat taxes, willful failure to file returns and to pay taxes, filing false returns and other deceptive documents, making false statements to revenue officials, and other miscellaneous offenses involving internal revenue matters. These duties include the institution of criminal proceedings and collaboration with U.S. attorneys in the control and supervision of the actions in the trial and appellate courts. Further, Tax Division attorneys frequently conduct grand jury investigations and actual trials of criminal tax cases, often as a result of requests for assistance by the appropriate U. S. attorney or Strike Force. In its efforts to deter willful deception through prosecution of criminal offenders, the Tax Division has played a significant role in curbing organized crime.

The primary functions of the Division are to aid the Internal Revenue Service in collecting the Federal revenue and to establish principles of law that will serve as guidelines to taxpayers and their representatives, as well as to the Internal Revenue Service, in the administration of the Internal Revenue Code. As a result, coordination with the Internal Revenue Service's administrative policies and the Treasury Department's legislative tax concerns in developing litigating postures is essential.

The Division also provides input into the preparation of reports to the Congress, the Office of Management and Budget, and the Office of Legislative Affairs on pending or proposed legislation and monitors congressional activities with respect to matters of interest to the Division.

In accordance with the Attorney General's program to enhance the litigating skills of Department attorneys, the Division conducts training programs for its attorneys, with special emphasis on matters unique to tax litigation and the development of advocacy skills.

Federal Bureau of Investigation

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) is the principal investigative arm of the United States Department of Justice. It is charged with gathering and reporting facts, locating witnesses, and compiling evidence in cases involving Federal jurisdiction.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was established in 1908 by the Attorney General, who directed that Department of Justice investigations be handled by its own staff.

The FBI is charged with investigating all violations of Federal law except those that have been assigned by legislative enactment or otherwise to another Federal agency. The FBI's jurisdiction includes a wide range of responsibilities in the criminal, civil, and security fields. Priority has been assigned to the four areas that affect society the most—organized crime (including drug trafficking), terrorism, and white-collar crime.

On January 28, 1982, the Attorney General assigned concurrent jurisdiction for the enforcement of the Controlled Substances Act (84 Stat. 1242) to the FBI and the Drug Enforcement Administration

(DEA). The DEA Administrator reports to the Attorney General through the FBI Director.

The FBI also offers cooperative services such as fingerprint identification, laboratory examination, police training, and the National Crime Information Center to duly authorized law enforcement agencies.

FBI headquarters in Washington, DC, consists of 10 separate divisions, 3 Executive Assistant Directors, an Office of Congressional and Public Affairs, and a Director's staff.

The FBI's investigations are conducted through 59 field offices. Most of its personnel are trained at the FBI Academy in Quantico, VA.

Bureau of Prisons

320 First Street NW.,
Washington, DC 20534
Phone, 202-724-3198

The Federal Bureau of Prisons is an integral part of the Federal criminal justice system, and its primary mission is to protect society. The Bureau is responsible for the care and custody of those persons convicted of Federal crimes and sentenced by the courts to serve a period of time incarcerated in a Federal penal institution.

The Bureau carries out this responsibility by operating a nationwide system of maximum, medium, and minimum security prisons, and community program offices. Contract halfway houses and community program offices help ease the transition of Federal prisoners back into society after they have served their sentences. Men and women confined to Federal institutions are given a variety of services, including counseling, work, training, education, and recreation.

The Director of the Bureau of Prisons has general supervision over operations of Federal correctional institutions, commitment and management of Federal inmates, and contracting with local institutions for confinement and support of sentenced Federal prisoners.

The Central Office in Washington provides overall coordination of Bureau of Prisons operations on a nationwide basis, issues standards and policy guidelines, and retains responsibility for those activities not delegated to regional or field management levels. The Regional Offices, located in Philadelphia, Atlanta, Kansas City, Dallas, and Belmont, CA, near San Francisco, are responsible for the management of Bureau institutions and programs within each region.

The Central Office functions are carried out by the following divisions and organizations:

The Correctional Programs Division is responsible for unit management; case management; correctional services; psychology and drug abuse treatment; chaplaincy service; personnel management and training; criminal justice liaison and population movement and management.

The Administration Division has responsibility for long-range construction and program planning, development and construction of new facilities, construction and maintenance services for existing institutions, as well as Bureau budget, fiscal and business management responsibilities, and research.

The Medical and Services Division includes medical, psychiatric, dental, and health support services along with environmental health and safety, farm operations, and food service.

The Federal Prison Industries, Inc. (trade name UNICOR), is a wholly owned, self-supporting Government corporation that maintains 75 industrial operations in 40 institutions, providing goods and services for sale to Federal agencies. Policies of the corporation are directed by a board of six members appointed by the President. Responsibilities of the Division also include Bureau management information and administrative support services, education, vocational training, and recreation.

The National Institute of Corrections (NIC) was created as part of the Juvenile Justice and Prevention Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1139; 18 U.S.C. 4351), approved September 7, 1974.

NIC was established to provide leadership at the Federal level for upgrading State and local corrections. The Institute is both a grant-giving and direct-service agency. The mandates of the Institute are carried out through: developing staff at the State and local levels through training programs; encouraging and supporting research and evaluation of correctional operations and programs; serving as a clearinghouse and information center for the collection, preparation, and dissemination of correctional information; providing technical assistance to State and local corrections; and formulating and disseminating correctional policy, goals, standards, and recommendations for Federal, State, and local correctional agencies. The National Academy of Corrections, at Boulder, CO, trains correctional personnel throughout the United States.

The National Institute of Corrections is under the direction of a Director appointed by the Attorney General. An advisory board appointed by the Attorney General consisting of practitioners, private citizens, and Federal officials sets broad policy direction for the Institute.

The Office of General Counsel and Review, among its Bureau-wide legal responsibilities, administers sentence commutation, monitors litigation, and supervises a grievance system to resolve offender complaints.

United States Marshals Service [3]

One Tysons Corner Center, McLean, VA 22102
Phone, 703-285-1131

The United States Marshals Service is the Nation's oldest Federal law enforcement agency. U.S. marshals, who today operate in 94 Federal districts nationwide, have served as a link between the executive and judicial branches of our government since 1789.

The scope and detail of responsibilities given U.S. marshals have dramatically increased since the first 13 U.S. marshals were appointed by President George Washington pursuant to the first Judiciary Act of September 24, 1789 (1 Stat. 73). Today, the responsibilities of the Presidentially appointed marshals and their support staff of more than 2,500 deputy U.S. marshals and administrative personnel throughout the United States, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands reflect all aspects of the society they serve.

[1] Male and female offenders.
[2] Female offenders only.
[3] See pages 345 and 346 for the names and locations of the U.S. marshals.

The U.S. Marshals Service is responsible for providing support and protection to the Federal courts, including judges, attorneys, and jurors; the apprehension of most Federal fugitives; operation of the witness security program, ensuring the safety of endangered witnesses; the custody and transportation of thousands of Federal prisoners annually; daily execution of court orders and arrest warrants; the custody, management, and sale of property seized from criminals and administration of the National Asset Seizure and Forfeiture Program; and, through its Special Operations Group, the prevention of civil disturbances and restoration of order in riot or mob-violence situations.

The Director of the U.S. Marshals Service conducts general supervision over the operations of the Service throughout the 94 Federal districts. The Associate Director for Operations oversees the Service's operations in the areas of enforcement, court security, witness security, prisoner transportation, and prisoner support. The Associate Director for Administration is responsible for the operations of personnel management, procurement and property management, space, transportation and communications, information systems, and the U.S. Marshals Service Training Academy. The Assistant Director for Financial Management is responsible for providing guidance and staff support in areas of financial planning. The Assistant Director for Inspections is responsible for evaluating and investigating allegations of misconduct on the part of the U.S. Marshals Service personnel and for the preparation of comprehensive investigative reports.

International Criminal Police Organization-United States National Central Bureau

Shoreham Building, Suite 800, Washington, DC 20530
Phone, 202–272–8383

The International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) was created to promote mutual assistance between all law enforcement authorities in the prevention and suppression of international crime. Established in 1923 and reorganized in 1946, INTERPOL has grown from an organization comprised of a small number of European countries to a worldwide consortium consisting of 138 member countries.

U.S. participation in INTERPOL began in 1938 by congressional authorization. Operations were interrupted during World War II and resumed in 1947. At that time, the INTERPOL-United States National Central Bureau (INTERPOL-USNCB) was established under the jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). The FBI eventually withdrew from the organization and the Treasury Department continued an informal liaison with INTERPOL to maintain viable international contacts.

In 1958 the Attorney General officially designated the Treasury Department as the United States representative to INTERPOL. In 1977 an arrangement was effected between Justice Department and Treasury Department officials establishing dual authority in administering INTERPOL–USNCB. The memorandum of understanding between the Departments of Justice and the Treasury designates the Attorney General as the permanent representative to INTERPOL and the Secretary of the Treasury as the alternate representative. In addition, the positions of Chief and Deputy Chief for Investigations of INTERPOL–USNCB are filled on a rotating basis by employees of each Department. The Deputy Chief for Operations and Administration is a permanent Justice Department employee.

INTERPOL–USNCB serves as the United States liaison to INTERPOL. As such, this organization serves as the law enforcement communications link between the United States and 137 member countries of INTERPOL. Through the National Law Enforcement Telecommunications System (NLETS), the INTERPOL–USNCB serves as the communications link among more than 20,000 State and local law enforcement organizations. To address the problem of international crime, the INTERPOL–USNCB provides efficient communications between this country, other INTERPOL member countries, and INTERPOL headquarters and enables State and local police organizations and Federal law enforcement agencies to obtain the assistance of foreign law enforcement authorities.

The National Central Bureau (NCB) of each INTERPOL member country operates within the guidelines of its national laws and the INTERPOL constitution, which specifically prohibits member countries from intervention in, or activities or investigations of matters of a military, religious, racial, or political character. The international organization also functions in accordance with the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

The broad range of types of offenses warranting investigations by the INTERPOL–USNCB includes crimes of murder and other violent crimes, robbery, large-scale narcotics offenses, fraud and counterfeiting violations, and the location and apprehension of international fugitives, often involving arrests and extraditions to the countries where the crimes were committed. The types of requests include tracing misused licenses and weapons and pursuing humanitarian matters, such as missing persons cases. The INTERPOL–USNCB can assist foreign and domestic police departments in tracing license plates on vehicles believed to be stolen or involved in accidents. Through INTERPOL channels weapons can be traced, witnesses can be located and interviewed abroad, and criminal record checks can be conducted on applicants for government-issued permits and licenses.

The INTERPOL–USNCB operates through cooperative efforts with 13 other Federal law enforcement agencies. Currently, Justice Department representatives from the FBI, U.S. Marshals Service, Drug Enforcement Administration, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and the Criminal Division are assigned to INTERPOL–USNCB. In addition, the Treasury Department components, including the U.S. Customs Service, U.S. Secret Service, Internal Revenue Service, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center in Glynco, GA, provide detailed investigative and support personnel to the INTERPOL–USNCB. Other Federal agency participants in the INTERPOL–USNCB Program include the Office of the Inspector General in the Agriculture Department and the Inspection Service in the U.S. Postal Service.

For further information, contact INTERPOL–USNCB, Shoreham Building, Suite 800, Washington, DC 20530. Phone, 202–272–8383.

[For the Immigration and Naturalization Service statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 8, Part 100]

The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) was created by an act of Congress of March 3, 1891 (8 U.S.C. 1551 note). The purpose and responsibilities of INS were further established by the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 163; 8 U.S.C. 1101 note), as amended, which charges the Attorney General with the administration and enforcement of its provisions.

Unique to INS is the dual mission of providing information and service to the general public, while concurrently exercising its enforcement responsibilities.

The mission of INS is divided into four major areas of responsibility:

Aliens entering the United States—INS controls entry into the country, facilitates entry to qualified persons, and denies admission to unqualified aliens;

Aliens within the United States—INS concentrates on providing immigration benefits in a timely and equitable fashion, maintaining information on alien status, and deporting aliens not legally entitled to be in the country;

Naturalization and citizenship—The goal for the Service is to encourage and facilitate certification of citizenship;

Undocumented aliens—INS apprehends and removes those aliens who enter illegally and/or whose authorized stay in the United States has expired. INS also has a firm commitment to strengthen criminal investigations and seek the most effective deterrents to illegal immigration.

The Attorney General has delegated authority to the Commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service to carry out a national immigration policy that will administer and enforce the immigration laws and promote and protect the public health and safety, economic welfare, national security, and humanitarian interests of this country.

Drug Enforcement Administration

1405 I Street NW., Washington, DC 20537
Phone, 202–633–1000

The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) is the lead Federal agency in enforcing narcotics and controlled substances laws and regulations.

DEA was created in July 1973, by Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1973, to merge four separate drug law enforcement agencies.

DEA's priority mission is the long-term immobilization of major trafficking organizations through the removal of the leaders and assets upon which these organizations depend.

The primary responsibilities of DEA include: investigation of major narcotic violators who operate at interstate and international levels; enforcement of regulations governing the legal manufacture, distribution, and dispensing of controlled substances; management of a national narcotics intelligence system; coordination with Federal, State, and local law enforcement authorities and cooperation with counterpart agencies abroad; and training, scientific research, and information exchange in support of drug traffic prevention and control.

DEA manages the El Paso Intelligence Center (EPIC), a 24-hour-a-day tactical and strategic drug intelligence center that includes all 50 States and 9 other Federal agencies.

The Agency concentrates its efforts on high-level narcotics smuggling and distribution organizations in the United States and abroad, working closely with such agencies as the Customs Service, the Internal Revenue Service, and the Coast Guard.

DEA also chairs the 11-agency National Narcotics Intelligence Consumers Committee, which develops an annual report on drug production, trafficking, and abuse trends.

On January 21, 1982, the Attorney General gave the FBI concurrent jurisdiction with DEA over drug offenses. DEA's Administrator now reports to the Director of the FBI, who was given general supervision of drug enforcement effort.

DEA agents work side by side with FBI agents throughout the country in major drug cases—a significant change in narcotics law enforcement. Nearly 300 DEA compliance investigators enforce regulation of the legal manufacture and distribution of prescription drugs.

DEA also maintains an active training program for narcotics officers in other Federal, State, and local agencies—as well as foreign police. In an average year, some 6,400 Federal, State, and local officers receive special DEA training—plus some 1,000 foreign law enforcement officers.

DEA has offices throughout the United States and in 43 foreign countries.

Justice Assistance Act Agencies

633 Indiana Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20531
Phone, 202-724-7782

The Justice Assistance Act of 1984 (98 Stat. 2077; 42 U.S.C. 3711 note) restructured the criminal justice research and statistics units of the Department of Justice and established a new program of financial and technical assistance to State and local governments. The act established the Office of Justice Programs (OJP), headed by an Assistant Attorney General, to coordinate the activities of the National Institute of Justice (NIJ), the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP), and a newly created Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA). The Juvenile Justice, Runaway Youth, and Missing Children's Act Amendments of 1984 (98 Stat. 2107; 42 U.S.C. 5601 note) reauthorized the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention and created within OJJDP a new program to assist in locating and recovering missing children.

Office of Justice Programs The Office of Justice Programs (OJP) maintains liaison with the executive and judicial branches of Federal and State governments in matters relating to criminal justice. OJP provides staff support to BJS, NIJ, OJJDP, and BJA. Within OJP is the Office for Victims of Crime, which is responsible for implementing the recommendations of the President's Task Force on Victims of Crime and the Attorney General's Task Force on Family Violence and administering the Crime Victims Fund and the Federal Crime Victim Assistance Program under the Victims of Crime Act of 1984 (98 Stat. 2170; 42 U.S.C. 10601 note). In addition, OJP is coordinating the President's Child Safety Partnership, an advisory committee comprised of leaders from the corporate, public interest, and State, local, and Federal governmental sectors who are working to promote better methods for fighting crimes against children. OJP is also responsible for the Emergency Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Program and the Department of Justice's role in administering the Surplus Federal Property Program.

Bureau of Justice Assistance The Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) administers a program of block grants to States for certain State and local criminal justice activities and a program of discretionary grants to public or private nonprofit organizations for training, technical assistance, national or multistate projects, and demonstration programs. BJA also administers the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Program, the prison industry certification program, and the regional information sharing systems program in the Justice Department.

National Institute of Justice The National Institute of Justice (NIJ) supports policy-relevant research into crime, criminal behavior, and crime prevention.

Programs are evaluated for their impact on crime control and on the performance of the criminal justice system. Experimental programs are funded to test the effectiveness of different approaches to law enforcement and criminal and civil justice problems. NIJ operates the National Criminal Justice Reference Service, an international clearinghouse for dissemination of criminal justice information to practitioners, researchers, and other interested individuals and organizations.

Bureau of Justice Statistics The Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) collects, analyzes, and disseminates statistical information on crime and the operation of criminal justice systems at all levels of government. BJS maintains ongoing data series on crime victimization, courts, and corrections, as well as other facets of the criminal justice system. It is a source of financial and technical support to State statistical and operating agencies in all the States and territories. It also develops national information policy on such matters as data privacy, confidentiality and security, and the interstate exchange of criminal records.

Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention The Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) was created by the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1109; 42 U.S.C. 5601) to establish policies and operate programs to deter juvenile delinquency and improve State and local juvenile justice programs. The act placed the responsibility for coordinating all Federal juvenile delinquency prevention and control activities in the Office. It also established a source of funding for State efforts to streamline their juvenile justice systems and to combat the increase in serious and violent crimes committed by juveniles.

The key elements of the program are the coordination of Federal delinquency programs, formula grants to States, special emphasis discretionary funds, technical assistance, research, the evaluation of juvenile justice programs, training, and the dissemination of delinquency and juvenile justice information.

The Juvenile Justice, Runaway Youth, and Missing Children's Act Amendments of 1984 added a Missing Children's Program to OJJDP's authority. It called for the establishment of a national resource center and clearinghouse and a nationwide toll-free telephone line to collect and disseminate information to assist in locating and recovering missing children. The national resource center and clearinghouse is designed to provide technical assistance in the prevention, investigation, and prosection of missing and exploited children's cases and the treatment of victims. In addition, OJJDP is authorized to award grants and contracts for research, demonstration, and service programs involving missing-children activities.

The Office coordinates Federal juvenile delinquency programs and, in consultation with the Advisory Board on Missing Children, all Federal programs relating to missing and exploited children through an advisory committee chaired by the Attorney General. The nine-member Advisory Board on Missing Children is appointed by the Attorney General to advise the OJJDP Administrator and the Attorney General regarding missing-children activities.

For further information, contact the Office of Congressional and Public Affairs, Office of Justice Programs, Department of Justice, 633 Indiana Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20531. Phone, 202–724–7782.

Boards

Executive Office for Immigration Review

Falls Church, VA 22041

The Attorney General is responsible for the administration and enforcement of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 and all other laws relating to the immigration and naturalization of aliens. The Attorney General has delegated certain aspects of his power and authority for the administration and interpretation of the immigration laws to the Executive Office for Immigration Review. The Executive Office for Immigration Review is completely independent of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the body charged with the enforcement of the immigration laws. It includes the Board of Immigration Appeals and the Office of the Chief Immigration Judge and operates under the supervision of the Deputy Attorney General. It is headed by a Director, who is responsible for the immediate supervision of the Board of Immigration Appeals and the Office of the Chief Immigration Judge.

Board of Immigration Appeals The Board of Immigration Appeals is a quasi-judicial body composed of a Chairman, four members, and a Chief Attorney-Examiner, who is also an alternate Board member.

Located in Falls Church, VA, the Board hears oral argument only in that location. The Board is authorized a staff of attorney-advisers who assist the Board in the preparation of decisions.

The Board has been given nationwide jurisdiction to hear appeals from decisions entered by district directors of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and by immigration judges. In addition, the Board, with approval of the Attorney General, is responsible for suspension or barring from practice before the Service and the Board any representatives and attorneys when the public interest so requires.

Decisions of the Board are binding on all Service officers and immigration judges unless modified or overruled by the Attorney General, and are subject to judicial review in the Federal courts. The majority of appeals reaching the Board involves orders of deportation and applications for relief from deportation. Other cases before the Board include the exclusion of aliens applying for admission to the United States, petitions to classify the status of alien relatives for the issuance of preference immigrant visas, fines imposed upon carriers for the violation of the immigration laws, and motions for reopening and reconsideration of decisions previously rendered.

Upon the filing of an appeal by either party or certification of a case by the immigration judge or district director, the record of proceedings is forwarded to the Board. Following a review of the record and research into questions of law raised by the parties, the attorney-adviser drafts a proposed order for consideration of the Board members. He or she frequently confers with individual Board members concerning the proposed order. Attorney-advisers also assist in various administrative and support functions. In addition to developing expertise in the field of immigration law, the attorney-adviser is often called upon to analyze questions of constitutional law, State, Federal, and foreign civil and criminal law and to resolve questions relating to conflicts of law.

Office of the Chief Immigration Judge The Office of the Chief Immigration Judge is responsible for the general supervision and direction of the immigration judges in the performance of their duties. It establishes operational policies for the offices of the immigration judges and evaluates the performance of those offices.

Located in Falls Church, VA, the Office of the Chief Immigration Judge includes a headquarters staff of management and legal personnel structured as Counsel to the Chief Immigration Judge, a Planning and Analysis Unit, and a Central Docketing Unit.

Office of the Immigration Judge The offices of the immigration judges are responsible for presiding at formal, quasi-judicial deportation and exclusion proceedings. The immigration judges act independently in their decisionmaking capacity, and their decisions are administratively final unless appealed or certified to the Board of Immigration Appeals.

In exclusion proceedings, an immigration judge determines whether an individual arriving from a foreign country should be allowed to enter the United States or should be excluded and deported. Located throughout the United States, each judge has jurisdiction to consider various forms of relief available in exclusion proceedings, including applications for asylum and relief under section 243(h) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 (66 Stat. 163; 8 U.S.C. 101).

In deportation proceedings, the immigration judge determines whether an individual who has already entered the United States is deportable from this country. In such proceedings the judge also adjudicates applications for the various forms of relief available under this country's immigration laws. These include applications for adjustment of status, suspension of deportation, voluntary departure, relief under section 212(c) of the act, and applications for asylum and withholding of deportation.

United States Parole Commission

5550 Friendship Boulevard, Chevy Chase, MD 20815
Phone, 301–492–5990

The granting, denying, or revocation of parole for eligible Federal offenders rests in the discretion of the U.S. Parole Commission. The Commission is also responsible for the supervision of paroled or otherwise released offenders until expiration of their terms. Under the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 (73 Stat. 519; 29 U.S.C. 401 note), the Commission determines whether or not persons convicted of certain crimes may serve as officials in the field of organized labor or in labor-oriented management positions; likewise, under the Employment Retirement Income and Security Act of 1974 the Commission determines whether or not such persons may provide services to, or be employed by, employment benefit plans.

The Parole Commission consists of nine members, appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. It has sole authority to grant, modify, or revoke paroles of eligible U.S. prisoners serving sentences of more than 1 year. It is responsible for the supervision of parolees and prisoners released upon the expiration of their sentences with allowances for statutory good time, and the determination of supervisory conditions and terms. U.S. probation officers supervise parolees and mandatory releasees under the direction of the Commission.

The Commission has additional responsibility in cases in which the committing court specifies that the Parole Commission shall determine the date of parole eligibility of the prisoner. It may, under its rules, discharge parolees from supervision.

Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States

1111 Twentieth Street NW., Washington, DC 20579
Phone, 202-653-6159

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States has jurisdiction to determine claims of United States nationals against foreign governments for losses and injuries sustained by them, pursuant to programs that may be authorized under its organic legislation. Available funds have their sources in international settlements, or liquidation of foreign assets in this country by the Departments of Justice or Treasury, and from public funds when provided by the Congress.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission was created by Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1954 (68 Stat. 1279), effective July 1, 1954. The Commission was transferred to the Department of Justice as a separate agency within that Department, effective March 14, 1980, by Public Law 96-209 (94 Stat. 96; 22 U.S.C. 1622a). The Commission's duties and authority are defined in the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended (64 Stat. 12; 22 U.S.C. 1621-1645), and the War Claims Act of 1948 (62 Stat. 1240; 50 U.S.C. 2001-2017).

Claims Programs The Commission is currently authorized to receive, determine, and provide for the payment of claims of ex-prisoners of war of the Vietnam conflict and civilian American citizens who were captured and interned by a hostile force in Southeast Asia during the Vietnam conflict (84 Stat. 323; 50 U.S.C. App. 2004, 2005).

On March 31, 1986, the Commission began an Ethiopian claims program pursuant to title I of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended (64 Stat. 12; 22 U.S.C. 1621-1627), and the Compensation Agreement of December 19, 1985, Between the United States and Ethiopia, to consider claims of U.S. nationals for losses of property as a result of nationalizations or other takings in Ethiopia. The deadline for filing these claims is September 30, 1986, and the completion date for the program's activities is September 30, 1987.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission also furnishes cooperation and technical assistance to other agencies in the necessary preliminary planning for claim programs to be inaugurated for losses attributable to foreign governments. In applicable cases, the Commission conducts claims registrations to elicit appropriate information for possible use in negotiating claims settlement agreements with such foreign governments.

The Commission further has the responsibility of maintaining records and responding to inquiries pertaining to 18 programs against the Governments of Yugoslavia, Panama, Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, Italy, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Cuba, the German Democratic Republic, the People's Republic of China, and Vietnam, all of which were administered under the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended. This function also involves 18 programs administered under the War Claims Act of 1948, as amended, the Micronesian Claims Act of 1971, as amended, and other statutory authority.

For further information, contact the Office of the Chairman, Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States, Department of Justice, 1111 Twentieth Street NW., Washington, DC 20579. Phone, 202-653-6159.

The purpose of the Department of Labor is to foster, promote, and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions, and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment. In carrying out this mission, the Department administers a variety of Federal labor laws guaranteeing workers' rights to safe and healthful working conditions, a minimum hourly wage and overtime pay, freedom from employment discrimination, unemployment insurance, and workers' compensation. The Department also protects workers' pension rights; provides for job training programs; helps workers find jobs; works to strengthen free collective bargaining; and keeps track of changes in employment, prices, and other national economic measurements. As the Department seeks to assist all Americans who need and want to work, special efforts are made to meet the unique job market problems of older workers, youths, minority group members, women, the handicapped, and other groups.

The Department of Labor, ninth executive department, was created by act approved March 4, 1913 (37 Stat. 736; 5 U.S.C. 611). A Bureau of Labor was first created by Congress in 1884 under the Interior Department. The Bureau of Labor later became independent as a Department of Labor without executive rank. It again returned to bureau status in the Department of Commerce and Labor, which was created by act of February 14, 1903 (32 Stat. 827; 5 U.S.C. 591).

Office of the Secretary of Labor

Secretary The Secretary is the head of the Department of Labor and the principal adviser to the President on the development and execution of policies and the administration and enforcement of laws relating to wage earners, their working conditions, and their employment opportunities.

Wage Appeals Board The Wage Appeals Board acts on behalf of the Secretary of Labor in deciding appeals on questions of law and fact, taken in the discretion of the Board from wage determinations issued under the Davis-Bacon Act and its related prevailing wage statutes; debarments under the Department's regulations (29 CFR Part 5), which implement Reorganization Plan 14 of 1950; under the Department's regulations, part 5, disputes concerning the payment of prevailing wage rates or proper classifications that involve significant sums of money, large groups of employees, or novel or unusual situations; questions relating to coverage of the various acts; and recommendations by Federal agencies for appropriate adjustments of liquidated damages that are assessed under the Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act.

Office of Inspector General The Office of Inspector General (OIG) is responsible for providing comprehensive, independent, and objective audit and investigation programs to identify and report program deficiencies and improve the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of operations. The Office also is responsible for ensuring employee and program integrity through prevention and detection of criminal activity, unethical conduct, and program fraud and abuse. The Office provides for departmental participation in investigations under the Department of Justice's Organized Crime Strike Force Program.

The Office also maintains a toll-free hotline telephone for complaints of fraud, waste, and abuse of Department resources. The number is 800-424-5409, or 357-0227 in the Washington, DC, metropolitan area.

Office of the Under Secretary of Labor

Under Secretary The Under Secretary of Labor is the principal adviser to the Secretary. He serves as Acting Secretary in the Secretary's absence.

Employees' Compensation Appeals Board The Employees' Compensation Appeals Board consists of three members and three alternate members appointed by the Secretary of Labor, one of whom is designated as Chairman. The function of the Board is to consider and decide appeals from final decisions in cases arising under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (5 U.S.C. 8101). The decisions of the Board are final and not subject to court review.

For further information, call 202–472–5600.

Office of Administrative Law Judges

Administrative law judges preside over formal hearings to determine violations of minimum wage requirements, overtime payments, compensation benefits, employee discrimination, grant performance, alien certification, employee protection, and health and safety regulations set forth under numerous statutes, Executive orders, and regulations. With few exceptions, hearings are required to be conducted in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237; 5 U.S.C. 551 et seq.).

For further information, contact the Administrative Officer. Phone, 202–653–5052.

Benefits Review Board

[For the Benefits Review Board statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 20, Chapter VII, Part 801.103]

The Benefits Review Board is a nine-member quasi-judicial body with exclusive jurisdiction to consider and decide appeals raising substantial questions of law or fact from decisions of Administrative Law Judges with respect to cases arising under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act and its extensions and the Black Lung Benefits Act of 1972. The Board exercises the same review authority that the United States District Courts formerly held in these areas of the law prior to the 1972 amendments to both acts.

For further information, contact the Senior Board Attorney. Phone, 202–653–5060.

The Solicitor of Labor

The Solicitor has responsibility for all the legal activities of the Department, its legislative program, and serves as legal adviser to the Secretary and other officials of the Department.

The Solicitor, through a subordinate staff of attorneys in Washington and 16 field offices, directs a broad scale litigation effort in the Federal courts pertaining to the many statutes administered by the Department including institution and prosecution of Civil Court actions under the Fair Labor Standards Act, as amended, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, and the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act. Attorneys also represent the Department in administrative hearings under various statutes, including the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977, and various government contract labor standards laws. The cited litigation is conducted independently under an agreement and delegation of authority from the Department of Justice. Litigation under several other acts is carried out in cooperation with the Department of Justice.

Appellate litigation is conducted by attorneys in the national headquarters, whereas the majority of trial litigation under the various statutes is carried out by attorneys under the direction of the regional solicitors who also serve as the legal advisers to the Department's officials in the field.

Administration and Management

The Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management has responsibility for administrative policy; centralized management staff support and services to the Department's agencies in the areas of financial, organization, and personnel management; program review; labor-management relations; ADP systems development and services; administrative services; and equal employment opportunity.

Policy

The Assistant Secretary for Policy is responsible for coordinating and providing leadership to the Department's activities in economic policy issues, both short- and long-term program evaluation and economic research, bearing on the welfare of all American workers.

International Affairs

The Department's international responsibilities are carried out under the direction of the Deputy Under Secretary for International Affairs and the Bureau of International Labor Affairs that he supervises. The Bureau assists in formulating international economic and trade policies affecting American workers.

The Bureau also helps represent the U.S. in multilateral and bilateral trade negotiations and on such international bodies as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the International Labor Organization and various U.N. organizations, and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The Bureau also helps administer the U.S. labor attaché program at Embassies abroad, carries out overseas technical assistance projects, and arranges trade union exchange and other programs for foreign visitors to the United States.

Employment and Training Administration

The Employment and Training Administration (ETA), through a variety of programs, fulfills responsibilities assigned to the Secretary of Labor that relate to employment services, job training, and unemployment insurance. Component offices and services of ETA administer a Federal-State employment security system; fund and oversee programs to provide work experience and training for groups having difficulty entering or returning to the work force; formulate and promote apprenticeship standards and programs; and conduct continuing programs of research, development, and evaluation.

The Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training directs the administration of ETA programs and is responsible for ensuring that programs funded through ETA are free from unlawful discrimination, fraud, and abuse, and that they comply with constitutional, statutory, and regulatory provisions. It is the policy of ETA to promote equal opportunity, affirmative action, and integrity in programs to which ETA extends financial assistance.

ETA has six major components that cover employment security, job training, planning and policy development, financial control and management, program and fiscal integrity, and regional management.

Employment Security

The Office of Employment Security (OES) is responsible for managing programs operated at the State and local levels by the State employment security agencies. These include the Federal-State unemployment insurance (UI) system and related wage-loss, worker dislocation, and adjustment assistance compensation programs; the Federal-State public employment service system that provides employment assistance and related service to jobseekers and employers; employment and training services to increase the employment potential of welfare recipients; and the investigation of worker petitions and preparation of industry impact studies relating to trade adjustment assistance.

Unemployment Insurance The Federal-State Unemployment Compensation Program, under provisions of the Social Security Act of 1935, is the basic program of income support for the Nation's unemployed workers. With limited Federal intervention, unemployment insurance benefits are payable under laws of individual States. The Federal Unemployment Insurance Service (UIS) provides leadership and policy guidance to State employment security agencies for the development, improvement, and operation of the Federal-State unemployment insurance (UI) system and of related wage-loss, worker dislocation, and adjustment assistance compensation programs, including to ex-service personnel and Federal civilian workers, and supplemental or extended benefits programs.

UIS reviews State UI laws and their administration by the States to determine whether they are in conformity with Federal requirements; supervises the development of programs and methods for benefit, adjudication, appeals, tax collection, and trust fund management activities implemented by the State agencies; oversees the actuarial soundness of the level and relationship of State expenditures, revenues, and reserves, and of Federal appropriations for payment of benefits; and is implementing a quality control program to provide a diagnostic tool for States to identify and correct errors in benefit payments and tax collections and to raise program quality and integrity.

UIS also provides national leadership and direction in implementing its responsibilities under trade adjustment assistance, redwood park expansion, airline deregulation, and disaster unemployment assistance legislation.

The Federal Advisory Council on Unemployment Insurance, composed of representatives of employers, employees, and the public, advises the Secretary of Labor on unemployment insurance problems.

For further information, call 202–376–6636.

Employment Service The United States Employment Service (USES), under the provisions of the Wagner-Peyser Act (48 Stat. 113; 29 U.S.C. 49 et seq.), provides assistance to States in establishing and maintaining a system of local public employment offices in the States and territories and interstate clearance of Labor. The State public employment service is responsible for providing unemployed individuals and other jobseekers with job placement and other employment services and for providing employers with recruitment services and referrals of job-seeking applicants.

USES administers the Work Incentive (WIN) program, which was authorized by the Social Security Amendments of 1967 and 1971. WIN is jointly administered by the Departments of Labor and Health and Human Services and is designed to help persons receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) become self-supporting.

USES also provides subsidiary services, which include certifying aliens who seek to enter the United States for permanent employment as immigrants or as temporary workers; providing specialized recruitment assistance to employers; determining classifications of labor surplus area annually and for exceptional circumstance petitions; providing labor surplus area information to the general public and to other Federal or State agencies to meet various program responsibilities; disseminating labor market information; providing individuals with guidance, counseling, testing referral, and job opportunities; reviewing rural industrialization loan and grant certification applications under the Rural Development Act of 1972; distributing airline job opening information for rehiring under the Airline Deregulation Act; and providing supportive services to employers and applicants through the Federal bonding program.

For further information, call 202–376–6570.

Trade Adjustment Assistance The Office of Trade Adjustment Assistance (OTAA) under the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1978, 19 U.S.C. 2101 et seq.), as amended, administers the Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) program through agreements with State employment security agencies. The TAA program provides employment services such as training, job search and relocation allowances, and weekly cash payments to U.S. workers who are separated from employment because of foreign imports.

OTAA receives petitions for adjustment assistance from either adversely affected workers, a duly recognized union, or an authorized representative of the workers and conducts factfinding investigations to develop necessary data on which certification determinations can be based. Determinations may involve approval, denial, or termination of worker groups' eligibility for trade adjustment assistance benefits.

OTAA also directs and conducts industry studies of the number of workers in a domestic industry likely to be certified as eligible for adjustment assistance and of the extent to which existing training and employment programs may facilitate the workers' adjustment to import competition when an industry petitions the Federal Government that it is being injured because of import competition.

For further information, call 202–376–2646.

Job Training Partnership Act

The Office of Job Training Programs is responsible for the development and issuance of Federal procedures and policies pertaining to the operation of Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) (96 Stat. 1322; 29 U.S.C. 1501 note) programs.

Under JTPA, the Secretary of Labor makes block grants to the 50 States, Guam, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas, American Samoa, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and the District of Columbia.

The goal of JTPA is to train or retrain and place eligible individuals in permanent, unsubsidized employment, preferably in the private sector. Eligible individuals are primarily economically disadvantaged individuals, in particular economically disadvantaged youth, who have been or are about to be displaced from their employment. JTPA also provides that a fixed percentage of the block grant be used for programs for older individuals.

JTPA may be used for a variety of purposes including classroom instruction in occupational skills and other job-related training; on-the-job training; recruitment; orientation; counseling; testing; and placements and supportive services.

In addition to the block grants, JTPA provides for national programs for special target groups such as Native Americans and migrant and seasonal farmworkers. It also provides authority for the Job Corps, a residential training program for disadvantaged youth.

JTPA is open-ended legislation and was signed into law on October 13, 1982. Implementing regulations for JTPA issued by the Department of Labor are contained in title 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations, parts 626–638 and 675–684.

For further information, call 202–376–6604.

Senior Community Service Employment Program Authorized by title V of the Older Americans Act, the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP) makes subsidized, part-time job opportunities in community service activities available to low-income persons aged 55 and above. Project grants are made to national-level public and private nonprofit agencies and to units of State government. The distribution of funds among the States is governed by a statutory apportionment formula.

For further information, call 202–376–6225.

Apprenticeship and Training The National Apprenticeship Act was passed in 1937 to enable the Department of Labor to formulate and promote the furtherance of labor standards necessary to safeguard the welfare of apprentices and cooperate with the States in the promotion of such standards and to bring together employers and labor for the formulation of programs of apprenticeship.

Sponsors and potential sponsors are encouraged and assisted in the development, expansion, and improvement of apprenticeship and other forms of allied industrial training. Technical information on training methods, public training facilities, and successfully executed systems are made available to industry. Through field representatives in each State, the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training works closely with employers, labor unions, vocational schools, community planning groups, and others concerned with apprenticeship.

Programs must meet standards established by the Bureau or a recognized State Apprenticeship Council to be registered. Field compliance reviews are conducted to determine conformity with Federal equal employment opportunity and other standards for apprenticeship and training. The program addresses national requirements for fully skilled workers as an essential component to continued economic growth and technological advances.

For further information, call 202–376–2570.

Planning and Policy Development

The Office of Strategic Planning and Policy Development (OSPPD) formulates and recommends ETA policies, plans, and resource allocations; develops and maintains ETA's strategic and operational planning systems, and regulatory tracking system; develops and reviews legislative proposals relating to employment and training initiatives; administers the ETA research and evaluation program; develops and implements a nationwide system of legislatively mandated performance standards and program review and assessment procedures; and administers ETA's special national-level contracts and grants.

For further information, call 202–376–6289.

Financial Control and Management

The Office of Financial Control and Management Systems provides leadership and direction to ensure sound management of financial resources throughout ETA; plans, develops, implements, and operates ETA's comprehensive management information system composed of integrated supplementary systems for collecting, processing, and communicating employment and training program and financial data; provides budget, accounting, and data analysis services for ETA; plans, develops, promulgates, and executes policies, standards, and guidelines governing ETA management information, budget, accounting, and financial procurement systems; provides centralized procurement services to ETA national office components; and provides all administrative, personnel, organizational analysis, and property and engineering management services for ETA.

For further information, call 202–376–6585.

Program and Fiscal Integrity

The Office of Program and Fiscal Integrity (OPFI) directs the development, implementation, and administration of functions concerning the operational and financial integrity of ETA programs. Through its debt management and audit resolution staff, OPFI resolves audits, closes out contracts and grants, and seeks to satisfy extraordinary monetary claims and apply sanctions against grantees and contractors who violate ETA-administered laws or regulations. OPFI's special review staff conducts inquiries, assessments, and reviews, including intra-agency and interagency investigations for the Assistant Secretary. In addition, OPFI coordinates all activities associated with reviews of ETA by the General Accounting Office, the Inspector General of the Department of Labor, the Department of Justice, and other agencies.

OPFI's internal control staff administers the Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 814; 31 U.S.C 65 note) to ensure the adoption of safeguards to protect ETA resources, produce information that is accurate and reliable, and promote adherence to laws, regulations, and policy governing operational efficiency and economy Pre-award clearance screening, internal control review of selected administrative and program activities, and administration of vulnerability assessments are the key responsibilities of this office.

For further information, call 202–376–2022.

Regional Management

The Office of Regional Management (ORM) provides leadership to the ETA regional offices that are located in 10 areas throughout the United States. ORM executes direct-line authority over ETA field activities (except the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training and Job Corps), and provides a central point of contact at the headquarters level in connection with national office component dealings with regional staff.

Within its area of jurisdiction, each regional office is responsible for the oversight and grant administration of employment and training programs operated by State governments. Other public interest responsibilities include the coordination of Employment and Training Administration activities with Federal assistance programs of other agencies within the region; the implementation of employment training administrative policies on equal employment opportunity; and assistance to the States in carrying out operational responsibilities for employment and training programs at the State and local levels.

For further information, call 202-376-7563.

Labor-Management Standards

The Office of Labor-Management Standards (OLMS), formerly the Office of Labor-Management Standards Enforcement within the Labor-Management Services Administration, was created by Secretary's Order No. 3-84 of May 3, 1984, and is headed by the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Standards.

OLMS administers provisions of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 (LMRDA) (73 Stat. 519; 29 U.S.C. 401 note), section 1209 of the Postal Reorganization Act, section 7120 of the Civil Service Reform Act (CSRA) (92 Stat. 1210; 5 U.S.C 7120), and section 1017 of the Foreign Service Act (FSA), which regulate certain internal union procedures and protect the rights of members in approximately 50,000 unions. These provisions govern the handling of union funds, the reporting and disclosure of certain financial transactions and administrative practices of unions, union officers and employees, surety companies, employers, and labor relations consultants; the election of union officers; the imposition and administration of trusteeships; and other matters.

Labor organizations in the private sector and labor organizations composed of postal service employees are subject to the LMRDA. Labor organizations composed of employees of most agencies of the executive branch of the Federal Government and certain other Federal agencies are subject to similar standards of conduct pursuant to provisions of the CSRA and the FSA.

Through technical assistance, OLMS seeks to obtain voluntary compliance with the requirements of the law by labor organizations, employers, and other affected entities and individuals. Enforcement through the Federal courts also is available under the LMRDA, while the standards of conduct are enforced by administrative action with a final decision by the Assistant Secretary.

Pension and Welfare Benefits Administration

The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), approved September 2, 1974 (88 Stat. 829; 29 U.S.C. 1001 note), requires administrators of private pension and welfare plans to provide plan participants with easily understandable summaries of plans; to file those summaries with the Office of Pension and Welfare Benefits Administration (PWBA); and to report annually on the financial operation of the plans and bonding of persons charged with handling plan funds and assets. Plan Administrators must also meet strict fiduciary responsibility standards that are enforced by PWBA. Vesting, participation, and funding standards are, for the most part, administered by the Internal Revenue Service.

Labor-Management Relations and Cooperative Programs

The Bureau of Labor-Management Relations and Cooperative Programs (BLMRCP) offers a wide range of information and technical assistance services to employers, unions, academics, third-party neutrals, and other organizations and individuals sharing common interests in improving the practice of industrial relations, especially through joint labor and management efforts. The Bureau's activities include sponsoring conferences and other meetings on contemporary issues, publishing special reports on organizational experiences, preparing educational and training materials, and conducting research and evaluation studies in the areas of cooperative labor relations, collective bargaining, and quality of work life programs. The Bureau gathers and disseminates information about innovative policies and programs developed to enhance employee participation in shared decision-making with regard to issues such as work organization, the work environment, technological change, and plant closings and dislocated worker assistance.

The Bureau also reports on current and potentially critical dispute situations, analyzes collective bargaining data, and provides staff assistance to Presidential emergency boards and other boards and commissions dealing with major labor-management disputes.

In the field of labor-management policy development and research, the Bureau reviews collective bargaining relationships and their contribution to meeting the economic needs of the parties involved as well as the general public. The Bureau helps to develop policy for legislation and Executive orders, studies the impact of collective bargaining agreements, and coordinates labor-management relations research activities.

The Bureau enforces employee protection provisions of various laws to insure that employment conditions of workers shall not be adversely impacted by government actions.

For further information, call 202-523-6045.

Employment Standards Administration

The Deputy Under Secretary for Employment Standards has responsibility for administering and directing employment standards programs dealing with: minimum wage and overtime standards; registration of farm labor contractors; determining prevailing wage rates to be paid on Government contracts and subcontracts; nondiscrimination and affirmative action for minorities, women, veterans, and handicapped workers on Government contracts and subcontracts; and workers' compensation programs for Federal and certain private employers and employees.

Wage and Hour Division

The Wage and Hour Administrator is responsible for planning, directing, and administering programs dealing with a variety of Federal labor legislation. These programs are designed to protect low-wage incomes as provided by the minimum wage provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act; safeguard the health and welfare of workers by discouraging excessively long hours of work through enforcement of the overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act; prevent curtailment of employment and earnings for students, trainees, and handicapped workers; minimize losses of income and job rights caused by indebtedness; and direct a program of farm labor contractor registration designed to protect the health, safety, and welfare of migrant and seasonal agricultural workers.

The Wage and Hour Division is also responsible for predetermination of prevailing wage rates for Federal construction contracts and federally assisted programs for construction, alteration and repair of public works subject to the Davis-Bacon and related acts, and a continuing program for determining wage rates under the Service Contract Act. The Division also has enforcement responsibility in ensuring that prevailing wages and overtime standards are paid in accordance with the provisions of the Davis-Bacon and related acts, Service Contract Act, Public Contracts Act, and Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act.

Mine Safety and Health Administration

The Assistant Secretary of Labor for Mine Safety and Health has responsibility for safety and health in the Nation's mines.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) was established pursuant to the Federal Mine Safety and Health Amendments Act of 1977 (91 Stat. 1290; 30 U.S.C. 801). The Act of 1977 consolidates all provisions for mine safety and health under a single Federal law applicable to all types of mines—metal and nonmetal mines as well as coal mines.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration develops and promulgates mandatory safety and health standards, ensures compliance with such standards, assesses civil penalties for violations, investigates accidents, cooperates with and provides assistance to the States in the development of effective State mine safety and health programs, improves and expands training programs in cooperation with the States and the mining industry, and, in coordination with the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of the Interior, contributes to the improvement and expansion of mine safety and health research and development. All of these activities are aimed at preventing and reducing mine accidents and occupational diseases in the mining industry.

The statutory responsibilities of the Mine Safety and Health Administration are administered by a headquarters staff located at Arlington, VA, reporting to the Assistant Secretary for Mine Safety and Health and by a field network of District, Subdistrict, and Field Offices, Technology Centers, and the Approval and Certification Center.

For further information, contact the Office of Information and Public Affairs, Mine Safety and Health Administration, Department of Labor, Room 601, 4015 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22203. Phone, 703–235–1452.

Labor Statistics

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) is one of the principal data-gathering agencies of the Federal Government. In the broad field of labor economics, BLS collects, processes, analyzes, and disseminates data relating to employment, unemployment, and other characteristics of the labor force; prices and family expenditures; wages, other worker compensation, and industrial relations; productivity and technological change; and occupational safety and health. Most of the data are collected in surveys conducted by BLS, the Bureau of the Census (on a contract basis), or on a cooperative basis with State agencies.

BLS strives to have its data satisfy a number of criteria, including relevance to current social and economic issues; timeliness in reflecting today's rapidly changing economic conditions; accuracy and consistently high statistical quality; and impartiality in both subject matter and presentation.

The Bureau has no enforcement or regulatory functions. The basic data—practically all supplied voluntarily by business establishments and members of private households—are issued in monthly press releases, special publications, and in one of the following periodicals: The Monthly Labor Review, Consumer Price Index, Producer Prices and Price Indexes, Employment and Earnings, Current Wage Developments, Occupational Outlook Handbook, and Occupational Outlook Quarterly. BLS regional offices issue additional reports and releases usually presenting locality or regional detail.

Veterans' Employment and Training Service

The Veterans' Employment and Training Service (VETS) is the component of the Department of Labor administered by the Assistant Secretary for Veterans' Employment and Training responsible for seeing that the policies of the Secretary of Labor regarding National Employment and Training Programs for veterans are carried out by the local public employment services and private sector contractors. The Assistant Secretary also is responsible for promulgating policies, procedures, and regulations that provide the maximum employment and training opportunities mandated by legislation to veterans and other eligible persons with priority services given to disabled and Vietnam-era veterans.

Through a nationwide field staff, functional supervision and technical assistance is provided to State job services and private contractors to ensure that legislatively required priority services of counseling, referral, and placement are provided to all veterans and to other eligible persons. Service to disabled and Vietnam-era veterans is further mandated by legislation and provided through the operation of the Disabled Veterans' Outreach Program (DVOP) specialists and Local Veterans' Employment Representatives (LVER's) who are stationed in many local offices throughout the State job service system.

Veterans' reemployment rights are provided for in title 38, chapter 42 of the United States Code. VETS and the Office of Veterans' Reemployment Rights (OVRR) assist veterans, reservists, members of the National Guard components, and rejectees exercise reinstatement rights to the job they left to enter military service and the right to any increased wages or benefits added during absence in the military service.

Cooperative agreements are also in place with the Veterans Administration for providing other services and benefits to veterans.

[For the Department of State statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 22, Part 5]

The Department of State advises the President in the formulation and execution of foreign policy. As Chief Executive, the President has overall responsibility for the foreign policy of the United States. The Department of State's primary objective in the conduct of foreign relations is to promote the long-range security and well-being of the United States. The Department determines and analyzes the facts relating to American overseas interests, makes recommendations on policy and future action, and takes the necessary steps to carry out established policy. In so doing, the Department engages in continuous consultations with the American public, the Congress, other U.S. departments and agencies, and foreign governments; negotiates treaties and agreements with foreign nations; speaks for the United States in the United Nations and in more than 50 major international organizations in which the United States participates; and represents the United States at more than 800 international conferences annually.

[1] For a description of the organization and functions of the United Nations, see page 719.

The Department of State, the Senior executive department of the U.S. Government, was established by act of July 27, 1789 (1 Stat. 28) under the name Department of Foreign Affairs and was renamed Department of State by act of September 15, 1789 (1 Stat. 68).

The Secretary of State is the principal official of the Department and performs duties enjoined or entrusted to him by the President, agreeable to the Constitution, relative to correspondence, commissions or instructions to or with public ministers or consuls, from the United States, or to negotiations with public ministers from foreign states or princes, or to memorials or other applications from foreign public ministers or other foreigners, or to such other matters respecting foreign affairs, as the President assigns to the Department; and, furthermore, the Secretary conducts the business of the Department in such manner as the President orders or instructs.

The act of September 15, 1789, provides that certain domestic duties, such as the custody of The Great Seal of the United States and the publication of laws enacted by Congress, are entrusted to the Department. During the first few decades of the Republic, a large number of additional domestic functions were assigned to the Department, which for a time came to be the equivalent of the "home department" of the Government. These responsibilities of the Secretary were eventually transferred, for the most part, to other Federal agencies as the U.S. Government grew in size and complexity during the 19th and 20th centuries.

The duties of the Department of State in the field of foreign affairs have not changed significantly in scope since the early years of the United States but have become far more detailed as the Nation grew and its international commitments multiplied.

Office of the Secretary

Secretary of State The Secretary of State, the principal foreign policy adviser to the President, is responsible for the overall direction, coordination, and supervision of U.S. foreign relations and for the interdepartmental activities of the U.S. Government overseas. The Secretary is the first-ranking member of the Cabinet, a member of the National Security Council, and is in charge of the operations of the Department, including the Foreign Service.

Deputy Secretary of State The Deputy Secretary of State is the Secretary's principal deputy and serves as Acting Secretary in the Secretary's absence.

Political Affairs The Under Secretary for Political Affairs assists the Secretary and Deputy Secretary in the formulation and conduct of foreign policy and in the overall direction of the Department, including coordination of relations with other departments and agencies and interdepartmental activities of the U.S. Government overseas.

Economic Affairs The Under Secretary for Economic Affairs is principal adviser to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary in the formulation and conduct of foreign economic policy. Specific areas for which the Under Secretary is responsible include international monetary affairs, trade, energy, relations with developing countries, and international aviation issues.

Security Assistance The Under Secretary for Security Assistance, Science and Technology is responsible for ensuring the integration of all elements of the Foreign Assistance Program as an effective instrument of U.S. foreign policy and serves as Chairman of the Arms Transfer Management Group (ATMG). The Under Secretary is also responsible for international scientific and technological issues, communications and information policy, and technology transfers.

Management The Under Secretary for Management is the principal management official of the Department. The Under Secretary serves as the principal adviser to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary on management matters, including control and direction of all budgetary, administrative, and personnel policies of the Department and the Foreign Service. The Under Secretary also coordinates the activities of the Bureau of Personnel, Bureau of Administration and Security, Office of Management Operations, the Office of the Comptroller, the Office of Medical Services, the Office of Equal Employment Opportunity and Civil Rights, the Family Liaison Office, the Curator of the Diplomatic Reception Rooms, the Office for Counter-terrorism and Emergency Planning, the Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, and the Office of Foreign Missions. The Under Secretary for Management's principal concern is the reconciliation of resources, both fiscal and personnel, with policy requirements. The Under Secretary chairs the Priorities Policy Group.

Inspector General The Office of the Inspector General of the Department of State and the Foreign Service arranges for, directs, and conducts inspections, investigations, and audits of Department offices and bureaus and its missions and posts overseas. The Office provides an independent and systematic assessment of how effectively foreign policy is being implemented and how the interests of the United States are being represented overseas, including a review of all activities and operations under the direction, coordination, and supervision of the chiefs of missions overseas. The Office also assesses the efficiency and economy of Department activities and operations and provides the coordination and leadership for inquiries into allegations of fraud, abuse, or other serious problems.

Counselor The Counselor is a principal officer of the Department, serving the Secretary as a special adviser and consultant on major problems of foreign policy. The Counselor conducts special international negotiations and consultations as directed by the Secretary and provides guidance to the appropriate bureaus with respect to such matters.

Regional Bureaus

Five Assistant Secretaries direct the activities of the geographic bureaus, which are responsible for our foreign affairs activities in the major regions of the world. These are the Bureaus of African Affairs, European and Canadian Affairs, East Asian and Pacific Affairs, Inter-American Affairs, and Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs. The Assistant Secretaries for these Bureaus are responsible for advising the Secretary in the formulation of U.S. policies toward the countries within their regional jurisdiction and for guiding the operation of the U.S. diplomatic establishments in the countries in their geographic area. They also direct, coordinate, and supervise interdepartmental and interagency matters involving these regions. They are assisted in these duties by Deputy Assistant Secretaries and country Directors within their bureau. The Office Directors and their staffs have specific responsibility for working-level management of U.S. relations with respect to their assigned countries. As the Washington focal point for the development of policy recommendations for coordination with other departments and agencies, and for transmission to Ambassadors in the field, these Office Directors are charged with assuring that all elements—both in Washington and within our missions abroad—jointly pursue U.S. foreign policy directives.

The regional Assistant Secretaries also serve as Chairmen of Interdepartmental Groups in the National Security Council system. These groups discuss and decide issues that can be settled at the Assistant Secretary level, including those arising out of the implementation of National Security Council decisions. They prepare policy papers for consideration by the Council and contingency papers on potential crisis areas for NSC review.

Functional Areas

Economic and Business Affairs The Bureau of Economic and Business Affairs has overall responsibility for formulating and implementing policy regarding foreign economic matters, including resource and food policy, international energy issues, trade controls, international finance and development, aviation and maritime affairs.

For further information, call 202-647-9310.

Intelligence and Research The Bureau of Intelligence and Research coordinates programs of intelligence, research, and analysis for the Department and for other Federal agencies, and produces intelligence studies and current intelligence analyses essential to foreign policy determination and execution. In addition, the Bureau, through its Office of Long Range Assessments and Research, maintains liaison with cultural and educational institutions and with other Federal agencies on a wide range of matters relating to Government contractual and private foreign affairs research.

For further information, call the Reports Coordination and Review Staff. Phone, 202-647-2404.

International Organization Affairs The Bureau of International Organization Affairs coordinates and develops policy guidance and support for United States participation in the activities of the United Nations, the Specialized Agencies, the International Atomic Energy Agency, and other international organizations.

For further information, call 202-647-1662.

Legal Adviser The Legal Adviser is the principal adviser to the Secretary and through the Secretary to the President on all matters of international law arising in the conduct of United States foreign relations. The Legal Adviser also provides general legal advice and services to the Secretary and other officials of the Department on matters with which the Department and overseas posts are concerned.

Public Affairs The Bureau of Public Affairs works for a wider and more effective exchange of information and views on U.S. foreign relations between the Department and the American people. Under the guidance of the Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, who also serves as the Spokesman of the Department, the Bureau advises other elements of the Department on public opinion, and arranges continuing contacts between Department officials and the public through conferences, briefings, speaking, and media engagements in the Department and across the country. It directs the development and execution of the Department's news policy, plans, and programs and serves as the principal office advising the Secretary, other officials of the Department, and other Government agencies on all aspects of the Department's responsibilities in the conduct of press relations. The Bureau also produces and distributes publications, films, videotapes, and other information and educational materials on U.S. foreign policy and the work of the Department and the Foreign Service; publishes the diplomatic history of the United States, collections of current documents, and occasional special historical studies; and maintains a public information service to handle miscellaneous public inquiries.

For further information, call 202-647-6575.

Consular Affairs The Bureau of Consular Affairs, under the direction of the Assistant Secretary is responsible for the administration and enforcement of the provisions of the immigration and nationality laws, insofar as they concern the Department and the Foreign Service, for the issuance of passports and visas and related services, and for the protection and welfare of American citizens and interests abroad. More than 5 million passports a year are issued by the Passport Office of the Bureau that has agencies at Boston, Chicago, Honolulu, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, Stamford, and at Washington, DC. (See Sources of Information, page 404.)

Politico-Military Affairs The Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs originates and develops policy guidance and provides general direction within the Department on issues that affect U.S. security policies, military assistance, nuclear policy, and arms control matters. In addition, the Bureau maintains liaison with the Department of Defense and other Federal agencies on a wide range of political/military affairs.

For further information, call 202–647–3912.

Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs The Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs has principal responsibility for the Department's formulation and implementation of U.S. Government policies and proposals for the scientific and technological aspects of our relations with other countries and international organizations. It also has the management responsibility for a broad range of foreign policy issues and significant global problems related to oceans, fisheries, environment, population, nuclear technology, new energy technology, space and other fields of advanced technology, and for cooperative efforts dealing with the application and transfer of technology. The Bureau advises the Secretary where scientific and technological factors or the Bureau's functional responsibilities are concerned; represents the Department in international negotiations in its area of responsibility; provides policy guidance to the U.S. oceanic, environmental, scientific, and technological communities on activities and programs affecting foreign policy issues; assures effective coordination of policy responsibilities between State and AID in the field of science and technology; and directs the Overseas Science and Technology Counselor/Attaché program.

The Bureau develops and directs the carrying out of policy recommendations relative to U.S. participation in international science and technology programs; in bilateral cooperative programs related to its areas of interests; and in the activities of the International Fisheries Commissions of which the United States is a member.

For further information, call 202–647–3529.

Protocol The Office of the Chief of Protocol is the principal adviser for the U.S. Government, the President, the Vice President, and the Secretary of State on matters of diplomatic procedure governed by law or international customs and practice. The Office is responsible for: visits of foreign chiefs of state, heads of government, and other high officials to the United States; operation of the President's guest house, Blair House; delegations representing the President at official ceremonies abroad; conduct of official ceremonial functions and public events; accreditation of approximately 46,000 foreign embassy, consular, and international organization personnel throughout the United States; determining entitlement to diplomatic or consular immunity; publication of diplomatic, mission employee, and consular lists; resolution of problems arising out of diplomatic or consular immunity such as legal and police matters; and in conjunction with the Office of Foreign Missions, approving the opening of consular offices.

For further information, call 202–647–2663.

Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs The Bureau of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs has responsibility for the formulation and development and, in cooperation with other bureaus, the implementation of U.S. policy relating to the observance of human rights throughout the world. The Bureau maintains liaison with nongovernmental organizations active in the human rights field and is principally responsible for the preparation of the annual Department report on human rights practices in countries that are members of the United Nations or receive U.S. economic or military assistance. In addition, the Bureau provides the Department's advice to the Immigration and Naturalization Service regarding applications for political asylum by foreign nationals.

For further information, call 202–647–5910.

Refugee Programs The Bureau for Refugee Programs is responsible for the operation of U.S. refugee programs overseas, carried out in cooperation with other governments, private and international organizations, and other U.S. Government agencies, including the Agency for International Development (AID), the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) of the Department of Justice, and the Office of Refugee Relief (HHS/ORR) of the Department of Health and Human Services. These programs include relief; repatriation and resettlement of refugees; and the selection, processing, and training of refugees to be admitted into the United States, in consultation with the Congress and State and local governments. They are carried out through grants to private voluntary agencies and international organizations, including the Intergovernmental Committee for Migration (ICM), the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), and the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA).

For further information, call 202–647–8472.

Foreign Service

To a great extent the future of our country depends on the relations we have with other countries, and those relations are conducted principally by the United States Foreign Service. As of September 1985, representatives at 141 Embassies, 11 missions, 73 consulates general, 34 consulates, 3 branch offices, and 30 consular agencies throughout the world report to the State Department on the multitude of foreign developments that have a bearing on the welfare and security of the American people. These trained representatives provide the President and the Secretary of State with much of the raw material from which foreign policy is made and with the recommendations that help shape it.

The Ambassador is the personal representative of the President and reports to the President through the Secretary of State. Ambassadors have full responsibility for implementing the U.S. foreign policy by any and all U.S. Government personnel within their country of assignment, except those under military commands. Their responsibilities include negotiating agreements between the United States and the host country, explaining and disseminating official U.S. policy, and maintaining cordial relations with that country's government and people.

A listing of Foreign Service posts, together with addresses and telephone numbers and key personnel, appears in Key Officers of Foreign Service Posts—Guide for Business Representatives, which is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402.

Conferences, Seminars, Speaking Engagements, Briefings The Department of State arranges a variety of programs, both in Washington, DC, and throughout the country, designed to bring officials into personal contact with the public. National foreign policy conferences for specific audiences—business leaders, educators, nongovernmental organizations—plus executive and media-diplomat seminars are held each year at the Department of State. These seminars consist of foreign policy briefings and roundtable discussions. Special briefings for national nongovernmental organizations and other visiting groups are also available on request. Radio and television direct-line (telephone) interviews and editorial background briefings are also available.

Foreign policy specialists from the Department of State are available for speaking engagements outside Washington before nongovernmental organizations and institutions in the United States as well as to brief local editors and journalists and take part in local radio and TV call-in and current events programs. Regional foreign policy conferences also are held each year in cooperation with local sponsors in major cities throughout the country.

For information write to the Office of Public Programs, Bureau of Public Affairs, Room 5831, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 202-647-1433.

Publications The Department's Bureau of Public Affairs produces a variety of publications on the Department and foreign policy, including two official documentary series Foreign Relations of the United States and American Foreign Policy: Current Documents; The Department of State Bulletin, which is the official monthly record of U.S. foreign policy; Background Notes, which contain concise information on each of 168 countries and two international organizations; and the Atlas of U.S. Foreign Relations, which, together with shorter atlases, presents an overview of the U.S. role in world affairs using maps, charts, and other graphic material.

The series Foreign Relations of the United States, published since 1861 in over 300 volumes to date, constitutes the official documentary record of the foreign policy of the United States. It is the most extensive and most nearly current publication of diplomatic papers in the world. The Office of the Historian is now publishing 16 triennial volumes of declassified documents covering the years 1952 through 1954 and has begun release of 27 volumes for the years 1955 through 1957.

The American Foreign Policy annual volumes contain current official public expressions of policy that best convey the objectives of U.S. foreign policy. The series includes texts of major official messages, addresses, statements, reports, and communications by the White House, Department of State, and other Federal agencies involved in the foreign affairs process. Microfiche supplements, which include additional public documents, accompany the 1981 and subsequent annual volumes.

The Atlas of United States Foreign Relations presents through maps, charts, and other graphic materials an overview of the U.S. role in world affairs in six sections: Foreign Relations Machinery, International Organizations, Elements of the World Economy, Trade and Investment, Development Assistance, and National Security. ($5, GPO stock no. 044-000-2102-1, 98 pp.)

The Atlas of the Caribbean Basin illustrates the strategic, political, and economic features of the Caribbean region, including Central America. ($1.50, GPO stock no. 044-000-02022-0, 16 pp.)

The Atlas of NATO illustrates the history, structure, and policies of NATO and its relations with the Warsaw Pact. ($1.75, GPO stock no. 044-000-0239-4, 20 pp.)

Single copies and subscriptions are for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. For information on these and other Department publications, refer to Selected State Department Publications (published semiannually) or write to the Public Information Service, Bureau of Public Affairs, Room 4827A, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 202-647-6575.

Reading Room To file a request for information under the Freedom of Information or the Privacy Acts, review the internal rules of the Department or review declassified Department documents, contact the receptionists at the public entrance to the Department of State, 2201 C Street NW., Washington, DC, for the specific location. Phone, 202-647-8469.

Visas For information concerning the issuance to aliens of immigrant and nonimmigrant U.S. visas, contact Visa Services, Bureau of Consular Affairs. Phone, 202-647-1972. Direct written inquiries to the Visa Office, Department of State, CA/VO, SA-1, Washington, DC 20520.

Telephone Directory The Department's telephone directory is available for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402.

Tips for U.S. Travelers Abroad The following pamphlets are for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402:

Travel Tips for Senior Citizens This pamphlet contains basic information on official documents, clothing, health, money, aid for serious problems, and other useful travel tips.

Travel Warning on Drugs Abroad This pamphlet contains important facts on the potential dangers of being arrested for illegal drugs abroad and the type of assistance that U.S. consular officers can and cannot provide.

Your Trip Abroad The American tourist, business representative, or student traveling overseas can find in this pamphlet basic information on official documents, vaccinations, unusual travel requirements, dual nationality, drugs, modes of travel, customs, legal requirements, and many other topics.

Freedom of Information and Privacy Act Inquiries Requests from the public for Department of State records should be addressed to the Information and Privacy Coordinator, Bureau of Administration, Department of State, 2201 C Street NW., Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 202-647-3411. Individuals are requested to indicate on the outside of the envelope the statute under which they are requesting access: FOIA REQUEST or PRIVACY REQUEST.

Any identifiable Department of State document can be requested under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). Requesters should provide as much identifying information as possible about the document to assist the Department in locating it. Include subject matter, time frame, originator of the information, or any other helpful data.

Only persons who are U.S. citizens or aliens who are lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence can request information under the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a). Under this act, individuals may request access to records that are maintained under the individual's name or some other personally indentifiable symbol. Descriptions of record systems from which documents can be retrieved by the individual's name are published in the Federal Register, copies of which are available from the Information and Privacy Coordinator. To expedite processing of requests, individuals should specify the system of records they wish to have searched and should provide the following identifying information: full name, aliases (if any), date and place of birth, and circumstances, including approximate time period, which would have led to the creation of the record.

A public reading room, where unclassified and declassified documents may be inspected, is located in the Department of State, 2201 C Street NW., Washington, DC. Phone, 202-647-1267.

Directions to the reading room may be obtained from receptionists at public entrances to the Department.

Contracts General inquiries may be directed to the Procurement Division, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 703-235-9531.

Employment Inquiries about employment in the Foreign Service and the Department of State in Washington should be directed to the Recruitment Division, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. The Department's Employment Information Office is located in Room 2815. Phone, 202-647-0580.

For further information concerning the Department of State, contact the Office of Public Communication, Public Information Service, Bureau of Public Affairs, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 202-647-6575.

[For the Department of Transportation statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 49, Part 1, Subpart A]

The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) establishes the Nation's overall transportation policy. Under its umbrella there are nine administrations whose jurisdictions include highway planning, development, and construction; urban mass transit; railroads; aviation; and the safety of waterways, ports, highways, and oil and gas pipelines. Decisions made by DOT in conjunction with the appropriate State and local officials strongly affect other programs such as land planning, energy conservation, scarce resource utilization, and technological change.

The Department of Transportation was established by the act of October 15, 1966 (80 Stat. 931; 49 U.S.C. 1651 note), "to assure the coordinated, effective administration of the transportation programs of the Federal Government" and to develop "national transportation policies and programs conducive to the provision of fast, safe, efficient, and convenient transportation at the lowest cost consistent therewith." It became operational in April 1967 comprised of elements transferred from eight other major departments and agencies. It presently consists of the Office of the Secretary (OST) and nine operating administrations whose heads report directly to the Secretary and who have highly decentralized authority.

The central management concept of the Department is that operating programs are carried out by the operating administrations, which are organized generally by mode (e.g., air, rail, etc.). The Secretary and Deputy Secretary are responsible for the overall planning, direction, and control of all departmental activities and the Office of the Secretary focuses its attention largely on policy formulation, resource allocation, interagency and intradepartment coordination, evaluation of programs, and on matters of an intermodal nature requiring integration and balancing of modal interests. The Assistant Secretaries and the General Counsel are essentially staff officers, having one or more functional areas in which they assist the Secretary in matters of Department-wide scope. These officials do not exercise line control over the operating administrations.

Effective management of the Department is dependent for its efficient operation on a high degree of teamwork between the Assistant Secretaries and the heads of the operating administrations. Although operating generally within the standard regional boundaries, the field organizations of the various operating administrations differ widely in character primarily due to the nature of their work—some essentially providing funds to State and/or local governments for transportation undertakings such as road building, airport development, etc., others providing a vital nationwide public service such as air traffic control. The Department relies on Regional Representatives of the Secretary to coordinate the diverse programs of the Department in the field.

Office of the Secretary of Transportation

[For the Office of the Secretary of Transportation statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 49, Part 1, Subpart B]

The Department of Transportation is administered by the Secretary of Transportation, who is the principal adviser to the President in all matters relating to Federal transportation programs. The Secretary is assisted in the administration of the Department by a Deputy Secretary of Transportation who acts for, and exercises the powers of, the Secretary of Transportation and is responsible for the supervision and coordination of the activities of the Department as directed by the Secretary of Transportation.

Policy and International Affairs The Assistant Secretary for Policy and International Affairs is the Secretary's key officer for the development, review, and coordination of policy for domestic and international transportation. The Assistant Secretary develops and evaluates public policy related to the transportation industries and their economic regulation and maintains policy of the Department's regulatory programs; proposes and coordinates on transportation-related legislation involving the private sector; provides analyses of current and emerging transportation policy issues to assess their economic and institutional implications, particularly with regard to Federal assistance, public trust funds, user charges, and energy and environmental aspects; undertakes studies and analyses to aid in the resolution of safety problems; develops policies to support the Department in aviation and maritime multilateral and bilateral negotiations with foreign governments and participates on the U.S. negotiating delegations; develops policies on a wide range of international trade-related matters; furnishes guidance to the United States Trade Representative's Trade Policy Committee in efforts to improve the U.S. balance of payments; arranges and coordinates cooperative agreements with foreign governments for the exchange of state-of-the-art scientific and technical information; provides assistance to the Agency for International Development's transportation programs in developing countries; and participates on the U.S.-Saudi Arabian Joint Commission for Economic Cooperation.

The Assistant Secretary also develops, coordinates, and carries out U.S. Government policy relating to the economic regulation of the airline industry, including licensing of U.S. and foreign carriers to serve in international air transportation; carrier fitness determinations; processing and resolving complaints concerning unfair competitive practices in international fares, rates, and tariff filings; establishing international and intra-Alaska mail rates; determining the disposition of requests for approval and immunization from the anti-trust laws of agreements; and resolving requests for the approval of mergers, acquisitions, and relationships between aviation entities.

Budget and Programs In order for the Department of Transportation to be successful in achieving its Presidential and congressionally mandated goals, it must possess and exercise a continuing capability to evaluate and improve the allocation of its resources and the effectiveness of its programs in meeting the Nation's transportation priorities. The Assistant Secretary for Budget and Programs is the principal staff advisor to the Secretary on the development, review, and presentation of the Department's budget resource requirements and on the evaluation and oversight of the Department's programs. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for reviewing the impact and programs in achieving their objectives, advising the Secretary on major problem areas that impede attainment of departmental program plans and objectives, and advising the Secretary on program and legislative changes necessary to resolve them. Important, too, is this Office's responsibility for coordinating the impact on departmental resources of legislative and other proposals, establishing procedures for development of long-range budgetary resource planning, and making recommendations on the budget and program aspects of proposals for acquisition of major new technical systems.

For further information, call 202-426-9191.

Administration The Department's management program includes formulating, prescribing, assuring compliance with, and evaluating the effectiveness of policies in the areas of personnel and training, manpower utilization, financial and information management systems (including telecommunications and automated data processing management), procurement and contracting, installations and logistics, and security. The program also includes the provision of comprehensive administrative services and computer support services to the Office of the Secretary and certain other components of the Department. These programs are under the direction and control of the Assistant Secretary for Administration, who also serves as the principal advisor to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary in matters involving the internal management of the Department. The Office of Hearings, under the Assistant Secretary for organizational and administrative purposes, conducts hearings in all formal Administrative Procedure Act proceedings under legislation vesting implementing responsibility in the Secretary.

Governmental Affairs The Office of Governmental Affairs is responsible for maintaining liaison with the Congress, State and local governments, and public and private interest groups; coordinating matters of congressional concern within the Department; coordinating the presentation to the Congress of the Department's legislative program; ensuring effective communication and coordination with other Federal agencies and State and local governments with respect to DOT programs; working with State and local governments in identifying their specific transportation needs and problems and assuring that information on new transportation technologies and assistance on possible solutions or improvements are made available in a timely and useful manner; and, as the Department's point of contact for public and private organizations and groups, maintaining and assuring that consumer preferences, awareness, and needs are brought into the decision-making process.

General Counsel The General Counsel is the chief legal officer of the Department and the final authority within the Department on questions of law; represents the Department in proceedings before regulatory agencies; supervises legal aspects of the Department's legislative program; and promotes and coordinates the efficient use of departmental legal resources.

Civil Rights The Director of the Office of Civil Rights is the principal adviser to the Secretary on civil rights and equal opportunity matters. The Director acts for and represents the Secretary to assure full and affirmative implementation of civil rights and equal opportunity precepts within the Department in all its official actions, including departmental employment practices; services rendered to the public, employment practices of contractors and subcontractors under direct or federally assisted contracts; operation of federally assisted activities, and other programs and efforts involving departmental assistance, participation, or endorsement. This Office is also responsible for the implementation of Executive Order 12320 of September 15, 1981, on aid to historically black colleges and universities.

For further information, call 202-426-4648.

Public Affairs The Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs is the principal adviser to the Secretary on the dissemination of information to the public and news media concerning the Department's policies and programs. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for the overall public information program and supervises the information activities of the nine operating elements of the Department.

Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization The Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, established in July 1980 pursuant to Pub. Law 95-507 (92 Stat. 1757), is responsible for the Department's implementation and execution of the functions and duties under sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637, 644) for developing policies and procedures consistent with Federal statutes to provide policy direction for minority, women-owned, and small and disadvantaged business participation in the Department's procurement and Federal financial assistance activities. The Office is also responsible for setting the Department's goals for minority, women-owned, and small disadvantaged businesses, which includes monitoring and evaluating the accomplishments of these goals.

Also contained within the Office is the responsibility of the Minority Business Resource Center, under the direction of the Director of the Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization, established under section 906 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act (90 Stat. 149; 49 U.S.C. 1657a), which establishes, maintains, and disseminates information to minorities on opportunities available in departmental procurement and Federal financial assistance activities.

For further information, call 202-426-1930.

Board of Contract Appeals The Board of Contract Appeals conducts hearings and issues final decisions in appeals from contracting officer decisions under contracts awarded by the Department and its constituent administrations in accordance with the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 2383; 41 U.S.C. 601); sits as the Contract Adjustment Board with plenary authority to grant extraordinary contractual relief under Public Law 85-804 (72 Stat. 972; 50 U.S.C. 1431); and hears and decides all contractor debarment cases pursuant to 41 CFR 12-1.604-1 (1983). Judges are designated as hearing officers to hear cases arising as a result of suspensions and debarments of participants in DOT financial assistance programs and perform such other adjudicatory functions assigned by the Secretary not inconsistent with the duties and responsibilities of the Board as set forth in the Contract Disputes Act of 1978.

For further information, contact the Contract Appeals Board, Department of Transportation, 400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590. Phone, 202-426-4305.

Office of Commercial Space Transportation The primary responsibility of the Office of Commercial Space Transportation is to promote private sector investment in and operation of expendable launch vehicles (ELV's), which are the unmanned booster rockets that place satellites in orbit. The Office provides the focal point within the Federal Government for formulating and implementing consistent policies that enable the American ELV industry to compete in both the domestic and international market. The Office also implements policies that streamline the licensing process for these activities.

For further information, call 202-426-5770.

Office of Essential Air Service Upon termination of the Civil Aeronautics Board on December 31, 1984, the responsibility for the essential air service provisions of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1705; 49 U.S.C. app. 1301) was transferred to the Department of Transportation. The Office of Essential Air Service was created on January 1, 1985, to administer the program. The Office monitors air service at all eligible communities, as defined by the act, to ensure that essential air service is maintained. Most essential air service is provided without subsidy. To help monitor and maintain essential service, carriers providing such service are required to file advance notices of their intentions to eliminate or reduce service. Where essential service cannot be provided without subsidy, carriers are subsidized to provide needed services. Two forms of subsidized service exist: First, in short-term situations incumbent carriers are sometimes required to remain in a market with full compensation for losses until a replacement can be found; and second and more typically, carriers are selected to provide long-term air service at agreed-to subsidy levels. The Office of Essential Air Service develops and determines appropriate subsidy levels for subsidized carriers; processes applications to terminate, suspend, or reduce air service below the defined essential level; determines which carrier among various applicants should be selected to provide subsidized service; and continuously reviews essential air service definitions for each community.

For further information, call 202-426-5903.

Inspector General The Department's Inspector General performs all audit functions, evaluates the effectiveness of programs to ensure uniform adherence to policy and procedures, promotes economy and efficiency in the administration of programs, and maintains a system of program review and followup on audit findings. The Inspector General performs all of the Department's investigative functions relating to waste, fraud, and abuse in Department programs and operations, including coordinating such matters with the Justice Department and other law enforcement agencies in accordance with the Inspector General Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1101; 5 U.S.C. app.). The Inspector General also operates the Department's Hotline Complaint Center.

For further information, call 202-755-1855, or toll free 800-424-9071.

Regional Representatives A Secretarial Representative is located in the headquarters city in each of the six standard regions. This representative provides a single focal point for representation of departmental or Secretarial interests in the field to assure effective administration of Federal transportation programs. The Regional Representative works with State and local agencies, public interest and user groups, and with other Federal agencies on matters involving two or more elements of the Department.

United States Coast Guard

The Coast Guard, established by the act of January 28, 1915 (14 U.S.C. 1), became a component of the Department of Transportation on April 1, 1967, pursuant to the Department of Transportation Act of October 15, 1966 (80 Stat. 931). The Coast Guard is a branch of the Armed Forces of the United States at all times and is a service within the Department of Transportation except when operating as part of the Navy in time of war or when the President directs.

The predecessor of the Coast Guard, "The Revenue Marine," was established in 1790 as a Federal maritime law enforcement agency. Many other major responsibilities have since been added.

Functions and Activities

Search and Rescue The Coast Guard maintains a system of rescue vessels, aircraft and communications facilities to carry out its function of saving life and property in and over the high seas and the navigable waters of the United States. This function includes flood relief and removing hazards to navigation.

Maritime Law Enforcement The Coast Guard is the primary maritime law enforcement agency for the United States. It enforces or assists in the enforcement of applicable Federal laws and treaties and other international agreements to which the United States is party, on and under the high seas and waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, and may conduct investigations into suspected violations of such laws and international agreements. The Coast Guard works with other Federal agencies in the enforcement of such laws as they pertain to the protection of living and nonliving resources and in the suppression of smuggling and illicit drug trafficking.

Commercial Vessel Safety The Coast Guard is charged with formulating, administering, and enforcing various safety standards for the design, construction, equipment, and maintenance of commercial vessels of the United States and offshore structures on the Outer Continental Shelf. The program includes enforcement of safety standards on foreign vessels subject to U.S. jurisdiction and administration and enforcement of vessel personnel manning and crew qualification standards.

Investigations are conducted of reported marine accidents, casualties, violations of law and regulations, misconduct, negligence, and incompetence occurring on commercial vessels subject to U.S. jurisdiction. Surveillance operations and boardings are conducted to detect violations of law and regulations. The program also functions to facilitate marine transportation by admeasuring vessels, supervising the employment and records of employment of merchant marine personnel, and administering the vessel documentation laws.

Great Lakes Pilotage The Coast Guard administers the Great Lakes Pilotage Act of 1960 that regulates pilotage services on the Great Lakes.

Marine Environmental Response The Coast Guard is responsible for enforcing the Federal Water Pollution Control Act on navigable waters of the United States and tributaries. Program objectives are to ensure that public health and welfare and the environment are protected when spills occur.

Functions conducted include providing a National Response Center to receive reports of oil and hazardous substance spills, investigating spills, initiating subsequent civil penalty actions when warranted, encouraging and monitoring responsible party cleanups, and when necessary, coordinating federally funded spill response operations. The program also provides a National Strike Force to assist Federal On-Scene Coordinators responding to pollution incidents.

Port and Environmental Safety This program is administered by the Coast Guard Captains of the Port (COTP's). The Coast Guard is authorized to enforce rules and regulations governing the safety and security of ports and the anchorage and movement of vessels in U.S. waters. Port safety and security functions include supervising cargo transfer operations, both storage and stowage, conducting harbor patrols and waterfront facility inspections, establishing security zones as required, and the control of vessel movement.

Waterways Management The Coast Guard has a significant role in the safe and orderly passage of cargo, people, and vessels on our nation's waterways. It has established Vessel Traffic Services in six major ports to provide for the safe movement of vessels at all times, but particularly during hazardous conditions, restricted visibility, or bad weather. The Program's goal is to ensure the safe, efficient flow of commerce. The Coast Guard also regulates the installation of equipment necessary for vessel safety.

For further information, call 202–426–2262.

Aids to Navigation The Coast Guard establishes and maintains the U.S. aids to navigation system that includes lights, buoys, daybeacons, fog signals, marine radiobeacons, racons, and long-range radionavigation aids. Long-range radionavigation aids include loran-C and OMEGA. Aids are established in or adjacent to waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, although OMEGA provides global coverage, and loran-C coverage has been established in parts of the Western Pacific, Europe, and the Mediterranean to meet Department of Defense requirements. These aids are intended to assist a navigator to determine a position or plot a safe course or to warn the navigator of dangers or obstructions to navigation. Other aids to navigation-related functions include broadcasting marine information and publishing Local Notice to Mariners and Light Lists.

Bridge Administration The Coast Guard administers the several statutes regulating the construction, maintenance, and operation of bridges across the navigable waters of the United States to provide for safe navigation through and under bridges.

Ice Operations The Coast Guard operates the Nation's icebreaking vessels (icebreakers and ice-capable cutters), supported by aircraft, for ice reconnaissance, to facilitate maritime transportation and aid in prevention of flooding in domestic waters. Additionally, icebreakers support logistics to U.S. polar installations and also support scientific research in Arctic and Antarctic waters.

Deepwater Ports Under the provisions of the Deepwater Port Act of 1974, the Coast Guard administers a licensing and regulatory program governing the construction, ownership (international aspects), and operation of deepwater ports on the high seas to transfer oil from tankers to shore.

Boating Safety The Coast Guard develops and directs a national boating safety program aimed at making the operation of small craft in U.S. waters both pleasurable and safe. This is accomplished by establishing uniform safety standards for recreational boats and associated equipment; encouraging State efforts through a grant-in-aid and liaison program; coordinating public education and information programs; administering the Coast Guard Auxiliary; and enforcing compliance with Federal laws and regulations relative to safe use and safety equipment requirements for small boats.

Coast Guard Auxiliary The Auxiliary is a nonmilitary volunteer organization of private citizens who own small boats, aircraft, or radio stations. Auxiliary members assist the Coast Guard by conducting boating education programs, patrolling marine regattas, participating in search and rescue operations, and conducting courtesy marine examinations.

For further information, call 202–426–1077.

Military Readiness As required by law, the Coast Guard maintains a state of readiness to function as a specialized service in the Navy in time of war.

Reserve Training The Coast Guard Reserve provides qualified individuals and trained units for active duty in time of war or national emergency and at such other times as the national security requires. In addition to its role in national defense, the Reserve augments the active service in the performance of peacetime missions during domestic emergencies and during routine and peak operations.

Marine Safety Council The Marine Safety Council acts as a deliberative body to consider proposed Coast Guard regulations and to provide a forum for the consideration of related problems.

Federal Aviation Administration

The Federal Aviation Administration, formerly the Federal Aviation Agency, was established by the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 744) and became a component of the Department of Transportation in 1967 pursuant to the Department of Transportation Act (80 Stat. 931; 49 U.S.C. 1651 note).

The Administration is charged with regulating air commerce in ways that best promote its development and safety and fulfill the requirements of national defense; controlling the use of navigable airspace of the United States and regulating both civil and military operations in such airspace in the interest of safety and efficiency; promoting, encouraging, and developing civil aeronautics; consolidating research and development with respect to air navigation facilities; installing and operating air navigation facilities; developing and operating a common system of air traffic control and navigation for both civil and military aircraft; and developing and implementing programs and regulations to control aircraft noise, sonic boom, and other environmental effects of civil aviation.

Functions and Activities

Safety Regulation The Administrator issues and enforces rules, regulations, and minimum standards relating to the manufacture, operation, and maintenance of aircraft, as well as the rating and certification (including medical) of airmen and the certification of airports serving air carriers certified by the Office of Aviation Operations in the Office of the Secretary of Transportation.

The agency performs flight inspection of air navigation facilities in the U.S. and, as required, abroad. It also enforces regulations under the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act (88 Stat. 2156; 49 U.S.C. 1801 note) applicable to shipments by air.

Airspace and Air Traffic Management The safe and efficient utilization of the navigable airspace is a primary objective of the agency. To meet this objective, it operates a network of airport traffic control towers, air route traffic control centers, and flight service stations. It develops air traffic rules and regulations and allocates the use of the airspace. It also provides for the security control of air traffic to meet national defense requirements.

Air Navigation Facilities The agency is responsible for the location, construction or installation, maintenance, operation, and quality assurance of Federal visual and electronic aids to air navigation. The agency operates and maintains voice/data communications equipment, radar facilities, computer systems, and visual display equipment at flight service stations, airport traffic control towers, and air route traffic control centers.

Research, Engineering, and Development The research, engineering, and development activities of the agency are directed toward providing the systems, procedures, facilities, and devices needed for a safe and efficient system of air navigation and air traffic control to meet the needs of civil aviation and the air defense system. The agency also performs an aeromedical research function to apply knowledge gained from its research program and the work of others to the safety and promotion of civil aviation and the health, safety, and efficiency of agency employees. The agency also supports development and testing of improved aircraft, engines, propellers, and appliances.

Test and Evaluation The agency conducts tests and evaluations of specified items such as aviation systems, subsystems, equipment, devices, materiels, concepts, or procedures at any phase in the cycle of their development from conception to acceptance and implementation, as well as assigned independent testing at key decision points.

Airport Programs The agency maintains a national plan of airport requirements, administers a grant program for development of public use airports to assure and improve safety and to meet current and future airport capacity needs, evaluates the environmental impacts of airport development, and administers an airport noise compatibility program with the goal of reducing noncompatible uses around airports. It also develops standards and technical guidance on airport planning, design, safety, and operations and provides grants to assist public agencies in airport system and master planning and airport development and improvement.

Metropolitan Washington Airports The agency is responsible for the care, operation, maintenance, improvement, and protection of Washington National Airport and Washington Dulles International Airport. It serves as the airport proprietor for the Washington metropolitan area.

Registration and Recordation The agency provides a system for the registration of aircraft and recording of documents affecting title or interest in the aircraft, aircraft engines, propellers, appliances, and spare parts.

Civil Aviation Abroad Under the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 and the International Aviation Facilities Act (62 Stat. 450; 49 U.S.C. app. 1151), the agency promotes aviation safety and civil aviation abroad by the exchange of aeronautical information with foreign aviation authorities, certifying foreign entities such as repair stations, foreign airmen and mechanics, negotiating bilateral airworthiness agreements to facilitate the import and export of aircraft and components, and providing technical assistance and training in all areas of the agency's expertise. It provides technical representation at international conferences, including participation in the International Civil Aviation Organization and other international organizations.

Other Programs The agency administers the aviation insurance and aircraft loan guarantee programs. It is an allotting agency under the Defense Materials System with respect to priorities and allocation for civil aircraft and civil aviation operations. The agency develops specifications for the preparation of aeronautical charts. It publishes current information on airways and airport service and issues technical publications for the improvement of safety in flight, airport planning and design, and other aeronautical activities. It serves as the executive administration for the operation and maintenance of the Department of Transportation automated payroll and personnel systems.

Federal Highway Administration

The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) became a component of the Department of Transportation in 1967 pursuant to the Department of Transportation Act (80 Stat. 931). It carries out the highway transportation programs of the Department of Transportation under pertinent legislation or provisions of law cited in section 6(a) of the act.

FHWA encompasses highway transportation in its broadest scope, seeking to coordinate highways with other modes of transportation to achieve the most effective balance of transportation systems and facilities under cohesive Federal transportation policies as contemplated by the act.

FHWA is concerned with the total operation and environment of highway systems, including highway safety. In administering its highway transportation programs, FHWA gives full consideration to the impacts of highway development and travel, transportation needs, engineering and safety aspects, and project costs. FHWA ensures balanced treatment of these factors by utilizing a systematic, interdisciplinary approach in providing for safe and efficient highway transportation.

Functions and Activities

Federal-Aid Highway Program FHWA administers the Federal-aid highway program of financial assistance to the States for highway construction and improvement of efficiency in highway and traffic operations. This program provides for construction and preservation of the approximately 42,500-mile National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, financed on a 90-percent Federal, 10-percent State basis, and the improvement of approximately 800,000 miles of other Federal-aid primary, secondary, and urban roads and streets, with financing generally on a 75-to-25-percent basis. FHWA also administers the Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program to assist in the inspection, analysis, and rehabilitation or replacement of bridges both on and off the Federal-aid highway systems. In addition, FHWA administers an emergency program to assist in the repair or reconstruction of Federal-aid highways and certain Federal roads that have suffered serious damage by natural disasters over a wide area or catastrophic failures. The State Highway Agencies initiate all Federal-aid highway projects and are responsible for planning, design, and construction. Revenues derived from special taxes on highway users are deposited into the general funds of the Treasury and credited to the Highway Trust Fund to meet, through the congressional authorization and appropriation processes, the Federal share of highway program costs.

Special emphasis is directed toward making highway improvements that are the highest priority needs in each State, adherence to environmental requirements, improving the safety design of new highways, correcting highway hazards on existing roads, reducing traffic congestion, and facilitating the flow of traffic. FHWA provides multidisciplinary expertise to States in assessing environmental impacts so that highways are located, designed, and constructed in harmony with environmental concerns. Severe environmental impacts are often avoided and proper mitigation measures are taken when avoidance is not possible. Other Federal-aid highway programs administered by the FHWA include improving access for the handicapped, encouraging the joint use and development of highway corridors, acquiring real property for right-of-way, and providing relocation assistance to those displaced by highway construction, encouraging disadvantaged and women's business enterprises to participate in highway construction, and preserving along highways the natural beauty of the countryside, public parks and recreation lands, wildlife and water-fowl refuges, and historic sites. FHWA also administers a technology transfer and traffic engineering program aimed at promoting the use and adoption of innovative highway engineering practices, and a Rural Technical Assistance Program to help States and local areas meet the growing transportation demands placed on rural roads and bridges. The technical assistance includes funding university-based technology transfer centers, on-site demonstrations, microcomputer software development, workshops, user manuals and guidelines, and special studies that aid rural areas.

Highway Safety Programs FHWA is responsible for several of the highway safety programs undertaken by the Federal Government. Under the authority of the Federal-aid highway acts, highway construction programs to increase safety are administered through matching grants to the States. These safety construction programs fund activities that eliminate roadside obstacles, identify and correct hazardous locations, eliminate hazards at railroad crossings, and improve signing, pavement markings, and signalization.

Under the Highway Safety Act of 1966, the Federal Government is authorized to provide funding assistance in the form of matching grants to States establishing specific highway safety programs in accordance with national standards promulgated by the Secretary of Transportation. FHWA administers highway-related safety standards providing for the identification and surveillance of accident locations; highway design, construction, and maintenance; traffic engineering services; and highway-related aspects of pedestrian safety. These standards form the foundation for the State and local programs dealing with street and highway safety.

Motor Carrier Programs Under the provisions of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, the FHWA was authorized to establish and maintain a National Truck Network, review and enforce State truck size and weight enforcement programs, and assist in obtaining uniformity among the States in the area of commercial motor carrier registration and taxation reporting.

The National Network was established to provide an opportunity for larger commercial vehicles to travel long interstate distances without regard to individual State size and weight restrictions.

The FHWA, in an effort to reduce pavement damage by larger commercial motor vehicles, reviews State plans for truck size and weight enforcement and requires that States annually provide information on the number of trucks weighed, number of overweight violations fines and penalties issued, and number of permits issued for overweight loads. This information is analyzed and submitted to Congress annually in the "Overweight Vehicles-Penalties and Permits Report."

The FHWA initiated the Interjurisdictional Trucking Program to promote simplified, more uniform State registration and taxation requirements. To achieve this, the FHWA is working closely with the National Governors' Association on the establishment and implementation of policy recommendations that include: universal State participation in the International Registration Plan; standard forms and procedures among State agencies that register and tax motor carriers; and further exploration of ways to achieve uniformity for mileage-based taxes and operating authority registration fees.

Under the authority of the motor carrier safety provisions, title 49, chapter 31, of the United States Code (49 U.S.C. 3101–3104), the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 (49 U.S.C.A. 2501–2520), and the Hazardous Materials Transportation Act (49 U.S.C. app. 1801–1812), FHWA exercises Federal regulatory jurisdiction over the safety performance of all commercial motor carriers engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. FHWA deals with some 220,000 carriers, who collectively operate over 4 million commerical vehicles on public highways, employing approximately 4.5 million full- or part-time professional drivers and approximately 22,000 shippers of hazardous materials. Federal safety regulations enunciating safe operating practices are published in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 551 et seq.). Implementing work activities are conducted by FHWA to promote observance by carriers of these safe practices. Safety management audits are conducted at the carrier's facilities to determine the safety performance of the carrier's over-the-road operations. Checks of vehicles and drivers are conducted at roadside. Compliance investigations are conducted with a view toward enforcement action, which may involve criminal prosecution or civil forfeiture proceedings against violators of the Federal motor carrier safety regulations or the hazardous materials transportation regulations. Additionally, FHWA is responsible for establishing and enforcing the minimum levels of financial responsibility of motor carriers, section 30 of the Motor Carrier Act of 1980 (49 U.S.C. 10927 note) and section 18 of the Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1982 (49 U.S.C. 10927 note).

FHWA also has jurisdiction over the safe movement on the Nation's highways of dangerous cargoes such as hazardous wastes, explosives, flammables, and other volatile materials; the safety and comfort of migrant workers; motor carrier employees' health; as well as programs in noise abatement in motor carrier operations and encouraging State adoption and enforcement of Federal regulations. In addition, FHWA has responsibility for administering the motor carrier safety assistance program under the provisions of sections 401–404 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (49 U.S.C. app. 2301–2304). The act provides for grants to qualified States for the development or implementation of programs for the enforcement of Federal or compatible State regulations applicable to commercial vehicle safety and hazardous materials transportation by highway.

Federal Lands Highway Program FHWA, through cooperative agreements with Federal land managing agencies, administers a coordinated Federal lands program consisting of forest highways, public lands highways, park roads and parkways, and Indian reservation roads. This program provides for the funding of more than 80,000 miles of federally owned roads or public authority-owned roads that are open for public travel and serve Federal lands. FHWA's direct Federal program provides for the program coordination and administration and directs transportation planning, engineering studies, designs and construction engineering assistance.

Additional Programs FHWA administers a highway planning program, the highway beautification program, the highway construction phase of the Appalachian regional development program, and the territorial highway program; provides highway program support and technical assistance on an allocation/transfer basis for other Federal agencies; administers on-the-job training programs for unskilled highway construction workers; and provides assistance and advice to foreign governments in various phases of highway engineering and administration. FHWA administers a civil rights program affecting the internal practices of the agency together with the equal employment and equal opportunity practices by recipients of Federal assistance. Some of the issues addressed include: disadvantaged business enterprise and women's business enterprise programs, title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964; and contract compliance as affected by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and title 23 of the United States Code.

Research and Development FHWA coordinates a wide-ranging research and development program directed toward the problems of traffic congestion; street and highway safety; effective highway design and reduced construction and maintenance costs through application of new technology; and reducing the overall impact of highway transportation. A major effort of FHWA is the transfer of the technology developed through research and other means to the State, county, city, and other local highway jurisdictions.

Training Through its National Highway Institute, FHWA develops and administers, in cooperation with State highway agencies, training programs of instruction designed primarily for State and local highway agency employees engaged or about to be engaged in Federal-aid highway work.

Federal Railroad Administration

The purpose of the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) is to promulgate and enforce rail safety regulations, administer railroad financial assistance programs, conduct research and development in support of improved railroad safety and national rail transportation policy, provide for the rehabilitation of Northeast Corridor rail passenger service, and consolidate government support of rail transportation activities.

The Federal Railroad Administration was created pursuant to section 3(e)(1) of the Department of Transportation Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 932).

Functions and Activities

Railroad Safety FRA administers and enforces the Federal laws and related regulations designed to promote safety on railroads; exercises jurisdiction over all areas of rail safety under the Rail Safety Act of 1970, such as track maintenance, inspection standards, equipment standards, and operating practices. It also administers and enforces regulations resulting from railroad safety legislation for locomotives, signals, safety appliances, power brakes, hours of service, transportation of explosives and other dangerous articles, reporting and investigation of railroad accidents. Railroad and related industry equipment, facilities, and records are inspected and required reports reviewed.

Research and Development A ground transportation research and development program is administered to advance all aspects of intercity ground transportation and railroad safety pertaining to the physical sciences and engineering, in order to improve railroad safety and ensure that railroads continue to be a viable national transportation resource.

Transportation Test Center This 50-square-mile facility, located near Pueblo, CO, provides testing for advanced and conventional systems and techniques designed to improve ground transportation. The facility has been managed and staffed for FRA by the Association of American Railroads since October 1, 1982. The United States and Canadian Governments and private industry use this facility to explore, under controlled conditions, the operation of both conventional and advanced systems. It is used by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration for testing of urban rapid transit vehicles.

For further information, contact the Transportation Test Center, Pueblo, CO 81001. Phone, 303–545–5660, ext. 5000.

Policy Program management for new and revised policies, plans, and projects related to railroad transportation economics, finance, system planning and operations is provided; appropriate studies and analyses are performed; relevant tests, demonstrations, and evaluations are conducted; Conrail monitoring and support for DOT's Conrail sales effort are provided; and labor/management programs are evaluated. Analyses of issues before regulatory agencies are carried out and recommendations are made to the Secretary as to the positions to be taken by DOT.

Passenger and Freight Services FRA administers a program of Federal assistance for national, regional, and local rail services. Programs include rail freight service assistance programs; rail service continuation programs and State rail planning; and for rail passenger service on a national, regional, and local basis.

FRA also administers programs to develop, implement, and administer rail system policies, plans, and programs for the Northeast Corridor in support of applicable provisions of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 31; 45 U.S.C. 801), the Rail Passenger Service Act (84 Stat. 1327; 45 U.S.C. 501), and related legislation.

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration

[For the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 49, Part 501]

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration was established by the Highway Safety Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1739). The Administration carries out programs relating to the safety performance of motor vehicles and related equipment, motor vehicle drivers and pedestrians, and a uniform nationwide speed limit under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 718), as amended, and the Highway Safety Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 731), as amended. Under the authority of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Saving Act (86 Stat. 947), as amended, the Administration carries out programs and studies aimed at reducing economic losses in motor vehicle crashes and repairs, through general motor vehicle programs; administers the Federal odometer law; issues theft prevention standards; and promulgates average fuel economy standards for passenger and nonpassenger motor vehicles.

Under the authority of the Clean Air Amendments of 1970 (84 Stat. 1700), the Administration certifies as to the consistency of Environmental Protection Agency State grants with any highway safety program developed pursuant to section 402 of title 23 of the United States Code.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration was established to carry out a congressional mandate to reduce the mounting number of deaths, injuries, and economic losses resulting from traffic accidents on the Nation's highways and to provide motor vehicle damage susceptibility and ease of repair information, motor vehicle inspection demonstrations, and protection of purchasers of motor vehicles having altered odometers, and to provide average standards for greater vehicle mileage per gallon of fuel for vehicles under 10,000 pounds (gross vehicle weight).

Rulemaking and Enforcement Programs

Motor Vehicle Safety Programs: The Administration is implementing motor vehicle safety programs to: reduce the occurrence of highway crashes; reduce the severity of injuries in such crashes as do occur; improve survivability and injury recovery by better postcrash measures; reduce the economic losses in crashes; conduct a consumer information study to determine motor vehicle damage susceptibility, degree of crashworthiness and ease of diagnosis and repair; and establish safeguards for the protection of purchasers of motor vehicles having altered or reset odometers.

Under the Administration's program, Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards are issued that prescribe safety features and levels of safety related performance for vehicles and motor vehicle equipment. Damage susceptibility, crashworthiness, ease of repair, and theft prevention are to be studied and reported to the Congress and public. The Administration establishes safeguards to protect purchasers of motor vehicles from vehicles with altered or reset odometers. The Administration conducts an intensive testing program to determine whether vehicles and equipment comply with applicable standards. It also investigates reports of safety-related defects. The Administration can require a manufacturer of motor vehicles or motor vehicle equipment to take corrective action.

The Energy Policy and Conservation Act, as amended (89 Stat. 871; 42 U.S.C. 6201 note), sets automotive fuel economy standards for passenger cars for model years 1985 and thereafter. The Administration has the option of altering the standards for the post-1985 period.

The Administration develops and promulgates mandatory fuel economy standards for light trucks for each model year and administers the fuel economy regulatory program. The Administration establishes rules for the collection and reporting of information required concerning manufacturers' technological alternatives and corporate economic capabilities in meeting fuel economy standards.

Traffic Safety Programs The law provides for Federal matching funds to assist States with their driver, pedestrian, and motor vehicle safety programs. The Administration has issued standards as guidelines and provides technical assistance to State and local community safety programs. Areas of primary emphasis are the implementation of countermeasures to reduce accidents and resultant deaths and injuries attributable to the use of alcohol and drugs, to increase occupant restraint usage, to improve emergency medical systems, and to control the aberrant driver.

The Administration maintains a register of persons who have had their operator's license withdrawn or revoked for more than 6 months.

The National Highway Safety Advisory Committee of the Department of Transportation provides valuable advice and counsel on standards and other highway safety matters.

Research and Development To provide a foundation for the development of motor vehicle fuel economy and highway safety program standards, the Administration administers a broadscale program of research, development, testing, demonstration, and evaluation of motor vehicles, motor vehicle equipment, operator and pedestrian safety, and accident data collection and analysis.

The research program covers numerous areas affecting safety problems and includes provision for appropriate laboratory testing facilities to obtain necessary basic data. In this connection, research in both light and heavy vehicle crashworthiness and crash avoidance is being pursued. The objectives are to encourage industry to adopt advanced motor vehicle safety designs, stimulate public awareness of safety potentials, and provide a base for vehicle safety information.

The Administration maintains a collection of scientific and technical information related to motor vehicle safety, and operates the National Center for Statistics and Analysis, whose activities include the development and maintenance of highway accident data collection systems and related analysis efforts. These comprehensive motor vehicle safety information resources serve as documentary reference points for Federal, State, and local agencies; industry; universities; and the public.

Urban Mass Transportation Administration

[For the Urban Mass Transportation Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 49, Part 601]

The Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) operates under the authority of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended (49 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.). The Administration was established as a component of the Department of Transportation by section 3 of the President's Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1968, effective July 1, 1968.

The missions of the Administration are: to assist in the development of improved mass transportation facilities, equipment, techniques, and methods; to encourage the planning and establishment of areawide urban mass transportation systems where they are cost-effective; to provide assistance to State and local governments in financing such systems; and to encourage private sector involvement in local mass transportation systems.

Programs

The Federal Public Transportation Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 2140), also known as title III of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, extended through fiscal year 1986 authorizations for several programs of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964. Under the act, UMTA's financial assistance programs, provided under the Discretionary Capital Grant Program (section 3) and the Capital and Operating Formula Assistance Program (section 5), were continued during fiscal year 1983. Under title III, in fiscal year 1983 only, a Mass Transit Account Distribution Program (section 9A), a formula-apportioned resource, was made available for planning and for any eligible capital purpose. In fiscal year 1984, section 9A was replaced by another new program, a Formula Grant Program (section 9) that may be used for capital, planning, and operating assistance.

Discretionary Capital Assistance Grants and Loans, Advance Land Acquisition Loans Grants or loans are authorized to assist communities in acquiring or improving capital equipment and facilities needed for urban mass transit systems, both public and private. Only State, regional, or local governmental bodies and public agencies are eligible as applicants. Private transit operators may be assisted under the program through arrangements with an eligible public body.

The grant is 75 percent (reduced from 80 percent by title III) of new project cost if the urban area has completed a program for a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as a part of the comprehensive planned development of the area.

Capital loans may be made to qualified public agencies at a moderate rate of interest, if financing cannot otherwise be obtained at reasonable terms.

Advance land acquisition loans may be made at a moderate rate of interest to finance the purchase of land or interests in land for future use on urban mass transportation systems. Loans are secured by the land or interests in land financed by the loans. Only State, regional, and local government agencies are eligible as applicants. Land and interests in land are eligible providing that they are reasonably expected to be required in connection with an urban mass transportation system and will be used for that purpose within 10 years of the date of the loan agreement.

For further information, contact the Regional Office for the area concerned.

Formula Operating and Capital Assistance Section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, contains formula-based programs for capital and operating assistance. Funds for tiers I, II, and IV are apportioned to urbanized areas by a formula based one-half on population and one-half on population density. Basic programs (tiers I and II) funds can be used either for construction, operating, or capital assistance. Tier IV funds can be used only for bus-related capital projects. The Federal matching share for funds used for capital purposes is up to 80 percent, and the matching share for operating purposes is up to 50 percent.

Tier III funds are apportioned among urbanized areas on the basis of fixed guideway and commuter rail mileages and commuter rail train mileages. These funds can be used for capital and operating expenses related to both fixed guideway and commuter rail purposes with the same matching ratio as other tiers of the section 5 program.

The section 5 program received no new authorizations after fiscal year 1983.

For further information, contact the Regional Office for the area concerned.

Mass Transit Account Distribution Program for FY 1983 and Formula Grant Program The Federal Public Transportation Act of 1982 amended the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 by adding two new programs—a Formula Grant Program (section 9) and a Mass Transit Account Distribution Program (section 9A). Section 9 is a formula-apportioned program that has been available for both capital and operating assistance beginning in fiscal year 1984. Recipients of funds in urbanized areas of over 200,000 population are jointly designated by the Governors of the respective States, local officials, and public transit operators. The Governor acts as recipient for urbanized areas with populations from 50,000 up to 200,000.

Funds are requested through the projects program. The projects program is based on the annual element of the Transportation Improvement Program, which is endorsed by the Metropolitan Planning Organization.

For fiscal year 1983 only, the new legislation created the section 9A program, which is a 1-year program of formula-apportioned assistance that may be used for all otherwise eligible purposes of section 9 except operating assistance; i.e., it may be used for planning and all those capital-related purposes specified in the act. While the permanent section 9 program will be funded from general fund appropriations, the 1-year section 9A program is funded from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund. The matching ratio of Federal to non-Federal shares for the section 9A program is 80/20 percent, respectively, for capital assistance and 50/50, respectively, for operating assistance.

For further information, contact the Regional Office for the area concerned.

Technical Assistance The Administration provides funds for research, development, and demonstration projects in all phases of urban mass transportation for the purpose of increasing productivity and efficiency in urban mass transportation systems, improving mass transportation service and equipment, and assisting State and local governments in providing total urban transportation services in a cost-effective manner. A comprehensive program of research, development, and demonstration is conducted, addressing the following principal areas of concern: bus, paratransit and rail technology, new systems and automation, safety and product qualification, socioeconomic factors, service and methods demonstrations, planning methodology, policy development, program evaluation, and management techniques and methods.

Major projects in these areas are development, testing, and evaluation of energy saving components and subsystems for transit buses and rail cars; demonstrations of innovative techniques for reducing the costs of constructing tunnels and elevated track structures and quieting the noise generated by rail transit vehicles and economical means of rehabilitating and extending the useful life of existing transit facilities; demonstration of new techniques of traffic management, such as priority for high occupancy vehicles; innovative pricing policies; new computerized techniques for planning urban transportation systems; and special features enabling elderly and handicapped individuals to use transit vehicles. Most projects are conducted under contracts with private organizations, both profit and nonprofit, public bodies, including State and local governments, and expert individuals.

For further information, contact the Regional Office for the area concerned.

University Research and Training Grants Grants may be awarded to public and private nonprofit institutions of higher learning to assist in carrying out research activities on problems of urban mass transportation and in providing training for students and working professionals in the field of urban transportation analysis and operations. The objective is to encourage and support university research, education, and training that addresses and is responsive to Federal, State, and local transportation concerns, and advances the understanding and resolution of critical transportation problems.

For further information, call 202–426–0080.

Managerial Training Grants Grants to governmental bodies and agencies and operators of public transportation services provide fellowships for training in public or private training institutions for personnel employed in managerial, technical, and professional positions in the public transportation field. The assistance provided under this section toward each fellowship shall not exceed the lesser of $5,000 or 50 percent of the sum of tuition, travel, housing, meals, and related expenses such as books.

For further information, call 202–426–0080.

Technical Studies Grants Grants to governmental bodies and agencies are authorized for up to 100 percent but, by policy, are awarded up to 80 percent of the cost of planning, programming, engineering, and designing urban mass transportation projects. Grants also are made for other types of transit studies to enhance the design and operation of transit systems.

For further information, call 202–426–2360.

Capital and Operating Formula Assistance for Nonurbanized Areas The Capital and Operating Formula Assistance Program (section 18) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, contains a program of capital and operating assistance for exclusive use in nonurbanized areas (under 50,000 population). Funds under this program are available for operating assistance, planning and program development activities, demonstration programs, vehicle acquisition, and other capital investments in support of general or special transit services, including services provided for the elderly, handicapped, and other transit-dependent persons. Like most other UMTA programs, the matching ratio of Federal to non-Federal shares for the section 18 program is 80:20 for capital assistance and 50:50 for operating assistance.

For further information, contact the Regional Office for the area concerned.

Maritime Administration

The Maritime Administration was established by Reorganization Plan 21 of 1950, effective May 24, 1950. The Maritime Act of 1981 (95 Stat.151; 46 U.S.C. 1601) transferred the Maritime Administration to the Department of Transportation, effective August 6, 1981.

The Maritime Administration administers programs to aid in the development, promotion, and operation of the U.S. merchant marine. It is also charged with organizing and directing emergency merchant ship operations.

The Maritime Administration administers subsidy programs, through the Maritime Subsidy Board, under which the Federal Government, subject to statutory limitations, pays the difference between certain costs of operating ships under the U.S. flag and foreign competitive flags on essential services, and the difference between the costs of constructing ships in U.S. and foreign shipyards. It provides financing guarantees for the construction, reconstruction, and reconditioning of ships; and enters into capital construction fund agreements that grant tax deferrals on moneys to be used for the acquisition, construction, or reconstruction of ships.

The Administration constructs or supervises the construction of merchant type ships for the Federal Government. It helps industry generate increased business for U.S. ships and conducts programs to develop ports, facilities, and intermodal transport, and to promote domestic shipping.

The Administration administers a War Risk Insurance Program that ensures operators and seamen against losses caused by hostile action if domestic commercial insurance is not available.

The Administration conducts research and development activities to improve the efficiency and economy of the merchant marine. Under emergency conditions it charters Government-owned ships to U.S. operators, requisitions or procures ships owned by U.S. citizens, and allocates them to meet defense needs.

It maintains a National Defense Reserve Fleet of Government-owned ships that it operates through general agents when required in national defense interests. An element of this activity is the Ready Reserve Force consisting of a number of ships available for quick-response activation.

It regulates sales to aliens and transfers to foreign registry of ships that are fully or partially owned by U.S. citizens. It also disposes of Government-owned ships found nonessential for national defense.

The Administration operates the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, NY, where young people are trained to become merchant marine officers, and conducts training in shipboard firefighting at Earle, NJ; San Francisco, CA; and Toledo, OH. It also administers a Federal assistance program for the maritime academies operated by California, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, and Texas.

Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation was established by an act of Congress approved May 13, 1954 (33 U.S.C. 981-990). The Corporation, one of the operating administrations of the Department of Transportation, is self-sustaining, being financed from revenues received from tolls charged for the use of its facilities.

The Corporation, a wholly Government-owned enterprise, is responsible for the development, operation, and maintenance of that part of the Seaway between Montreal and Lake Erie, within the territorial limits of the United States.

It is the function of the Seaway Corporation to provide a safe, efficient, and effective water artery for maritime commerce, both in peacetime and in time of national emergency. The Seaway Corporation charges tolls in accordance with established rates for users of the Seaway that it negotiates with the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada. The Corporation coordinates its activities with its Canadian counterpart, particularly with respect to overall operations, traffic control, navigation aids, safety, season extension, and related programs designed to fully develop the fourth seacoast. As a self-sustaining entity, it encourages the development of traffic through the Great Lakes Seaway system so as to contribute significantly to the comprehensive economic and environmental development of the entire region.

For further information, contact the Director of Communications, Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, Department of Transportation, 800 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20591. Phone, 202-426-3346.

Research and Special Programs Administration

[For the Department of Transportation statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 49, Part 1, Subpart B]

The Research and Special Programs Administration (RSPA) was established formally on September 23, 1977, and reorganized in 1985 to improve its organizational and operational efficiency. The reorganization abolished the Materials Transportation Bureau and replaces it with the Office of Hazardous Materials Transportation and the Office of Pipeline Safety. The Administration now consists of the Office of Hazardous Materials Transportation, the Office of Pipeline Safety, the Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge, Massachusetts, the Office of Emergency Transportation, the Office of Aviation Information Management, and the Office of Program Management and Administration.

Staff functions for the Administration are assigned to the Office of Program Management and Administration, which also includes the Transportation Safety Institute, and Navigation and Communications programs previously located in the Transportation Programs Bureau. The Office of the Chief Counsel provides the Administration with necessary legal support. The Administration is responsible for a number of programs involving safety regulation, emergency preparedness, and research and development. Emphasis is given to hazardous material transportation and pipeline safety, transportation emergency preparedness, safety training, and multimodal transportation research and development activities, and collection and dissemination of air carrier economic data.

Office of Hazardous Materials Transportation

400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590
Phone, 202–426–0656

The Office of Hazardous Materials Transportation develops and issues regulations for the safe transportation of hazardous materials by all modes, excluding bulk transportation by water. The regulations cover shipping and carrier operations, packaging and container specifications, and hazardous materials definitions. The Office is also responsible for the enforcement of regulations other than those applicable to a single mode of transportation. It reviews and analyzes reports made by the industry and by field staffs bearing upon compliance with the regulations, and conducts training and education programs to support the Department's regulatory system and the program for shipper and container manufacturer inspection and compliance. The Office is the national focal point for coordination and control of the Department's multimodal hazardous materials regulatory program, ensuring uniformity of approach and action by all modal administrations.

Information Dissemination The Office publishes an annual report on the hazardous materials program, which is transmitted to Congress, State agencies, safety organizations, and to industry and the public upon request. The Office also publishes a quarterly newsletter on hazardous materials transportation and maintains a reporting system that gathers, processes, and analyzes accident data from carriers transporting hazardous materials by rail, highway, air, and water and from manufacturers of containers used in transporting hazardous materials.

For further information, contact the Office of Operations and Enforcement (phone, 202–426–2301) and the Office of Regulatory Planning and Analysis (phone, 202–472–1024).

Training Programs The Office sponsors a number of training and information dissemination activities designed to familiarize industry personnel with the requirements of hazardous materials regulations, and to educate Federal and State inspectors in enforcement procedures. These activities include in-depth classroom training at the Transportation Safety Institute, development of home study training packages, and the distribution of a variety of information guides to those involved in hazardous materials transportation.

Office of Pipeline Safety

400 Seventh Street, SW., Washington, DC 20550
Phone, 202–755–9247

The Office of Pipeline Safety establishes and provides for enforcement of safety standards for the transportation of hazardous liquid and gaseous materials by pipeline either in or affecting interstate commerce.

State Pipeline Safety Program The Office administers a program whereby a State, when permitted by its statutes, can voluntarily assert safety regulatory jurisdiction over all or some of the intrastate pipeline facilities. To enable States to initiate a safety program or to broaden an existing program, the Federal Government is authorized to pay a State agency grant-in-aid funds of up to 50 percent of the actual cost for carrying out a pipeline safety program.

Alaska Pipeline Program The Office develops, implements, and administers Alaska pipeline plans, programs, policies, standards, specifications, and regulations in support of the President's decision and report to the Congress on the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System.

For further information, contact the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline Project, Department of Transportation, 400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590. Phone, 202–426–2392.

Information Dissemination The Office publishes an annual report on the pipeline safety program that is transmitted to Congress, State agencies, safety organizations, and to industry and the public upon request. The Office also publishes a quarterly newsletter on pipeline safety and maintains a reporting system that gathers, processes, and analyzes accident and operator data from pipeline companies.

Training Programs The Office sponsors a number of training and information dissemination activities designed to familiarize industry personnel with the requirements of hazardous materials regulations, and to educate Federal and State inspectors in enforcement procedures. These activities include in-depth classroom training at the Transportation Safety Institute, development of home study training packages, and the distribution of a variety of information guides to those involved in pipeline transportation.

Transportation Systems Center

Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02142
Phone, 617–494–2227

The Transportation Systems Center (TSC) consists of six major functional elements in addition to the Office of Administration. They are: the Office of Plans and Programs, Office of Information Resources, Office of Research and Analysis, Office of Operations Engineering, Office of Systems Assessment, and Office of Technology Applications.

Functions and Activities

Plans and Programs The Office of Plans and Programs provides the integrated planning, program development, and program evaluation that result in efficient use of the Center's resources in consonance with departmental goals and objectives. It also participates in departmental, interagency, national, and international committees and exchanges on information, research, and technology, and serves as the Center's focal point for university research activities and liaison with universities.

Information Resources The Office of Information Resources supports the Department in the development and maintenance of important national statistics and related transportation information data bases. It publishes and interprets information and statistics that describe how transportation functions in the United States, and conducts an active information exchange program among departmental, national, and international agencies, as well as State and local governments. The Office also manages and operates TSC's computer facilities, including provision of computer systems support, applications programming and analysis, and computer operations.

Research and Analysis The Office of Research and Analysis conducts research on the social and economic effects of transportation, and supports departmental programs in highway and motor vehicle safety and in the assessment of economic and environmental impacts of alternative Federal policies. It conducts socioeconomic analysis, transportation planning, and intermodal analyses, and integrated studies of transportation systems operations and impacts. These studies provide the technical basis for transportation policy decisions by the Department.

Operations Engineering The Office of Operations Engineering formulates, implements, and directs programs of development and analysis to support the operations of present and future air and marine systems. It also operates and manages the Center for Navigation that provides technical assistance to the DOT Navigation Working Group and conducts technical activities in support of departmental operating administrations. These programs support Federal Aviation Administration-related activities and Coast Guard command, control, communications, and navigation requirements.

Systems Assessment The Office of Systems Assessment plans, directs, and conducts projects for the assessment and application of improved techniques and systems to transportation operations, with particular emphasis on urban systems. It conducts assessments of alternative urban and national transportation policies and assesses performance of new service innovations or demonstrations to improve understanding of the feasibility and desirability of potential technological, managerial, or institutional innovations in transportation systems, with emphasis on operational improvements and productivity enhancements.

Technology Applications The Office of Technology Applications plans, directs, and conducts projects for the application of technology to the solution of present and anticipated requirements in all forms of ground transportation systems. Primary emphasis is in broad-based technological assessments pertaining to the implementation of an energy-efficient, safe, and low-polluting ground transportation fleet, and in railroad safety technology, particularly related to Federal Railroad Administration track safety standards.

For further information, contact the Transportation Systems Center, Kendall Square, Department of Transportation, Cambridge, MA 02142. Phone, 617–494–2227.

Office of Emergency Transportation

400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590

Phone, 202–426–4262

The Office of Emergency Transportation is dedicated to fulfilling the Secretary of Transportation's statutory and administrative responsibilities in the area of transportation civil emergency preparedness. It is the primary element of the Department engaged in the development, coordination, and review of policies, plans, and programs for attaining and maintaining a high state of Federal transportation emergency preparedness. This Office oversees the effective discharge of the Secretary's responsibilities in all emergencies affecting the national defense and in national or regional emergencies, including those caused by natural disasters and other crisis situations.

For further information, contact the Office of Emergency Transportation, DET–1, Research and Special Programs Administration, Department of Transportation, 400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590. Phone, 202–426–4262.

Office of Program Management and Administration

400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590
Phone, 202–426–4934

The Office of Program Management and Administration provides staff and administrative support services for the Research and Special Programs Administration. In addition, it promotes safety and security management by designing and conducting training programs, provides planning and analysis on the future mix of federally sponsored civil radionavigation and radiocommunications systems, and plans and develops transportation statistics and data for the Department. The Office consists of three organizational elements: the Office of Administration, Transportation Safety Institute, and Office of Budget and Programs.

Functions and Activities

Office of Administration The Office of Administration provides personnel management, organization planning, contracting and procurement support for the Administration.

For further information, call 202–426–4934.

Transportation Safety Institute The Institute was established in 1971 by the Secretary of Transportation to support the Department's efforts to reduce the number and cost of transportation accidents. The Institute develops and conducts training programs for Federal, State, and local government and industry and foreign personnel in response to requests by the several departmental administrations in support of improved safety and security management of transportation functions.

For further information, contact the Transportation Safety Institute, Department of Transportation, 6500 South McArthur Boulevard, Oklahoma City, OK 73125. Phone, 405–686–2153.

Office of Budget and Programs This Office provides planning and implementation for budget formulation, financial management and reporting; plans radionavigation and radiocommunications systems to meet the future needs and safety requirements; and develops, analyzes, and disseminates domestic and international transportation information and statistics.

For further information, call 202–426–4347.

Office of Aviation Information Management

400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590
Phone, 202–426–9058

The Office of Aviation Information Management fulfills the Secretary's statutory responsiblity to collect and disseminate economic aviation data. The data shows the financial and statistical results of air carrier operations in providing air transportation. The Office identifies the DOT program requirements for aviation data and arranges access. Where data collections are needed, the Office prescribes rules for air carrier accounting and reporting. It also receives the reports, validates and processes the data, and generates a variety of end product publications and data banks. Aviation data may be viewed in the Office's public reports facility or accessed through a variety of Government and private sector services. Certain restrictions apply to public access to some of the data.

For information about access to public reports, call 202–426–8989, DAI–10. For information about Office functions, call 202–426–9058, DAI–1.

For further information, contact the Office of Administration, Research and Special Programs Administration, Department of Transportation, 400 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20590. Phone, 202–426–4934.

The Department of the Treasury performs four basic types of functions: formulating and recommending economic, financial, tax, and fiscal policies; serving as financial agent for the U.S. Government; enforcing the law; and manufacturing coins and currency.

The Treasury Department was created by act of Congress approved September 2, 1789 (1 Stat. 65; 31 U.S.C. 1001). Many subsequent acts have figured in the development of the Department, delegating new duties to its charge and establishing the numerous bureaus and divisions that now compose the Treasury.

Secretary

As a major policy adviser to the President, the Secretary has primary responsibility for formulating and recommending domestic and international financial, economic, and tax policy; participating in the formulation of broad fiscal policies that have general significance for the economy; and managing the public debt. The Secretary also oversees the activities of the Department in carrying out its major law enforcement responsibility; in serving as the financial agent for the U.S. Government; and in manufacturing coins, currency, and other products for customer agencies.

In addition, the Secretary has many responsibilities stemming from his position as chief financial officer of the Government. The Secretary serves as Chairman pro tempore of the Economic Policy Council and as U.S. Governor of the International Monetary Fund, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the Inter-American Development Bank, and the African Development Bank.

Deputy Secretary

The Deputy Secretary assists the Secretary in the supervision and direction of the Department and its assigned programs, and acts for the Secretary in his absence, sickness, or unavailability.

Under Secretary for Finance

The Under Secretary for Finance advises and assists the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of the Treasury in domestic, finance, banking, and economic matters. These responsibilities include the development of policies and guidance of Treasury Department activities in the areas of monetary affairs, management of public debt, financial institutions policy, and domestic fiscal and economic monetary matters.

Assistant Secretaries

Management The Office of the Assistant Secretary (Management) serves as the principal policy adviser to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary on the management of the annual planning and budget process and on matters involving the internal management of the Department and its bureaus. The Assistant Secretary oversees the Department's management programs, which include personnel and training and affirmative action and equal employment opportunity; management analysis; financial management; information systems; and property procurement and contracting. The Office also is responsible for the provision of comprehensive administrative services to the Office of the Secretary and certain other components of the Department.

Domestic Finance The Assistant Secretary (Domestic Finance) advises and assists the Secretary, Deputy Secretary, and Under Secretary for Finance on matters of Federal finance, State and local finance, financial institutions policy, and synthetic fuels project.

In the area of Federal finance, the Office is responsible for Government financing and debt management; determining interest rates for various Federal borrowing and lending and investment purposes under pertinent statutes; developing legislative and administrative principles and standards for Federal credit programs, loan asset sales, and the Federal Financing Bank.

The Office is also responsible for issues involving the financing of State and local governments; oversight of the Office of Revenue Sharing, which returns specified amounts of federally collected funds to eligible units of general-purpose governments; coordinating the Treasury Department's legislative efforts with regard to financial institutions legislation and legislation affecting the Federal agencies that regulate financial institutions; and providing support to carry out the Department's responsibilities regarding the Securities Investor Protection Corporation, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, and synthetic fuels projects taken over from the Synthetic Fuels Corporation.

Economic Policy The Assistant Secretary (Economic Policy) informs the Secretary and other senior Treasury officials of current and prospective economic developments and assists in the determination of appropriate economic policies. The Assistant Secretary is responsible for the review and analyses of both domestic and international economic issues, as well as developments in the financial markets;

Participates with the Secretary in the Economic Policy Council (EPC) and on the Troika Forecasting Group, which develops official economic projections and advises the President on choices among alternative courses of economic policy; and Works closely with officials of the Office of Management and Budget, the Council of Economic Advisers, and other Government agencies on the economic forecasts underlying the yearly budget process, and advises the Secretary on the economic effects of tax and budget policy. Within the Office of Economic Policy, staff support is provided by the Office of Financial Analysis, the Office of Special Studies, the Office of Monetary Policy Analysis, and the Applied Econometric Staff.

Enforcement and Operations The Assistant Secretary (Enforcement and Operations) supervises the following operating bureaus: U.S. Secret Service; U.S. Customs Service; Federal Law Enforcement Training Center; and Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. In addition, the Assistant Secretary is responsible for the Office of Financial Enforcement, and the Office of Foreign Assets Control.

The Assistant Secretary coordinates Treasury law enforcement matters, including the formulation of policies for Treasury enforcement activities, and cooperates on law enforcement matters with other Federal agencies.

The important missions of protecting the President and other high Government officials and preventing counterfeiting of U.S. currency and theft and forgery of Government securities and checks are entrusted to the United States Secret Service. The U.S. Customs Service collects revenue from imports and enforces the customs laws. In addition, it interdicts contraband, including narcotics, along the land and sea borders of the United States. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is charged with collecting excise taxes on alcoholic beverages and tobacco products; suppressing traffic in illicit distilled spirits and illegal use of explosives; and controlling the sale and registration of firearms. The Federal Law Enforcement Training Center provides law enforcement training for personnel of Federal agencies. The Office of Financial Enforcement assists in implementing the Bank Secrecy Act and administering related Treasury regulations. The Office of Foreign Assets Control assists U.S. foreign policy aims by controlling assets in the United States of "blocked" countries and the flow of funds and trade to them.

Fiscal Assistant Secretary The Office of the Fiscal Assistant Secretary was established pursuant to the President's Reorganization Plan No. III of 1940. The office supervises the administration of the Government's fiscal affairs. This includes the administration of Treasury financing operations; management of Treasury's cash balances in tax and loan investment accounts in commercial financial institutions and operating balances with Federal Reserve Banks; and the Department's participation in the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program for improvement of accounting in the Federal Government. Supervision and oversight over the functions and activities of the Financial Management Service and the Bureau of the Public Debt are also provided. The Fiscal Assistant Secretary is responsible for improved cash management in the Treasury and on a governmentwide basis under the umbrella of the Administration's Reform '88.

The Office acts as liaison between the Secretary and other agencies of the Government with respect to their financial operations; manages the cash position of the Treasury, projects and monitors "debt subject-to-limit"; directs the performance of the fiscal agency functions of the Federal Reserve Banks; conducts governmentwide accounting and cash management activities; exercises supervision over depositories of the United States; and provides management overview of investment practices for Government trust and other accounts.

International Affairs The Office of the Assistant Secretary (International Affairs) advises and assists the Secretary and other senior policy officials in the formulation and execution of policies dealing with international monetary, financial, commercial, energy, and trade policies and programs. The work of the Office is organized into groups responsible for monetary affairs, developing nations, trade and investment policy, and Arabian Peninsula affairs.

These functions are performed by supporting staff offices that conduct financial diplomacy with industrial and developing nations and regions; work toward improving the structure and operations of the international monetary system; monitor developments in foreign exchange and other markets and official operations affecting those markets; facilitate structural monetary cooperation through the International Monetary Fund and other channels; oversee U.S. participation in the multilateral development banks and coordinate U.S. policies and operations relating to bilateral and multilateral development lending programs and institutions; formulate policy concerning financing of trade; coordinate policies toward foreign investments in the United States and U.S. investments abroad; and analyze balance of payments and other basic financial and economic data, including data on petroleum, affecting world payments patterns and the world economic outlook.

As part of those functions, the Office supports the Secretary in his role as co-Chairman of the U.S.-Saudi Arabian Joint Commission on Economic Cooperation, as co-Chairman of the U.S.-Israel Joint Committee for Investment and Trade, as co-Chairman of the U.S.-China Joint Economic Committee, and as Chairman of the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Policies.

Legislative Affairs The Office of the Assistant Secretary (Legislative Affairs) advises the Secretary and all sub-Cabinet officers on congressional relations policy and serves as the principal contact and coordinator of all departmental contacts with Congress and with congressional relations activities in the White House and other departments.

Public Affairs and Public Liaison The Office of the Assistant Secretary (Public Affairs and Public Liaison) advises the Secretary and his staff on the Department's relations with the news media, the White House Press Office, other Government agencies, businesses, trade and professional organizations, consumer groups, and the public. It establishes general policies for administering public affairs, business affairs, consumer affairs, and intergovernmental affairs programs in Treasury bureaus. This office designs and implements policies and programs that will increase the public's knowledge and understanding of Treasury's activities and services among the news media, business groups, consumer groups, other Government agencies, and the public.

Tax Policy The Office of the Assistant Secretary (Tax Policy) advises and assists the Secretary and the Deputy secretary in the formulation and execution of domestic and international tax policies and programs.

These functions, carried out by supporting staff offices, include: analysis of proposed tax legislation and tax programs; projections of economic trends affecting tax bases; studies of effects of alternative tax measures; preparation of official estimates of Government receipts for the President's annual budget messages; legal advice and analysis on domestic and international tax matters; assistance in the development and review of tax legislation and domestic and international tax regulations and rulings; participation in international tax treaty negotiations and in maintenance of relations with international organizations on tax matters.

General Counsel

The Office of the General Counsel furnishes legal advice to the Secretary with respect to his responsibilities as chief financial officer of the Government and as the overseer of the operating functions of the Treasury Department. The General Counsel is the chief law officer of the department, and, as such, is the head of the Legal Division, which is composed of all attorneys providing legal service to all offices and bureaus of the Department.

For further information concerning the Office of the Secretary, contact the Public Affairs Office, Department of the Treasury, Fifteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20220. Phone, 202-566-2041.

Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was established by Treasury Department Order No. 221, effective July 1, 1972. The order transferred the functions, powers, and duties arising under laws relating to alcohol, tobacco, firearms, and explosives from the Internal Revenue Service to the Bureau. On December 5, 1978, Treasury Department Order No. 120-1 assigned to the Bureau responsibility for enforcing chapter 114 of title 18 of the United States Code relating to interstate trafficking in contraband cigarettes.

Bureau headquarters is located in Washington, DC, but since the Bureau is decentralized, most of its personnel are stationed throughout the country where many of its operational functions are performed. The Director is appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury and is under the supervision of the Assistant Secretary (Enforcement and Operations).

The Bureau is responsible for enforcing and administering firearms and explosives laws, as well as those covering the production, use, and distribution of alcohol and tobacco products.

The objective of the Bureau's programs is to maximize compliance with these laws and to minimize willful and involuntary violations of the laws. To achieve these goals, the Bureau is divided into two basic functions: law enforcement and compliance operations.

The objectives of the law enforcement activity are to eliminate illegal trafficking, possession and use of firearms, destructive devices, and explosives; impact interstate arson schemes; suppress the traffic in illicit distilled spirits; suppress the interstate trafficking in contraband cigarettes; and assist State and local law enforcement agencies in reducing crime and violence.

The compliance operations activity determines and ensures full collection of revenue due from legal alcohol and tobacco industries; fulfills the Bureau's responsibility in the prevention of commercial bribery, consumer deception, and other improper trade practices in the beverage alcohol industry; assists other Federal, State, and local governmental agencies in the resolution of problems relating to industrial development, ecology, and revenue protection; ensures that categories of persons prohibited by law from manufacturing, importing, or dealing in alcohol, tobacco, firearms, and explosives do not obtain a license or permit; ensures that storage facilities for explosives are safe and secure, to avoid presenting a hazard to the public, and that explosives are properly stored in such facilities; and ensures that the audit trail is preserved to permit the tracing of firearms used in the commission of crimes and full accountability for explosive materials.

Office of the Comptroller of the Currency

[For the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 12, Part 4]

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created by act of Congress approved February 25, 1863 (12 Stat. 665), as an integral part of the national banking system.

The Comptroller, as the administrator of national banks, is responsible for the execution of laws relating to national banks and promulgates rules and regulations governing the operations of approximately 5,000 national and District of Columbia banks. Approval of the Comptroller is required for the organization of new national banks, conversion of State-chartered banks into national banks, consolidations or mergers of banks where the surviving institution is a national bank, and the establishment of branches by national banks.

The Office of the Comptroller exercises general supervision over the operations of national banks, including trust activities and overseas operations. Each bank is examined periodically through a nationwide staff of approximately 1,800 bank examiners under the immediate supervision of six district deputy comptrollers and six district administrators. These examinations operate in the public interest by assisting the Comptroller in appraising the financial condition of the banks, the soundness of their operations, the quality of their management, and their compliance with laws, rules, and regulations.

For further information, contact the Communications Division, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Department of the Treasury, 490 L'Enfant Plaza East SW., Washington, DC 20219. Phone, 202-447-1800.

United States Customs Service

The fifth act of the first Congress, passed on July 31, 1789, established customs districts and authorized customs officers to collect duties on goods, wares, and merchandise imposed by the second act of the first Congress, dated July 4, 1789. The Bureau of Customs was established as a separate agency under Treasury Department on March 3, 1927 (44 Stat. 1381) and, effective August 1, 1973, was redesignated the United States Customs Service by Treasury Department Order 165-23 of April 4, 1973.

The Customs Service collects the revenue from imports and enforces customs and related laws. Customs also administers the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, and other customs laws. Some of the responsibilities that Customs is specifically charged with are assessing and collecting customs duties, excise taxes, fees, and penalties due on imported merchandise; interdicting and seizing contraband, including narcotics and illegal drugs; processing persons, carriers, cargo, and mail into and out of the United States; administering certain navigation laws; detecting and apprehending persons engaged in fraudulent practices designed to circumvent customs and related laws; copyright, patent, and trademark provisions; quotas; and marking requirements for imported merchandise.

As the principal border enforcement agency, Customs' mission has been extended over the years to assisting in the administration and enforcement of some 400 provisions of law on behalf of more than 40 Government agencies. Today, in addition to enforcing the Tarrif Act of 1830 and other customs statutes, the Customs Service enforces export control laws and intercepts illegal high-technology exports to Soviet bloc countries; cooperates with other Federal agencies and foreign governments in suppressing the traffic in illegal narcotics and pornography; enforces reporting requirements of the Bank Secrecy Act; collects international trade statistics; and enforces a wide range of requirements to protect the public, such as auto safety and emission control standards, radiation and radioactive material standards, counterfeit monetary instruments, flammable fabric restrictions, animal and plant quarantine requirements, and food, drug, and hazardous substance prohibitions.

Customs is extensively involved with outside commercial and policy organizations and trade associations, and with international organizations and foreign customs services. Customs is a member of the multinational Customs Cooperation Council, the Cabinet Committee to Combat Terrorism, and the International Narcotics Control Program. In addition, Customs participates in and supports the activities and programs of various international organizations and agreements, including the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the International Civil Aviation Organization, and the Organization of American States.

Headquarters of the U.S. Customs Service is located in Washington, DC, under the supervision of the Commissioner of Customs, who is appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The 50 States, plus the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, are divided into seven Customs Regions. Contained within these regions are 46 subordinate district or area offices under that there are approximately 300 ports of entry.

The foreign field offices of the Customs Service are located in Montreal, Mexico City, London, Ottawa, Paris, Bonn, Rome, Hong Kong, Tokyo, and Brussels.

A Canine Enforcement Training Center is operated at Front Royal, VA.

Bureau of Engraving and Printing

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing operates on basic authorities conferred by the acts of July 11, 1862 (12 Stat. 532; 31 U.S.C. 303) and additional authorities contained in past appropriations made to the Bureau for work to be undertaken, which are still in force.

A working capital fund was established in accordance with the provisions of section 2 of the act of August 4, 1950 (64 Stat. 408; 31 U.S.C. 5142), as amended, which placed the Bureau on a completely reimbursable basis. The Bureau is headed by a Director who is appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, engraves, and prints U.S. currency; postage stamps; Treasury obligations (bills, bonds, certificates, notes, revenue and customs stamps); and other U.S. securities. It also is responsible for advising and assisting Federal agencies in the design and production of other government documents that, because of their innate value or some other reason, require security or counterfeit deterrence characteristics.

The Bureau may be the largest printer of security documents in the world; over 40 billion security documents are printed annually. Total sales for FY 1986 will reach approximately $241 million. All Bureau operations are conducted in Washington, DC.

For further information, contact the Program Analysis and External Affairs Staff, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Department of the Treasury, Room 104–18M, Fourteenth and C Streets SW., Washington, DC 20228. Phone, 202–447–9939.

Federal Law Enforcement Training Center

The Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) was established by Treasury Department Order No. 217, effective March 2, 1970, and Revision 1, effective June 30, 1970.

The Federal Law Enforcement Training Center is headed by a Director, who is appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Center conducts operations at its training facility located at Glynco, GA. The Center also maintains a Washington office at 1200 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20226. Phone, 202–566–2951. In addition, the Center has a satellite operation in the Pinal Air Park in Marana, AZ 85653. Phone, 602–622–5305.

The Center is an interagency training facility serving 59 Federal law enforcement organizations. The major training effort is in the area of basic programs to teach common areas of law enforcement skills to police and investigative personnel. The Center also conducts advanced programs in areas of common need, such as courses in white collar crime, the use of microcomputers as an investigative tool, advanced law enforcement photography, procurement/contract fraud, marine law enforcement, and several instructor training courses. In addition to the basic and common advanced programs, the Center provides the facilities and support services for participating organizations to conduct advanced training for their own law enforcement personnel. The Center offers selective, highly specialized training programs to State and local officers as an aid in deterring crime. These programs include a variety of areas such as fraud and financial investigations, cargo theft investigations, juvenile justice topics, marine law enforcement, and arson for profit.

The Center develops the curriculum content and training techniques for use in the recruit training, and advises and assists the participating organizations on the production and formulation of the materials and mechanics required for the various organizations' specialized training.

Administrative and financial activities are supervised by the Department of the Treasury. However, training policy, programs, criteria, and standards are governed by the interagency Board of Directors, comprised of senior officials from eight departments and independent agencies.

For further information, contact the Public Affairs Office, Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, Department of the Treasury, Glynco, GA 31524. Phone, 912-267-2447.

Financial Management Service

The Financial Management Service promotes the financial integrity of the U.S. Government through sound money management on behalf of the public. The Service is responsible for the Government's cash management, credit management, and debt collection programs, payments and collections, the investment of social security and other trust funds, and the Government's central accounting and reporting system.

Working Capital Management The Service is responsible for programs to improve cash management, credit management, and debt collection governmentwide. For cash management, the Service issues guidelines and regulations and assists other agencies in managing financial transactions to maximize investment earnings and reduce the interest costs of borrowed funds. For credit management, the Service issues guidelines and regulations and assists program agencies with management of credit activities, including loan programs, to improve all parts of the credit cycle, such as credit extension, loan servicing, debt collection, and write-off procedures. The Service also reviews regulations and legislation for working capital management impact and promotes effective cash and credit management by working directly with all Federal agencies and providing educational seminars. The Service is presently working with other agencies on projects to improve the way government handles its payments, collections, and receivables, and to take advantage of new automation technology.

Payments The Service issues approximately 500 million Treasury checks and close to 250 million electronic fund transfer (EFT) payments annually for Federal salaries and wages, payments to suppliers of goods and services to the Federal Government, income tax refunds, and payments under major Government programs such as social security and veterans' benefits. The Service pays all Treasury checks and reconciles them against the accounts of government disbursing officers, receives and examines claims for checks that are cashed under forged endorsements or that are lost, stolen, or destroyed; and issues new checks on approved claims. The Service uses two EFT methods: the automated clearinghouses—for recurring payments such as Government benefits and salaries—and wire transfers through the Treasury Financial Communication System (TFCS). TFCS is a computer-to-computer link with the Federal Reserve System that allows for the electronic transfer of funds to virtually any financial institution in the United States.

Collections The Service supervises the collection of Government receipts and operates and maintains the systems for collecting these receipts. The Service is working with all Federal agencies to improve the availability of collected funds and the reporting of collection information to Treasury. Current collection systems include the Treasury General Account System, the Treasury Tax and Loan System for withholding and other Federal tax deposits, and the Treasury National Automated Lockbox System for accelerating the processing of agency receipts.

Central Accounting and Reporting The Service maintains a central system that accounts for the monetary assets and liabilities of the Treasury and tracks Government collection and payment operations. Periodic reports are prepared to show budget results, the Government's overall financial status, and other financial operations. These reports include the Daily Treasury Statement, the Monthly Treasury Statement, the Quarterly Treasury Bulletin, and the annual Treasury Combined Statement.

Internal Revenue Service

The Office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue was established by an act of Congress on July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. 432; 26 U.S.C. 7802).

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is responsible for administering and enforcing the internal revenue laws and related statutes, except those relating to alcohol, tobacco, firearms, and explosives. The IRS mission is to collect the proper amount of tax revenue at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency, and fairness. To achieve that purpose, IRS will encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax laws and regulations; advise the public of their rights and responsibilities; determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance; do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws; continually search for and implement new, more efficient ways of accomplishing our mission.

Basic IRS activities include ensuring satisfactory resolution of taxpayer complaints, providing taxpayer service and education; determination, assessment, and collection of internal revenue taxes; determination of pension plan qualifications and exempt organization status; and preparation and issuance of rulings and regulations to supplement the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The source of most revenues collected is the individual income tax and the social insurance and retirement taxes, with other major sources being the corporation income, excise, estate, and gift taxes. Congress first received authority to levy taxes on the income of individuals and corporations in 1913, pursuant to the 16th amendment of the Constitution.

Organization

IRS organization is designed for maximum decentralization, consistent with the need for uniform interpretation of the tax laws and efficient utilization of resources. There are three organizational levels: the National Office, the Regional Offices, and the District Offices and Service Centers. Districts may have local offices, the number and location of that are determined by taxpayer and IRS needs.

Headquarters Organization The National Office, located in Washington, DC, develops nationwide policies and programs for the administration of the internal revenue laws and provides overall direction to the field organization. The National Computer Center in Martinsburg, WV, and the Data Center in Detroit, MI, also are assigned to the National Office.

Field Organization

As a decentralized organization, most of the IRS personnel and activities are assigned to field installations.

Regional Offices There are seven Regional Offices, each headed by a Regional Commissioner, which supervise and evaluate the operations of District Offices and Service Centers.

District Offices There are 62 Internal Revenue districts, each administered by a District Director. Districts may encompass an entire State, or a certain number of counties within a State, depending on population. Programs of the District include taxpayer service, examination, collection, criminal investigation, resources management, and, in some districts, pension plans and exempt organizations. Functions performed are: assistance and service to taxpayers, determination of tax liability by examination of tax returns, determination of pension plan qualification, collection of delinquent returns and taxes, and investigation of criminal and civil violations of internal revenue laws (except those relating to alcohol, tobacco, firearms, and explosives). Directors are responsible for the deposit of taxes collected by the District and for initial processing of original applications for admission to practice before IRS and renewal issuances for those practitioners already enrolled. Local offices may be established to meet taxpayer needs and IRS workload requirements.

United States Mint

The Mint of the United States was established by act of Congress April 2, 1792 (1 Stat. 246). The Bureau of the Mint was established by act of Congress February 12, 1873 (17 Stat. 424) and recodified on September 13, 1982 (96 Stat. 879; 31 U.S.C. 304 and 96 Stat. 988; 31 U.S.C. 5131). The name was changed to United States Mint by Secretarial order dated January 9, 1984.

The principal mission of the United States Mint is to manufacture an adequate volume of coins for the Nation's commerce. This includes the distribution of coins for general circulation through the facilities of the Federal Reserve Banks. Other operations include the production of foreign coins; the custody, processing, and movement of Treasury gold and silver bullion and the disbursing of these metals for authorized purposes; the manufacture of national medals, proof coin sets and other numismatic items for sale to the public; and such administrative functions as are required by law and regulation.

Bureau of the Public Debt

The Bureau of the Public Debt was established on June 30, 1940, pursuant to the Reorganization Act of 1939 (53 Stat. 561) and recodified on September 13, 1982 (96 Stat. 879; 31 U.S.C. 306).

The Bureau supports the management of the public debt, prepares Department of the Treasury circulars offering public debt securities; directs the handling of subscriptions and making of allotments; formulates instructions and regulations pertaining to security issues; and conducts or directs the conduct of transactions in outstanding securities. The Bureau performs the final audit of retired securities and interest coupons; maintains accounting control over public debt receipts and expenditures, securities, and interest costs; keeps individual accounts of owners of book-entry and registered securities and authorizes the payment of principal and interest; and adjudicates claims on account of lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated securities.

The Bureau's principal office and headquarters is in Washington, DC. An office is also maintained in Parkersburg, WV, where most Bureau operations related to U.S. Savings Bonds, U.S. Savings Notes and Retirement Plan and Individual Retirement Bonds are handled. Under Bureau supervision, transactions in public debt securities are conducted by the Federal Reserve Banks and their branches as fiscal agents of the United States. Most banks and other financial institutions act as issuing and paying agents for U.S. Savings Bonds, and as paying agents for U.S. Savings Notes.

For further information, contact the Office of the Commissioner, Bureau of the Public Debt, Department of the Treasury, Washington, DC 20239–0001. Phone, 202–376–4300. Requests for information relating to holdings of all series of savings bonds, savings notes, and retirement plan and individual retirement bonds should be addressed to the Bureau of the Public Debt, Department of the Treasury, 200 Third Street, Parkersburg, WV 26106–1328. Phone, 304–420–6103, extension 6274.

United States Savings Bonds Division

Under Treasury Order 62, dated December 26, 1945, the Savings Bonds Division is successor to the War Finance Division, War Savings Staff, and Defense Savings Staff created originally in Treasury Order 39, dated March 19, 1941.

The United States Savings Bonds Division promotes the sale and retention of U.S. savings bonds.

The Division, headquartered in Washington, DC, has field offices throughout the United States under the direction of 18 district offices. The promotional staff's major function is the installation and maintenance of the payroll savings plan through which nearly 60 percent of total sales are derived. Personal contact is made with banks and other financial institutions, business, labor, farm, school, the media, and community leaders to gain awareness and understanding of the savings bonds program. A continuing planned effort is made to enlist volunteer support to further the sales of savings bonds. Historically, volunteer commitment to the program has been a determining factor in its success.

Internal Revenue Service

Taxpayer Service The Internal Revenue Service provides year-round tax information and assistance to taxpayers, primarily through its toll-free telephone system. Taxpayers requesting information about the tax system, their rights and obligations under it, and the tax benefits available to them can call the IRS number listed in their local telephone directory and in the tax form packages mailed to them annually. This service allows taxpayers anywhere in the United States to call IRS without paying a long-distance charge. Special toll-free telephone assistance also is available to deaf and hearing-impaired taxpayers who have access to a teletypewriter or television/phone. These special numbers are included in the annual tax form packages and also are available from any IRS office.

Taxpayers may also visit IRS offices for help with their tax problems. IRS provides return preparation assistance to taxpayers by guiding groups of individuals line by line on the preparation of their returns. Individual preparation is available for handicapped or other individuals unable to use the group preparation method.

Foreign language tax assistance also is available at many locations.

Problem Resolution Program Each District has a Problem Resolution Officer who attempts to resolve taxpayers' complaints not satisfied through regular channels.

Educational Programs IRS provides, free of charge, general tax information publications and booklets on specific tax topics. Taxpayer information materials also are distributed to major television networks and many radio and television stations, daily and weekly newspapers, magazines, and specialized publications. Special educational materials and films are provided for use in high schools and colleges. Individuals starting a new business are given specialized materials and information at small business workshops. The Community Outreach Tax Assistance program provides IRS employees to assist community groups at mutually convenient times and locations.

Through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program and the Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) program, IRS recruits, trains, and supports volunteers who offer free tax assistance to low-income, elderly, military, and non-English-speaking taxpayers.

Materials, films, and information on the educational programs can be obtained by contacting any District Office.

Audiovisual Materials IRS films, some of which are available in Spanish, provide information on the American tax system, examination and appeal rights, and the tax responsibilities of running a small business. Films can be obtained by contacting any District Office.

Also available are audio cassette tapes and videocassettes that provide step-by-step instructions for preparing basic individual income tax forms. These tapes are available in many local libraries.

Speakers Speakers on provisions of the tax law and operations of the Internal Revenue Service for professional and community groups may be obtained by writing to the District Directors or, for national organizations only, to the Public Affairs Division at the IRS national headquarters in Washington, DC.

Public Reading Room Public reading rooms are located in the National Office and in each Regional Office or, in some cases, a District Office located in a Regional Office building.

Contractors Write to Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue NW. (PM:S:FM:C), Washington, DC 20224 (phone, 202-535-4804); or Chief, Facilities Management Branch, at any of the Internal Revenue Regional Offices.

Publications The Annual Report—Commissioner of Internal Revenue (Pub. 55), as well as periodic reports of Statistics of Incomes, which present statistical tabulations concerning various tax returns filed, are available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Audit of Returns, Appeal Rights, and Claims for Refund (Pub. 556); Your Federal Income Tax (Pub. 17); Farmers Tax Guide (Pub. 225); Tax Guide for Small Business (Pub. 334); and other publications are available at Internal Revenue Service offices free of charge.

Employment Almost every major field of study has some application to the work of IRS. A substantial number of positions are filled by persons whose major educational preparation was accounting, business administration, finance, economics, criminology, and law. There are, however, a great number of positions that are filled by persons whose college major was political science, public administration, education, liberal arts, or other fields not directly related to business or law. Extensive use is made of competitive registers and examinations in selecting IRS employees. Schools interested in participating in the IRS's extensive recruitment program, or anyone considering employment with IRS, may direct inquiries to the Recruitment Coordinator at any of the Regional or District Offices.

ACTION's purpose is to mobilize Americans for voluntary service throughout the United States through programs that help meet basic human needs and support the self-help efforts of low-income individuals and communities.

ACTION administers and coordinates the domestic volunteer programs sponsored by the Federal Government, which are linked by a commitment to a "bottoms-up," locally initiated development process fostering self-reliance and utilizes available human and economic resources to overcome conditions of poverty. Through special demonstration grants and programs, ACTION also tests new ways of bringing volunteer resources to bear on human, social, and economic problems. It identifies and develops the widest possible range of volunteer service opportunities for Americans of all ages and ethnic backgrounds. The agency actively encourages private sector involvement in support of its goals and programs.

ACTION is the principal agency in the Federal Government for administering volunteer service programs. It was created as an independent agency under the provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1971, effective July 1, 1971, and Executive Order 11603 of June 30, 1971, with legislative authority provided by the Domestic Volunteer Service Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 394; 42 U.S.C. 4951), as amended.

ACTION includes Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), the Foster Grandparent Program (FGP), the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), the Senior Companion Program (SCP), and the Volunteer Management Support

Program (VMSP), as well as demonstration projects.

ACTION consists of a Washington, DC, headquarters and 9 regional offices, supporting 45 individual State offices and Puerto Rico.

Domestic Programs and Activities

Foster Grandparent Program The Foster Grandparent Program (FGP) was created in 1965 and offers to older men and women opportunities for close relationships with children having special or exceptional needs. It is an opportunity for older Americans to continue serving their communities and themselves in an active and meaningful capacity.

Foster Grandparents are low-income persons at least 60 years of age and come from various backgrounds. They receive both preservice orientation and inservice instruction. Volunteers serve 20 hours per week, receive a nontaxable stipend of $2.20 per hour, as well as provisions for reimbursement of travel costs, a meal each day they serve, accident and liability insurance coverage, and a yearly physical examination.

Foster Grandparents serve in schools and hospitals for mentally retarded, disturbed, and handicapped children; in care centers, hospital wards, and corrections institutions; in homes for disadvantaged, dependent, or neglected children; and other settings within the community. An increased percentage of Foster Grandparents are being encouraged to serve in settings dealing with literacy, drug abuse, and runaway youth, including some inhome placements.

The Foster Grandparents' main purpose is to help provide for the emotional, mental, and physical well-being of children by affording them close, personal, and continuing relations with an adult. They furnish a renewed sense of love and intimacy often missing in institutional environments. They also may assist in feeding and dressing the children, reading, playing games, telling them stories, and aiding in speech and physical therapy and other care-giving activities that tend to maximize the functional capabilities of these children.

For further information, call 202-634-9349.

Retired Senior Volunteer Program The purpose of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) is to create a variety of significant opportunities for persons of retirement age to participate more fully in the life of their communities through volunteer service.

RSVP projects are planned, organized, and operated at the local level and developed under the auspices of an established organization able to generate local program and financial support.

Volunteers must be at least 60 years of age and willing and able to serve on a regular basis. There are no income or educational restrictions. RSVP volunteers perform various services, according to community need and their own preferences, in a variety of settings, including schools, courts, and health care, rehabilitation, day care, youth, and other community centers. They also serve in outreach roles within their community. RSVP celebrates its 15th anniversary this year.

For further information, call 202-634-9353.

Senior Companion Program The Senior Companion Program (SCP) provides meaningful part-time volunteer opportunities for low-income older persons to render, in a mutually beneficial relationship, supportive person-to-person services to adults, especially older people, with special needs in health-, education-, and welfare-related settings.

Under the sponsorship and supervision of an approved agency, the Senior Companion serves in and through a variety of settings such as hospitals, social service agencies, or home and health care agencies. Over 80 percent of the Senior Companions are serving older persons in their own homes in order to prevent or delay inappropriate institutionalization. Senior Companions receive the same benefits as Foster Grandparents for 20 hours of service per week.

For further information, call 202-634-9351.

Volunteer Management Support Program The Volunteer Management Support Program (VMSP), initiated and funded through an interagency agreement between ACTION and the Department of Commerce's Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) in March 1983, is a demonstration program designed to determine the capacity of full-time volunteers to assist the MBDA-funded, nonprofit Minority Business Development Centers (MBDC) in their efforts to promote and expand minority business development.

As a volunteer adjunct to the limited number of nonprofit MBDC's designated to participate in the demonstration, VMSP specifically focuses its volunteer efforts on strategies for effective minority business advocacy, increased private sector participation in and support of local minority enterprise efforts, and the generation and dissemination of supportive research and information.

Volunteers in VMSP are locally recruited and receive a basic living allowance, which covers housing, food, and incidentals. Health insurance also is provided.

For further information, call 202-634-9308.

Volunteers in Service to America The creation of Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) was authorized by Congress in 1964 to provide constructive opportunities for Americans to work on a full-time basis with locally sponsored projects designed to increase the capability of low-income people to improve the condition of their own lives. Volunteers are assigned to local sponsors, which may be Federal or State agencies or private nonprofit organizations located in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. Volunteers serve for 1 year. More than half of the program's resources focus upon illiteracy, unemployment, hunger, and homelessness.

Volunteers live and work among the poor in urban or rural areas or on Indian reservations. They share their skills and experience in fields such as drug abuse, education, literacy, runaway youth, refugee resettlement, community design, weatherization, economic development, and emergency food and shelter. Most volunteers are recruited locally for community projects. Thirty percent are low-income persons; about 20 percent are age 55 and over. A VISTA volunteer must be a resident of the United States or one of its territories. A physical disability does not disqualify a volunteer, providing placement can be made on a VISTA project.

Volunteers participate in orientation and training sessions conducted by ACTION and sponsor personnel at the beginning of and during VISTA service. Volunteers receive a basic subsistence allowance, which covers housing, food, and incidentals. Health insurance also is provided. An additional $75 a month is paid as a stipend upon completion of service.

For further information, call the Director, VISTA and Service Learning. Phone, 202-634-9445.

National Center for Service Learning The National Center for Service Learning (NCSL) is the national resource center and information clearinghouse for service-learning. It promotes the development of service-learning nationwide by providing information and technical advice to interested schools, universities, community agencies, and national organizations. NCSL does not control local efforts, determine local needs, or place volunteers. Rather, it supports and fosters the growth of local, poverty-related service-learning efforts by:

Producing and distributing manuals and other materials that provide information on the planning and implementation of successful programs;

Sponsoring seminars that are designed and conducted by coordinators of exemplary service-learning programs, which cover topics such as the selection of work assignments, recruitment of students, fundraising and support activities, and program evaluation;

Facilitating the exchange of information and expertise among service-learning educators;

Collecting and distributing research data to encourage local program development; and Conducting demonstration projects to show new ways in which service-learning can be used to benefit communities and students.

For further information, contact the Director, VISTA and Service Learning. Phone, 202–634–9445.

Office of Voluntarism Initiatives

The programs in the Office of Voluntarism Initiatives (OVI) were developed to provide links at national, State, and local levels among public and private organizations to encourage volunteer activity in solving social problems.

Demonstration Projects OVI is responsible for the development of special emphasis and demonstration programs that focus on certain areas of concern where volunteers can make a special contribution in ameliorating human and social problems. These volunteer demonstration programs test models that, if successful, may form the basis of the agency's programming or may be adopted by the private sector and State or local governments.

State Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation Program The State Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation Program (SOVCP) provides grants through State offices for developing statewide coordination of volunteer services and initiatives. In 1985, eight States were partially funded to provide leadership, contact, coordination, and cooperation with the leaders of private voluntary organizations and with public agency volunteer coordinators in the States.

Mini-Grant Program The Mini-Grant Program offers one-time, 1-year seed money grants to support volunteer projects and enhance volunteer activities that show potential for providing long-term solutions to community problems. All projects must show substantial local support and respond to funding priorities established and publicized yearly. The program offers access to nonprofit groups of small grants, up to $15,000, through streamlined procedures.

Technical Assistance Program The Technical Assistance Program offers grants to voluntary organizations to develop materials for training and technical assistance needs of volunteers and organizations. These grants average $7,500 each.

Resource Center The Resource Center, including the Library and Computer Data-Bank, collects, processes, and disseminates information on ACTION policy and programs, national/Federal resources for voluntarism, legislation pertaining to voluntarism, and training for volunteers and administrators.

Interagency Division The Interagency Division of the Office of Voluntarism Initiatives oversees agency agreements with other Federal agencies. In general, interagency agreements are initiated and carried out to demonstrate voluntary approaches to address local needs or problems.

Government's Involvement in Volunteer Efforts Government's

Involvement in Volunteer Efforts (GIVE) programs promote increased Federal employee voluntarism in nearly all Federal departments and agencies.

National Volunteer Week National Volunteer Week, designated in April of each year by the President, promotes special recognition of volunteers and their achievements among Federal agencies, State and local governments, and private organizations that use volunteers nationwide.

Public/Private Partnership Program The Public/Private Partnership Program has responsibility for the establishment of working relationships between ACTION and the private sector. The purpose of these relationships is to educate the public and to interest the private sector in meeting social needs through the generation of voluntary activity, financial support for volunteer organizations, the establishment of creative partnerships between the corporate sector and the ACTION agency, the recruitment of volunteers by community organizations as enhanced through technical assistance for developing media-based efforts, and the use of current information processing systems.

For further information concerning the Office of Voluntarism Initiatives, contact the Technical Assistance Division. Phone, 202-634-9749.

[For the Administrative Conference of the United States statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 1, Part 301]

The purpose of the Administrative Conference is to develop improvements in the procedures by which Federal agencies administer regulatory, benefit, and other Government programs. As members of the Conference, agency heads, other Federal officials, private lawyers, university professors, and other experts in administrative law and government are provided with a forum in which they can conduct continuing studies of selected problems involving these administrative procedures and can combine their experience and judgment in cooperative efforts toward improving the fairness and effectiveness of such procedures.

The Administrative Conference of the United States was established as a permanent independent agency by the Administrative Conference Act (5 U.S.C. 571–576) enacted in 1964. The statutory provisions prescribing the organization and activities of the Conference are based in part upon the experience of two temporary Conferences called by the President in 1953 and 1961, each of which operated for 18 months.

Membership

The Chairman of the Administrative Conference of the United States is appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate for a 5-year term. The Council, which is the executive board, consists of the Chairman and 10 other members appointed by the President for 3-year terms. Federal officials named to the Council may constitute no more than one-half of the total Council membership. In addition to the Chairman and the other members of the Council, the membership of the Administrative Conference is composed of 44 high-level officials designated from 37 departments and agencies of the Federal Government (or their designees) and 36 private lawyers, university faculty members, and others specially informed in law and government. Members representing the private sector are appointed by the Chairman, with the approval of the Council, for 2-year terms. The Chairman is the only full-time compensated member.

The entire membership is divided into six committees, each assigned a broad area of interest as follows: Adjudication, Administration, Governmental Processes, Judicial Review, Regulation, and Rulemaking. The membership meeting in plenary session is called the Assembly of the Administrative Conference, which by statute must meet at least once, and customarily meets twice, each year.

Activities

Subjects for inquiry are developed by the Chairman, the Council, the committees, and the Assembly. The committees, with staff assistance, conduct thorough studies of these subjects and develop proposed recommendations and supporting reports. The recommendations are evaluated by the Council and, if ready for Assembly consideration, are distributed to the membership with the supporting reports and are placed on the agenda of the next plenary session. The Assembly has complete authority to approve, amend, remand, or reject recommendations presented by the committees. The deliberations of the Assembly are public.

Although the Administrative Conference has the authority only to recommend changes in administrative procedures, the Chairman is authorized to encourage the departments and agencies to adopt the recommendations of the Conference and is required by the Administrative Conference Act to transmit to the President and to Congress an annual report and interim reports concerning the activities of the Conference, including reports on the implementation of its recommendations.

Recommendations adopted by the Conference may call for new legislation or for action on the part of affected agencies. A substantial number of recommendations have been implemented and others are in the process of implementation.

The Chairman is authorized to make independent inquiries into procedural matters he considers important for Conference consideration, including matters proposed by individuals inside or outside the Government. The purpose of conducting inquiries into such individual problems is not to review the results in particular cases, but rather to determine whether the problems should be made the subject of Conference study in the interests of developing fair and effective procedures for such cases.

Upon the request of the head of a department or agency, the Chairman is authorized to furnish advice and assistance on matters of administrative procedure. The Conference collects information and statistics from departments and agencies and publishes such reports as it considers useful for evaluating and improving administrative processes. The Conference also serves as a forum for the interchange among departments and agencies of information that may be useful in improving administrative practices and procedures.

Sources of Information

The Conference furnishes upon request copies of its recent recommendations and reports. It also maintains a library where copies of all official Conference documents are available for public inspection. Recommendations of the Conference appear in the title 1, part 305, of the Code of Federal Regulations.

[For the African Development Foundation statement of organization, see the Federal Register of May 3, 1985, 50 FR 18860]

The African Development Foundation assists and supports indigenous community-based, self-help grassroots organizations in their efforts to solve their country's development problems.

The African Development Foundation was established by the African Development Foundation Act (94 Stat. 3151; 22 U.S.C. 290h), approved December 16, 1980, as a nonprofit, government corporation to support the self-help efforts of poor people in African countries. The Foundation became operational in 1984 and is governed by a seven-member Board of Directors appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. By law, five Board members are from the private sector and two are from the Government.

The purposes of the Foundation are to strengthen the bonds of friendship and understanding between the people of Africa and the United States; to support self-help activities at the local level designed to enlarge opportunities for community development; to stimulate and assist effective and expanding participation of Africans in their development process; and to encourage the establishment and growth of development institutions that are indigenous to particular countries in Africa and that can respond to the requirements of the poor in those countries.

To carry out its purposes, the Foundation makes grants, loans, and loan guarantees to any African private or public group, association, or other entity engaged in peaceful activities that enable the people of Africa to develop more fully.

[For the American Battle Monuments Commission statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Nov. 30, 1968, 33 FR 17865, as amended at 34 FR 9573, June 18, 1969]

The American Battle Monuments Commission is responsible for the design, construction, and maintenance of permanent Federal military cemeteries and memorials on foreign soil, as well as for certain memorials on American soil. The Commission controls the design and provides regulations for the erection of monuments, markers, and memorials in foreign countries by other U.S. citizens and organizations, public or private.

Created by act of March 4, 1923, as amended, and its authority expanded by subsequent legislation, the American Battle Monuments Commission is administered by the Secretary under the guidance of the Commissioners, who serve without pay (42 Stat. 1509; 36 U.S.C. 121-138b; 24 U.S.C. 279a).

The Commission provides upon request to the general public the exact location and other information concerning place of interment or memorialization of the dead; best routes and modes of travel in-country to the cemeteries and memorials; and arranges for the placement of floral decorations at gravesites or the Tablets of the Missing. For next of kin and members of the immediate family, the Commission also provides letters authorizing "non-fee" passports; escort service within the cemetery; color lithographs of cemeteries together with photographs of the appropriate gravesite or section of the Tablets of the Missing.

The Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) is a Federal-State governmental agency concerned with the economic, physical, and social development of the 13-State Appalachian region, which includes parts of Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and all of West Virginia.

The Commission consists of the Governors (or their alternates) of the 13 Appalachian States, and a permanent Federal Cochairman appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The State members elect an Appalachian Governor to serve as States' Cochairman. This position rotates every year.

Functions

Under the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 5; 40 U.S.C. App. 1), project proposals must originate in the States and be presented to the Commission; no project can be approved unless it is first approved by the State concerned.

All recommendations of the Commission must be approved by a majority of the Governors and the Federal Cochairman.

Because of the State-Federal nature of the Commission, its staff members are not Federal employees. Commission expenses are shared equally by the Federal Government and the Appalachian States.

Activities

The Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 authorizes a broad spectrum of economic development programs that will contribute to the growth of the 397-county region.

In 1981 Congress asked the Commission for a plan to complete the Appalachian Regional Development Highway System and complete the ARC area development program in 3 to 5 years. The proposed plan would:

Limit ARC highway assistance to construction of only the highest priority 550 miles of the 1,300 unimproved miles in the planned Appalachian Development Highway System;

Focus major Commission area development activities on a 5-year jobs and private investment program;

Complete in 3 years the Commission's health program by bringing basic health care to those counties not yet reached and reducing infant mortality in counties with rates of more than 150 percent of the national average;

Assist, by means of a 5-year program, approximately 67 of the most distressed and underdeveloped counties in the region to meet their most critical needs, especially for safe drinking water and waste disposal; and

Seek help from the private sector, through a development foundation, so that a regional effort can continue after the termination of the Commission.

The Board for International Broadcasting was established by the Board for International Broadcasting Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 456), approved October 19, 1973.

Functions and Activities

The Board for International Broadcasting, an independent Federal agency responsible to the President and the Congress, consists of nine members appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of 3 years. Members are selected from among Americans distinguished in the fields of foreign policy or mass communications; no more than five members may be of the same political party.

The Board is served on a permanent basis by an executive staff recruited in accordance with appropriate Office of Personnel Management regulations.

The Board's function is to oversee the operations of Radio Liberty (RL), which broadcasts to the Soviet Union and Radio Free Europe (RFE), which broadcasts to Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, and the Baltic States. The chief operating executive of the merged, nonprofit radio corporation, RFE/RL, Inc., is an ex officio member of the Board for International Broadcasting, participating in its activities but not voting in its determinations.

In making Federal grants to the Radios, which were originally organized as nonprofit corporations, the Board is authorized:

To review their mission and operation and to assess the quality, effectiveness, and professional integrity of their broadcasting within the context of the broad foreign policy objectives of the United States;

To encourage the most efficient utilization of available resources and to undertake such studies as may be necessary to identify areas in which the operations of the Radios may be made more efficient and economical;

To apply such financial procedures as it deems necessary to ensure that grants are applied in accordance with the purposes for which such grants are made;

To develop appraisal procedures to ensure that grants are applied in a manner consistent with the broad foreign policy objectives of the United States Government;

To have access to all books, documents, papers, and records of the Radios related or pertinent to Federal assistance;

To procure specialized electronic equipment;

To receive donations, bequests, devises, gifts, and other forms of contributions of cash, services, and other property from persons, corporations, foundations, and all other groups and entities both within the United States and abroad; and to use, sell, or otherwise dispose of such property for the carrying out of its functions;

To prescribe such regulations as the Board deems necessary to govern the manner in which its functions shall be carried out; and

To report annually to the President and the Congress, summarizing its own activities and evaluating the operation of the Radios during the preceding fiscal year.

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

Washington, DC 20505
Phone, 703-351-1100

William J. Casey	Director of Central Intelligence
Robert M. Gates	Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

[For the Central Intelligence Agency statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 32, Part 1900]

The Central Intelligence Agency was established under the National Security Council by the National Security Act of 1947 (61 Stat. 495; 50 U.S.C. 401 et seq.), as amended. It now functions under that statute, Executive Order 12333 of December 4, 1981, and other laws, regulations, and directives.

The Director of Central Intelligence is the head of the Central Intelligence Agency. The Director of Central Intelligence also is a member of the President's Cabinet and is the principal spokesperson for the Agency and the Intelligence Community. The Director and Deputy Director of Central Intelligence are appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Central Intelligence Agency, under the direction of the President or the National Security Council:

Advises the National Security Council in matters concerning such intelligence activities of the Government departments and agencies as relate to national security;

Makes recommendations to the National Security Council for the coordination of such intelligence activities of the departments and agencies of the Government as relate to the national security;

Correlates and evaluates intelligence relating to the national security and provides for the appropriate dissemination of such intelligence within the Government;

Performs for intelligence agencies such additional services of common concern as the National Security Council determines can be more efficiently accomplished in the Agency;

Collects, produces, and disseminates counterintelligence and foreign intelligence, including information not otherwise obtainable. The collection of counterintelligence or foreign intelligence within the United States shall be coordinated with the FBI as required by procedures agreed upon by the Director of Central Intelligence and the Attorney General;

Collects, produces, and disseminates intelligence on foreign aspects of narcotics production and trafficking;

Conducts counterintelligence activities outside the United States and, without assuming or performing any internal security functions, conducts counterintelligence activities within the United States in coordination with the FBI as required by procedures agreed upon by the Director of Central Intelligence and the Attorney General;

Coordinates counterintelligence activities and the collection of information not otherwise obtainable when conducted outside the United States by other departments and agencies;

Conducts special activities approved by the President. No agency, except the CIA (or the Armed Forces of the United States in time of war declared by Congress or during any period covered by a report from the President to the Congress under the War Powers Resolution (87 Stat. 555)), may conduct any special activity unless the President determines that another agency is more likely to achieve a particular objective;

Carries out or contracts for research, development, and procurement of technical systems and devices relating to authorized functions;

Protects the security of its installations, activities, information, property, and employees by appropriate means, including such investigations of applicants, employees, contractors, and other persons with similar associations with the CIA, as are necessary;

Conducts such administrative and technical support activities within and outside the United States as are necessary to perform its functions, including procurement and essential cover and proprietary arrangements; and

Performs such other functions and duties relating to intelligence that affect the national security as the National Security Council may from time to time direct.

The Agency has no police, subpoena, or law enforcement powers or internal security functions.

For further information, contact the Central Intelligence Agency, Washington, DC 20505. Phone, 703-351-1100.

[For the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Feb. 28, 1986, 51 FR 7220]

The Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution promotes, coordinates, and develops activities appropriate to commemorate the bicentennial of the Constitution, which was adopted at the Constitutional Convention on September 17, 1787.

The Commission was established by act of Congress (97 Stat. 719), approved September 29, 1983. The Commission is composed of 23 members of which one is designated Chairman.

One of the chief responsibilities of the Commission is to encourage private organizations and State and local governments to organize and participate in bicentennial activities that commemorate and examine the drafting, ratification, and history of the Constitution.

The Commission seeks cooperation, advice, and assistance from both private and governmental agencies and organizations in carrying out its responsibilities and also delegates authority to State advisory commissions to assist in this effort. Additionally, the Commission serves as a clearinghouse for the collection and dissemination of information about bicentennial events and plans.

The celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Constitution will continue through 1989. Every State, city, town, organization, family, and individual in the Nation will be invited to participate, and each community will be encouraged to conduct its own commemoration.

[For the Commission on Civil Rights statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 45, Part 701]

The Commission holds public hearings and collects and studies information on discrimination or denials of equal protection of the laws because of race, color, religion, sex, age, handicap, national origin, or in the administration of justice. Voting rights, enforcement of Federal civil rights laws, and equality of opportunity in education, employment, and housing are among specific Commission factfinding efforts.

The Commission on Civil Rights was first created by the Civil Rights Act of 1957, as amended, and reestablished by the United States Commission on Civil Rights Act of 1983 (97 Stat. 1301; 42 U.S.C. 1975).

The Commission makes findings of fact but has no enforcement authority. Findings and recommendations are submitted to the President and Congress, and many of the Commission's recommendations have been enacted, either by statute, Executive order, or regulation. The Commission evaluates Federal laws and the effectiveness of Government equal opportunity programs. It also serves as a national clearinghouse for civil rights information.

The Commission of Fine Arts supplies artistic advice relating to the appearance of Washington, DC. It reviews the plans for all public buildings, parks, and other architectural elements in the Capital and for private structures in certain areas of the city.

The Commission of Fine Arts was established by Congress on May 17, 1910, to advise the President, Members of Congress, and various governmental agencies on matters pertaining to the appearance of Washington, DC (36 Stat. 371; 40 U.S.C. 104, 106). This legislation provided the Government with a permanent commission whose members are qualified to give expert advice on matters relating to art. The legislation directs contracting officers of the Federal and District Governments to call for the Commission's advice on such matters.

Further responsibilities and duties were added by statute (42 Stat. 1509; 43 Stat. 463; 46 Stat. 366; 64 Stat. 903) and by Executive Orders 1259, 1862, and 3524 of October 25, 1910, November 28, 1913, and July 28, 1921, respectively.

Activities

The Commission's members meet monthly to consider designs for public buildings, parks, and those elements that give the Capital its special appearance. Part of the Commission's purpose is the preservation of places and areas of national interest, as defined in the Old Georgetown Act of 1950 (64 Stat. 903).

In particular, the Commission is involved in developing architectural designs that complement Washington's historic structures and districts. Washington's building height limits and the preservation of its broad tree-lined avenues and riverscapes are continuing concerns of the Commission. The quality of design applies to the Mall and monumental city, as well as to the diverse neighborhoods throughout the city.

In brief, the Commission's duties and functions include the aesthetic review of the public works in the National Capital area; design and material for monuments, memorials, and certain designated buildings; land to be acquired for park purposes in the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia; and building applications in the Old Georgetown and Shipstead-Luce areas.

[For the Commodity Futures Trading Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 17, Part 140]

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC), the Federal regulatory agency for futures trading, was established by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1389; 7 U.S.C. 4a), approved October 23, 1974. The Commission began operation in April 1975, and its authority to regulate futures trading was renewed by Congress in 1978 and in 1982.

CFTC consists of five Commissioners who are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. One Commissioner is designated by the President to serve as Chairman. The Commissioners serve staggered 5-year terms, and by law no more than three Commissioners can belong to the same political party.

Functions and Activities

The Commission consists of five major operating components: the divisions of enforcement, economic analysis, trading and markets, and the offices of the executive director and the general counsel.

The Commission regulates trading on the 11 U.S. futures exchanges, which offer active futures and options contracts. It also regulates the activities of numerous commodity exchange members, public brokerage houses (futures Commission merchants), Commission-registered futures industry salespeople and associated persons, commodity trading advisers, and commodity pool operators. Some off-exchange transactions involving instruments similar in nature to futures contracts also fall under CFTC jurisdiction.

The Commission's regulatory and enforcement efforts are designed to ensure that the futures trading process is fair and that it protects both the rights of customers and the financial integrity of the marketplace. CFTC approves the rules under which an exchange proposes to operate and monitors exchange enforcement of those rules. It reviews the terms of proposed futures contracts, and registers companies and individuals who handle customer funds or give trading advice. The Commission also protects the public by enforcing rules that require that customer funds be kept in bank accounts separate from accounts maintained by firms for their own use, and that such customer accounts be marked to present market value at the close of trading each day.

Futures contracts for agricultural commodities were traded in the United States for more than 100 years before futures trading was diversified to include trading in contracts for precious metals, raw materials, foreign currencies, commercial interest rates, and U.S. Government and mortgage securities. Contract diversification has grown in exchange trading volume, a growth not limited to the newer commodities.

CFTC maintains large regional offices in Chicago and New York, cities in which many of the Nation's futures exchanges are located. Smaller regional offices are located in Kansas City and Los Angeles, and there is a suboffice of the Kansas City regional office in Minneapolis.

For further information, contact the Office of Communication and Education Services, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, 2033 K Street NW., Washington, DC 20581. Phone, 202–254–8630.

[For the Consumer Product Safety Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 16, Part 1000]

The purpose of the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) is to protect the public against unreasonable risks of injury from consumer products; to assist consumers to evaluate the comparative safety of consumer products; to develop uniform safety standards for consumer products and minimize conflicting State and local regulations; and to promote research and investigation into the causes and prevention of product-related deaths, illnesses, and injuries.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission is an independent Federal regulatory agency established by the Consumer Product Safety Act (86 Stat. 1207; 15 U.S.C. 2051), approved October 27, 1972.

In addition to the authority created by the Consumer Product Safety Act, the Commission has responsibility for implementing provisions of the Flammable Fabrics Act (67 Stat. 111; 15 U.S.C. 1191), the Poison Prevention Packaging Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1670; 15 U.S.C. 1471), the Federal Hazardous Substances Act (74 Stat. 372; 15 U.S.C. 1261), and the act of August 2, 1956 (70 Stat. 953; 15 U.S.C. 1211), which prohibits the transportation of refrigerators without door safety devices.

Functions and Activities

To help protect the public from unreasonable risks of injury associated with consumer products, the Commission:

Requires manufacturers to report defects in products that could create substantial product hazards;

Requires, where appropriate, corrective action with respect to specific substantially hazardous consumer products already in commerce;

Collects information on consumer product-related injuries and maintains a comprehensive Injury Information Clearinghouse;

Conducts research on consumer product hazards;

Encourages and assists in the development of voluntary standards related to the safety of consumer products;

Establishes, where appropriate, mandatory consumer product standards;

Bans, where appropriate, hazardous consumer products; and Conducts outreach programs for consumers, industry, and local governments.

Offices

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has headquarters offices at 1111 Eighteenth Street NW., Washington, DC 20207, and 5401 Westbard Avenue, Bethesda, MD 20207. Its regional offices are in Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, New York, and San Francisco. Resident posts are maintained in various cities.

Sources of Information

Information on Commission activities may be obtained from the Office of Information and Public Affairs, Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, DC 20207. Phone, 301–492–6580.

A public information room is maintained at the Commission headquarters. The Commission also operates a toll-free Consumer Product Safety Hotline, 800–638–CPSC, and a teletypewriter for the hearing-impaired, 800–638–8270 (in Maryland only, 800–492–8104).

[For the Environmental Protection Agency statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 40, Part 1]

The purpose of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is to protect and enhance our environment today and for future generations to the fullest extent possible under the laws enacted by Congress. The Agency's mission is to control and abate pollution in the areas of air, water, solid waste, pesticides, radiation, and toxic substances. EPA's mandate is to mount an integrated, coordinated attack on environmental pollution in cooperation with State and local governments.

The Environmental Protection Agency was established in the executive branch as an independent agency pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1970, effective December 2, 1970.

The Environmental Protection Agency was created to permit coordinated and effective governmental action on behalf of the environment. EPA endeavors to abate and control pollution systematically, by proper integration of a variety of research, monitoring, standard setting, and enforcement activities. As a complement to its other activities, EPA coordinates and supports research and antipollution activities by State and local governments, private and public groups, individuals, and educational institutions. EPA also reinforces efforts among other Federal agencies with respect to the impact of their operations on the environment, and it is specifically charged with publishing its determinations when those hold that a proposal is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of public health or welfare or environmental quality. In all, EPA is designed to serve as the public's advocate for a livable environment.

Activities

Air and Radiation Programs The air activities of the Agency include development of national programs, technical policies, and regulations for air pollution control; enforcement of standards; development of national standards for air quality, emission standards for new stationary sources, and emission standards for hazardous pollutants; technical direction, support, and evaluation of regional air activities; and provision of training in the field of air pollution control. Related activities include technical assistance to States and agencies having radiation protection programs; a national surveillance and inspection program for measuring radiation levels in the environment.

For further information, call 202-382-7400.

Water Programs EPA's water quality activities represent a coordinated effort to restore the Nation's waters. The functions of this program include development of national programs, technical policies, and regulations for water pollution control; ground water protection; marine and estuarine protection, water supply; enforcement of standards; water quality standards and effluent guidelines development; technical direction, support, and evaluation of regional water activities; development of programs for technical assistance and technology transfer; and provision of training in the field of water quality.

For further information, call 202-382-5700.

Solid Waste and Emergency Response Programs The Office of Solid Waste and Emergency Response provides policy, guidance, and direction for the Agency's solid waste and emergency response programs. The functions of these programs include development of program policy; development of hazardous waste standards and regulations; enforcement of applicable laws and regulations; development of guidelines and standards for land disposal of hazardous wastes and for underground storage tanks; analyses of technologies and methods for the recovery of useful energy from solid waste; and provision of technical assistance in the development, management, and operation of waste management activities.

For further information, call 202-382-4610.

Pesticides and Toxic Substances Programs The Office of Pesticides and Toxic Substances is responsible for developing national strategies for the control of toxic substances; directing the pesticides and toxic substances enforcement activities; developing criteria for assessing chemical substances, standards for test protocols for chemicals, rules and procedures for industry reporting and regulations for the control of substances deemed to be hazardous to man or the environment; and evaluating and assessing the impact of existing chemicals, new chemicals, and chemicals with new uses to determine the hazard and, if needed, develop appropriate restrictions.

Additional activities include control and regulation of pesticides and reduction in their use to ensure human safety and protection of environmental quality; establishment of tolerance levels for pesticides that occur in or on food; monitoring of pesticide residue levels in food, humans, and nontarget fish and wildlife and their environments; and investigation of pesticide accidents.

It also coordinates activities under its statutory responsibilities with other agencies for the assessment and control of toxic substances and pesticides.

For further information, call 202-382-2902.

Research and Development The Office of Research and Development is responsible for a national research program in pursuit of technological controls of all forms of pollution. It directly supervises the research activities of EPA's national laboratories and gives technical policy direction to those laboratories that support the program responsibilities of EPA's regional offices. Close coordination of the various research programs is designed to yield a synthesis of knowledge from the biological, physical, and social sciences that can be interpreted in terms of total human and environmental needs.

General functions include management of selected demonstration programs, planning for Agency environmental quality monitoring programs, coordination of Agency monitoring efforts with those of other Federal agencies, the States, and other public bodies, and dissemination of Agency research, development, and demonstration results.

For further information, call 202-382-7676.

Regional Offices

EPA's 10 regional offices represent the Agency's commitment to the development of strong local programs for pollution abatement. The Regional Administrators are the Agency's principal representatives in the regions in contacts and relationships with Federal, State, interstate and local agencies, industry, academic institutions, and other public and private groups. They are responsible for accomplishing within their regions the national program objectives established by the Agency. They develop, propose, and implement an approved regional program for comprehensive and integrated environmental protection activities.

The purposes of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) are to eliminate discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or age in hiring, promoting, firing, wages, testing, training, apprenticeship, and all other terms and conditions of employment. The Commission also promotes voluntary action programs by employers, unions, and community organizations to make equal employment opportunity an actuality. EEOC also has oversight responsibility for all compliance and enforcement activities relating to equal employment opportunity among Federal employees and applicants, including handicap discrimination.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was created by title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 253; 42 U.S.C. 2000e), and became operational July 2, 1965. Title VII was amended by the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972 (86 Stat. 103; 42 U.S.C. 2000e) and the Pregnancy Discrimination Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 2076; 42 U.S.C. 2000e).

Executive Order 12067 of June 30, 1978, effective July 1, 1978, abolished the Equal Employment Opportunity Coordinating Council, and transferred its duties to the Commission, with responsibility for providing coherence and direction to the Government's equal employment opportunity efforts. The Executive order also required that strong uniform enforcement standards be applied throughout the Government, standardized data collection procedures, joint training programs, the sharing of enforcement-related data among agencies, and the development of methods and priorities for complaint and compliance reviews.

Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978, effective May 6, 1978, transferred Federal equal employment functions from the Civil Service Commission to EEOC, effective on January 1, 1979. Functions transferred included section 717 of title VII, which prohibits discrimination in employment in the Federal Government on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin; Executive Order No. 11478 of August 8, 1969, which sets forth the U.S. policy of providing for equal employment opportunity in the Federal Government through affirmative action programs in Federal departments and agencies; Equal Pay Act of 1963 (EPA) (77 Stat. 56; 29 U.S.C. 206) in the Federal sector; and Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (ADEA) (81 Stat. 602; 29 U.S.C. 621) in the Federal sector. Also transferred was section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 390; 29 U.S.C. 791), which pertains to employment discrimination against handicapped persons in the Federal Government.

On July 1, 1979, responsibility for enforcement—in private industry as well as in State and local governments—of the Equal Pay Act of 1963 and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 was transferred from the Department of Labor to the Commission. EPA prohibits sex-based pay differences where work performed under similar working conditions is of equal skill, effort, and responsibility. ADEA prohibits employment discrimination against workers or applicants 40 to 70 years of age.

In addition to employers, ADEA covers activities of employment agencies and labor organizations, while EPA covers activities of labor organizations.

The Commission operates through a 48-office field structure, which integrates legal and complaint processing functions.

Activities

Compliance Activities The Commission's field offices receive written charges of job discrimination under title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended (78 Stat. 253; 42 U.S.C. 2000e), the Equal Pay Act of 1963 (77 Stat. 56; 29 U.S.C. 206), and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (81 Stat. 602; 29 U.S.C. 621). They also receive written or oral charges or complaints under ADEA and EPA. Field offices may initiate investigations to find violations of ADEA and EPA. Members of the Commission also may initiate charges alleging that a violation of title VII has occurred. Section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 390; 29 U.S.C. 791) covers Federal employees and applicants only.

Charges Under Title VII Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, prohibits employment discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, or national origin by private employers, State and local governments, educational institutions and labor organizations with 15 or more employees, or by the Federal Government, private and public employment agencies, and joint labor-management committees for apprenticeship and training.

Charges of title VII violations in private industry or State or local governments must be filed with the Commission within 180 days of the alleged violation, (or up to 300 days where a State or local fair employment practices agency is located), and the Commission is responsible for notifying persons so charged within 10 days of the receipt of a new charge. Before investigation, charges must be deferred for 60 days to a local fair employment practices agency in States and municipalities where an agency with an enforceable fair employment practices law exists. The deferral period is 120 days for an agency that has been operating less than 1 year. Under worksharing agreements executed between the Commission and State and local fair employment practices agencies, the Commission routinely will assume jurisdiction over certain charges of discrimination and proceed with its investigation rather than wait for the expiration of the deferral period.

After an investigation, which may include factfinding conferences, if there is reasonable cause to believe the charge is true, the district, area, or local office attempts to remedy the alleged unlawful practices through informal methods of conciliation, conference, and persuasion. If an acceptable conciliation agreement is not secured, the case should be submitted to the Commission for litigation consideration. If litigation is approved, the Commission will bring suit in an appropriate Federal district court.

The Attorney General brings suit when a State or local government, governmental agency or a political subdivision, is involved. If the Commission or the Attorney General does not approve litigation, at the conclusion of the administrative procedures, or earlier at the request of the charging party, a Notice of Right-to-Sue is issued that allows the charging party to proceed within 90 days in a Federal district court. In appropriate cases, the Commission may intervene in such civil action if the case is of general public interest. The investigation and conciliation of charges having an industrywide or national impact are coordinated or conducted by Systemic Investigations and Individual Compliance Programs, Office of Program Operations.

Under the provisions of title VII, section 706(f)(2), as amended by section 5 of the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972 (86 Stat. 107; 42 U.S.C. 2000e-6), if it is concluded after a preliminary investigation that prompt judicial action is necessary to carry out the purposes of the act, the Commission or the Attorney General, in a case involving a State or local government, governmental agency or political subdivision, may bring an action for appropriate temporary or preliminary relief pending final disposition of a charge.

Charges or Complaints Under the Age Discrimination in Employment or Equal Pay Acts The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (81 Stat. 602; 29 U.S.C. 621) and the Equal Pay Act of 1963 (77 Stat. 56; 29 U.S.C. 206) cover most employees or applicants in private industry and Federal, State, and local governments.

An age discrimination charge must be filed with EEOC within 180 days of the alleged violation. This is extended to 300 days if a State has a statute prohibiting age discrimination and a mechanism for enforcement. The charging party may file suit after waiting 60 days for EEOC to attempt to eliminate the unlawful practice through informal methods of conciliation, conference, and persuasion. Should the Commission take legal action, an individual covered by such action may not file a private suit. If an individual files a complaint of age discrimination, his or her name will be kept confidential but the individual filing the complaint cannot bring a private suit unless he or she elects to file a charge first in accordance with the above requirements.

Age discrimination complainants may bypass the administrative complaint procedures and file a civil action directly in U.S. district court by first notifying the Commission within 180 calendar days of the alleged discriminatory act and thereafter waiting 30 calendar days before filing suit.

A lawsuit under the Equal Pay Act of 1963 may be filed by the Commission or by the complainants. There are no prerequisites to individual actions under this law. Back wages can be recovered for a period of up to 2 years prior to the filing of a suit, except in the case of willful violation, where 3 years backpay may be recovered. The name of the individual filing the complaint is kept confidential.

Complaints Against the Federal Government The administrative processing of Federal sector discrimination complaints is governed by EEOC regulations in part 1613 of title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations. Federal employees or applicants who want to file complaints of job discrimination based on race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, or physical or mental handicap must first consult an equal employment opportunity counselor within their agency within 30 calendar days of the alleged act. If the complaint cannot be resolved informally, the person may file a formal complaint within 15 calendar days following the final interview with the counselor. An individual who wishes to file a complaint under the Equal Pay Act of 1963 (77 Stat. 56; 29 U.S.C. 206) need not follow these procedures. Such complaints may be filed directly with the Commission—within 2 years of the alleged violation—and can be kept confidential. An individual may also elect to file suit under the Equal Pay Act of 1963 without prior resort to the agency or to EEOC.

A complaint under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 (81 Stat. 602; 29 U.S.C. 621) against a Federal agency or department must be filed in that agency or department with the agency or department head, director of equal employment opportunity, head of the field installation, equal employment opportunity officer, Federal women's program manager, or the Hispanic employment program manager (or any designee).

Other Activities A significant activity of the Commission is the Voluntary Assistance Program. This outreach program is designed to provide educational and technical assistance to small and midsize employers and unions—through 1-day seminars on EEO laws—about their rights and obligations under all the statutes that the Commission enforces. Another activity initiated by the Commission is the Expanded Presence Program, which is designed to make the Commission accessible in areas identified as underserved by Commission offices. The district offices send contact teams to these sites on a rotating basis to provide information to the public regarding their rights and responsibilities under the laws enforced by the Commission.

The Commission participates in the development of the employment discrimination law through the issuance of guidelines, publication of significant Commission decisions, and involvement in litigation brought under title VII and related statutes, and the Equal Pay Act of 1963 and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967.

The Commission has direct liaison with Federal, State, and local governments, employers and union organizations, trade associations, civil rights organizations, and other agencies and organizations concerned with employment of minority group members and women. The Commission engages in and contributes to the cost of research and other mutual interest projects with State and local agencies charged with the administration of fair employment practices laws. Furthermore, the Commission enters into worksharing agreements with the State and local agencies in order to avoid duplication of effort by identifying specific charges to be investigated by the respective agencies.

The Commission is also a major publisher of data on the employment status of minorities and women. Through six employment surveys (EEO-1 through EEO-6) covering private employers, apprenticeship programs, labor unions, State and local governments, elementary and secondary schools, and colleges and universities, the Commission tabulates and stores data on the ethnic, racial, and sex characteristics of employees at all job levels within the reported groups.

Research information thus collected is shared with selected Federal agencies, such as the Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Labor, and others. It is also made available, in appropriate form, for public use.

[For the Export-Import Bank of the United States statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 12, Part 401]

The Export-Import Bank of the United States, known as Eximbank, facilitates and aids in financing exports of U.S. goods and services. Eximbank has implemented a variety of programs to meet the needs of the U.S. exporting community, according to the size of the transaction. These programs take the form of loans or the issuance of guarantees and insurance, so that exporters and private banks can extend appropriate financing without taking undue risks. Eximbank's direct lending program is limited to larger sales of U.S. products and services around the world. The guarantees, insurance, and medium-term credit programs have been designed to assist exporters in smaller sales of products and services.

The Export-Import Bank of Washington was authorized in 1934 as a banking corporation organized under the laws of the District of Columbia (Executive Order 6581, February 2, 1934). The Bank was continued as an agency of the United States by acts of Congress in 1935, 1937, 1939, and 1940. It was made an independent agency of the Government by the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 (59 Stat. 526; 12 U.S.C. 635), subsequently amended in 1947 to reincorporate the Bank under Federal charter. The name was changed to Export-Import Bank of the United States (Eximbank) by act of March 13, 1968 (82 Stat. 47).

The purpose of the Bank is to aid in financing and to facilitate exports of U.S. goods and services.

The Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended, expresses the congressional policy that the Bank should, as its primary mandate, expand U.S. exports through fully competitive financing, but terms and conditions need not be equivalent to those offered by foreign countries as long as the effect of such terms and conditions is to neutralize financing offered by the Bank's counterparts; that the Bank should supplement and encourage but not compete with private capital; that loans should generally be for specific purposes, at rates based both upon the Bank's primary mandate to provide competitive financing as well as the average cost of money to the Bank, and should offer reasonable assurance of repayment; that small business should be encouraged to participate in international commerce; and that in authorizing loans or guarantees, consideration should be given to possible adverse effects upon the competitive position of U.S. industry, availability of materials that are in short supply in the United States, and employment in the United States.

Activities

The Bank is authorized to have outstanding loans, guarantees, and insurance in aggregate amount up to $40 billion, capital stock of $1 billion ; and may borrow from the United States Treasury up to $6 billion outstanding at any one time. Over the past 52 years, Eximbank has supported exports through a wide variety of loan, guarantee, and insurance programs. These programs were established to increase export opportunities for American business, to provide American exporters with financing that is competitive in the world market, and to reduce the risks associated with the export business.

Acting through its Medium-Term Credit Program, Small Business Credit Program, and direct loans, Eximbank provides medium- and long-term fixed-rate financing in support of American exporters who face officially supported foreign competition in the world market. For U.S. banks extending medium-term export financing to foreign buyers and domestic or foreign financial institutions that finance major long-term exports by American business, Eximbank guarantee programs provide assurance that export credits will be repaid.

Eximbank acts to reduce the risks of buyer default for American exporters under a variety of insurance programs administered by the Foreign Credit Insurance Association (FCIA). FCIA, an association of the U.S. insurance companies organized by Eximbank in 1961, sells and services export credit insurance policies under agency and reinsurance agreements with Eximbank. FCIA policies insure against risks of default in both short- and medium-term export transactions and are available to U.S. exporters or financial institutions. Policies are available in a variety of insurance plans that are tailored to the special needs of different types of exporters and financial institutions.

Other Eximbank programs include the Working Capital Guarantee Program, a loan guarantee program designed to provide eligible exporters with access to working capital loans from commercial lenders, and the Engineering Multiplier Program, which provides fixed-rate financing in support of project-related design services or feasibility studies with potential for generating further procurement of American exports.

[For the Farm Credit Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 12, Parts 600 and 611]

The Farm Credit Administration is responsible for the regulation and examination of the borrower-owned banks and associations and their service organizations that comprise the cooperative Farm Credit System. These institutions are the Federal land banks that make long-term loans on farm or rural real estate, or real estate connected with a commercial fisherman's operation, through local Federal land bank associations; the Federal intermediate credit banks providing short- and intermediate-term loan funds to production credit associations and other institutions financing farmers, ranchers, rural homeowners, owners of farm-related businesses, and commercial fishermen; and the banks for cooperatives that make loans of all kinds to agricultural and aquatic cooperatives. The loan funds provided borrowers by these institutions are obtained primarily through the sale of securities to investors in the Nation's capital markets.

Cooperative Farm Credit System

The Farm Credit Administration, an independent agency, regulates and examines the cooperative Farm Credit System. The System is comprised of Federal land banks and Federal land bank associations, Federal intermediate credit banks and production credit associations, and banks for cooperatives. Initially capitalized by the United States, the entire System is now owned by its users.

The System is designed to provide adequate and dependable credit and closely related services to farmers, ranchers, producers, or harvesters of aquatic products; persons engaged in providing on-the-farm services; rural homeowners; and to associations of farmers, ranchers, producers, or harvesters of aquatic products or federations of such associations that operate on a cooperative basis and are engaged in marketing, processing, supply, or business service functions for the benefit of their members.

Authority for the organization and activities of the institutions comprising the cooperative Farm Credit System and that operate under the regulation of the Farm Credit Administration may be found in the Farm Credit Act of 1971 (85 Stat. 583; 12 U.S.C. 2001 note), approved December 10, 1971, as amended.

Management The management of the Farm Credit Administration is vested in the Farm Credit Administration Board. It is composed of three members appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, one of whom is designated chairman and chief executive officer.

District Organization The country is divided into 12 Farm Credit districts. At the same location in each district there is a Federal land bank, a Federal intermediate credit bank, and a bank for cooperatives. There also is a Central Bank for Cooperatives in Denver, CO.

Each of the 12 Farm Credit districts has a district Farm Credit board of seven members. These boards set policies and hire management for each of the three banks in their respective districts and also act as district boards setting policies governing those functions that the three banks carry on jointly.

The Federal land bank associations, production credit associations, and cooperatives holding stock in the respective banks in each Farm Credit district each elect two directors to the district board. The seventh member of the board is elected at large.

Federal Land Banks and Federal Land Bank Associations

The authority for the activities of the Federal land banks and Federal land bank associations may be found in title I of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, as amended.

Ownership All the stock of the 284 Federal land bank associations is owned by their member-borrowers, and all the stock of the 12 Federal land banks is owned by the associations.

Federal land bank loans may be obtained only with the endorsement of the associations. When a loan is granted, the borrower purchases stock in the association equal to at least 5 percent of his loan. The association purchases a like amount of stock in the land bank. When the loan is repaid, the stock in the bank and in the association is retired.

Each Federal land bank association is controlled by a board of directors elected by and from the membership. Each association member is entitled to one vote in the election of directors and in other matters regarding the association.

Eligibility Federal land bank loans may be made to persons who are or become members of Federal land bank associations and who are bona fide farmers, ranchers, or commercial fishermen who furnish farmers or ranchers services directly related to on-farm operating needs, or who are owners of rural homes. Loans may be made for terms of from 5 to 40 years.

Security Federal land bank loans may be made in amounts of up to 85 percent of the appraised value of the real estate security and are secured by first liens on such real estate. Additional security may be required to supplement the real estate security, and credit factors other than the ratio between the amount of the loan and the security value are given due consideration. Federal land banks are authorized to make loans of up to 97 percent of the appraised value of the real estate security if guaranteed by a Federal Government unit, such as the Farmers Home Administration or a State government.

Purposes of Loans Loans may be made to farmers and ranchers for any agricultural purpose or other needs of the applicant. Loans also may be made to rural residents for the purpose of financing housing. However, rural housing financing shall be for single-family, moderately priced dwellings in towns and villages where the population does not exceed 2,500 persons. A Federal land bank is limited to rural housing loans totaling 15 percent of the total amount of its loans outstanding.

Loans also may be made to commercial fishermen whose operations are secured by real estate.

Interest Rates All Federal land banks have variable interest rate plans in which interest rates may be raised or lowered in relation to the cost of money. These plans have the effect of spreading money costs evenly among all borrowers.

Sources of Loan Funds Loan funds are obtained primarily through the sale of consolidated bonds and discount notes to investors. These bonds and notes are not guaranteed by the Government either as to principal or interest.

The Federal land banks use the notes and mortgages of their borrowers and other assets as collateral for the bonds.

Where To Apply for a Loan Persons wishing to obtain credit from a Federal land bank should apply to the Federal land bank association in the community nearest to the location of the property that will secure the loan.

Federal Intermediate Credit Banks

The authority for the activities of the Federal intermediate credit banks may be found in title II of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, as amended.

Ownership All of the capital stock of the 12 Federal intermediate credit banks is owned by the 200 local production credit associations. Other financing institutions that discount the notes of farmers with the banks provide some of the necessary capital by holding participation certificates issued to them by the banks.

Types of Loans The Federal intermediate credit banks make loans to, and discount agricultural paper for, production credit associations, State and national banks, livestock loan companies, agricultural credit corporations, and similar organizations.

The Federal intermediate credit banks do not generally lend directly to individuals or conduct a general banking business. However, they may participate in loans with production credit associations. They also may invest in the capital stock or surplus of production credit associations.

Discount Rate The discount or interest rate charged by a Federal intermediate credit bank is determined by the board of directors of the bank with the approval of the Farm Credit Administration.

Source of Loan Funds The banks obtain the funds they use in their lending operations primarily from sales to investors of consolidated bonds and discount notes. These bonds and notes are not guaranteed by the Government, either as to principal or interest.

Production Credit Associations

The authority for the activities of the production credit associations may be found in title II of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, as amended.

Ownership All the voting stock in the 200 production credit associations is owned by their borrowers.

When a loan is granted, the borrower invests at least 5 percent of the amount of his loan in the capital stock of the association. When the loan is repaid he may either list the stock for sale back to the association or convert it to nonvoting stock.

Each production credit association is controlled by a board of directors elected by and from its active borrowers. Each association member is entitled to one vote in these elections and on other matters affecting the association regardless of the amount of stock he owns.

Eligibility Production credit association loans of up to 10 years may be made to bona fide farmers or ranchers, persons engaged in performing on-the-farm services to farmers, and rural residents. Loans to commercial fishermen may be extended up to 15 years. Production credit associations may also participate in loans with other associations or with commercial banks.

Purposes of Loans Loans may be made for any agricultural or commercial fishing purpose or other requirements of eligible borrowers. However, loans made for the purchase, repair, or maintenance of rural homes or the purchase of mobile homes may not exceed 15 percent of the total loans outstanding for all associations in a district. Such loans cannot be made in towns or villages where the population exceeds 2,500 persons.

Interest Rates Production credit associations provide credit to members at the lowest possible cost consistent with sound business practices. The rate is dependent, in part, on the rates charged by the respective Federal intermediate credit banks under rate programs approved by the Farm Credit Administration. Dividends on stock and patronage distributions to members that may be paid by the associations could have the effect of lowering the rate of interest charged.

Source of Loan Funds The associations obtain most of their loan funds from the Federal intermediate credit banks.

Where To Apply for a Loan Borrowers seeking loans from production credit associations should contact the association serving the county in which they live.

Banks for Cooperatives

The authority for the activities of the banks for cooperatives may be found in title III of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, as amended.

Ownership All of the capital stock of the 12 district banks for cooperatives is held by borrowing cooperatives. All of the stock of the Central Bank for Cooperatives is held by the district banks.

The Central Bank for Cooperatives is controlled by a board of 13 directors. Twelve of these directors are elected, one each, by the district boards. The 13th is appointed by the Chairman of the Farm Credit Administration Board.

Eligibility Any association of farmers, ranchers, or producers or harvesters of aquatic products, or any federation of such associations operating on a cooperative basis and providing marketing, processing, supply, or business service functions for its members may be eligible to borrow from a bank for cooperatives.

However, 80 percent of the voting control of such associations (60 percent in the case of rural electric, telephone, and public utility cooperatives) must be held by bona fide farmers, ranchers, or producers or harvesters of aquatic products or federations of such associations. The cooperative also must do as much business with or for members as it does with or for nonmembers. Excepted from this requirement is business transacted with the United States and services and supplies furnished by the cooperative as a public utility.

Types of Loans The banks for cooperatives make three basic types of loans that are adapted to the particular needs of cooperatives. These are seasonal loans, term loans, and loans secured by commodities.

All the banks work together to provide a complete loan service to cooperatives. The Central Bank for Cooperatives participates with the district banks on larger loans and finances international transactions of eligible borrowers.

Interest Rates Interest rates are determined by the boards of directors with the approval of the Farm Credit Administration. Distributions of earnings by the banks to their borrowers have the effect of reducing the rates of interest.

Source of Loan Funds The banks for cooperatives obtain the bulk of their loan funds through the sale of consolidated bonds and discount notes to investors. These bonds and notes are not guaranteed or insured by the Government in any way.

Where To Apply for a Loan A cooperative wishing to apply for a loan should contact the bank for cooperatives serving the State in which the cooperative has its headquarters.

[For the Federal Communications Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 47, Part 0]

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) regulates interstate and foreign communications by radio, television, wire, and cable. It is responsible for the orderly development and operation of broadcast services and the provision of rapid, efficient nationwide and worldwide telephone and telegraph services at reasonable rates. This also includes the promotion of safety of life and property through radio and the use of radio and television facilities to strengthen the national defense.

The Federal Communications Commission was created by the Communications Act of 1934 (48 Stat. 1064; 15 U.S.C. 21; 47 U.S.C. 35, 151–609) to regulate interstate and foreign communications by wire and radio in the public interest. It was assigned additional regulatory jurisdiction under the provisions of the Communications Satellite Act of 1962 (76 Stat. 419; 47 U.S.C. 701–744). The scope of its regulation includes radio and television broadcasting; telephone, telegraph, and cable television operation; two-way radio and radio operators; and satellite communication.

In administering the programs necessary to carry out its regulatory responsibility, the Commission is assisted by a General Counsel, who in addition to his typical duties exercises exclusive control of court appeals involving broadcast matters, a Managing Director, a Director of Congressional and Public Affairs, a Chief Engineer, a Chief of Plans and Policy, and the Chiefs of four bureaus, to whom has been delegated certain licensing and grant authority. This licensing and grant responsibility is depicted on pages 510 and 511.

To assist the Commission in exercising its responsibility in the adjudicatory process, there is a Review Board to review initial decisions and write decisions and an Adjudication Division in the Office of the General Counsel to assist the Commission and individual Commissioners in the disposition of matters arising in cases of adjudication (as defined in the Administrative Procedure Act) that have been designated for hearings. There also is a corps of administrative law judges, qualified and appointed pursuant to the requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act, who conduct evidentiary adjudicatory hearings and write initial decisions.

Activities

Mass Media The Mass Media Bureau administers the regulatory program for the following services: direct broadcast satellite (DBS), standard (AM), frequency modulation (FM), television (TV), low power TV (LPTV), translators, instructional TV fixed (ITFS), related broadcast auxiliary services, cable TV microwave radio relay (CARS) and registration of new cable TV systems. The Bureau issues construction permits, operating licenses, and renewals or transfers of such broadcast licenses; and processes registrations, notifications, and petitions for cable TV systems. The Bureau also oversees compliance by broadcasters and cable TV system operators with statutes and Commission policies, and is responsible for maintaining relations with State and local authorities who share responsibility for the regulation of cable TV systems.

For further information, contact the Mass Media Bureau. Phone, 202-632-6460.

Common Carrier Communications In interstate and international common carrier communications by telephone, telegraph, radio, and satellite, the Common Carrier Bureau administers the regulatory program. Common carriers include companies, organizations, or individuals providing communications services to the public for hire, who must serve all who wish to use them at established rates. In providing interstate and foreign communications services, common carriers may employ landline wire or electrical or optical cable facilities, point-to-point microwave radio (signals relayed by stations spaced at given intervals), land mobile radio (two-way telephone or one-way signaling communications between base and mobile units), cellular systems, or satellite systems. Communications services between the United States and overseas points by common carriers are provided by ocean cable, high frequency radio, and satellite communications.

For further information, contact the Common Carrier Bureau. Phone, 202-632-6910.

Private Radio Communications Radio is used for many purposes other than mass media and common carrier communications. The Private Radio Bureau regulates the spectrum the Commission has allocated to meet the special communications needs of businesses, State and local governments, commercial aviation, the maritime industry, and individual citizens. The Private Radio Bureau regulates and licenses two broad groups of radio services: the private land mobile and microwave radio services and the special radio services. Private land mobile and microwave radio services are used by public safety entities (police, fire, local government), industrial entities (businesses of all types, including public utilities), and land transportation entities (buses, railroads, taxicabs). Special radio services include the aviation service, the marine service, the Alaska fixed service, and the personal radio services (amateur, citizens (CB), and radio control (R/C) radio services.) The Bureau also implements the compulsory provisions of laws and treaties covering the use of radio for the safety of life and property at sea and in the air. The Office of Engineering and Technology administers the regulation of the experimental and low-power equipment.

For further information, contact the Private Radio Bureau. Phone, 202-632-6940.

Enforcement Much of the investigative and enforcement work of the Commission is carried out by its field staff. The Field Operations Bureau has 6 regional offices, and 36 field offices. It also operates a nationwide fleet of mobile monitoring vehicles for technical enforcement purposes. The field staff, in effect, are the Commission's "eyes and ears" in detecting radio violations and enforcing rules and regulations. Continuous surveillance of the radio spectrum is maintained to detect unlicensed operation and activities or nonconforming transmissions, to furnish radio bearings on ships and planes in distress.

Radio Operators The commercial radio operator program is administered by the Field Operations Bureau. The Private Radio Bureau administers the amateur operator program.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was established to promote and preserve public confidence in banks and to protect the money supply through provision of insurance coverage for bank deposits and periodic examinations of insured State-chartered banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is an independent agency of the Government. The management of the Corporation is vested in a Board of Directors consisting of three members, one of whom is the Comptroller of the Currency, and two of whom are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Appointive members serve 6-year terms, and one is elected by the members of the Board as Chairman of the Board of Directors. The headquarters office is located in Washington, DC, and there are 12 regional offices in the field organization with a regional director in charge of each. Most Corporation field employees are bank examiners or liquidators.

The Corporation does not operate on funds appropriated by Congress. Its income is derived from assessments on deposits held by insured banks and from interest on the required investment of its surplus funds in Government securities. The Corporation also has authority to borrow from the Treasury up to $3 billion for insurance purposes, although it has never used that authority.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was organized under authority of section 12B of the Federal Reserve Act, approved June 16, 1933 (48 Stat. 162; 12 U.S.C. 264). By legislation approved September 21, 1950 (64 Stat. 873; 12 U.S.C. 1811–1831), section 12B of the Federal Reserve Act, as amended, was withdrawn as part of the Federal Reserve Act and made a separate law known as the "Federal Deposit Insurance Act." The act also made numerous amendments to the former deposit insurance statutes.

Functions and Activities

The Corporation insures, up to the statutory limitation, the deposits in national banks, in State banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System, and in State banks that apply for Federal Deposit Insurance and meet certain prescribed qualifications.

In the event of a bank failure, the claim of each depositor (up to $100,000) is promptly paid upon assignment to the Corporation of the depositor's rights to recoveries to the extent of his or her insured deposits.

The Corporation may make loans to, or purchase assets from, insured banks in order to facilitate mergers or consolidations, when such action for the protection of depositors will reduce risks or avert threatened loss to the Corporation; or will make possible the reopening of a closed insured bank or prevent the closing of an insured bank when the Corporation considers the continued operation of such bank essential to providing adequate banking services in the community.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Act authorizes the Corporation to terminate the insured status of a bank that continues, after notice and hearing, to engage in unsafe and unsound banking practices or in violation of law or regulations; publish notice of such termination; and regulate the manner in which the bank shall give the required notice of such termination to depositors (whose deposits in the bank at the time of termination continue to be insured for 2 years).

FDIC acts as receiver for all national banks placed in receivership and for State banks placed in receivership when it is appointed by State authorities.

To enable the public to know that the deposits of certain banks are insured, the Corporation prescribes rules and regulations relating to the use of its name and symbol in bank advertising.

Other functions and activities performed by FDIC in relation to insured State banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System, except banks in the District of Columbia are to:

Examine such banks periodically to determine their condition for insurance purposes;

Pass upon conversions, mergers, or consolidations and assumption of deposit liability transactions between insured banks and noninsured banks or institutions; approve or disapprove mergers, consolidations, acquisitions, and assumption transactions between insured banks where the resulting banks are to be insured nonmember State banks; and furnish a report on the competitive factor in similar applications that come before the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Comptroller of the Currency;

Approve or disapprove a proposal to reduce or retire the capital of a bank;

Approve or disapprove a proposal by a bank to establish and operate a new branch, or move its main office or any branch from one location to another;

Issue cease-and-desist orders to a bank or to a banker with respect to specific violations or practices or, in situations involving personal dishonesty, suspend or remove bank personnel responsible for such actions, when corrective action is not obtainable by the State supervisory authority;

Administer the regulations and reporting provisions of the Securities Exchange Act (48 Stat. 881; 15 U.S.C. 78a) with respect to securities issued by banks that are subject to provisions of that act;

Require reports of changes in the ownership of outstanding voting stock of a bank that will result in a change in control of the bank, and reports of any loan secured by 25 percent or more of the stock;

Require reports of condition, income, and other data of banks;

Require insurance protection of banks against burglary, defalcation, and other similar insurable losses;

Regulate the advertising of deposits and interest by banks;

Require banks to install, maintain, and operate a level of security designed to discourage robberies, burglaries, and larcenies and to assist in the identification and apprehension of persons who commit such acts; and Require compliance of banks with the Federal Reserve Regulations pertaining to truth in lending, cost disclosure on consumer credit, and related areas.

Sources of Information

Inquiries for information on the following subjects may be directed to the specified office, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, 550 Seventeenth Street NW., Washington, DC 20429.

Bank Depositors and Customers It is easiest for bank depositors and customers to obtain information about deposit insurance at any insured bank, where explanatory material is available. This is also true with respect to certain aspects of the truth-in-lending legislation that the Corporation administers in part. Each bank regulatory agency has established a division of consumer affairs to deal with questions of interest to bank depositors and customers. In this connection, inquiries may be directed to the Director, Office of Consumer Programs.

Public Information Inquiries regarding types of records available to the public should be directed to one of the 12 regional offices or to the Office of the Executive Secretary. Phone, 202-898-3812.

Contracts and Procurement Individuals seeking to do business with the Corporation may obtain detailed information from the Support Services Section, Division of Accounting and Corporate Services. Phone, 202-898-3661.

Employment The Corporation has a continuing college recruitment program. Information about this program, employment inquiries and applications, and related requests should be directed to the Director, Office of Personnel Management. Phone, 202-898-3866.

For further information, contact the Corporate Communications Officer, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, 550 Seventeenth Street NW., Washington, DC 20429. Phone, 202-898-6996.

FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

Thomas E. Harris
Thomas J. Josefiak
Danny L. McDonald
	Ex Officio:
Jo-Anne L. Coe	Secretary of the Senate
Benjamin J. Guthrie	Clerk of the House of Representatives
	Statutory Officers:
John C. Surina	Staff Director
Charles N. Steele	General Counsel

The Federal Election Commission is an independent agency established by section 309 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended in 1974 (88 Stat. 1280; 2 U.S.C. 437c). It is composed of six Presidentially appointed Commissioners and two ex officio nonvoting members, the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives. The act also provides for two statutory officers, the Staff Director, and the General Counsel, who are appointed by the Commission.

Functions and Activities

The Commission administers and enforces the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended, and the Revenue Act, which are contained, respectively, in titles 2 and 26 of the U.S. Code. These laws provide for the public funding of Presidential elections, public disclosure of financial activities of political committees involved in Federal elections, and limitations and prohibitions on contributions and expenditures made to influence Federal elections (Presidency, Senate, and House).

Public Funding of Presidential Elections The FEC oversees the public financing of Presidential elections by certifying Federal payments to primary candidates, general election nominees, and national nominating conventions. It also audits recipients of Federal funds and may require repayments to the U.S. Treasury if a committee makes nonqualified campaign expenditures.

Disclosure The Commission ensures the public disclosure of the campaign finance activity reported by political committees supporting Federal candidates. Committee reports, filed regularly, disclose where campaign money comes from and how it is spent. The agency places reports on the public record within 48 hours after they are received and computerizes the data contained in the reports.

Contribution Limits and Prohibitions The Commission administers and enforces the law with respect to limits and prohibitions on contributions and expenditures made to influence Federal elections.

Voluntary Compliance The Commission seeks voluntary compliance with the above provisions of the law by providing information through a toll-free telephone line, publications, seminars, regulations (which clarify the law), and advisory opinions (which interpret the law in specific factual situations).

Enforcement The Commission has exclusive jurisdiction with respect to the civil enforcement of the campaign finance laws. Possible violations of the law are brought to the Commission's attention either internally (through report review procedures and audits) or externally (through complaints filed by the public or referrals from other government agencies). The agency seeks to resolve compliance matters through conciliation; it may bring suit when conciliation fails. The agency also defends the law in court.

Sources of Information

Public Records The Office of Public Records, located at 999 E Street NW., Washington, DC, provides space for public inspection of all reports and statements relating to campaign finance since 1972. It is open Monday-Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and has extended hours during peak election periods. The public is invited to visit the Office or obtain information by calling 202-376-3140 or toll free, 800-424-9530.

Information Services The Information Services Division provides information and assistance to Federal candidates, political committees, and the general public. This division answers questions on campaign finance laws, conducts workshops and seminars on the law, and provides publications and forms. Those who seek information or materials should call 202-376-3120 or toll free, 800-424-9530.

Press Office The Press Office handles inquiries from print and broadcast media sources around the country; issues press releases on Commission actions and statistical data; responds to informational requests; and distributes other materials. All persons representing media should direct inquiries to the Press Office. For further information, call 202-376-5670 or toll free, 800-424-9530.

Clearinghouse on Election Administration The Clearinghouse compiles and disseminates election administration information related to Federal elections. It also conducts independent contract studies on the administration of elections. For further information, call 202-376-5670 or toll free, 800-424-9530.

Library The library contains a collection of basic legal research resources, with emphasis on political campaign financing, corporate and labor political activity, and campaign finance reform. It is open to the public on weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. For further information, call 202-376-5312 or toll free, 800-424-9530.

[For the Federal Emergency Management Agency statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 44, Part 2]

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) was created to provide a single point of accountability for all Federal emergency preparedness, mitigation, and response activities. The Agency is chartered to enhance the multiple use of emergency preparedness and response resources at the Federal, State, and local levels of government in preparing for and responding to the full range of emergencies—natural, manmade, and nuclear—and to integrate into a comprehensive framework activities concerned with hazard mitigation, preparedness planning, relief operations, and recovery assistance.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency was established in the executive branch as an independent agency pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1978 and Executive Orders 12127 (effective April 1, 1979) and 12148 (effective July 15, 1979).

Activities

Emergency Operations Directorate

The Emergency Operations Directorate develops, coordinates, and executes plans and programs providing for the continuity and effective operation of the Federal Government during a national emergency; coordinates internal FEMA response to national emergencies; centrally manages FEMA resources used for emergency management information processing, including telecommunications, automatic data processing, and information systems; provides technical support to the management of FEMA's emergency facilities; manages the FEMA Special Facility; and provides facilities and resources for the management and coordination of emergency information.

For further information, call 202–646–2968.

Federal Insurance Administration The Federal Insurance Administration (FIA) administers the National Flood Insurance Program that makes flood insurance available in participating communities on an equitable basis and works closely with government officials at all levels to help reduce the potential for future flood damage through floodplain management.

For further information, call 202–646–2781.

Training Programs Directorate/ National Emergency Training Center The Training and Fire Programs Directorate provides training and education programs for Federal, State, and local personnel in hazard mitigation, emergency preparedness, fire prevention and control, disaster response and long-term disaster recovery. Training is carried out through a resident program at a central campus facility, the National Emergency Training Center, located in Emmitsburg, MD, and through a nationwide outreach program that makes courses available at State and local levels.

The Training Programs Directorate encompasses the Emergency Management Institute that provides training in the areas of national security, technological and natural hazards, and emergency processes; the National Fire Academy that provides training in fire prevention management, fire prevention and loss control, and fire service technology; and the United States Fire Administration that establishes mechanisms to ensure joint action by the public, government, and fire service to reduce the Nation's fire losses.

For further information, contact the National Emergency Training Center, Federal Emergency Management Agency, 16825 South Seton Avenue, Emmitsburg, MD 21727. Phone, 301–652–6117.

National Preparedness Programs Directorate The National Preparedness Programs Directorate develops, tests, and implements plans, policies, concepts, and procedures related to domestic and national security emergencies. It identifies shortages of natural, industrial, or economic resources that could constitute a threat to national security, and develops plans to mitigate the impact of resource shortages.

The Directorate develops, coordinates, tests, and evaluates Federal plans and programs designed to ensure the effective operation of the Federal Government during national emergencies. It also develops national plans and programs to protect the population and key industrial functions of the United States against enemy attack. It develops mobilization planning assumptions and priorities and coordinates mobilization planning, including threat/vulnerability assessments, with the national security plans of the National Security Council, the Department of Defense, and the intelligence community. It also reviews, monitors, and recommends research and development efforts.

For further information, call 202–646–3544.

State and Local Programs and Support Directorate The State and Local Programs and Support Directorate administers support programs to State and local governments that are designed to improve emergency planning, preparedness, mitigation, response, and recovery capabilities at the State and local levels. It develops plans to mitigate hazards and provides responses to natural and manmade occurrences.

The Directorate also administers the President's Disaster Relief Program that provides for supplemental Federal assistance in declared disasters and emergencies. It develops and administers policy and guidance that ensures the effective implementation of relief programs to help individuals as well as State and local governments in recovering from the effects of peacetime disasters and emergencies and to mitigate or prevent losses after disasters or emergencies. It also assists State and local governments and the private sector in maximizing the survival of the population and other vital resources in the event of civil emergency.

For further information, call 202-646-3692.

Executive Administration The Executive Administration is responsible for management of the Agency's personnel, acquisition, and administrative systems. The Office of Personnel develops and implements the policies, goals, and objectives of the Agency's personnel management system. The Office of Acquisition Management directs the Agency's acquisition management system. The Office of Administrative Support directs all phases of administrative support given to FEMA's program components, including space and property, forms, reports, directives, records and mail management, printing services, graphic arts, and library services.

The Executive Administration also oversees the activities of the following offices: Public Affairs, Congressional Relations, International Affairs, Equal Opportunity, and Security.

For further information, call 202-646-3919.

Regional Offices

The 10 FEMA regional offices are the primary means by which the Agency's programs are carried out at the State and local levels. The Regional Directors are the FEMA Director's principal representatives in contacts and relationships with Federal, State, regional, and local agencies, industry, and other public and private groups. They are responsible for accomplishing within their regions the national program objectives established by the Agency and participate with the Director in developing national policy.

For further information, contact the Office of Regional Operations. Phone, 202-646-3631.

[For the Federal Home Loan Bank Board statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 12, Part 500]

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board was established to encourage thrift and economical home ownership. The Bank Board supervises and regulates savings institutions, which specialize in the financing of residential real estate and are the country's major private source of financing for the construction and purchase of homes. The Bank Board operates the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC), which insures the savings of the more than 84 million Americans with savings accounts in FSLIC-insured savings and loan associations. The Bank Board also directs the Federal Home Loan Bank System, which, like the Federal Reserve System for banks, provides reserve credit to ensure that member savings institutions will continue to be a source of economical financing for homes.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board was established by the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, approved July 22, 1932 (47 Stat. 725; 12 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.), and was made an independent agency in the executive branch under section 109(a)(3) of the Housing Amendments of 1955 (69 Stat. 640; 12 U.S.C. 1437).

All of the Bank Board's activities are self-supporting and do not require the appropriation of United States Treasury funds. Expenses of the Bank Board are paid by assessments against the regional Federal Home Loan Banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and charges against institutions examined by its Office of Examinations and Supervision, Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Federal Home Loan Bank System

The Federal Home Loan Bank System was created by authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, approved July 22, 1932 (47 Stat. 725; 12 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.), to provide a flexible credit reserve for member savings institutions engaged in home mortgage lending.

Regional Banks There are 12 regional Federal Home Loan Banks in this System. The management of the Banks in Pittsburgh, Atlanta, San Francisco, and Seattle is vested in a board of 14 directors, of whom 6 are appointed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to represent the public interest and 8 of whom are elected by the member institutions. The Banks in Boston, Dallas (formerly Little Rock), and Topeka have 15 directors—6 appointed and 9 elected; the Banks in New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, and Des Moines have 16 directors each—6 appointed and 10 elected; the Bank in Indianapolis has 17 directors—6 appointed and 11 elected. The directors of each Bank elect a president and other officers, subject to approval by the Bank Board.

Capital and Funds The capital stock of the district Federal Home Loan Banks is owned by member institutions, each of which is required to purchase stock. The Banks obtain other lendable funds through the issuance of consolidated obligations in the money and capital markets, through time and demand deposits accepted from member institutions and from other Federal Home Loan Banks.

Operations The Federal Home Loan Banks implement the responsibility of Congress and the Bank Board in the fields of savings and housing finance by providing appropriate loans, referred to as advances, to their members as a supplement to savings flows in meeting recurring variations in the supply of and demand for residential mortgage credit. Such loans, within the context of national housing goals, aid in stabilizing those sectors of the housing and mortgage markets served by the savings and loan industry. The Banks also provide various services to member institutions pursuant to the statutory authority contained in the Federal Home Loan Bank Act.

The Banks are authorized to perform their debt marketing operations, liquidity portfolio management, and financial forecasting through the Office of Finance located in Washington, DC. The Office also coordinates financial planning for the Bank System.

The operations of the Banks are supervised by the Bank Board through the Office of District Banks.

Eligible Institutions The types of institutions eligible to become members of the Federal Home Loan Banks are savings and loan, building and loan and homestead associations, savings and cooperative banks, and insurance companies. Every Federal savings and loan association, every Federal savings bank, and every State-chartered savings and loan association insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is required to become a member of its regional Federal Home Loan Bank and to qualify for insurance of deposit accounts (see Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation).

Power to Borrow Consolidated Federal Home Loan Bank obligations, which are the joint and several liabilities of all the Banks, are issued by the Bank Board in the form of notes or bonds. Although the Banks are instrumentalities of the United States, such securities are not obligations of, and are not guaranteed by, the United States. In case of need, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase consolidated Federal Home Loan Bank obligations up to an aggregate amount of $4 billion outstanding at any one time.

For further information, contact the Director, Bank Liaison Division. Phone, 202–377–6656.

Federal Savings Institutions

Section 5 of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 (48 Stat. 132; 12 U.S.C. 1464), as amended, provides for the organization of Federal savings and loan associations or Federal savings banks. They are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and may be either new institutions or converted from State-chartered institutions upon application.

For further information, contact the Director, Applications Analysis Division. Phone, 202–377–6712.

Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was created by title IV of the National Housing Act, approved June 27, 1934 (48 Stat. 1255; 12 U.S.C. 1724 et seq.), to insure the safety of savings in thrift and home-financing institutions.

Management The operations of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation come under the supervision of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Functions The Corporation insures the safety of savings up to $100,000 in an insured institution. All Federal savings and loan associations, and those State-chartered building and loan, savings and loan, homestead associations, and cooperative banks that apply and are approved, are insured.

Default Procedure To prevent the default of an insured institution or restore it to normal operations, the Corporation may make loans to, purchase assets of, or make a financial contribution to such an institution. In the event of a default by any insured institution, payment of each insured account is made by the Corporation as soon as possible, usually within 1 week.

Funds Income of the Corporation consists principally of premiums paid by insured institutions and interest earned on investments. Available reserves on December 31, 1985, totaled $6.1 billion. All income above expenses is transferred to reserves. The Corporation is authorized to obtain additional funds for insurance purposes from the United States Treasury not exceeding $750 million outstanding at any one time. In addition, insured associations may be required to deposit up to 1 percent of their savings capital with the Corporation, and can be assessed an additional annual premium equal to one-eighth of 1 percent of total withdrawable deposits. The borrowing and deposit authorities have never been exercised. The additional one-eighth of one percent premium was first assessed during 1985.

Retirement of Capital Stock The capital stock of the Corporation, originally issued in the amount of $100 million and formerly held by the United States Treasury, has now been completely retired.

Federal Savings and Loan Advisory Council

The Federal Savings and Loan Advisory Council is an independent statutory advisory body that consults with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in its administration of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and the Federal Savings and Loan System. The Council meets three or more times yearly. It initiates studies and makes recommendations on matters within the jurisdiction of the Bank Board.

The Council consists of 24 members—one elected from each Federal Home Loan Bank District and 12 appointed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board annually. The elected members are generally chosen from the ranks of active savings and loan managers. The appointed members are chosen on the basis of leadership in a number of fields, including the home-financing and building industries.

The Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) oversees the Federal service labor-management relations program. FLRA administers the law that protects the right of employees of the Federal Government to organize, bargain collectively, and participate through labor organizations of their own choosing in decisions affecting them. The Authority also ensures compliance with the statutory rights and obligations of Federal employees and the labor organizations that represent them in their dealings with Federal agencies.

The Federal Labor Relations Authority was created as an independent establishment by Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1978 (effective January 1, 1979, pursuant to Executive Order 12107 of December 28, 1978) to consolidate the central policymaking functions in Federal labor-management relations. Its duties and authority are specified in title VII ("Federal Service Labor-Management Relations") of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1191–1216; 5 U.S.C. 7101–7135), approved October 13, 1978.

Activities

The Authority provides leadership in establishing policies and guidance relating to the Federal service labor-management relations program. In addition, FLRA determines the appropriateness of bargaining units; supervises or conducts representation elections; prescribes criteria and resolves issues relating to the granting of consultation rights to labor organizations with respect to internal agency policies and Government-wide rules and regulations; and resolves negotiability disputes, unfair labor practice complaints, and exceptions to arbitration awards. The Chairman of the Authority serves as the chief executive and administrative officer of FLRA.

The General Counsel of the Authority investigates alleged unfair labor practices, files and prosecutes unfair labor practice complaints before the Authority, and exercises such other powers as the Authority may prescribe.

The Federal Service Impasses Panel, an entity within the Authority, is assigned the function of providing assistance in resolving negotiation impasses between agencies and unions. After investigating an impasse, the Panel can either recommend procedures to the parties for the resolution of the impasse or assist the parties in resolving the impasse through whatever methods and procedures, including factfinding and recommendations, it considers appropriate. If the parties do not arrive at a settlement after assistance by the Panel, the Panel may hold hearings and take whatever action is necessary to resolve the impasse.

The Foreign Service Labor Relations Board and the Foreign Service Impasse Disputes Panel administer provisions of chapter 2 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 2071; 22 U.S.C. 3921), concerning labor-management relations. This chapter establishes a statutory labor-management relations program for Foreign Service employees of the United States Government. Administrative and staff support is provided by the Federal Labor Relations Authority and the Federal Service Impasses Panel.

The Federal Maritime Commission regulates the waterborne foreign and domestic offshore commerce of the United States, assures that United States international trade is open to all nations on fair and equitable terms, and protects against unauthorized, concerted activity in the waterborne commerce of the United States. This is accomplished through maintaining surveillance over steamship conferences and common carriers by water; assuring that only the rates on file with the Commission are charged; analysis and appropriate disposition of agreements between persons subject to the Shipping Act of 1984 and the Shipping Act, 1916; guaranteeing equal treatment to shippers, carriers, and other persons subject to the shipping statutes; and ensuring that adequate levels of financial responsibility are maintained for indemnification of passengers.

The Federal Maritime Commission was established by Reorganization Plan 7 of 1961, effective August 12, 1961. It is an independent agency that administers functions and discharges regulatory authorities under the following statutes: the Shipping Act of 1984 (98 Stat. 67; 46 U.S.C. app. 1701–1720); the Shipping Act, 1916 (39 Stat. 728; 46 U.S.C. app. 801 et seq.); the Merchant Marine Act, 1920 (41 Stat. 988; 46 U.S.C. app. 861 et seq.); the Intercoastal Shipping Act, 1933 (47 Stat. 1425; 46 U.S.C. app. 843 et seq.); the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (49 Stat. 1985; 46 U.S.C. app. 1101 et seq.); and certain provisions of the act of November 6, 1966 (80 Stat. 1356; 46 U.S.C. app. 817(d) and 817(e)).

Functions and Activities

Agreements The Commission reviews for legal sufficiency agreements filed under section 15 of the Shipping Act, 1916, or section 5 of the Shipping Act of 1984, including conference agreements, interconference agreements, and cooperative working agreements between common carriers, terminal operators, and other persons subject to the shipping statutes. The Commission also monitors activities under all effective (1984 act) or approved (1916 act) agreements for compliance with the provisions of law and its rules, orders, and regulations.

Tariffs The Commission accepts or rejects tariff filings, including filings dealing with service contracts, of common carriers engaged in the foreign and domestic offshore commerce of the United States, or conferences of such carriers, in accordance with the requirements of the shipping statutes and the Commission's rules and regulations. The Commission regulates rates of carriers in the domestic offshore trades and approves or disapproves special permission applications submitted by domestic offshore carriers and carriers in the foreign commerce, or conferences of such carriers, for relief from statutory and/or Commission tariff requirements. The Commission monitors the activities of controlled carriers under section 9 and antirebating by common carriers under sections 10(b) and 15(b) of the Shipping Act of 1984.

Licenses The Commission issues or denies the issuance of licenses to persons, partnerships, corporations, or associations desiring to engage in ocean freight forwarding activities.

Passenger Indemnity The Commission administers the passenger indemnity provisions of the act of November 6, 1966, issues or denies the issuance of certificates of financial responsibility of shipowners and operators to pay judgments for personal injury or death or to refund fares in the event of nonperformance of voyages.

Informal Complaints The Commission reviews alleged or suspected violations of the shipping statutes and rules and regulations of the Commission by common carriers, terminal operators, freight forwarders, and other persons subject to the provisions of the shipping statutes. After investigation, it concludes such complaints by administrative action, formal proceedings, referral to the Department of Justice, or by achieving voluntary agreement between the parties.

Formal Adjudicatory Procedure The Commission conducts formal investigations and hearings on its own motion and adjudicates formal complaints pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act.

Rulemaking The Commission promulgates rules and regulations to interpret, enforce, and ensure compliance with shipping and other statutes of common carriers by water and other persons subject to the statutes.

Investigation, Audit, and Financial and Economic Analyses The Commission prescribes and administers programs to ensure compliance with the provisions of the shipping statutes of all persons subject thereto. These programs include the submission of regular and special reports, information, and data; field investigations and audits of activities and practices of common carriers by water in the domestic offshore and foreign commerce of the United States, conferences of such carriers, terminal operators, freight forwarders, and other persons subject to the shipping statutes; and rate analyses, studies, economic reviews, and the preparation of reports reflecting current and prospective trade conditions, the extent and nature of competition in various trade areas, commodities carried, and future commodity trends.

International Affairs The Commission, in conjunction with the Department of State, conducts activities to effect the elimination of discriminatory practices on the part of foreign governments against United States-flag shipping and to achieve comity between the United States and its trading partners.

FEDERAL MEDIATION AND CONCILIATION SERVICE

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service represents the public interest by promoting the development of sound and stable labor-management relationships; preventing or minimizing work stoppages by assisting labor and management to settle their disputes through mediation; advocating collective bargaining, mediation, and voluntary arbitration as the preferred processes for settling issues between employers and representatives of employees; developing the art, science, and practice of dispute resolution; and fostering constructive joint relationships of labor and management leaders to increase their mutual understanding and solution of common problems.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service was created by the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947 (61 Stat. 153; 29 U.S.C. 172).

Activities

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service helps prevent disruptions in the flow of interstate commerce caused by labor-management disputes by providing mediators to assist disputing parties in the resolution of their differences. Mediators have no law enforcement authority and rely wholly on persuasive techniques.

The Service offers its facilities in labor-management disputes in any industry affecting interstate commerce, either upon its own motion or at the request of one or more of the parties to the dispute, whenever in its judgment such dispute threatens to cause a substantial interruption of commerce. The Labor Management Relations Act requires that parties to a labor contract must file a dispute notice if agreement is not reached 30 days in advance of a contract termination or reopening date. The notice must be filed with the Service and the appropriate State or local mediation agency. The Service is required to avoid the mediation of disputes that would have only a minor effect on interstate commerce if State or other conciliation services are available to the parties.

For further information, contact one of the regional offices listed below.

The mediator's efforts are directed toward the establishment of sound and stable labor-management relations on a continuing basis. In this work the mediator has a more basic function: that of encouraging and promoting better day-to-day relations between labor and management, thereby helping to reduce the incidence of work stoppages. Issues arising in negotiations may then be faced as problems to be settled through mutual effort rather than issues in dispute.

For further information, contact the Office of Information and Public Affairs. Phone, 202–653–5290.

The Service, on the joint request of employers and unions, will also assist in the selection of arbitrators from a roster of private citizens who are qualified as neutrals to adjudicate matters in dispute.

For further information, contact the Office of Arbitration Services. Phone, 202–653–5280.

The Federal Reserve System, the central bank of the United States, is charged with administering and making policy for the Nation's credit and monetary affairs. Through its supervisory and regulatory banking functions, the Federal Reserve helps to maintain the banking industry in sound condition, capable of responding to the Nation's domestic and international financial needs and objectives.

The Federal Reserve System was established by the Federal Reserve Act (38 Stat. 251; 12 U.S.C. 221), approved December 23, 1913. The System serves as the Nation's central bank. The powers of central banks vary widely, but their major responsibility is in the execution of monetary policy. Central banks typically perform a number of other functions, such as the transfer of funds, handling Government deposits and debt issues, supervising and regulating banks, and acting as lender of last resort.

It is the responsibility of the Federal Reserve System to contribute to the strength and vitality of the U.S. economy. By influencing the lending and investing activities of commercial banks and the cost and availability of money and credit, the Federal Reserve System can help promote the full use of human and capital resources, the growth of productivity, relatively stable prices, and equilibrium in the Nation's international balance of payments. Through its supervisory and regulatory banking functions, the Federal Reserve System helps maintain a commercial banking system that is responsive to the Nation's financial needs and objectives.

The System consists of six parts: the Board of Governors in Washington; the 12 Federal Reserve Banks and their 25 branches and other facilities situated throughout the country; the Federal Open Market Committee; the Federal Advisory Council; the Consumer Advisory Council; the Thrift Institutions Advisory Council; and the Nation's financial institutions, including commercial banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks, and credit unions.

Board of Governors

Broad supervisory powers are vested in the Board of Governors, which has its offices in Washington. The Board is composed of seven members appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Chairman of the Board of Governors is, by Executive order, a member of the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Policies.

The Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of monitoring credit conditions, supervising the Federal Reserve Banks and member banks, and regulating the implementation of certain consumer credit protection laws.

Power To Influence Credit Conditions

Pursuant to the Depository Institutions Deregulation and Monetary Control Act of 1980, referred to as the Monetary Control Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 132; 12 U.S.C. 226 note), the Board is given the power, within statutory limitations, to fix the requirements concerning reserves to be maintained by depository institutions on transaction accounts or nonpersonal time deposits. Another important instrument of credit control is found in open market operations. The members of the Board of Governors also are members of the Federal Open Market Committee, whose work and organization are described below. The Board of Governors reviews and determines the discount rates charged by the Federal Reserve Banks on their discounts and advances. For the purpose of preventing excessive use of credit for the purchase or carrying of securities, the Board is authorized to regulate the amount of credit that may be initially extended and subsequently maintained on any security (with certain exceptions).

Pursuant to the provisions of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (64 Stat. 798; 50 U.S.C. App. 2061 et seq.) and Executive Order 10480 of August 14, 1953, the Board prescribes regulations under which the Federal Reserve Banks act as fiscal agents of certain Government departments and agencies in guaranteeing loans made by banks and other private financing institutions to finance contracts for the procurement of materials or services that the guaranteeing agencies consider necessary for the national defense.

Supervision of Federal Reserve Banks The Board is authorized to make examinations of the Federal Reserve Banks, to require statements and reports from such Banks, to supervise the issue and retirement of Federal Reserve notes, to require the establishment or discontinuance of branches of Reserve Banks, and to exercise supervision over all relationships and transactions of those Banks with foreign branches. The Board of Governors reviews and follows the examination and supervisory activities of the Federal Reserve Banks aimed at further coordination of policies and practices.

Supervision of Member Banks The Board has jurisdiction over the admission of State banks and trust companies to membership in the Federal Reserve System, the termination of membership of such banks, the establishment of branches by such banks, and the approval of bank mergers and consolidations where the resulting institution will be a State member bank. It receives copies of condition reports submitted by them to the Federal Reserve Banks. It has power to examine all member banks and the affiliates of member banks and to require condition reports from them. It has authority to require periodic and other public disclosure of information with respect to an equity security of a State member bank that is held by 500 or more persons. It establishes minimum standards with respect to installation, maintenance, and operation of security devices and procedures by State member banks. It has authority to issue cease and desist orders in connection with violations of law or unsafe or unsound banking practices by State member banks and to remove directors or officers of such banks in certain circumstances, and it may, in its discretion, suspend member banks from the use of the credit facilities of the Federal Reserve System for making undue use of bank credit for speculative purposes or for any other purpose inconsistent with the maintenance of sound credit conditions.

The Board may grant authority to member banks to establish branches in foreign countries or dependencies or insular possessions of the United States, to invest in the stocks of banks or corporations engaged in international or foreign banking, or to invest in foreign banks. It also charters, regulates, and supervises certain corporations that engage in foreign or international banking and financial activities.

The Board is authorized to issue general regulations permitting interlocking relationships in certain circumstances between member banks and organizations dealing in securities or between member banks and other banks.

Other Functions Under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 133; 12 U.S.C. 1841), the Board is required to pass upon certain acquisitions of bank stock or assets and to make determinations relating to engagement in nonbanking activities and to the acquisition and retention of nonbank stock by bank holding companies.

Under the Change in Bank Control Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 3683; 12 U.S.C. 1817(j)), the Board is required to review other bank stock acquisitions.

Under the Truth in Lending Act (82 Stat. 146; 15 U.S.C. 1601), the Board is required to prescribe regulations to ensure a meaningful disclosure by lenders of credit terms so that consumers will be able to compare more readily the various credit terms available and will be informed about rules governing credit cards, including their potential liability for unauthorized use.

Under the International Banking Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 607; 12 U.S.C. 3101 et seq.), the Board has authority to impose reserve requirements and interest rate ceilings on branches and agencies of foreign banks in the United States, to grant loans to them, to provide them access to Federal Reserve services, and to limit their interstate banking activities.

The Board also is the rulemaking authority for the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act, the Fair Credit Billing Act, and certain provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act as they apply to banks.

Expenses To meet its expenses and pay the salaries of its members and its employees, the Board makes semiannual assessments upon the Reserve Banks in proportion to their capital stock and surplus.

Federal Open Market Committee

The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) is comprised of the Board of Governors and five of the presidents of the Reserve Banks. The Chairman of the Board of Governors is traditionally the Chairman of FOMC. The president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York serves as a permanent member of the Committee. Four of the twelve Reserve Bank presidents rotate annually as members of the Committee.

Open market operations of the Reserve Banks are conducted under regulations adopted by the Committee and pursuant to specific policy directives issued by the Committee, which meets in Washington at frequent intervals. Purchases and sales of securities in the open market are undertaken to supply bank reserves to support the credit and money needed for long-term economic growth, to offset cyclical economic swings, and to accommodate seasonal demands of businesses and consumers for money and credit. These operations are carried out principally in U.S. Government obligations, but they also include purchases and sales of Federal agency obligations and bankers' acceptances. All operations are conducted in New York where the primary markets for these securities are located; the Federal Reserve Bank of New York executes transactions for the Federal Reserve System Open Market Account in carrying out these operations.

Under the Committee's direction, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York also undertakes transactions in foreign currencies for the Federal Reserve System Open Market Account. The purposes of these operations include helping to safeguard the value of the dollar in international exchange markets and facilitating growth in international liquidity in accordance with the needs of an expanding world economy. The Federal Reserve has, in particular, entered into a network of mutual currency arrangements with other central banks providing for the right to draw foreign exchange within specified limits and for specified periods.

Federal Reserve Banks

The 12 Federal Reserve Banks are located in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, and San Francisco. Branch banks are located in Buffalo, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Charlotte, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Miami, Nashville, New Orleans, Detroit, Little Rock, Louisville, Memphis, Helena, Denver, Oklahoma City, Omaha, El Paso, Houston, San Antonio, Los Angeles, Portland, Salt Lake City, and Seattle.

Directors and Officers of Reserve Banks The Board of Directors of each

Reserve Bank is composed of nine members, equally divided into three designated classes: class A, class B, and class C. Directors of class A are representative of the stockholding member banks. Directors of class B must be actively engaged in their districts in commerce, agriculture, or some other industrial pursuit, and may not be officers, directors, or employees of any bank. Class C directors may not be officers, directors, employees, or stockholders of any bank. The six class A and class B directors are elected by the stockholding member banks, while the three class C directors are appointed by the Board of Governors. The terms of office of the directors are so arranged that the term of one director of each class expires each year.

One of the class C directors appointed by the Board of Governors is designated as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Reserve Bank and as Federal Reserve agent, and in the latter capacity he is required to maintain a local office of the Board of Governors on the premises of the Reserve Bank. Another class C director is appointed by the Board of Governors as deputy chairman.

Each Reserve Bank has as its chief executive officer a president appointed for a term of 5 years by its Board of Directors with the approval of the Board of Governors. There are also a first vice president, appointed in the same manner, and other officers appointed by the Board of Directors.

Reserves on Deposit In accordance with provisions of the Monetary Control Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 132; 12 U.S.C. 226 note), the Reserve Banks receive and hold on deposit the reserve or clearing account deposits of depository institutions. These banks are permitted to count their vault cash as part of their required reserve.

Extensions of Credit The Monetary Control Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 132; 12 U.S.C. 226 note) directs the Federal Reserve to open its discount window to any nonmember depository institution that maintains transaction accounts or nonpersonal time deposits. The act also states that this expanded accommodation is to be provided on the same basis as to banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System.

Discount window credit provides for Federal Reserve lending to eligible depository institutions under two basic programs. One is the adjustment credit program; the other supplies more extended credit for certain limited purposes.

Short-term adjustment credit is the primary type of Federal Reserve credit. It is available to help borrowers meet temporary requirements for funds. Borrowers are not permitted to use adjustment credit to take advantage of any spread between the discount rate and market rates.

Extended credit is provided through three programs designed to assist depository institutions in meeting longer term needs for funds. One provides seasonal credit—for periods running up to 9 months—to smaller depository institutions that lack access to market funds. A second program assists institutions that experience special difficulties arising from exceptional circumstances or practices involving only that institution. Finally, in cases where more general liquidity strains are affecting a broad range of depository institutions—such as those whose portfolios consist primarily of longer term assets—credit may be provided to address the problems of particular institutions being affected by the general situation.

Currency Issue The Reserve Banks issue Federal Reserve notes, which constitute the bulk of money in circulation. These notes are obligations of the United States and are a prior lien upon the assets of the issuing Federal Reserve Bank. They are issued against a pledge by the Reserve Bank with the Federal Reserve agent of collateral security including gold certificates, paper discounted or purchased by the Bank, and direct obligations of the United States.

Other Powers The Reserve Banks are empowered to act as clearinghouses and as collecting agents for depository institutions in the collection of checks and other instruments. They are also authorized to act as depositories and fiscal agents of the United States and to exercise other banking functions specified in the Federal Reserve Act. They perform a number of important functions in connection with the issue and redemption of United States Government securities.

Federal Advisory Council

The Federal Advisory Council acts in an advisory capacity, conferring with the Board of Governors on general business conditions.

The Council is composed of 12 members, one from each Federal Reserve district being selected annually by the Board of Directors of the Reserve Bank of the district. The Council is required to meet in Washington at least four times each year, and more often if called by the Board of Governors.

Consumer Advisory Council

The Consumer Advisory Council confers with the Board of Governors several times each year on the Board's responsibilities in the field of consumer credit protection. The Council was established by Congress in 1976 at the suggestion of the Board and replaced the Advisory Committee on Truth in Lending that was established by the 1968 Truth in Lending Act.

The Council is composed of 30 members from all parts of the country. Its membership includes a broad representation of consumer and creditor interests. It advises the Board on its responsibilities under such laws as Truth in Lending, Equal Credit Opportunity, and Home Mortgage Disclosure.

Thrift Institutions Advisory Council

The Thrift Institutions Advisory Council is an advisory group established by the Board in 1980 made up of representatives from nonbank depository thrift institutions, which includes savings and loans, mutual savings bankers, and credit unions. The Council meets at least four times each year with the Board of Governors to discuss developments relating to thrift institutions, the housing industry and mortgage finance, and certain regulatory issues.

[For the Federal Trade Commission statement of organization, see the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 16, Part 0]

The objective of the Federal Trade Commission is to maintain competitive enterprise as the keystone of the American economic system. Although the duties of the Commission are many and varied, the foundation of public policy underlying all these duties is essentially the same: to prevent the free enterprise system from being fettered by monopoly or restraints on trade or corrupted by unfair or deceptive trade practices.

In brief, the Commission is charged with keeping competition both free and fair.

This purpose finds its primary expression in the Federal Trade Commission Act, cited below, and the Clayton Act (38 Stat. 730; 15 U.S.C. 12), both passed in 1914 and both successively amended in the years that have followed. The Federal Trade Commission Act prohibits the use in commerce of "unfair methods of competition" and "unfair or deceptive acts or practices." The Clayton Act outlaws specific practices recognized as instruments of monopoly. As an administrative agency, acting quasi-judicially and quasi-legislatively, the Commission was established to deal with trade practices on a continuing and corrective basis. It has no authority to punish; its function is to "prevent," through cease-and-desist orders and other means, those practices condemned by the law of Federal trade regulation; however, court-ordered civil penalties up to $10,000 may be obtained for each violation of a Commission order or trade regulation rule.

The Federal Trade Commission was organized as an independent administrative agency in 1914 pursuant to the Federal Trade Commission Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 717; 15 U.S.C. 41–51). Related duties subsequently were delegated to the Commission by the Wheeler-Lea Act, the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act, the Clayton Act, the Export Trade Act, the Wool Products Labeling Act, the Fur Products Labeling Act, the Textile Fiber Products Identification Act, the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act, the Lanham Trade-Mark Act of 1946, the Consumer Credit Protection Acts, the Robinson-Patman Act, the Hobby Protection Act, the Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act, and the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act of 1980.

Activities

The Commission's principal functions are:

To promote competition in or affecting commerce through the prevention of general trade restraints such as price-fixing agreements, boycotts, illegal combinations of competitors and other unfair methods of competition;

To safeguard the public by preventing the dissemination of false or deceptive advertisements of consumer products generally and food, drug, cosmetics, and therapeutic devices, particularly, as well as other unfair or deceptive practices;

To prevent: discriminations in price; exclusive-dealing and tying arrangements; corporate mergers, acquisitions or joint ventures, when such practices or arrangements may substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly; interlocking directorates that may restrain competition; the payment or receipt of illegal brokerage; and discrimination among competing customers in the furnishing of or the payment for services or facilities used to promote the resale of a product;

To bring about truthful labeling of textile and fur products;

To regulate packaging and labeling of certain consumer commodities within the purview of the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act so as to prevent consumer deception and to facilitate value comparisons;

To supervise the registration and operation of associations of American exporters engaged in export trade;

To petition for the cancellation of the registration of trademarks illegally registered or used for purposes contrary to the intent of the Lanham Trade-Mark Act of 1946;

To achieve true credit cost disclosure by consumer creditors (retailers, finance companies, non-Federal credit unions, and other creditors not specifically regulated by another Government agency) as called for in the Truth in Lending Act; to ensure a meaningful basis for informed credit decisions; and to regulate the issuance and liability of credit cards so as to prohibit their fraudulent use in or affecting commerce;

To protect consumers against circulation of inaccurate or obsolete credit reports and to ensure that consumer reporting agencies exercise their responsibilities in a manner that is fair and equitable and in conformity with the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, and the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act; and

To gather and make available to the Congress, the President, and the public, factual data concerning economic and business conditions.

Enforcement The Commission's law enforcement work falls into two general categories: actions to foster law obedience voluntarily and formal administration litigation leading to mandatory orders against offenders.

For the most part, law obedience is obtained through voluntary and cooperative action by way of staff level advice, which is not binding on the Commission, advisory opinions by the Commission, and through issuance of guides delineating legal requirements as to particular business practices.

The formal litigative proceedings are similar to those in Federal courts. Cases are instituted by issuance of a complaint charging a person, partnership, or corporation (the respondent) with violation of one or more of the statutes administered by the Commission. Cases may be settled by consent orders or occasionally through informal administrative correction of minor violations. If the charges are not contested, or if in a contested case and after hearing the charges are found to be true, a cease-and-desist order is issued requiring discontinuance of the unlawful practices.

Legal Case Work Cases before the Commission may originate through complaint by a consumer or a competitor; the Congress; or from Federal, State, or municipal agencies. Also, the Commission itself may initiate an investigation to determine possible violation of the laws administered by it. No formality is required in submitting a complaint. A letter giving the facts in detail is sufficient, but it should be accompanied by all evidence in possession of the complaining party in support of the charges made. It is the general policy of the Commission not to disclose the identity of any complainant, except as required by law or Commission rules.

Upon receipt of a complaint, various criteria are applied in determining whether the particular matter should be docketed for investigation. Within the limits of its resources, investigations are initiated that are considered to best support the Commission's goals of maintaining competition and protecting consumers.

On completion of an investigation, there will be a staff recommendation for final Commission action. The staff may recommend that the matter be closed. If that recommendation is approved, a closing letter is sent to the individual or company that was the subject of the investigation. The staff may instead recommend that the Commission approve the informal settlement of a case, usually by acceptance of an agreement containing a consent order to cease and desist. If such a consent order is worked out, it customarily provides that the respondent does not admit any violation of the law, but agrees to be bound by an order requiring the discontinuance of the challenged practices.

If the Commission determines that some action other than closing the investigation is appropriate, but no consent agreement can be negotiated, the Commission may issue a formal complaint alleging that the respondent has violated one or more of the laws administered by the Commission. The respondent is served with a copy of the complaint, and a proposed cease-and-desist order is to be used if the allegations of law violations are proved. The case is heard by an administrative law judge, who conducts a trial that is open to the public. While it is possible that FTC counsel supporting the complaint and respondents will negotiate a consent agreement after the issuance of a formal complaint, it is more likely that these formal proceedings will result in an initial decision by the administrative law judge.

The initial decision becomes the decision of the Commission at the end of 30 days unless the respondent or the counsel supporting the complaint appeals the decision to the Commission or the Commission by order stays the effective date or places the case on its own docket for review. In the Commission's decision on such appeal or review, the initial decision is sustained, modified, or reversed. If the complaint is sustained or modified, a cease-and-desist order is issued. If an initial decision dismissing a complaint is sustained, no cease-and-desist order is issued.

Under the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Clayton Act, and the wool, fur, and textile acts, the order to cease-and-desist, or to take other corrective action such as affirmative disclosure, divestiture, or restitution, becomes final 60 days after date of service upon the respondent, unless within that period the respondent petitions an appropriate United States court of appeals to review the order. The court has power to affirm, modify, or set the order aside. Either party, on writ of certiorari, may apply to the Supreme Court for review of the action of the court of appeals. In case of review, the order of the Commission becomes final after affirmation by the court of appeals or by the Supreme Court of the United States, if taken to that court on certiorari. Violations of a cease-and-desist order, after it becomes final, subject the offender to suit by the Government in a United States district court for the recovery of a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 for each violation and, where the violation continues, each day of its continuance is a separate violation.

In addition to the administrative proceeding initiated by a formal complaint, the Commission may, in some cases, request that a United States district court issue a preliminary or permanent injunction to halt the use of allegedly unfair or deceptive practices. The Commission, after consultation with the Attorney General, may also bring suit in a United States district court to enforce a subpoena or civil investigative demand issued by the Commission, to obtain permanent injunctions in some cases without initiating underlying administrative proceedings, and to sue for civil penalties for violations of orders issued by the Commission. The Commission also has specific authority to ask the United States district court to enjoin the dissemination of advertisements of food, drugs, cosmetics, and devices intended for use in the diagnosis, prevention, or treatment of disease, whenever it has reason to believe that such a proceeding would be in the public interest. Preliminary injunctions remain in effect until a cease-and-desist order is issued and becomes final, or until the complaint is dismissed by the Commission or the order is set aside by the court on review.

Further, the dissemination of a false advertisement of a food, drug, device, or cosmetic, where the use of the commodity advertised may be injurious to health or where there is intent to defraud or mislead, constitutes a misdemeanor; and conviction subjects the offender to a fine of not more than $5,000, or imprisonment of not more than 6 months, or both. Succeeding convictions may result in a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment of not more than 1 year, or both. The statute provides that the Commission shall certify this type of case to the Attorney General for institution of appropriate court proceedings.

Compliance Activities Through systematic and continuous review, the Commission obtains and maintains compliance with its cease-and-desist orders. All respondents against whom such orders have been issued are required to file reports with the Commission to substantiate their compliance. In the event compliance is not obtained, or if the order is subsequently violated, civil penalty proceedings may be instituted. Violation of a Commission order that has been affirmed and enforced by a decree of a U.S. court of appeals makes the respondent further subject to contempt proceedings in the Court of Appeals.

Trade Regulation Rules The Commission is authorized to issue trade regulation rules specifically defining acts or practices that are unfair or deceptive. A rule may also specify steps to prevent such practices from occurring. Such rules may be limited to certain industries or be applicable to all businesses within the Commission's jurisdiction. Rules are promulgated under specific procedures for participation of interested parties, including oral hearings and comments. The Commission's decision to issue a rule may be appealed to a United States court of appeals. Once a rule has become final, the Commission can institute a civil proceeding in a United States district court for knowing violations of the rule and seek civil penalties of up to $10,000 per violation and consumer redress.

Cooperative Procedures In carrying out the statutory directive to "prevent" the use in commerce of unfair practices, the Commission makes extensive use of voluntary and cooperative procedures. Through these procedures business and industry may obtain authoritative guidance and a substantial measure of certainty as to what they may do under the laws administered by the Commission.

Whenever it is practicable, the Commission will furnish an advisory opinion as to whether a proposed course of conduct, if pursued, would be likely to result in further action by the Commission. Such opinions are binding on the Commission but are subject to the right of the Commission to reconsider and rescind the opinion should the public interest require. Information submitted will not be used as the basis for a proceeding against the requesting party without prior notice and opportunity to discontinue the course of action pursued in good faith in reliance upon the Commission's advice.

Industry guides are administrative interpretations in laymen's language of laws administered by the Commission for the guidance of the public in conducting its affairs in conformity with legal requirements. They provide the basis for voluntary and simultaneous abandonment of unlawful practices by members of a particular industry or industry in general. Failure to comply with the guides may result in corrective action by the Commission under applicable statutory provisions.

Consumer Protection Consumer protection is one of the two main missions of the Commission. In addition to preventing the use of unfair or deceptive advertising and marketing practices generally, the Commission enforces a number of specific laws that help consumers.

Consumer Credit: One of the laws the Commission enforces is the Consumer Credit Protection Act, which establishes, among other things, rules for the use of credit cards, the disclosure of the terms on which open- and closed-end credit is granted, and the disclosure of the reasons a business uses in determining not to grant credit.

The Truth in Lending Act is one part of the Consumer Credit Protection Act. Its purpose is to ensure that every customer who has need for consumer credit is given meaningful information with respect to the cost of that credit. In most cases the credit cost must be expressed in the dollar amount of finance charges, and as an annual percentage rate computed on the unpaid balance of the amount financed. Other relevant credit information must also be disclosed so that the customer may compare the various credit terms available to him from different sources and avoid the uninformed use of credit. The act further provides a customer the right, in certain circumstances, to cancel a credit transaction involving a lien on his residence. The Truth in Lending Act was amended in October 1970 to regulate the issuance, holder's liability, and the fraudulent use of credit cards. New credit cards may be issued only in response to a request or application by the person who is to receive the card. Also, the liability to the cardholder for unauthorized use of a credit card is specifically limited to $50 if the cardholder has taken reasonable steps to notify the card issuer of the loss or theft. The act also establishes penalties for the fraudulent use of credit cards in interstate or foreign commerce when the aggregate retail value in $5,000 or more. The Commission enforces the requirements of the Truth in Lending Act over finance companies, retailers, non-Federal credit unions, and other creditors not specifically regulated by another Government agency, and persons or their agents who issue credit cards.

The Fair Credit Reporting Act, another part of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, represents the first Federal regulation of the vast consumer reporting industry, covering all credit bureaus, investigative reporting companies, detective and collection agencies, lenders' exchanges, and computerized information reporting companies. The purpose of this act is to insure that consumer reporting activities are conducted in a manner that is fair and equitable to the affected consumer, upholding his right to privacy as against the informational demands of others. The consumer is given several important new rights, including the right to notice of reporting activities, the right to access to information contained in consumer reports, and the right to correction of erroneous information that may have been the basis for a denial of credit, insurance, or employment.

Labeling: Under the Wool Products Labeling Act, the Textile Fiber Products Identification Act, and the Fur Products Labeling Act, the Commission engages in compliance investigations, inspections, and industry counseling; issues registered identification numbers; and records continuing guaranties. The Commission has published rules and regulations under these statutes, together with illustrations of acceptable labeling, which supply full information concerning their requirements. In connection with the Fur Act, the Commission has issued a register of animal names, known as the Fur Products Name Guide, for use in properly describing furs and fur products.

Economic Competition (Antitrust) The second major mission of the Commission is to encourage competitive forces in the American economy. Under the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Commission seeks to prevent unfair practices that may keep one company from competing with others. Under the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act, the Commission attempts to prevent mergers of companies if the result may be to lessen competition. Under some circumstances, companies planning to merge must first give notice to the Commission and the Department of Justice's Antitrust Division and provide certain information concerning the operations of the companies involved.

The Commission also enforces the provisions of the Robinson-Patman Act, a part of the Clayton Act prohibiting companies from discriminating among other companies that are its customers in terms of price or other services provided.

Economic Factfinding The Commission makes economic and statistical studies of conditions and problems affecting competition in the economy. Reports of this nature may be in support of legislative proposals, in response to requests of the Congress and statutory directions, or for the information and guidance of the Commission and the executive branch of the Government as well as the public. Not only have the reports provided the basis for significant legislation but, by spotlighting uneconomic or otherwise objectionable trade practices, they have also led in many instances to voluntary changes in the conduct of business, with resulting benefits to both industry and the public.

Advocacy Activities (Intervention) To promote competition, consumer protection, and the efficient allocation of resources, the Commission has an active program designed to advocate the consumer interest in a competitive marketplace by encouraging courts, legislatures, and government administrative bodies to consider efficiency and consumer welfare as important elements in their deliberations. This is accomplished by appearances before legislative, judicial, or regulatory bodies at the local, State, or Federal level of government when the decisions of these bodies may have implications affecting competition, efficiency, and consumer welfare.

The Commission uses these opportunities to support procompetitive means of regulating the Nation's economy, including the elimination of anticompetitive government regulation that reduces the welfare of consumers and the implementation of regulatory programs that truly protect the public and preserve as much as possible the discipline of competitive markets. The competition and consumer advocacy program relies on persuasion rather than coercion. It is intended to help legislators and government officials better understand the consumer welfare implications of proposed actions in the belief that this understanding will result in policy decisions that benefit consumers and the economy.

[For the General Services Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, 41 CFR 105–53]

The General Services Administration (GSA) establishes policy and provides for the Government an economical and efficient system for the management of its property and records, including construction and operation of buildings, procurement and distribution of supplies, utilization and disposal of property, transportation, traffic, and communications management, stockpiling of strategic materials, and the management of the Government-wide automatic data processing (ADP) resources program.

GSA is organized much like a large corporation doing business in a number of different fields. It might well be termed a conglomerate. GSA consists of operating services and supporting staff offices, with functions carried out at three levels of organization: the Central Office, regional offices, and field activities.

The General Services Administration was established by section 101 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 379), effective July 1, 1949.

Office of Operations The Office of Operations has primary line responsibility for managing GSA's field organization. Operating authorities and responsibilities are delegated from the Administrator through the Associate Administrator for Operations to the Regional Administrators.

Regional offices are in 11 U.S. cities. Within its area of jurisdiction, each regional office is responsible for executing GSA programs.

Regional Offices—General Services Administration

(Areas included within each region are indicated on the map in Appendix D.)

For further information, call 202–523–0100.

Office of Acquisition Policy The Office of Acquisition Policy plans, directs, and coordinates a comprehensive, GSA-wide acquisition policy program, including the establishment of major GSA acquisition goals and objectives.

The Office of Acquisition Policy has a major role in developing, maintaining, and administering the Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR), which are applicable to all Federal agencies. It chairs the Civilian Agency Acquisition Council and provides administrative support through the FAR Secretariat. The Office develops GSA implementing and supplementing regulations required by FAR, which are published as the General Services Acquisition Regulations.

The Office manages GSA's internal system for the suspension and debarment of nonresponsive contractors and a Government-wide system for exchanging information on debarred, suspended, and ineligible contractors; reviews selected major contract awards proposed by GSA prior to award; and performs onsite intra-agency and interagency acquisition management reviews. The Office also is responsible for establishing and overseeing the GSA acquisition information system and serves as GSA coordinator for the Federal Procurement Data System.

The Office's Federal Acquisition Institute fosters and promotes Government-wide career management and training programs to develop a professional work force and coordinates Government-wide research and studies to improve the procurement process.

In addition, Acquisition Policy establishes standards and requirements for the development of programs to enhance the recruitment, training, and career development of employees engaged in acquisition training.

For further information, call 202-566-1043.

Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization The Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization plans, implements, executes, and evaluates comprehensive GSA-wide procurement priority programs. Included among these are the Small Business Program; the Women in Business Program; the Socially and Economically Disadvantaged Business Program; the Subcontracting Program; the Labor Surplus Area (LSA) Program; the Javits/Wagner O'Day Program; and the Federal Prison Industry Program.

The Office coordinates and develops policies that regulate the operation and the implementation of the Small Business Programs under sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act. It chairs the Labor Surplus Committee, which is responsible for the development of policies and guidance for the implementation of the LSA Program.

The Office provides assistance, information, and counseling to small business persons interested in pursuing Federal Government contracts and conducts outreach, liaison, source listing, and seminars for small and disadvantaged businesses. This is accomplished through the Business Service Center Program.

Business Service Center Program—Business Service Centers (BSC) are located in major metropolitan areas. BSC counselors travel within their regions lecturing on the Federal procurement process. They also provide information on the new item introduction program and buying programs of other agencies. The BSC's are also responsible for receiving and safeguarding bids (maintaining the integrity of the bid process).

Business Service Centers assist GSA procurement officers by identifying new potential suppliers. In doing this, they rely not only on "walk-in" contacts at reception areas but actively seek out business concerns who may be able to supply the Government's needs. They also operate bid rooms where vendor's offers are publicly opened and posted.

Special emphasis is placed on outreach programs that counsel small, small-disadvantaged, minority, and women business owners, particularly those located in labor surplus areas.

For further information, call 202-566-1021.

Office of Administration The Office of Administration participates in the executive leadership of the agency and provides advice on major policies and procedures, particularly those of a critical or controversial nature, to the Administrator and the Deputy Administrator. The Office also is responsible for planning and administering programs in equal employment opportunity; organization and staff utilization, OMB Circular A-76, productivity improvement, audit resolution, personnel, physical, and information security, training, staffing, position classification and pay administration, employee relations, career development, and coordinating and providing support to various committees engaged in enhancing Federal and GSA management practices. This Office also carries out the administrative services program of the agency, including property management, space management, mail management, records, directives, forms, reports, Freedom of Information Act, Privacy Act, and the GSA printing and distribution program. Through the regional offices, it provides support to the State and district offices of Congress.

Committee Management Secretariat—The Committee Management Secretariat is responsible for administration of the Federal advisory committee program and prepares the annual report of the President to the Congress on the status of these committees, including recommendations on improving their operations.

For further information, call 202-535-0800.

Office of the Comptroller The Office of the Comptroller plans and administers the development and execution of all budgeting and financial management requirements. The major areas of responsibility include:

Budget—The Office of Budget carries out responsibilities in centralized budget administration to ensure maximum utilization of available resources.

Finance—The Office of Finance is responsible for GSA's accounting systems and related accounting functions, including the Worldwide Inventory of Real Property Owned by and Leased to the Federal Government.

For further information, call 202-535-7721.

Information Resources Management Service

The Information Resources Management Service (IRMS) is responsible for the coordination and direction of a comprehensive, Government-wide program for the management, procurement, and utilization of ADP and telecommunications equipment and services; planning and directing programs for improving Federal records and information management practices; and managing and operating the Federal Information Centers.

Functions and Activities

Government-Wide Information Resources Management GSA provides Government-wide programs to assist Federal agencies in managing their information resources. The Office of Technical Assistance provides technical and contracting assistance in software, hardware, data communications, planning, and office automation.

The software program provides assistance in all areas of conversion, improvement and engineering of software as well as tools to improve programmer productivity.

The hardware program provides assistance in workload and requirements definition, capacity management, and performance evaluation.

The data communications program provides assistance in network design, evaluation, and implementation.

The planning program assists agencies in establishing strategic, tactical, and operational information resources management planning programs as well as providing information planning assistance.

The office automation program assists agencies in the effective acquisition and use of automation to improve clerical and professional productivity in the office.

For further information, contact the Office of Technical Assistance, 6118 Franconia Road, Alexandria, VA 22310. Phone, 703–274–8065.

Agency Management Assistance IRMS conducts several management assistance programs that assist agencies in the improvement of their IRM-related functions and activities. Among these are an Agency Liaison Officer Program that provides sustained liaison between GSA/IRMS and selected Federal agencies and a Procurement and Management Review Program that evaluates agency IRM activities on a triennial basis. IRMS prepares and generates recommendations to agencies on IRM management and may result in increased or decreased procurement authority for information technology.

For further information, contact the Office of Information Resources Management Policy. Phone, 202–566–0202.

Information Resources Management Policy IRMS is responsible for coordinating policymaking activities related to IRMS functions and authorities; developing, coordinating, and issuing Government-wide ADP, telecommunications, and records management and acquisition and use regulations; evaluating policy and regulatory proposals from sources outside of IRMS; and managing delegation of authority to agencies and reviewing agency IRM activities.

For further information, contact the Office of Information Resources Management Policy. Phone, 202–566–0202.

Information Resources Procurement IRMS plays a major role in the Government-wide procurement of ADP and telecommunications hardware, software, and services. In providing its acquisition services, IRMS seeks out and obtains the best buys; obtains the best leasing and/or purchase price arrangements; when possible, utilizes excess ADP equipment to fill procurement requests; negotiates long-term procurement actions to achieve cost reductions and continually strives to improve Federal procurement practices. IRMS also provides consultative services to Federal agencies in evaluating and meeting ADP requirements.

For further information, contact the Office of Information Resources Procurement. Phone, 202–566–1072.

Records and Information Management IRMS conducts on-site inspections to assess compliance with the laws and regulations that govern the creation and use of records; provides technical assistance to agencies; publishes handbooks and develops courses related to information management practices and systems for the use of all Federal agencies; and manages the Government-wide use of standard and optional forms.

For further information, contact the Office of Office Information Systems. Phone, 202–535–7425.

Telecommunications Procurement and Operations IRMS operates the Federal Telecommunications System (FTS), a comprehensive voice and low-speed data system procured, operated, and maintained for use by Federal agencies. FTS also includes Department of Defense-approved communications security transmissions with related worldwide support services and the Federal Communications Centers.

The FTS Voice Network provides Federal employees with an easy to use, economical telephone network. It includes local and long-distance telephone service for use among Federal agencies, with access to the general public. IRMS implements and manages the Federal Secure Telephone Service in providing worldwide secure voice transmissions for the Federal Government, including providing communications security support services and capability in responding to national security and emergency preparedness requirements of the Government and/or the private sector on an immediate basis. IRMS also develops policies and procedures and defines standards for the GSA Local Service Program. Under this program, GSA provides telephone services to Federal agencies at those locations where it is economically beneficial. IRMS is presently moving forward with an Aggregated Switch Procurement Program that will replace GSA's Tariffed Local Telephone Service and upgrade service nationwide, and is placing Purchase of Telephone Services (POTS) contracts throughout the country to satisfy the Government's requirements for telephone equipment and services and to allow agencies to start realizing the economies of purchase over lease.

IRMS also operates communications centers located in Federal office buildings throughout the United States, which provide a variety of narrative communications services. These services include teletype, mailgram, facsimile, and access to public communication services such as TWX and Telex.

In addition to its operational role, IRMS provides consultative services to Federal agencies in evaluating their communications requirements and assists Federal agencies in the development of engineering and procurements specifications.

IRMS services also include the Technical Services Program, which is a nationwide program of requirements contracts under which Federal agencies are provided ADP and telecommunications services through regional contracts with private sector vendors. The program allows IRMS to establish and use requirements contracts to consolidate relatively small, quick-reaction, technical services project requirements for other agencies that are costly to compete separately.

For further information, contact the Office of Information Resources Management Policy. Phone, 202–566–0202.

Internal Information Systems Management In addition to its Government-wide responsibilities, IRMS develops internal agency policy governing the acquisition, development, and use of automated information systems equipment and facilities; prepares the 5-Year Strategic Plan for automated information and monitors performance against the plan; develops standards and procedures; and provides for common use ADP and data communications facilities.

For further information, contact the Office of GSA Information Systems. Phone, 202–535–7800.

Federal Information Centers Program Federal Information Centers (FIC) can eliminate the maze of referrals that people too often have experienced in contacting the Federal Government. They are clearinghouses for information about the Federal Government. Persons with questions about a Government program or agency and who are unsure of which office can help may call or write to their nearest center. An FIC specialist will either answer the question or locate an expert who can.

Residents of more than 70 key cities have direct access to an FIC via local telephone service, and callers in four States—Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska—have toll-free (800) service.

For further information, contact the Federal Information Center in your area.

Specialized Data Centers IRMS operates several programs that collect and maintain information on equipment of interest to the public and the private sector.

The Federal Procurement Data Center (FPDC) provides information regarding goods and services bought by the Federal Government. The Center is a unique source of consolidated information about Federal purchases, and the data is readily available through reports prepared by the Center.

The Federal Equipment Data Center (FEDC) operates two programs dealing with data processing equipment. The ADP Excess Equipment Program is a central clearinghouse for ADP equipment available for reuse by Federal agencies, and the Automatic Data Processing Equipment Data System Program collects and maintains information regarding general purpose ADP equipment being used by the Federal Government. Information is collected and disseminated on federally operated domestic assistance programs, such as grants, and is available in an annual catalog and through a nationally accessible computer system.

For further information, contact the Office of Central Information Services. Phone, 202–535–8598.

The Federal Domestic Assistance Catalog Program collects and disseminates information on all federally operated domestic assistance programs such as grants, loans, and insurance. This information is published annually in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, and is available through the Federal Assistance Programs Retrieval System, a nationally accessible computer system.

For further information, contact the Federal Domestic Assistance Catalog staff. Phone, 202-453-4126.

Federal Supply Service

The Federal Supply Service (FSS) operates a worldwide supply system to contract for and distribute supplies and personal property to Federal agencies as well as managing Government-wide transportation and travel services and regulations including transportation audits, operating a vehicle fleet program, and administering a Government-wide property management program for the utilization of excess personal property and the donation and/or sale of surplus property.

Functions and Activities

FSS determines, in conjunction with Federal agencies, which commonly used goods and services are required for purchase by them in best implementing their principal mission. Emphasis is placed upon buying quality goods and services in a timely manner where economies may be achieved by centralized procurement and supply.

FSS provides about $6 billion annually in common use items and services. It selects commodities for inclusion in the stock, special order, and Federal Supply Schedule Programs by determining the method of supply that is most economical and effective. Through its volume purchasing program, FSS is able to achieve savings of at least 20 percent on the goods and services it procures as the Government's central contracting agent.

FSS operates a national wholesale distribution system through which commercial-type commodities are received, stored, and issued on a worldwide basis to customer agencies. It also operates a retail supply system of customer supply centers providing efficient quick-ship service to Federal agencies for consumable retail supplies.

Five contract management zones perform FSS contract administration and quality assurance services on contracts awarded by all FSS contracting offices for supplies and services. FSS ensures compliance with contract terms for timely delivery and specified quality. Quality assurance is accomplished by enforcing Quality-Approved Manufacturers' Agreements, which include ensuring acceptable quality control systems and periodic surveillance at contractors' plants and/or GSA Wholesale Distribution Centers and performing thorough and timely pre-award surveys and quality complaint investigations.

To eliminate unnecessary expenditures and maximize the utilization of federally owned personal property, FSS directs and coordinates, on a worldwide basis, a Government-wide property management program whereby excess personal property is transferred to other Federal agencies and surplus personal property is donated to eligible recipients or disposed of by sale.

FSS administers a Government-wide program for transportation and travel management, transportation audits, an interagency fleet management system, and the acquisition of vehicles to meet the requirements of Federal agencies. Through the travel management programs, FSS is continuing to increase support and dollar savings to Federal agencies by negotiating and contracting with the airline industry and hotel/motel establishments to provide reduced rates for Government travelers. FSS, in conjunction with the Departments of Defense and State, also has simplified Government travel regulations and has streamlined authorization and reimbursement procedures to reduce costs to taxpayers while improving service. To further enhance CSA's efforts in the travel management area and in reducing travel costs, FSS has travel management centers in over 130 cities in full operation and provides, through contract, charge cards and travelers' checks to Federal employees who travel on official business. In addition, FSS acts as the civilian freight manager of the Federal Government and provides rating and routing services to customer agencies, and reduces travel costs.

FSS directs the centralized audit and review of freight and passenger transportation vouchers paid by the Government, recovery of overcharges on transportation payments, and adjudication of transportation claims.

In the area of automotive procurement, FSS procures all motor vehicles for Federal civilian agencies, all nontactical vehicles under 11,000 pounds gross vehicle weight, and buses for the Department of Defense. These requirements are standardized and consolidated, as much as possible, usually into definite-quantity, fixed-price contracts. FSS also awards indefinite quantity contracts that enable agencies to meet their requirements for leased vehicles at a price more favorable than that which would have been available from individual commercial leases. Vehicles can be leased for a period of 12 months, with an option for 2 additional 12-month periods.

To provide agencies with economical fleet management services, GSA/FSS operates an interagency fleet management system comprised of 56 GSA centers. Newer model vehicles of various types are assigned from the fleet management centers to meet long-term agency needs. Many agencies elect to convert to low-cost, high-quality GSA service by consolidating Government-owned vehicles into the system. In addition, FSS acts as the Government-wide fleet manager providing advice on policy, procedures, and regulations concerning the procurement, operation, maintenance, and utilization of motor vehicles.

FSS provides leadership in the development, coordination, and administration of Government-wide and internal supply management plans, policies, and programs to ensure that the most efficient and cost-effective supply support is provided to all customers. Supply, property management, and transportation and travel management advice and guidance to Federal agencies also is provided by on-site liaison assistance visits.

Public Buildings Service

The Public Buildings Service (PBS), with its 14,500 employees, is the largest of the GSA services. It is responsible for the design, building or leasing, appraisal, repair, operation, protection, and maintenance of most of the federally controlled buildings in the Nation. PBS has responsibility for 227 million square feet of space, excluding outside parking areas, in about 6,800 federally owned and leased buildings, in addition to approximately $1.2 billion in construction projects currently underway. The President issued Executive Order 12512, which gave PBS the responsibility to provide leadership in the development and maintenance of needed property management information systems for the Government.

The Public Buildings Act of 1959 (73 Stat. 479; 40 U.S.C. 601–615) gave PBS authority over the construction of most Federal public buildings nationwide. This act was expanded by the Public Buildings Amendments of 1972, establishing a new method of funding PBS operations through a special fund to be financed from user charges paid by agencies using GSA-controlled space.

The Public Buildings Cooperative Use Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 2505) was signed into law by the President on October 18, 1976. This legislation changes the way GSA manages Federal buildings by allowing occupancy of space by commercial tenants. The law also encourages renovation and conversion to Federal use of older buildings of historic or cultural value.

Functions and Activities

Design and Construction The design of a public building is a complex and difficult task. In administering its design program, the Public Buildings Service has established two basic goals: Federal buildings must meet the highest standards of excellence, energy conservation, and economy of operation and, equally important, the design-construction process must be carried out efficiently and economically. To meet this high standard of design excellence, PBS has developed procedures for the selection of the most qualified architects and engineers. This process is based upon the competence of the design professional to accomplish the work.

PBS currently provides architects and engineers with comprehensive information for use in the design planning of buildings. At present, the information is being expanded to include high-technology features for future buildings. These features are related to occupancy comfort and productivity, building operations and flexibility, fire safety, security, and telecommunications.

The comprehensive PBS design process begins by setting specific goals that serve as the basis for assessing building performance throughout the life of each project. Cost-effective considerations are addressed through a project budgeting approach that requires that the cost of a building project be developed based upon the building's capitalized income. Any additional construction costs have to be justified on the basis of long-term economic benefits, legislative requirements, or Government policy.

PBS continues to emphasize other important programs, including historic preservation, energy conservation, handicapped accessibility, and art-in-architecture. These programs are integral to GSA's commitment to provide quality buildings for people.

For further information, contact the Office of Real Property Development. Phone, 202–566–1025.

Space Management PBS plans, directs, and coordinates the acquisition, assignment, and utilization of Government-owned and -leased space used to accommodate Federal agencies. This program's objective is to conduct the GSA space inventory activities in the most efficient and economical manner so that the management of Government activities and services are improved in accordance with the programs and policies of the Federal Government. PBS is responsible for implementing Government-wide space management reforms and providing uniform goals for the improvement of Government work space management. A key program goal is to continue to assist agency clients by providing them with a quality work environment and demonstrating new and better ways to design space for efficiency and improved utilization. In addition, PBS manages a lease acquisition program in excess of $800 million and a building purchase program that began in 1983.

Buildings Management The objective of PBS is to provide an attractive, well-maintained, and safe setting in which Federal employees will feel stimulated and proud to work. The management of federally owned and leased buildings encompasses such activities as the operation, maintenance, repair, and alteration of the structures, as well as the safety, security, energy conservation, and concessions programs.

Protection and Safety The delivery of law enforcement and security services, along with comprehensive fire, occupational safety, health, and environmental programs, further enhance the work environment for employees in GSA-controlled facilities. These programs are supplemented by monthly inspection and survey programs to identify and correct fire, health, and other hazards, and ensure that tenant agencies receive efficient and effective service delivery.

For further information, contact the Office of Real Property Management and Safety. Phone, 202-566-0971.

Planning PBS is directly involved in many areas of public service. By thoroughly analyzing the effect of employing the various housing alternatives of new construction, building purchases, alterations of existing buildings and leasing, both at the nationwide level and in detail at the community level, planning satisfies the long-range housing requirements of the Federal work force in the most economic manner. To the greatest extent possible, plans are coordinated with tenant agencies to ensure that they are housed in locations and facilities that maximize their efficiency of operation and service delivery to the public. PBS is vitally concerned with the socioeconomic and cultural factors of a community and makes every effort to have a positive impact through its construction, purchase, and leasing activities. PBS promotes and encourages intergovernmental cooperation and sound planning, zoning, historic preservation, and land use through coordination with State and local governments. Planning precautions are taken, and environmental impact determinations are made to ensure that major PBS actions have a constructive effect on the quality of the human environment.

For further information, contact the Office of Facility Planning. Phone, 202-566-0638.

Procurement PBS plans, directs, and coordinates, on a servicewide basis, a comprehensive program of contracting and management, including the development and administration of procurement policies, regulations, and procedures. Its major objectives include developing, establishing, and monitoring major PBS acquisitions. An oversight responsibility ensures compliance with acquisition policies, regulations, and procedures.

For further information, contact the Office of Procurement. Phone, 202-566-0907.

Public Utilities Management In managing the public utilities program, PBS reviews public utility rate schedules to determine the adequacy of the rates in respect to the Government as a consumer; negotiates utility rates and contracts for general Government use and for numerous special situations; and on behalf of Federal agencies, provides advice and expert testimony in proceedings before regulatory bodies when the Government's interest as a consumer needs to be protected. In addition, Government-wide standards concerning the procurement, use, and conservation of utilities are issued to regulate and furnish management guidance in this area.

For further information, contact the Office of Procurement. Phone, 202-566-0907.

Federal Property Resources Service

The Federal Property Resources Service (FPRS) is comprised of two basic operating programs with staff and a program support office under the direction of the Commissioner. The two program areas are utilization and disposal of Government-owned real property; and acquisition, sale, and management of the National Defense Stockpile of strategic and critical materials.

Functions and Activities

National Defense Stockpile of Strategic and Critical Materials

FPRS manages the stockpile, which consists of about 93 materials, including metals, minerals, ores, and agricultural commodities, and that involves upgrading, quality assurance, storage, maintenance, and custody. In time of war or other national emergency, the supply of various essential materials from foreign sources may be reduced or totally eliminated. This situation would cause a disruption in military and essential civilian productive industries. To alleviate these potential problems, strategic and critical materials are stored in a ready-to-ship status in various locations throughout the United States.

FPRS conducts not only the maintenance operations but also the active programs of disposal of materials that have become excess to stockpile needs and procurement of needed materials for the stockpile. Acquisitions and disposals provide a means of maintaining a program of stockpile restructuring, in response to changing industrial and military requirements for meeting national emergencies.

As a special and unique phase of the National Defense Stockpile, FPRS operates the Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, ND, which produces jewel bearings for the National Defense Stockpile in addition to satisfying the needs of Department of Defense contractors. The plant was established as part of the Defense Mobilization Base to provide a domestic source for jewel bearings and related products in order to eliminate U.S. dependency upon foreign sources of supply. The William Langer Plant is the only Government-owned, contractor-operated plant in GSA, and it is the only plant of its kind in North America. It is a modern, completely integrated production facility with the capability for rapidly expanding its production during times of an emergency.

For further information, contact the Office of National Defense Stockpile. Phone, 202–535–7671.

Real Property Program FPRS maintains an extensive program to provide for the proper utilization and disposal of Government real property. The goal of this program is to provide for the efficient and economical utilization of Federal real property and the disposal of any real property surplus to Federal requirements.

In furtherance of this goal, FPRS directs a continuing survey of Federal real properties to determine if they are not utilized, underutilized, or being put to their optimum use. Property worth millions of dollars has been reported excess to GSA for further Federal utilization or disposal as a direct result of the survey program.

Property no longer needed by a Federal agency is reported as excess to FPRS for disposal. Excess property may be transferred to another Federal agency for its use in lieu of acquiring additional facilities.

Property that is not needed by any Federal agency is determined surplus and may be made available for local public purposes specified by law where the highest and best use of the property is for such purposes and the use has exceptional merit.

Properties not needed for Federal purposes and not transferred to a local public body for authorized public uses are generally disposed of through negotiated or public competitive sale.

For further information, contact the Office of Real Property. Phone, 202–535–7084.

Sources of Information

Office of Public Affairs The Office of Public Affairs is responsible for the coordination of responses to inquiries from both the news media and the general public, as well as for maintaining an information network with GSA employees with regard to items of interest to the Federal worker. The Office, through its Media Relations Division, issues news releases, and the Internal Communications Division is responsible for printing the GSA Update, a weekly bulletin of noteworthy items designed to keep Agency employees apprised of pertinent GSA issues.

Also organized under the Office of Public Affairs is the Consumer Information Center (CIC), a program that assists Federal agencies in the release of relevant and useful consumer information, and generates increased public awareness of this information. The CIC publishes quarterly the Consumer Information Catalogue, which is free to the public and lists more that 200 selected Federal publications of interest to consumers. Topics include automobiles, health, food, nutrition, money management, employment, and education. The Catalogue is widely distributed through Congressional offices, Federal facilities, educators, State and local governmental consumer offices, and private nonprofit organizations. For a free copy of the Catalogue, write to Consumer Information Catalogue, Pueblo, CO 81009. Bulk copies are free to nonprofit organizations.

The Inter-American Foundation is an independent Government corporation that supports social and economic development in Latin America and the Caribbean. It makes grants primarily to private, indigenous organizations that carry out self-help projects benefiting poor people.

The Inter-American Foundation was created by Congress in 1969 (83 Stat. 821; 22 U.S.C. 290f) as a public corporation to support the self-help efforts of poor people in Latin America and the Caribbean. The Foundation was established because of congressional concern that traditional programs of development assistance were not reaching poor people. Instead of working through governments, the Foundation responds directly to the initiatives of the poor by supporting local and private organizations. Approximately one-half of the Foundation's funds come from congressional appropriations and the remainder from the Social Progress Trust Fund of the Inter-American Development Bank.

The Foundation was created as an independent agency so that its operations would not be affected by short-term U.S. foreign policy considerations. It is governed by a seven-member Board of Directors appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. By law, four members of the Board are from private organizations and three are from the Government.

The Foundation has made 1,800 grants, totaling $190 million. Most grants are made to private, grassroots organizations, including community associations and small urban enterprises or to larger organizations that work with local groups and provide them with credit, technical assistance, training, and marketing services. A small number of grants each year are made to centers in Latin America and the Caribbean for research on the problems of poor people and grassroots development.

The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) regulates interstate surface transportation, including trains, trucks, buses, water carriers, freight forwarders, transportation brokers, and a coal slurry pipeline. The regulatory laws vary depending on the type of transportation; however, they generally involve certification of carriers seeking to provide transportation for the public, rates, adequacy of service, purchases, and mergers. ICC assures that the carriers it regulates will provide the public with rates and services that are fair and reasonable.

The Interstate Commerce Commission was created as an independent regulatory agency by an act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. 379, 383; 49 U.S.C. 1–22), now known as the Interstate Commerce Act, to regulate commerce.

ICC's responsibilities include regulation of carriers engaged in transportation in interstate commerce and in foreign commerce to the extent that it takes place within the United States. Surface transportation under the Commission's jurisdiction includes railroads, trucking companies, bus lines, freight forwarders, water carriers, transportation brokers, and a coal slurry pipeline.

The Commission's authority has been strengthened and its jurisdiction broadened by subsequent legislation, such as the Hepburn Act, the Panama Canal Act, the Motor Carrier Act of 1935, and the Transportation Acts of 1920, 1940, and 1958.

However, with enactment of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 31; 45 U.S.C. 801 note), the Commission's statutory mandate was altered to provide for less regulation over rail freight rates and practices. This fundamental shift in national transportation policy was reinforced by enactment of the Motor Carrier Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 793; 49 U.S.C. 10101 note), the Staggers Rail Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 1895; 49 U.S.C. 10101 note), the Household Goods Transportation Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 2011; 49 U.S.C. 10101 note), and the Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1982 (96 Stat. 1102; 49 U.S.C. 10101 note). These measures provided for a sharply reduced Federal role in regulating the trucking, railroad, and bus industries.

The Chairman is designated by the President from among the Commissioners. The Commissioners elect their own Vice Chairman annually. The Vice Chairman and the other Commissioners serve on one of two divisions. The entire Commission acts on matters of national transportation importance. The Commission may delegate certain duties and functions to individual Commissioners or to boards consisting of not less than three eligible employees. The two divisions function as appellate divisions for action on petitions for reconsideration or rehearing of decisions of divisions or boards of employees.

Field offices are maintained in various cities to audit carrier accounts, monitor the utilization of railroad freight cars in order to avoid severe shortages, investigate violations of the Interstate Commerce Act and related laws, and provide assistance to the public in its use of regulated carriers that provide transportation by railroad, highway, and waterway.

Functions and Activities

In broad terms and within prescribed legal limits, Commission regulations encompass transportation economics and service.

In the transportation economics area, the Commission settles controversies over rates and charges among competing and like modes of transportation, shippers, and receivers of freight, passengers, and others. It rules upon applications for mergers, consolidations, and acquisitions of control. It prescribes accounting rules, awards reparations, and administers laws relating to railroad bankruptcy. It acts to prevent unlawful discrimination, destructive competition, and rebating. It also has jurisdiction over the use, control, supply, movement, distribution, exchange, interchange, and return of railroad equipment. Under certain conditions, it is authorized to direct the handling and movement of traffic over a railroad and its distribution over other lines of railroads.

In the transportation service area, the Commission grants the right to operate to railroads, trucking companies, bus lines, freight forwarders, water carriers, and transportation brokers. It also approves applications to construct and abandon railroad lines.

Although public hearings on matters before the Commission may be held at any point throughout the country, final decisions are made at the Washington, DC, headquarters in all formal proceedings. These cases include rulings upon rate changes, applications to engage in for-hire transport, carrier mergers, adversary proceedings on complaint actions, and punitive measures taken in enforcement matters.

Consumer protection programs involve ensuring that the public obtains full measure of all transportation services to which entitlement is guaranteed by the Interstate Commerce Act. This law ensures that rates will be fair and service will be reasonable. Discrimination, preferential treatment, or prejudicial actions by carriers are illegal and instances of such violations should be brought to the attention of the Commission at its headquarters or any field office.

The Office of Special Counsel was created by the Commission in November 1978 to help determine the public interest in proceedings subject to ICC jurisdiction. The Office can participate as a party or as an aid in the establishment of a record in those proceedings in which the public interest would be otherwise inadequately represented. The Office has authority to appear before the Commission, other agencies, and the courts.

The Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 created in early 1974 a Rail Services Planning Office to ensure that public interest is represented in the restructuring and revitalization of railroads in the Northeast and Midwest. The Office was given permanent status by the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 31; 45 U.S.C. 801 note). In addition to its other responsibilities, it provides planning support for the Commission.

The Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) protects the integrity of Federal merit systems and the rights of Federal employees working in the systems. In overseeing the personnel practices of the Federal Government, the Board conducts special studies of the merit system, hears and decides charges of wrongdoing and employee appeals of adverse agency actions, and orders corrective and disciplinary actions against an executive agency or employee when appropriate.

The Office of the Special Counsel investigates, among other things, prohibited personnel practices and allegations of activities prohibited by civil service laws, rules, and regulations and prosecutes officials who violate civil service rules and regulations before MSPB.

The Merit Systems Protection Board is a successor agency to the United States Civil Service Commission, established by act of Congress on January 16, 1883. Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1978 (effective January 1, 1979, pursuant to Executive Order 12107 of December 28, 1978) redesignated part of the Commission as the Merit Systems Protection Board. The Board's duties and authority are specified in the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1121-1131; 5 U.S.C. 1201-1209), approved October 13, 1978.

Functions and Activities MSPB has responsibility for hearing and adjudicating appeals by Federal employees of adverse personnel actions, such as removals, suspensions, and demotions. It also resolves cases involving reemployment rights, the denial of periodic step-increases in pay, actions against administrative law judges, and charges of merit system violations. The Board has the authority to enforce its decisions and to order corrective and disciplinary actions. An employee or applicant for employment involved in an appealable action that also involves an allegation of discrimination may ask the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to review a Board decision. Final decisions and orders of the Board can be appealed to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

MSPB reviews regulations issued by the Office of Personnel Management and has the authority to require agencies to cease compliance with any regulation that could constitute a prohibited personnel practice. The Board also conducts special studies on the civil service and other executive branch merit systems and reports to the President and the Congress on whether the Federal work force is being adequately protected against political abuses and prohibited personnel practices.

Office of the Special Counsel

The Office of the Special Counsel is an independent investigative and prosecutorial agency that litigates before the Merit Systems Protection Board. The Office is responsible for investigating allegations of prohibited personnel practices, prohibited political activities by Federal and certain State and local employees, arbitrary or capricious withholding of information in violation of the Freedom of Information Act, prohibited discrimination when found by appropriate authority, and other activities prohibited by any civil service law, rule, or regulation.

The Office of the Special Counsel also is responsible for receiving and referring to the appropriate agency information that indicates a violation of any law, rule, or regulation, mismanagement, a gross waste of funds, an abuse of authority, or a substantial and specific danger to public health or safety.

[For the National Aeronautics and Space Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 14, Part 1201]

In carrying out the policy of Congress that activities in space should be devoted to peaceful purposes for the benefit of all humankind, the principal statutory functions of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) are to conduct research for the solution of problems of flight within and outside the Earth's atmosphere and develop, construct, test, and operate aeronautical and space vehicles; conduct activities required for the exploration of space with manned and unmanned vehicles; arrange for the most effective utilization of the scientific and engineering resources of the United States with other nations engaged in aeronautical and space activities for peaceful purposes; and to provide for the widest practicable and appropriate dissemination of information concerning NASA's activities and their results.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was established by the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 426; 42 U.S.C. 2451 et seq.), as amended.

NASA Headquarters

Planning, coordination, and control of NASA programs are vested in Headquarters. Directors of NASA's Field Installations are responsible for execution of NASA's programs, largely through contracts with research, development, and manufacturing enterprises. A broad range of research and development activities are conducted in NASA's field installations by Government-employed scientists, engineers, and technicians to evaluate new concepts and phenomena and to maintain the competence required to manage contracts with private enterprises.

Planning, direction, and management of NASA's research and development programs are the responsibility of five program offices, all of which report to, and receive overall guidance and direction from the Administrator. The overall planning and direction of institutional operations at the field installations and management of agencywide institutional resources are the responsibility of the appropriate institutional Associate Administrator under the overall guidance and direction of the Administrator.

A brief description of the program responsibilities the five program offices is as follows:

Aeronautics and Space Technology The Office of Aeronautics and Space Technology is responsible for the conduct of programs to develop advanced technology to enable and enhance an aggressive pursuit of national objectives in aeronautics and space; to demonstrate the feasibility of this advanced technology, when necessary, to ensure its early utilization; and to coordinate the application of NASA capabilities and facilities to programs of other agencies and the U.S. aerospace industry.

This Office also coordinates the agency's total advanced research and technology program to ensure its overall adequacy and to avoid undesirable duplication.

For further information, call 202-453-2693.

Space Science and Applications The Office of Space Science and Applications is responsible for NASA's efforts to understand the origin, evolution, and structure of the universe; the origin and evolution of the solar system; and the integrated functioning of planet Earth. The Office also is responsible for the conduct of NASA activities in space applications, including remote sensing, the efforts to develop and understand microgravity processes, facilitate life in space, and develop and test advanced space communications. The Office coordinates the program between various government agencies, foreign interests, and the private sector to ensure maximum exploitation of space science and applications opportunities to further knowledge of the universe and enhance life on Earth.

To accomplish its objectives, the Office conducts research and development in astrophysics, life sciences, Earth sciences and applications, solar system exploration, communications, microgravity sciences and applications, and information systems. The Office utilizes the Space Transportation System, automated spacecraft, sounding rockets, balloons, aircraft, and ground-based research to conduct the program. It is also responsible for contacts with the Space Science Board of the National Academy of Sciences, the Space Applications Board, and other science advisory boards.

For further information, call 202–453–1409.

Office of Space Flight The Office of Space Flight is responsible for advancing the space shuttle and for carrying out space transportation and other associated programs, including the institutional management of the Johnson Space Center, Marshall Space Flight Center, Kennedy Space Center, and National Space Technology Laboratories. The Office plans, directs, and executes the development, acquisition, testing, and operation of all elements of the Space Transportation System; plans, directs, and manages execution of prelaunch, launch, flight, landing, post-flight operations, and payload assignments; maintains and upgrades the design of ground and flight systems throughout the operational period; procures recurring system hardware; manages, directs, and coordinates all U.S. civil launch capabilities and U.S. spacelab development, procurement, and operations; develops and implements necessary policy with other government and commercial users of the Space Transportation System; and coordinates all research.

For further information, call 202–453–1132.

Office of Space Tracking and Data Systems The Office of Space Tracking and Data Systems is responsible for providing vital tracking, command, telemetry, and data acquisition support to meet the requirements for all NASA programs that include Earth-orbital science and applications missions, planetary missions, expendable launch vehicles, sounding rockets, balloons, research aircraft, and the Space Transportation System. The Deep Space Network (DSN), the Spaceflight Tracking and Data Network (STDN), the first of the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite Systems (TDRSS) spacecraft, and various facilities currently provide this support. A global communications system links tracking sites, control centers, and data processing facilities that provide real-time data processing for mission control, orbit and attitude determination, and routine processing of telemetry data for space missions.

For further information, call 202–453–2030.

Office of Space Station The Office of Space Station is responsible for managing and directing all aspects of the national Space Station Program and to achieve the goals established by the President. These goals include the development of a permanently manned space station by 1994; to involve other countries to participate in the Space Station Program; and to promote private sector investment in space through enhanced space-based operational capabilties. The Office of Space Station has overall policy and management responsibilities for the program. The Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, Houston, TX, has been assigned lead-center responsibilities for the program; and the Johnson center, the Marshall Spaceflight Center, Huntsville, AL, the Goddard Spaceflight Center, Greenbelt, MD, and the Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, OH, are responsible for developing major elements of the space station.

The concept of the Space Station Program is to provide a manned base, initially accommodating a crew of six to eight people, two unmanned platforms, and the accommodations for a previously developed Orbital Maneuvering Vehicle and later a larger Orbital Transfer Vehicle. The space station will make the greatest possible use of automation and robotics in its design and operation and will permit evolutionary growth in both size and capability.

The space station will provide facilities for an orbital laboratory for a wide range of science experiments and technology developments; a manufacturing facility in space to develop and produce new materials and products; a servicing facility to repair and maintain free-flying platforms and other satellites; permanent observatories for viewing Earth below and outward to the solar system and universe; a staging facility for assembling and servicing spacecraft destined for higher orbits or missions to the Moon or planets; and an assembly and storage facility to construct large structures.

For further information, call 202–453–2405.

Field Installations

A brief description of the principal and supporting roles of NASA's field installations follows:

Ames Research Center, Moffett Field, CA: Fundamental aerodynamics; short haul aircraft technology; rotorcraft; powered-lift and high-performance aircraft technology; propulsion/airframe integration; aeronautical and flight dynamics research; advance guidance and flight crucial digital control systems; human factors and flight simulation research; numerical aerodynamics simulation and computational fluid dynamics research; remotely piloted vehicle research; aeronautical technical support to Department of Defense; computer science and computational modeling research; artificial intelligence, autonomous systems; airborne science and applications; astronomical observation techniques; IR detection and remote sensing technology; space sciences; planetary and deep space probe development and mission operations; atmospheric entry, aerothermodynamics and thermal protection systems technology development; life sciences research; space/human factors and life support; origins of life and planetary evolution research; space biological and biomedical research; extension of technology for extended human presence in space for varied segment of population; man-machine systems technology; and shuttle orbiter landing support.

Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, MD: Earth orbital spacecraft development and flight operations; tracking and data acquisition systems and support operations; spacelab payloads; space physics and astronomy payloads and science; upper atmospheric research; applications research and development—weather and climate, Earth dynamics, Earth resources, communications; information systems technology; sounding rocket and payload development, procurement and operations; balloons; launch vehicle procurement; planetary science; sensors and experiments in environmental monitoring and ocean dynamics.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, CA: (Operated under contract by the California Institute of Technology): Planetary spacecraft development and mission operations; tracking and data acquisition for deep space operations; lunar/planetary science; upper atmospheric research; science and applications spacecraft development; Earth and ocean dynamics; teleoperator technology; guidance and control technology; energy technology for civil applications; space physics payloads and science; space astronomy payloads and science; sensor and data acquisition systems and technology; information systems technology.

Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, Houston, TX: Manages the development and operation of the space shuttle, a manned space transportation system developed for the United States by NASA. The shuttle is designed to reduce the cost of using space for commercial, scientific, and defense needs. This Center is responsible for development, production, delivery, and flight operation of the orbiter vehicle, that portion of the space shuttle that is designed to take crew and experiments into space, place satellites in orbit, retrieve ailing satellites, etc. The shuttle crew (up to seven people) includes pilots, mission specialists, and payload specialists. Crew personnel (other than payload specialists) are recruited, selected, and trained by the Center. It is also responsible for design, development, and testing of spaceflight payloads and associated systems for manned flight; for planning and conducting manned spaceflight missions; and for directing medical, engineering, and scientific experiments that are helping man understand and improve the environment. For the space station program, the Johnson Space Center serves as the Lead Center and provides technical and programatic management in the areas of system engineering and integration, business management, operations, customer integration and accommodation, and support of Headquarters Level A responsibilities.

John F. Kennedy Space Center, FL: Designing, constructing, operating, and maintaining space vehicle facilities and ground support equipment for launch and recovery operations. Prelaunch operations, launch operations, and payload processing for the space shuttle and expendable launch vehicle programs, and landing operations for the space shuttle orbiter; also recovery and refurbishment of the reusable Solid Rocket Booster.

Langley Research Center, Hampton, VA: Long haul aircraft technology; general aviation aircraft/commuter aircraft technology; military aircraft and missile systems technology; fundamental aerodynamics; propulsion/airframe integration; unsteady aerodynamics and aeroelasticity; scamjet propulsion; aerospace acoustics; aerospace vehicle structures and materials; aerothermodynamics; computational fluid dynamics; aircraft flight management and operating procedures; computer science; fault tolerant electronic systems; aircraft flight control systems; advanced space vehicle configurations; technology experiments in space; sensor and data acquisition technology; space electronics and control systems; planetary entry technology; atmospheric sciences.

Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, OH: Air breathing and space propulsion systems; icing; engine materials and structures; aeroelasticity and structural dynamics; turbomachinery thermodynamics and aerodynamics; fuels and combustion; propulsion controls; power transmission; military support; tribology; internal engine computational fluid dynamics; high temperature engine instrumentation; launch vehicle procurement and operations; space communications; space and terrestrial energy generation and storage, in-space experimentation, systems technology and applications.

George C. Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, AL: Managing, developing, and testing the External Tank, Solid Rocket Booster, and main engines, which are major portions of the space shuttle project; development of the U.S. Spacelab; management of the space telescope; research in structural systems, materials science engineering; electronics, guidance, navigation, and control.

National Space Technology Laboratories, Bay St. Louis, MS: Planning and managing research and development activities in the field of space and terrestrial applications; space flight; research in oceanography, meteorology, and environmental sciences. Coordinates research between NASA and other governmental agencies.

[For the National Archives and Records Administration statement of organization, see the Federal Register of June 25, 1985, 50 FR 26278]

The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) is responsible for establishing policies and procedures for managing the records of the United States Government. NARA assists Federal agencies in adequately documenting their activities, administering their records management programs, scheduling their records, and retiring their noncurrent records to Federal Records Centers. NARA also arranges, describes, preserves, and makes available to the public the historically valuable records of all three branches of the Government. Managing the Presidential Libraries system and assisting the National Historical Publications and Records Commission in its grant program for State and local records and edited publications of prominent Americans are also key elements of NARA. The agency is responsible for publishing legislative, regulatory, Presidential, and other public documents, as well.

The National Archives and Records Administration was established by an act of October 19, 1984 (98 Stat. 2280; 44 U.S.C. 2101 et seq.), effective April 1, 1985, as an independent agency in the executive branch of the Government. NARA is the successor agency to the National Archives Establishment, which was created by act of June 19, 1934 (48 Stat. 1122), and subsequently incorporated into the General Services Administration as the National Archives and Records Service by section 104 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 381), approved June 30, 1949.

Programs and Activities

Archival Program NARA maintains the historically valuable records of the U.S. Government dating from the Revolutionary War era to the recent past. NARA arranges and preserves records and prepares inventories, guides, and other finding aids to facilitate their use.

NARA makes original records available for use in research rooms in all of its facilities, answers written and oral requests for information contained in its holdings, and, for a fee provides copies of documents. In addition, many important records are available through a microfilm publications program. Most of the historically valuable records in NARA's custody are maintained in facilities in the Washington, DC, area. Records that are primarily of regional or local interest are, however, maintained in 11 National Archives Field Branches, the locations of which are listed below.

For further information concerning documents in the National Archives, contact the Reference Service Branch. Phone, 202-523-3220.

Presidential Libraries Through the Presidential Libraries, which are located on sites selected by the Presidents and built with private funds, the National Archives preserves and makes available for use the Presidential records and personal papers that document the actions of a particular President's administration. In addition to providing reference services on Presidential documents, each library prepares documentary and descriptive publications and operates a museum to exhibit documents, historic objects, and other memorabilia of interest to the public.

The records of each President since Herbert Hoover have been donated to the National Archives. Once considered personal papers, all Presidential records created on or after January 20, 1981, are declared by law to be owned and controlled by the United States and are required to be transferred to the National Archives at the end of the administration, pursuant to the Presidential Records Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 2523; 44 U.S.C. 2201 et seq.).

Federal Records Centers Federal agencies transfer their noncurrent records to Federal Records Centers in accordance with established disposition schedules. Reference services on these documents, such as furnishing and authenticating copies, are provided to Federal agencies and the public. The Federal Records Centers are responsible for disposing of records of transitory value and transferring to the Office of the National Archives those that have enduring value.

Records Administration NARA works with Federal agencies in the development of standards, guidelines, and procedures relating to records administration programs. These activities include the formulation of Government-wide policies to ensure adequate documentation of the organization, policies, and activities of the Government, as well as conducting training for agencies on files management, records disposition, and other records administration programs. In addition, NARA is responsible for scheduling and appraising Federal records, including reviewing all requests for the disposition of Federal records.

For further information, contact the Office of Records Administration. Phone, 202-724-1453.

Public Programs The Declaration of Independence, Constitution, Bill of Rights, and other documents important to the history of the Nation are on permanent display in the National Archives Building. In addition, the agency exhibits, in the National Archives Building, the Presidential Libraries, the Federal Records Centers, and the National Archives Field Branches, numerous other documents on a variety of historical themes. NARA also conducts tours of the National Archives Building, organizes workshops and conferences on historical topics, and provides programs to introduce NARA's holdings to school groups. NARA periodically presents documentary film series at the National Archives Building and also has a wide variety of films available for sale or rental through its National Audiovisual Center.

For further information, contact the Office of Public Programs. Phone, 202-523-3216.

Laws, Regulations, and Presidential Documents NARA is responsible for preparing and publishing a wide variety of public documents. Upon issuance, acts of Congress are published immediately in slip law (pamphlet) form and then cumulated and published for each session of Congress in the United States Statutes at Large. Each Federal working day, the Federal Register publishes current Presidential proclamations and Executive orders; Federal agency regulations having general applicability and legal effect; proposed agency rules; and documents that are required by statute to be published. All Federal regulations in force are published annually in codified form in the Code of Federal Regulations.

Presidential speeches, news conferences, messages, and other materials made public by the White House are published each week in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents and annually in the Public Papers of the Presidents.

The Codification of Presidential Proclamations and Executive Orders furnishes in one comprehensive source proclamations and Executive orders having general applicability and continuing legal effect, with currently effective amendments incorporated into the text. Also, The United States Government Manual, published annually, serves as the official handbook of the Federal Government, providing extensive information on agencies of the legislative, judicial, and executive branches.

For further information, contact the Office of the Federal Register. Phone, 202–523–5240.

Other Activities

National Archives Trust Fund Board The National Archives Trust Fund Board receives monies generated by the sale of reproductions of historic documents, audiovisual materials, and publications about the records, as well as gifts to NARA. The Board invests these funds and uses income to support such archival functions as the preparation of publications, which make information about historic records more widely available. Members of the Board include the Archivist of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

For further information, contact the Secretary, National Archives Trust Fund Board. Phone, 202–523–3047.

National Historical Publications and Records Commission (NHPRC) NARA supports the initiatives of this statutory commission in making plans, estimates, and recommendations for historical works and in cooperating with and encouraging various non-Federal agencies and institutions in gathering and publishing papers and other documents important for the study of American history. The Commission awards grants to promote a variety of historically oriented projects, such as archival programs, documentary publications projects, and archival and editorial education.

The Publications Program provides grant money for printed and microfilm publications of the papers of famous American diplomats, politicians, reformers, scientists, labor figures, as well as corporate and organizational records. A subvention program provides grants to nonprofit presses to help support publication costs of sponsored editions.

The more recently established Records Program gives grants to State and local governments, historical societies, archives, libraries, and associations for the preservation, arrangement, and description of historical records.

Education programs sponsored by NHPRC include an institute to train scholars in documentary editing and fellowships in the fields of documentary editing and archival administration.

For further information, contact the National Historical Publications and Records Commission. Phone, 202–523–5384.

Volunteer Service Opportunities The National Archives provides a wide variety of opportunities for volunteers. At the National Archives Building volunteers conduct tours, provide information in the Exhibit Hall, work with staff archivists in processing historic documents and serve as genealogical aides in the genealogical orientation room. For more information call 202-523-3183. Similar opportunities exist in the Presidential Libraries and at some of the National Archives Field Branches. Volunteers with an interest in American history are preferred.

Educational Opportunities The National Archives offers several courses on archival and records management principles and on using the resources of the institution.

The Modern Archives Institute is a 2-week course for archivists, which introduces students to the principles and techniques of archival work. It is offered twice a year, in January and June, for a fee. Students are advised to register 3 months in advance. Inquiries should be made to the Office of the National Archives, National Archives and Records Administration, Washington, DC 20408. Phone, 202-523-3892.

NARA also offers a 2-day Files Improvement Workshop and a 3-day Records Disposition Workshop; these courses are designed for any Federal Government personnel with responsibility over the records creation, filing, and disposition process. For further information, contact the Agency Services Division. Phone, 202-724-1471. Similar training is offered by the Federal Records Centers for agency field employees. For further information, contact the nearest Federal Records Center listed on page 576.

The National Archives also offers genealogical workshops several times a month. An annual 4-day course entitled "Going to the Source" introduces researchers to research methodology at the National Archives. For further information, contact the Education Branch. Phone, 202-523-3347.

The NHPRC Institute for the Editing of Historical Documents is held for 2 weeks each summer at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Admission is competitive and applicants should hold a masters degree in American History or American Studies or have equivalent training. Tuition is $250. The Commission also offers three fellowships annually in advanced documentary editing and three fellowships in mid-level archival administration. The editorial fellows work with document publication projects supported or endorsed by the Commission. The archival fellows work at a historical records repository in such areas as appraisal, collection development, personnel administration, budget preparation, and external affairs. The fellows receive stipends and fringe benefits of $18,000 for a 9 to 10-month period. The fellowships are jointly funded by the Commission and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

For further information, contact the National Historical Records and Publications Commission, National Archives and Records Administration, Washington, DC 20408. Phone, 202-523-5384.

Many Federal agencies conduct some planning and development activities in the National Capital region, but the overall coordination of such efforts is carried out by the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC), the central planning agency for the Federal Government in this region. The region includes the District of Columbia and all land areas within the boundaries of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland and Fairfax, Loudoun, Prince William, and Arlington Counties in Virginia.

The National Capital Planning Commission was created as an independent establishment by the National Capital Planning Act of 1952 (66 Stat. 782; 40 U.S.C. 71a; D.C. Code 1-1001-1013).

The Commission is composed of five appointed and seven ex officio members. Three citizen members, including the Chairman, are appointed by the President and two by the mayor of the District of Columbia. Presidential appointees include one resident from both Maryland and Virginia, and one from anywhere in the United States; however, the two mayoral appointees must be District of Columbia residents.

Functions

The Commission has three primary functions: comprehensive planning to ensure the orderly development of the Federal Establishment and protection of Federal interests in the National Capital region, plan and program review, and preparation of the Federal Capital Improvements Program.

Comprehensive Planning The Comprehensive Plan is a statement of policies dealing with the growth and development of the National Capital and consists of both Federal and District elements. It is an important planning tool that provides a framework for policy decisions regarding physical development proposed by Federal, State, local, and regional agencies.

The Commission's comprehensive planning function involves preparation and adoption of Federal elements of the Comprehensive Plan for the National Capital as well as review, for Federal interests, of District or non-Federal elements of the Comprehensive Plan that are prepared by the mayor and adopted by the Council of the District of Columbia. If any District element is determined to have a negative impact on Federal interests, the Commission may veto it.

Plan and Program Review The Commission's plan and program review function consists of reviewing plans and programs proposed by Federal, State, regional, and local agencies or jurisdictions in the National Capital region. This function provides the Commission with an opportunity to coordinate plan and program proposals.

Following this review the Commission, with regard to certain types of projects, provides the sponsoring agency with comments and recommendations. For Federal public buildings in the District of Columbia and District of Columbia buildings in the central area of the District, approval by the Commission must be obtained prior to construction.

Each Federal or District project comes to the Commission for review at several stages. The first submission by an agency may be a master plan for an entire installation or facility. Plans for construction of individual projects implementing a master plan are submitted to the Commission at both preliminary and final stages.

Federal Capital Improvements Programming Another comprehensive planning activity is the preparation, adoption, and updating of the Five-Year Federal Capital Improvements Program. This is a 5-year "budget" schedule for Federal physical improvements throughout the National Capital region. It is prepared by the Commission in order to systematically review proposed Federal agency projects with regard to timing, location, and financing, and to coordinate agency development plans throughout the region.

A Federal Capital budget represents the first year of the 5-year program and consists of capital outlay requests for the region contained in the President's fiscal year Federal budget transmitted to Congress. The program for the second through fifth years incorporates Commission recommendations to Federal agencies and the Office of Management and Budget for subsequent budget submissions to Congress.

Additional Activities Other Commission responsibilities include review of all proposed zoning regulations, map changes, and amendments to the District of Columbia zoning ordinance in order to ensure consistency of zoning regulations with Federal interests and with the Comprehensive Plan.

The Commission also adopts urban renewal area boundaries; prepares, adopts, and modifies urban renewal plans; approves the Permanent System of Highways Plan; makes recommendations on proposed street and alley closings; approves transfers of jurisdiction between Federal and District agencies; approves the sale of surplus property and park land; and acquires land for parks and parkways in the National Capital region.

The Commission serves the entire National Capital region by coordinating Federal planning and development with planning activities of State, local and regional agencies and jurisdictions.

For further information, contact the Public Affairs Officer, National Capital Planning Commission, 1325 G Street NW., Washington, DC 20576. Phone, 202-724-0174.

[For the National Credit Union Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 12, Part 720]

The National Credit Union Administration (NCUA) Board is responsible for chartering, insuring, supervising, and examining Federal credit unions (FCU's), and for administering the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund. The Board also manages the Central Liquidity Facility, a mixed-ownership Government corporation whose purpose is to supply emergency loans to member credit unions.

A credit union (CU) is a financial cooperative that aids its members by encouraging thrift and by providing members with a source of credit for provident purposes at reasonable rates of interest. Federal CU's serve occupational, associational, and residential groups, thus benefiting a broad range of citizens throughout the country.

The National Credit Union Administration was established by an act of March 10, 1970 (84 Stat. 49; 12 U.S.C. 1752), and reorganized by an act of November 10, 1978 (92 Stat. 3641; 12 U.S.C. 226), as an independent agency in the executive branch of the Federal Government. NCUA regulates and insures all FCU's and insures State-chartered CU's that apply and qualify for share insurance. Total assets of natural person, federally insured CU's exceed $119.7 billion.

Programs and Activities

Chartering The NCUA Board grants FCU charters to groups sharing a common bond of occupation, association, or groups within a well-defined neighborhood, community, or rural district. A preliminary investigation is made to determine if certain minimum standards are met before granting a Federal charter.

For further information, contact the Director, Department of Supervision and Examination. Phone, 202-357-1065.

Supervision Supervisory activities are carried out through examiner contacts and through periodic policy and regulatory releases from the Administration. The Administration also maintains an early warning system designed to identify emerging problems as well as to monitor operations between examinations.

Examinations The Administration conducts annual examinations of Federal credit unions to determine their solvency and compliance with laws and regulations, and to assist credit union management in improving operations.

For further information, contact the Director, Department of Supervision and Examination. Phone, 202-357-1065.

Share Insurance The act of October 19, 1970 (84 Stat. 994; 12 U.S.C. 1781 et seq.), provides for a program of share insurance. The insurance is mandatory for Federal credit unions and for State-chartered credit unions in 10 States, while optional for other State-chartered credit unions that meet NCUA standards. Credit union members' accounts are insured up to $100,000. The National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (NCUSIF) requires each insured credit union to place and maintain a 1-percent deposit of its insured savings with the NCUSIF.

For further information, contact the Director, Department of Insurance. Phone, 202-357-1010.

[For the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 45, Part 1100]

The general purpose of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities is to encourage and support national progress in the humanities and the arts.

The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities was created as an independent agency by the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 845; 20 U.S.C. 951). The Foundation consists of a National Endowment for the Arts, a National Endowment for the Humanities, a Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities, and an Institute of Museum Services. Each Endowment has its own Council, composed of the Endowment Chairman and 26 other members appointed by the President, which advises the Chairman with respect to policies and procedures and reviews applications for financial support and makes recommendations thereon.

The Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities consists of 20 members, including the two Endowment Chairmen and the Director of the Institute of Museum Services, and is designed to coordinate the activities of the two Endowments and related programs of other Federal agencies. Four members are excluded from the Federal Council when it is considering matters under the Arts and Artifacts Indemnity Act (89 Stat. 844; 20 U.S.C. 971).

National Endowment for the Arts

The goal of the National Endowment for the Arts is the fostering of professional excellence of the arts in America, to nurture and sustain them, and to help create a climate in which they may flourish so they may be experienced and enjoyed by the widest possible public.

The Endowment awards grants to individuals, State and regional arts agencies, and nonprofit organizations representing the highest quality in the fields of design arts, dance, expansion arts, folk arts, literature, media arts (film, radio, and television), museums, music, opera-musical theater, theatre, and the visual arts.

The programs of the National Endowment for the Arts have five basic goals: to foster individual creativity and excellence; to foster institutional creativity and excellence; to preserve the artistic birthright of present and future generations of Americans by supporting survival of the best of all art forms that reflect the American heritage in its full range of cultural and ethnic diversity; to ensure that all Americans have a true opportunity to make an informed, educated choice to have the arts of high quality touch their lives; and with responsiveness to the needs of the field, to provide leadership on behalf of the arts.

Sources of Information

Grants Persons interested in applying for a grant in the arts should contact the appropriate Program Director at the National Endowment for the Arts for further information.

Publications An annual report of the National Endowment for the Arts is issued annually and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402.

A Program Announcement containing information for prospective applicants may be obtained by writing to the National Endowment for the Arts, requesting the publication entitled Guide to Programs, Washington, DC 20506.

Employment Information The Office of Personnel Management registers from which employees are most often appointed are: Clerk-Typist, Clerk-Stenographer, Mid-Level Administrative Examination, and Senior-Level Examination.

For further information, contact the Public Information Office, National Endowment for the Arts, 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20506. Phone, 202-682-5400.

National Endowment for the Humanities

The National Endowment for the Humanities is an independent grant-making agency established by Congress in 1965 to support research, education, and public programs in the humanities.

According to the agency's authorizing legislation, the term "humanities" includes, but is not limited to, the study of the following: language, both modern and classical; linguistics; literature; history; jurisprudence; philosophy; archeology; comparative religion; ethics; the history, criticism, and theory of the arts; and those aspects of the social sciences that have humanistic content and employ humanistic methods.

The Endowment makes grants to individuals, groups, or institutions—schools, colleges, universities, museums, public television stations, libraries, public agencies, and nonprofit private groups—to increase understanding and appreciation of the humanities. Its grant-making is conducted through five operating divisions—Education Programs, Fellowships and Seminars, General Programs, Research Programs, and State Programs—and three offices—Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, Challenge Grants, and Preservation.

Education Programs—Grants in the Division of Education Programs support efforts in elementary and secondary schools as well as in institutions of higher education to improve instruction in humanities disciplines and to disseminate results of exemplary education programs.

For further information, call 202-786-0373.

Fellowships and Seminars—Programs in the Division of Fellowships and Seminars offer support to individual scholars, teachers, and other interpreters of the humanities for full-time independent study or research and for seminars that provide for collegial interaction.

For further information, call 202-786-0458.

Research Programs—Projects of longer duration, often involving collaboration between scholars, fall within the domain of the Division of Research Programs, which awards grants for interpretative scholarship in the humanities, the organization and conservation of resources for scholarship, and the preparation of reference works that add to the store of scholarly knowledge.

For further information, call 202-786-0200.

General Programs—The Division of General Programs strives to fulfill the Endowment's mandate "to increase public understanding of the humanities" by supporting those institutions and organizations that develop and present humanities programming for general audiences.

For further information, call 202–786–0267.

State Programs—Humanities committees in each of the 50 States, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia receive annual grants from the Division of State Programs, which they then regrant to support humanities programs at the local level.

For further information, call 202–786–0254.

Challenge Grants—Through its Office of Challenge Grants, the Endowment supports cultural institutions and organizations so that they may increase their financial stability and preserve or improve the quality of their humanities programs.

For further information, call 202–786–0361.

Office of Preservation—This Office expands Endowment support in attacking the problem of deteriorating humanities resources. Cooperative projects set in a national framework with an emphasis on the preservation of America's past and the work of American scholars, using both Federal and private funds, are particularly encouraged.

For further information, call 202–786–0570.

Special Initiatives—All divisions at the Endowment are participating in the following special initiatives:

The Office of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution was established to promote the study and public appreciation of the history and principles of the Constitution. For further information, call 202–786–0332.

In anticipation of the international observance of the Columbian Quincentenary, the anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of the New World, NEH invites proposals for original scholarship on related topics and for the dissemination of new and existing scholarship. For further information, call 202–786–0438.

The finding that young Americans today know too little about their culture and history led to the initiative Understanding America. The Endowment seeks proposals for relevant projects—in education, filmmaking, scholarship, etc. For further information, call 202–786–0420.

A related initiative, Understanding Other Nations, is designed to enlarge American understanding of the culture and languages of other countries. For further information, call 202–786–0420.

Institute of Museum Services

The Institute of Museum Services (IMS) is an independent grant-making agency established by Congress in 1976 to assist museums in maintaining, increasing, and improving their services to the public.

The Institute of Museum Services was created by the Museum Services Act (90 Stat. 1976; 20 U.S.C. 961 note). In December 1981, pursuant to title II of an act approved Dec. 23, 1981 (95 Stat. 1414; 20 U.S.C. 961, 962), the Institute was established as an independent agency within the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities. The Institute is administered by a Presidentially appointed Director, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, who is authorized to make grants to museums subject to policy directives and priorities set by the National Museum Services Board. The Board is comprised of 15 Presidentially appointed, nonvoting members and 5 ex officio, nonvoting members.

The Institute awards grants on a competitive basis to support the efforts of museums to conserve the Nation's historic, scientific, and cultural heritage; to maintain and expand their educational role; and to ease the financial burden borne by museums as a result of their increasing use by the public. The Institute awards grants to all types of museums, including art, history and natural history museums, historic houses, science and technology museums, zoos and aquariums, botanical gardens and arboretums, nature centers, planetariums, and other specialized museums.

The Institute currently makes grants in four categories: General Operating Support (GOS), Conservation Program (CP), Museum Assessment Program (MAP), and Museum Assessment Program II. General Operating Support grants are 1-year competitive awards that maintain or improve the operations of museums. Conservation Program grants are 1-year competitive awards that provide funds for various conservation efforts. Museum Assessment Program grants are one-time awards made to museums to provide for an independent, professional assessment of their programs and operations. Museum Assessment Program II grants are one-time awards for an independent, professional assessment of a museum's collection care and maintenance.

[For the National Labor Relations Board statement of organization, see the Federal Register of June 14, 1979, 44 FR 34215]

The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) administers the Nation's principal labor law, the National Labor Relations Act. NLRB is vested with the power to safeguard employees' rights to organize, to determine through elections whether workers want unions as their bargaining representatives, and to prevent and remedy unfair labor practices.

The National Labor Relations Board is an independent agency created by the National Labor Relations Act of 1935 (Wagner Act), as amended by the acts of 1947 (Taft-Hartley Act), 1959 (Landrum-Griffin Act), and 1974.

The act affirms the right of employees to self-organization and to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing or to refrain from such activities. The act prohibits certain unfair labor practices by employers and labor organizations or their agents and authorizes the Board to designate appropriate units for collective bargaining and to conduct secret ballot elections to determine whether employees desire representation by a labor organization.

As of July 1, 1971, the Postal Reorganization Act (84 Stat. 719; 39 U.S.C. Prec. 101 note) conferred jurisdiction upon the Board over unfair labor practice charges and representation elections affecting U.S. Postal Service employees. As of August 25, 1974, jurisdiction over all privately operated health care institutions was conferred on NLRB by an amendment to the act (29 U.S.C. 152 et seq.).

Functions and Activities

Under the act, the Board has two principal functions: preventing and remedying unfair labor practices by employers and labor organizations or their agents and conducting secret ballot elections among employees in appropriate collective-bargaining units to determine whether or not they desire to be represented by a labor organization. The Board also conducts secret ballot elections among employees who have been covered by a union-shop agreement to determine whether or not they wish to revoke their union's authority to make such agreements; in jurisdictional disputes, decides and determines which competing group of workers is entitled to perform the work involved; and conducts secret ballot elections among employees concerning employers' final settlement offers in national emergency labor disputes.

In unfair labor practice cases, the General Counsel has final authority to investigate charges, issue complaints, and prosecute such complaints before the Board. The General Counsel, on behalf of the Board, prosecutes injunction proceedings; handles courts of appeals proceedings to enforce or review Board orders; participates in miscellaneous court litigation; and obtains compliance with Board orders and court judgments. The General Counsel is responsible for the processing by field personnel of the various types of employee elections referred to above.

Under general supervision of the General Counsel, 33 regional directors and their staffs process representation, unfair labor practice, and jurisdictional dispute cases. (Some regions have subregional or resident offices.) They issue complaints in unfair labor practice cases; seek settlement of unfair labor practice charges; obtain compliance with Board orders and court judgments; and petition district courts for injunctions to prevent or remedy unfair labor practices. The regional directors also direct hearings in representation cases; conduct elections pursuant to agreement or the decision-making authority delegated to them by the Board or pursuant to Board directions; and issue certifications of representatives when unions win or certify the results when unions lose employee elections. They process petitions for bargaining unit clarification, for amendment of certification, and for rescission of a labor organization's authority to make a union-shop agreement. They also conduct national emergency employee referendums.

The Board can act only when it is formally requested to do so. Individuals, employers, or unions may initiate cases by filing charges of unfair labor practices or petitions for employee representation elections with the Board field offices serving the area where the case arises.

In the event that a regional director declines to proceed on a representation petition, the party filing the petition may appeal to the Board. Where a regional director declines to proceed on an unfair labor practice charge, the filing party may appeal to the General Counsel. For details concerning filing such appeals with those Washington, DC, offices, parties may communicate with the field office most convenient to them. Field office addresses and telephone numbers are listed below. Administrative law judges conduct hearings in unfair labor practice cases, make findings, and recommend remedies for violations found. Their decisions can be reviewed by the Board if exceptions to the decision are filed.

Speakers To give the public and persons appearing before the Agency a better understanding of the act and its policies, the Board's procedures, and the services it provides, Washington and regional office personnel participate as speakers or panel members before bar associations, labor organizations, management groups, and educational, civic, and other groups. Requests for speakers or panelists may be made to Washington officials or to the appropriate regional director.

Publications Anyone desiring to inspect formal case documents or read Agency publications may use facilities of the Washington or field offices. The Agency will assist in arranging reproduction of documents and order transcripts of hearings. The Board's offices offer free explanatory leaflets—The National Labor Relations Board and YOU (Unfair Labor Practices) and (Representation Cases) and Your Government Conducts an Election for You on the Job. The Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402, sells A Guide to Basic Law and Procedures under the NLRA, and a number of subscription services, including the NLRB Casehandling Manual (in three parts), the Weekly Summary of NLRB Cases, and the NLRB Election Report.

Contracts Prospective suppliers of goods and services may inquire about Agency procurement and contracting practices by writing to the Chief, Facilities and Services Branch, National Labor Relations Board, Washington, DC 20570. Phone, 202-254-9480.

Employment The Board appoints administrative law judges from a register established by the Office of Personnel Management. The Agency hires attorneys, stenographers, and typists for all its offices; field examiners for its field offices; and administrative personnel for its Washington office. Inquiries about college and law school recruiting programs should be directed to the nearest regional office. Employment inquiries and applications may be sent to any regional office or the Washington personnel office.

National Railroad Adjustment Board

Room A931, 175 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, IL 60604
Phone, 312–886–7300

Roy J. Carvatta	Staff Director/Grievances

The National Mediation Board, in carrying out the provisions of the Railway Labor Act, assists in maintaining a free flow of commerce in the railroad and airline industries by resolving disputes that could disrupt travel or imperil the economy. The Board follows certain specified procedures under the act to help maintain labor peace in the two industries. The Board also handles railroad and airline employee representation disputes. It also has a number of other duties imposed by law, including financial supervision of the National Railroad Adjustment Board, which handles rail grievances relating to the interpretation and application of existing contracts.

The National Mediation Board was created on June 21, 1934, by an act of Congress amending the Railway Labor Act (48 Stat. 1185, 45 U.S.C. 151–58, 160–62). The act was further amended in April 1936 (49 Stat. 1189–91, 45 U.S.C. 1181–88); January 1951 (64 Stat. 1238; 45 U.S.C. 152); June 1966 (80 Stat. 208–9; 45 U.S.C. 153); and in April 1970 (84 Stat. 199–200; 45 U.S.C. 153).

The Board's major responsibilities are: the mediation of disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions that arise between rail and air carriers and organizations representing their employees; and the investigation of representation disputes and certification of employee organizations as representatives of crafts or classes of carrier employees.

Disputes arising out of grievances or interpretation or application of agreements concerning rates of pay, rules, or working conditions in the railroad industry are referable to the National Railroad Adjustment Board. This Board is divided into four divisions and consists of an equal number of representatives of the carriers and of national organizations of employees. In deadlocked cases the National Mediation Board is authorized to appoint a referee to sit with the members of the division for the purpose of making an award.

In the airline industry no national airline adjustment board has been established for settlement of grievances. Over the years the employee organizations and air carriers with established bargaining relationships have agreed to grievance procedures with final jurisdiction resting with a system board of adjustment. The Board is frequently called upon to name a neutral referee to serve on a system board when the parties are deadlocked and cannot agree on such an appointment themselves.

Programs and Activities

Mediation Disputes The National Mediation Board is charged with mediating disputes between carriers and labor organizations relating to initial contract negotiations or subsequent changes in rates of pay, rules, and working conditions. When the parties fail to reach accord in direct bargaining either party may request the Board's services or the Board may on its own motion invoke its services. Thereafter, negotiations continue until the Board determines that its efforts to mediate have been unsuccessful, at which time it seeks to induce the parties to submit the dispute to arbitration. If either party refuses to arbitrate, the Board issues a notice stating that the parties have failed to resolve their dispute through mediation. This notice commences a 30-day cooling-off period after which self-help is normally available to either or both parties.

Employee Representation If a dispute arises among a carrier's employees as to who is to be the representative of such employees, it is the Board's duty to investigate such dispute and to determine by secret ballot election or other appropriate means whether or not and to whom a representation certification should be issued. In the course of making this determination, the Board must determine the craft or class in which the employees seeking representation properly belong.

Additional Duties Additional duties of the Board are the interpretation of agreements made under its mediatory auspices; the appointment of neutral referees when requested by the National Railroad Adjustment Board; the appointment of neutrals to sit on system boards and special boards of adjustment; and finally, the duty of notifying the President when the parties have failed to reach agreement through the Board's mediation efforts and the labor dispute, in the judgment of the Board, threatens substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive any section of the country of essential transportation service. In these cases, the President may, at his discretion, appoint an Emergency Board to investigate and report to him on the dispute. Self-help is barred for 60 days after appointment of the Emergency Board.

Section 9A of the Railway Labor Act (95 Stat. 681; 45 U.S.C. 159a) provides emergency dispute procedures covering publicly funded and operated commuter railroads and their employees. That section attempts to resolve contract disputes between the parties through a series of emergency board procedures with a maximum 8-month status quo period.

[For the National Science Foundation statement of organization, see the Federal Register of May 3, 1984, 49 FR 18910]

The National Science Foundation (NSF) promotes the progress of science and engineering through the support of research and education programs. Its major emphasis is on high quality, merit-selected research, the search for improved understanding of the fundamental laws of nature upon which our future well-being as a nation depends. The National Science Foundation also supports applied research in several areas. Its educational programs are aimed at ensuring increasing understanding of science and engineering at all educational levels and an adequate supply of scientists and engineers to meet our country's needs.

The National Science Foundation was established by the National Science Foundation Act of 1950 (64 Stat. 149; 42 U.S.C. 1861–1875), as amended, and was given additional authority by title IX of the National Defense Education Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 1601; 42 U.S.C. 1876–1879), the Science and Engineering Equal Opportunities Act (94 Stat. 3010; 42 U.S.C. 1885–1885d), and title I of the Education for Economic Security Act (99 Stat. 893; 20 U.S.C. 3911–3922).

The purposes of the Foundation are: to increase the Nation's base of scientific and engineering knowledge and strengthen its ability to conduct research in all areas of science and engineering; to develop and help implement science and engineering education programs that can better prepare the Nation for meeting the challenges of the future; and to promote international cooperation through science and engineering. In its role as a leading Federal supporter of science and engineering, NSF also has an important role in national policy planning.

The Foundation consists of the National Science Board, which is composed of 24 part-time members and the Director ex officio. Members are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate for 6-year terms. They are selected because of their distinguished service in science, medicine, engineering, agriculture, education, public affairs, research management, or industry. They are chosen in such a way as to be representative of the scientific and engineering leadership in all areas of the Nation.

The National Science Foundation Act assigns policymaking functions to the National Science Board and the administration of the Foundation to the Director. The policies of the Board in support of science and engineering and development of scientific and engineering personnel are generally implemented throughout the various programs of the Foundation. The act also provides for the appointment of a Deputy Director and four Assistant Directors, subject to Senate confirmation.

Activities

The National Science Foundation initiates and supports fundamental, long-term, merit-selected research in all the scientific and engineering disciplines. This support is made through grants, contracts, and other agreements awarded to universities, university consortia, and nonprofit and other research organizations. Most of this research is directed toward the resolution of scientific and engineering questions concerning fundamental life processes, natural laws and phenomena, fundamental processes influencing the human environment and the forces affecting people as members of society as well as the behavior of society.

The Foundation encourages cooperative efforts by universities, industries, and government and promotes the application of research and development for better products and services that improve the quality of life, create employment opportunities, stimulate economic growth, and increase productivity and foreign trade.

The Foundation supports the development of research talent through programs such as the Presidential Young Investigator Awards Program, the Minority Research Initiation Program, the Research Opportunities for Women Program and through research and instrumentation support for predominantly undergraduate institutions.

The Foundation supports major national and international science and engineering programs, including the U.S. Antarctic Program, Ocean Drilling Programs, and others.

Support is provided through contracts to national centers where large facilities are made available for the use of qualified scientists and engineers. Among the centers supported by the Foundation are the National Center for Atmospheric Research, the Kitt Peak National Observatory, the Cerro Tololo Inter-American Observatory, Sacramento Peak Observatory, the National Astronomy and Ionosphere Center, the National Radio Astronomy Observatory, and the Very Large Array (VLA) Radio Astronomy Observatory.

The Foundation's science and engineering education activities include grants for research and development activities directed to model instructional materials for students and teachers and the application of advanced technologies to precollege education. Grants also are available for various precollege teacher enhancement and informal science education activities. Funding is provided for college science instrumentation and studies of the status of math, science, and technology education. Graduate level activities include the graduate fellowships program, the minority graduate fellowships program, Presidential Young Investigator Awards, NATO postdoctoral fellowships, and NATO travel grants to advanced study institutes.

The Foundation also supports research aimed at formulating national policy through analysis of existing and emerging issues that have significant scientific and engineering content. It defines options and supplies analysis directed toward enhancing the contribution of science and engineering to national goals.

The Foundation develops and disseminates information relating to the Nation's available human and financial resources for scientific and engineering activities. Programs in information science and engineering support basic and applied research leading to timely and resourceful use of information, especially by the scientific and engineering enterprise.

International programs, including cooperative scientific and engineering research activities, support the exchange of American and foreign scientists and engineers, the execution of jointly designed research projects, participation in the activities of international science and engineering organizations, and travel to international conferences.

The National Science Foundation presents annually the Alan T. Waterman Award to an outstanding young scientist or engineer for support of research and study. This award and related grants provides for up to $300,000 for 3 years of research and study at the institution of the awardee's choice. From time to time, the National Science Board makes the honorary Vannevar Bush Award to a person who, through public service activities in science and technology, has made an outstanding contribution toward the welfare of mankind and the Nation. The two awards are designed to encourage individuals to seek to achieve the Nation's objectives in scientific and engineering research and education.

The Foundation also provides support for the President's Committee on the National Medal of Science.

Sources of Information

Grants Individuals or organizations who plan to submit grant proposals should refer to the NSF Guide to Programs and appropriate program brochures and announcements that may be obtained as indicated in the reference to publications, below.

Beginning graduate and minority graduate students wishing to apply for fellowships should contact the Directorate for Science and Engineering Education. Phone, 202-357-7536.

Contracts The Foundation publicizes contracting and subcontracting opportunities in the Commerce Business Daily and other appropriate publications.

Organizations seeking to undertake contract work for the Foundation should contact the Division of Grants and Contracts. Phone, 202-357-7880.

Small Business The Office of Small Business Research and Development provides information on opportunities for NSF support to small businesses with strong research capabilities in science and technology. Phone, 202-357-7464.

The Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization oversees NSF compliance with the provisions of the Small Business Act and Small Business Investment Act of 1958, as amended (92 Stat. 1757; 15 U.S.C. 683). Phone, 202-357-7464.

Publications The National Science Board assesses the status and health of science and its various disciplines, including such matters as national resources and manpower, in reports submitted to the President for submission to the Congress. The last such report that has been submitted is Science Indicators/The 1985 Report.

Detailed brochures are issued announcing and describing new programs and critical dates and application procedures for competitions, and may be obtained from the Publications Unit, National Science Foundation, Room 232, 1800 G Street NW., Washington, DC 20550. Phone, 202-357-7861. [For the National Transportation Safety Board statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 49, Part 800]

The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) seeks to assure that all types of transportation in the United States are conducted safely. The Board investigates accidents, conducts studies, and makes recommendations to Government agencies, the transportation industry, and others on safety measures and practices.

The National Transportation Safety Board was established as an independent agency of the Federal Government on April 1, 1975, by the Independent Safety Board Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 2156; 49 U.S.C. 1901).

The Safety Board consists of five Board members appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for 5-year terms. The President designates two of these members as Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Board for 2-year terms. The designation of the Chairman is made by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The mission of the National Transportation Safety Board is to promote transportation safety by conducting independent investigations of accidents and other safety problems and by formulating safety improvement recommendations.

Functions

Accident Investigation The Board is responsible for investigating, determining accident cause, making safety recommendations, and reporting the facts and circumstances of all U.S. civil aviation accidents; all railroad accidents in which there is a fatality or substantial property damage, or that involve a passenger train; all pipeline accidents in which there is a fatality or substantial property damage; highway accidents, including railroad grade-crossing accidents, which the Board selects in cooperation with the States; major marine casualties, and marine accidents involving a public vessel and a nonpublic vessel, in accordance with regulations prescribed jointly by the Board and the U.S. Coast Guard; and other transportation accidents that are catastrophic, involve problems of a recurring character, or otherwise should be investigated in the judgment of the Board.

Safety Problem Identification In addition, the Board makes recommendations on matters pertaining to transportation safety and is a catalyst for transportation accident prevention by conducting safety studies and special investigations, assessing techniques of accident investigation and publishing recommended procedures for accident investigations, establishing regulatory requirements for reporting accidents, evaluating the transportation safety consciousness and efficacy of other Government agencies in the prevention of accidents, evaluating the adequacy of safeguards and procedures concerning the transportation of hazardous materials and the performance of other Government agencies charged with ensuring the safe transportation of such materials, and reporting annually to the Congress on its activities.

Certificate or License Appeal The Board also reviews on appeal the suspension, amendment, modification, revocation, or denial of any certificate or license issued by the Secretary or an Administrator of the Department of Transportation.

[For the Nuclear Regulatory Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 10, Chapter I]

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) licenses and regulates the civilian uses of nuclear energy to protect the public health and safety and the environment. It does this by licensing persons and companies to build and operate nuclear reactors and other facilities and to own and use nuclear materials. NRC makes rules and sets standards for these types of licenses. NRC also carefully inspects the activities of the persons and companies licensed to ensure that they do not violate the safety rules of the Commission.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission was established as an independent regulatory agency under the provisions of the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1242; 42 U.S.C. 5801) and Executive Order 11834 of January 15, 1975, effective January 19, 1975. Transferred to NRC were all licensing and related regulatory functions formerly assigned to the Atomic Energy Commission, which was established by the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 755) as amended by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 919; 42 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.), as amended.

The major program components of NRC are the Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulation, the Office of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards, and the Office of Nuclear Regulatory Research, which were created by the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974; and the Commission-created Office of Inspection and Enforcement. Headquarters offices are located in Washington, DC, and suburban Maryland, and there are five regional offices.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission's purpose is to ensure that the civilian uses of nuclear materials and facilities are conducted in a manner consistent with the public health and safety, environmental quality, national security, and the antitrust laws. The major share of the Commission effort is focused on regulating the use of nuclear energy to generate electric power.

Programs and Activities

NRC fulfills its responsibilities through a system of licensing and regulation that includes, among other things: licensing the construction and operation of nuclear reactors and other nuclear facilities and the possession, use, processing, handling, and disposal of nuclear materials; regulation of licensed activities including assurance that measures are taken for the physical protection of facilities and materials; development and implementation of rules and regulations governing licensed nuclear activities; inspection of licensee facilities and activities; investigation of nuclear incidents and allegations concerning any matter regulated by NRC; enforcement of NRC licenses and regulations by the issuance of orders, civil penalties and other types of actions; conduct of public hearings on nuclear and radiological safety, environmental, common defense and security and antitrust matters; and the development of effective working relationships with the States regarding the regulation of nuclear materials. This relationship includes the assurance that adequate regulatory programs are maintained by those States that exercise, by agreement with the Commission, regulatory control over certain nuclear materials within their respective borders. In addition, a systematic review of operational data, including reports of accidents and other events, from nuclear powerplants is performed in order to detect trends that will better enable NRC to forecast and solve safety problems. Inspection of NRC-licensed activities is carried out from five regional offices. In addition, resident inspectors have been assigned to reactor sites.

The Commission also contracts for research deemed necessary for performing licensing and related regulatory functions.

Sources of Information

General information may be obtained by directing inquiries to the Office of Public Affairs, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Phone, 301-492-7715. Specific information is available as shown below.

Public Document Room NRC maintains its principal Public Document Room (PDR) at 1717 H Street NW., Washington, DC 20555 (phone, 202-634-3273). As of December 1985, the main Public Document Room contained about 1.4 million documents in hard copy or on microfiche. These documents pertain to the licensing of source material, production and utilization facilities, special nuclear material, transportation of radioactive materials, research and technical assistance reports, reports on generic technical issues, rules and regulations, Commission correspondence, transcripts of Commission meetings, minutes and reports of NRC's advisory committees, and other material relating to the regulatory responsibilities and operation of the Commission.

Members of the public may visit the PDR and examine any document in the collection, or phone or write in requests. The services offered include reference assistance, copying services, and microfiche reader-printers. Manual and on-line indexes and Daily Accession Listings providing bibliographic descriptions of documents in the collection also are available.

In addition, NRC has approximately 100 Local Public Document Rooms (LPDRs) around the country. The LPDRs are typically located in libraries in cities and towns near proposed and actual nuclear plant sites, and contain detailed information specific to the nearby facilities that are either licensed or under regulatory review. A list of these Local Public Document Rooms, which may be visited, is available from the Director, Division of Rules and Records, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC

20555. To obtain specific information about the availability of documents at the Local Public Document Rooms, NRC's Local Public Document Room branch may be contacted directly by calling toll free, 800-638-8081.

Records Freedom of Information Act inquiries should be directed to the Director, Division of Rules and Records, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Phone, 301-492-7211.

Publications Annual Report provides a summary of major agency activities for the year. It is available for purchase from the Government Printing Office (GPO). Pricing and ordering information may be obtained by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, P.O. Box 37082, Washington, DC 20013-7082. Phone, 202-275-2060.

NRC produces a variety of scientific, technical, and administrative information dealing with licensing and regulating civilian nuclear power. Information on agency publications can be obtained from Title List of Documents Made Publicly Available, NUREG-0540. This document, published monthly, includes (1) docketed material associated with civilian nuclear powerplants and other uses of radioactive materials and (2) nondocketed material received and generated by NRC pertinent to its role as a regulatory agency. Single copies of monthly issues of NUREG-0540 are available for purchase from GPO and from the National Technical Information Service (NTIS), Springfield, VA 22161. Phone, 703-557-4650. Subscription service for NUREG-0540, consisting of 12 consecutive monthly issues, is also available from GPO. All the documents listed are available for inspection and copying at the NRC Public Document Room, 1717 H Street NW., Washington, DC (phone, 202-634-3273). The formal reports are also available for purchase from GPO and NTIS.

Single copies of some publications, such as Draft Environmental Statements and Draft Regulatory Guides are available without charge, to the extent of supply, from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission Publication Services, Washington, DC 20555. Interested persons may be placed on an NRC mailing list for Draft Regulatory Guides by writing to the Information and Records Management Branch, NRC, Washington, DC 20555. Active Regulatory Guides may be purchased from GPO or on standing orders as they are issued from NTIS. These Regulatory Guides are published in 10 subject areas: Power Reactors, Research and Test Reactors, Fuels and Materials Facilities, Environmental and Siting, Material and Plant Protection, Products, Transportation, Occupational Health, Antitrust Review, and General.

Other subscription items available from GPO include: Licensed Operating Reactors-Status Summary Report (monthly), NUREG-0020; Licensee, Contractor and Vendor Inspection Status Report (quarterly), NUREG-0040; Report to Congress on Abnormal Occurences (quarterly), NUREG-0090; Regulatory and Technical Reports (quarterly), NUREG-0304; U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission Rules and Regulations; U.S. NRC Telephone Directory; Information Report on State Legislation (monthly), NUREG/BR-0025; and the Weekly Information Report. Subscription service for the Standard Review Plan, NUREG-0800, is handled exclusively by NTIS, Springfield, VA 22161.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission Issuances (monthly, quarterly, and semiannual indexes), a compilation of adjudications and other issuances for NRC, including Atomic Safety and Licensing Boards and the Atomic Safety and Licensing Appeal Boards, is available for sale from GPO, either on subscription or on a single-issue basis. Hard-bound semiannual issuances and indexes are also available from GPO. Nuclear Regulatory Commission Regulatory Agenda (published in the Federal Register each April and October) are available in January, April, July, and October from the Director, Division of Rules and Records, Office of Administration, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Persons may obtain information regarding the status of any regulation or petition for rulemaking before the Commission by calling toll free, 800-368-5642.

Procurement and Contracts Detailed information on how to do business with NRC and on programs to assist small business is available from the Director, Division of Contracts, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Phone, 301-492-4347.

Employment NRC's employment activities are exempt from civil service requirements and are conducted under NRC's independent merit system. However, NRC employees receive Federal employee benefits (retirement, group life insurance, and health benefits) on the same basis as other Federal employees. Applicants with veterans preference are accorded the preference granted to them by the Veterans' Preference Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 387).

Recruitment is continual, and applications from individuals qualified for NRC needs are accepted whenever they are received. In addition to receiving applications from candidates at all grade levels throughout the year, NRC recruits annually from colleges as appropriate to fill needs for interns and entry-level professionals.

Employment inquiries, applications, and requests from schools for participation in the recruitment program may be directed to the Director, Division of Organization and Personnel, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Phone, 301-492-8275.

For further information, contact the Office of Public Affairs, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, DC 20555. Phone, 301-492-7715.

OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH REVIEW COMMISSION

The Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission (OSHRC) is an independent quasi-judicial agency established by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1590; 29 U.S.C. 651-678).

The Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission is charged with ruling on cases forwarded to it by the Department of Labor when disagreements arise over the results of safety and health inspections performed by the Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Employers have the right to dispute any alleged job safety or health violation found during the inspection by OSHA, the penalties proposed by OSHA, and the time given by OSHA to correct any hazardous situation. Employees and representatives of employees may initiate a case by challenging the propriety of the time OSHA has allowed for correction of any violative condition.

The Occupational Safety and Health Act covers virtually every employer in the country. Enforced by the Secretary of Labor, the act is an effort to reduce the incidence of personal injuries, illness, and deaths among working men and women in the United States that result from their employment. It requires each employer to furnish to each of his employees employment and a place of employment free from recognized hazards that are causing or likely to cause death or serious physical harm to his employees and to comply with occupational safety and health standards promulgated under the act.

Functions

The Review Commission was created to adjudicate enforcement actions initiated under the act when they are contested by employers, employees, or representatives of employees. A case arises when a citation is issued against an employer as the result of an OSHA inspection and it is contested within 15 working days.

The Commission is more of a court system than a simple tribunal, for within the Review Commission there are two levels of adjudication. All cases that require a hearing are assigned to a Review Commission administrative law judge (ALJ) who decides the case. Ordinarily the hearing is held in the community where the alleged violation occurred or as close as possible. At the hearing, the Secretary of Labor will generally have the burden of proving the case. After the hearing, the judge must issue a decision, based on findings of fact and conclusions of law. A substantial number of the decisions of the judges become final orders of the Commission. However, each ALJ decision is subject to discretionary review by the three members of the Review Commission upon the direction of any one of the three, if done within 30 days of the filing of the decision. When that occurs, the Commission issues its own decision.

Once a case is decided, any person adversely affected or aggrieved, thereby, may obtain a review of the decision in the United States Courts of Appeals.

The principal office of the Review Commission is in Washington, DC. There are also four regional offices where Review Commission Judges are stationed.

The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) administers a merit system for Federal employment, which includes recruiting, examining, training, and promoting people on the basis of their knowledge and skills, regardless of their race, religion, sex, political influence, or other nonmerit factors. OPM's role is to ensure that the Federal Government provides an array of personnel services to applicants and employees. Through a range of programs designed to develop and encourage the effectiveness of the Government employee, OPM supports Government program managers in their personnel management responsibilities and provides benefits to employees and to retired employees and their survivors directly.

The Office of Personnel Management was created as an independent establishment by Reoganization Plan No. 2 of 1978, effective January 1, 1979, pursuant to Executive Order 12107 of December 28, 1978. Transferred to OPM were many of the functions of the former United States Civil Service Commission. The Office's duties and authority are specified in the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1111, 5 U.S.C. 1101), approved October 13, 1978.

The 10 regional offices carry out OPM programs in the field. Under the regional offices OPM has area offices in key locations, Federal job information and testing centers, and other field duty stations.

Activities

Recruiting and Examining The Office of Personnel Management is responsible for the nationwide recruiting and examining of applicants for positions in the Federal civil service at General Schedule (GS) grades 1 through 15 and for Wage Grade (blue-collar) positions. OPM also administers the Qualifications Review Board examining process for career Senior Executive Service appointments and examines for administrative law judges.

Personnel Investigations Personnel investigations are used in support of the selection and appointment processes. They serve several purposes: to determine the suitability of applicants under consideration for appointment; to check on applicants or employees under consideration for appointment to positions having either national security and/or special professional or administrative qualifications requirements; and to enforce civil service regulations. OPM also makes loyalty determinations of U.S. citizens employed or under consideration for employment by international organizations of which the United States is a member.

Affirmative Employment The Office of Personnel Management provides overall leadership, direction, and coordination to Government-wide efforts designed to address the unique employment problems and needs of Hispanics, handicapped individuals, veterans, women, and minorities. OPM also provides policy and guidance to agencies in implementing the following programs: Disabled Veterans Affirmative Action Program, Federal Equal Opportunity Recruitment Program, Federal Women's Program, Hispanic Employment Program, Selective Placement Program for Handicapped Individuals, Upward Mobility Program, Veterans Employment Program, Veterans Readjustment Appointment Program, and Worker-Trainee Opportunities Program. It is also responsible for assuring that affirmative employment and equal opportunity principles are an integral part of all Federal personnel management activities.

Employee Development and Training The Office of Personnel Management plans, promotes, sets standards, and evaluates Government-wide programs and policies for the development and training of Federal employees. OPM offers a wide variety of training and development management services such as career development programs and contractual access to the private sector for courses, training sites, and instructional technology application. OPM also provides training and development information and coordination services. Through a nationwide network of training centers, a European center, executive seminar centers, and the Federal Executive Institute, it offers a broad range of Government-related courses.

Performance Awards OPM provides policy, guidance, and assistance to Federal agencies in the administration of the Government-wide Incentive Awards Program. This program, which provides cash and honor awards, encourages employees to contribute to improvements in Government operations or services through their suggestions, inventions, and superior performance. OPM provides policy and guidance for the administration of performance management systems and the award of bonuses in the Senior Executive Service. It administers the Presidential Rank Awards program for recognition of sustained high-quality accomplishment of career members of the Senior Executive Service.

Personnel Management Other OPM programs directly support the manager's personnel management responsibilities. They include the Government-wide classification system; administration of Government pay systems; development and operation of information systems to support and improve Federal personnel management decisionmaking; independent evaluation of agency personnel management practices and establishment of standards for agency personnel management systems; and the provision of information and technical guidance to agencies, unions, and the public on Federal labor-management relations. OPM administers the Senior Executive Service and is responsible for oversight and providing assistance on a variety of Government-wide executive personnel management matters.

Employee Benefits OPM also manages numerous activities that directly affect the well-being of the Federal employee and indirectly enhance employee effectiveness. These include health benefits, life insurance, occupational health, and retirement benefits.

Personnel Programs OPM coordinates the temporary assignment of employees between Federal agencies and State, local, and Indian tribal governments; institutions of higher education; and other eligible organizations for up to 2 years, for work of mutual benefit to the participating organizations. It administers the Presidential Management Intern program that provides 2-year excepted appointments with Federal agencies to recipients of graduate degrees in public administration or other appropriate disciplines. In addition, the Office of Personnel Management administers the Federal Merit System Standards that apply to certain grant-aided State and local programs.

Ethics in Government Programs The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1824; 2 U.S.C. 701), as amended, approved October 26, 1978, established the Office of Government Ethics in the Office of Personnel Management to provide overall direction of executive branch policies related to preventing conflicts of interest on the part of officers and employees of any executive agency.

The Office develops, in consultation with the Attorney General and the Office of Personnel Management, rules and regulations to be promulgated by the President or the Director of the Office of Government Ethics pertaining to the identification and resolution of conflicts of interest;

Monitors and investigates compliance with the public financial disclosure requirements of title II of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (92 Stat. 1836; 5 U.S.C. app.);

Orders corrective action on the part of agencies and employees that the Director of the Office of Government Ethics deems necessary; and Provides information on and promotes understanding of ethical standards in executive agencies.

For further information, contact the Office of Government Ethics. Phone, 202-632-7642.

[For the Panama Canal Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 35, Part 9]

The Panama Canal Commission maintains and operates the Panama Canal and the facilities and appurtenances related thereto, coordinates the operation of the waterway and other activities with the Republic of Panama, and correlates joint actions in harbors and port areas, certain housing and public areas, and some civil protection functions.

The Panama Canal Commission was established as an independent agency by the Panama Canal Act of 1979 (93 Stat. 452; 22 U.S.C. 3601), approved September 27, 1979.

The Commission is supervised by a nine-member Board: five members who are nationals of the United States and four members who are nationals of the Republic of Panama. All members of the Board are appointed by the President; the members who are United States nationals are appointed with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Functions

The Commission was established by Congress on October 1, 1979, to carry out the responsibilities of the United States with respect to the Panama Canal under the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977. In fulfilling these obligations, the Commission manages, operates, and maintains the Canal, its complementary works, installations and equipment, and provides for the orderly transit of vessels through the Canal. The Commission will perform these functions until the treaty terminates on December 31, 1999, at which time the Republic of Panama will assume full responsibility for the Canal.

The Peace Corps' purpose is to promote world peace and friendship, to help the peoples of other countries in meeting their needs for trained manpower, to help promote a better understanding of the American people on the part of the peoples served, and to promote a better understanding of other peoples on the part of the American people. In 1977 the Peace Corps Act was amended to emphasize the Peace Corps' commitment toward programming to meet the basic needs of those living in the poorest areas of the countries in which the Peace Corps operates.

The Peace Corps was established by the Peace Corps Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 612; 22 U.S.C. 2501), as amended, and was made an independent agency by title VI of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1981 (95 Stat. 1540), approved December 29, 1981.

The Peace Corps consists of a Washington, DC, headquarters; three regional recruitment centers, supporting 16 area offices; and overseas operations in more than 60 countries.

The Peace Corps' presence in foreign countries fluctuates as programs are added or withdrawn. A complete list of countries with specific addresses is available upon request from the Director of Public Affairs, Peace Corps, 806 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20526.

To fulfill the Peace Corps' mandate, men and women of all ages and walks of life are trained for a 9- to 14-week period in the appropriate local language, the technical skills necessary for their particular job, and the cross-cultural skills needed to adjust to a society with traditions and attitudes different from their own. Volunteers serve for a period of 2 years, living among the people with whom they work. Volunteers are expected to become a part of the community and to demonstrate, through their voluntary service, that people can be an important impetus for change.

Today thousands of volunteers serve throughout Latin America, Africa, the Near East, Asia, and the Pacific. Volunteers work primarily in the areas of agriculture/rural development, small business assistance, health, and education. Projects are designed to match the skills and community-level approach of the volunteers with the resources of host-country agencies and other international assistance organizations to help solve specific development problems, often in conjunction with private volunteer organizations.

An auxiliary effort within the Peace Corps is the Peace Corps Partnership Program, which provides opportunities for elementary, junior, and senior high schools, civic groups, and neighborhood and youth organizations in the United States to meet a specific need of an overseas community by financial sponsorship of the construction of a school, clinic, or community facility recommended by a Peace Corps volunteer. Corporate and foundation support is also encouraged to match other private contributions and to advance funds based on pledges. Cross-cultural exchange is a major element in Partnership projects.

The Peace Corps also serves as the sponsor for United States citizens who serve in the United Nations Volunteer program.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation (PADC) has prepared a comprehensive development plan for Pennsylvania Avenue and the adjacent blocks on the north side of the Avenue between the Capitol and the White House. The Corporation is to carry out the plan through a combination of public improvements with stimulation of private investment, and it is to ensure development, maintenance, and use of the area compatible with its historic and ceremonial importance.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation was established as a wholly owned Federal corporation by the act of October 27, 1972 (86 Stat. 1266; 40 U.S.C. 871 et seq.), as amended.

PADC is governed by a 15-member Board of Directors—8 appointed by the President from private life and 7 from the Federal or District of Columbia Government. The Board also has eight nonvoting members representing local, Federal, or District agencies concerned with urban planning or the arts and sciences.

Functions

The Corporation will use Federal funds to upgrade the Pennsylvania Avenue development area with public improvement projects such as repaving and landscaping the Avenue and adjacent areas; preserving the designated historical landmarks; and developing a residential community and other people-oriented uses. Improvements under the comprehensive development plan will involve changes to facilitate traffic circulation, to increase pedestrian use, and to add amenities such as trees, street furniture, new lighting, and additional public open spaces.

The balance of the Corporation's program will engage the private sector in development projects compatible with the plan. PADC will use funds borrowed from the United States Treasury to assemble land for housing, office buildings, and retail uses in response to market demand. The Corporation will make public offerings of development opportunities on sites, and it will sell the property or enter into long-term leases with developers selected to carry out individual projects. The proceeds from the leases or sales will be used to service and retire the Corporation's debt to the Treasury.

In carrying out the development plan, PADC works closely with a number of Federal agencies, including the Commission of Fine Arts, the National Capital Planning Commission, the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, and the National Park Service. PADC also coordinates the implementation of the plan with affected agencies of the District of Columbia Government. For example, the District of Columbia Government refers building permits for new construction in the Pennsylvania Avenue development area to PADC for approval relating to conformity with the plan.

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC) guarantees payment of basic pension benefits in covered private defined benefit pension plans.

Title IV of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), approved September 2, 1974 (88 Stat. 1003 et seq.; 29 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.), established the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, which is a self-financing, wholly owned Government corporation subject to the provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act (59 Stat. 597; 31 U.S.C. 846). PBGC is governed by a Board of Directors consisting of the Secretaries of Labor, Commerce, and the Treasury. The Secretary of Labor is Chairman of the Board. A seven-member Advisory Committee, composed of two labor, two business, and three public members appointed by the President, advises PBGC on various matters.

Activities

Coverage Title IV of ERISA provides for coverage of most private defined benefit pension plans. These are plans that provide a benefit, the amount of which can be determined from a formula in the plan, for example, one based on factors such as age, years of service, average or highest salary, etc.

PBGC administers two benefit insurance programs separately covering single-employer and multiemployer insurance plans. Over 38 million workers participate in more than 112,000 covered plans.

Single-Employer Insurance Program Under the single-employer program, PBGC guarantees payment of a covered plan's basic benefits if that plan terminates without sufficient assets to pay those PBGC guaranteed benefits. However, the act limits the total monthly benefit that PBGC may guarantee for one individual to $1,789.77 per month for a plan terminating during 1986, and requires PBGC to guarantee recent benefit increases on a phased-in basis.

Multiemployer Insurance Program Under title IV of ERISA, as originally enacted, PBGC guaranteed basic benefits for multiemployer plans in a similar fashion as for single-employer plans. However, the payment of guaranteed benefits was at PBGC's discretion under the provisions of the law that remained in force until August 1, 1980.

The Multiemployer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 1208; 29 U.S.C. 1001), revised the law applicable to multiemployer pension plans by changing the insurable event from plan termination to plan insolvency. In accordance with the act, PBGC provides financial assistance to plans that are unable to pay basic benefits. The plans are obligated to repay such assistance.

The act also requires more rapid funding by employers of a multiemployer plan's past obligations, as well as increases in employer contributions to a plan when certain indicators reveal that the plan is inadequately funded. It also makes an employer withdrawing from a plan liable to the plan for a portion of the plan's unfunded vested benefits.

Plan Terminations The plan administrator is required to notify PBGC at least 10 days prior to the proposed date of termination of a single-employer plan. The plan's assets and guaranteed benefit liabilities are then valued and PBGC determines if that plan's assets are sufficient to pay guaranteed benefits. In all single-employer plan terminations covered by title IV, plan assets must be allocated to participants as stipulated in the act.

PBGC also may institute termination proceedings when certain events specified in the act indicate that such action may be necessary.

Premium Collections All defined benefit pension plans are required to pay prescribed premium rates to PBGC. The annual premium per plan participant for multiemployer pension plans is $1.80 in 1985 and increases in steps to $2.60 for plan years beginning after September 26, 1988. The current premium for single-employer plans is $2.60 per participant per year. A proposal is currently pending before Congress to increase the premium to $8.50 per participant, effective January 1, 1986.

Individual Retirement Programs Pursuant to ERISA, PBGC provides advice and assistance to individuals on the economic desirability of establishing tax-qualified Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA's) or certain other individual retirement programs, and on transferring amounts to such IRA's or other programs from qualified pension plans when an employee receives a total pension payout.

[For the Postal Rate Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 39, Part 3002]

The major responsibility of the Postal Rate Commission is to submit recommended decisions to the United States Postal Service on postage rates and fees and mail classifications. In addition, the Commission may issue advisory opinions to the Postal Service on proposed nationwide changes in postal services; initiate studies and submit recommendations for changes in the mail classification schedule; and receive, study, and issue recommended decisions or public reports to the Postal Service on complaints received from the mailing public as to postage rates, postal classifications, postal services on a substantially nationwide basis, and the closing or consolidation of small post offices.

The Postal Rate Commission is an independent agency created by chapter 36, subchapter I of the Postal Reorganization Act of August 12, 1970 (84 Stat. 759; 39 U.S.C. 3601–3604), as amended by the Postal Reorganization Act Amendments of 1976 (90 Stat. 1303), approved September 24, 1976.

The Postal Rate Commission promulgates rules and regulations and establishes procedures and takes other actions necessary to carry out its functions and obligations. Acting upon requests from the United States Postal Service, or on its own initiative, the Commission recommends to the Board of Governors of the United States Postal Service changes in rates or fees in each class of mail or type of service. It submits recommended decisions on establishing or changing the mail classification schedule, and holds such hearings on the record as are required by law and are necessary to arrive at sound and fair recommendations. The Commission has appellate jurisdiction to review Postal Service determinations to close or consolidate small post offices.

The Railroad Retirement Board administers comprehensive retirement-survivor and unemployment-sickness benefit programs for the Nation's railroad workers and their families, under the Railroad Retirement and Railroad Unemployment Insurance Acts. In connection with the retirement program, the Board has administrative responsibilities under the Social Security Act for certain benefit payments and railroad workers' Medicare coverage.

Because of its experience with railroad benefit plans, the Board has been given, in recent years, administrative responsibility for certain employee protection measures provided by other Federal railroad legislation, such as the Regional Rail Reorganization Act, the Northeast Rail Service Act, and the Milwaukee Railroad Restructuring Act.

The Railroad Retirement Board administers the Railroad Retirement and Railroad Unemployment Insurance Acts and participates in the administration of the Social Security Act and the Health Insurance for the Aged Act insofar as it affects railroad retirement beneficiaries.

The Board was established by the Railroad Retirement Act of 1935, approved August 29, 1935 (49 Stat. 967, as amended; 45 U.S.C. 215–228). It now derives statutory authority from the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974, approved October 16, 1974 (88 Stat. 1305, as amended; 45 U.S.C. 231–231v). The Board also derives authority from the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, approved June 25, 1938 (52 Stat. 1094, as amended; 45 U.S.C. 351–368). In addition, it participates in the administration of the Milwaukee Railroad Restructuring Act (93 Stat. 736; 45 U.S.C. 901–922), the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 985; 45 U.S.C. 701 note), and the Northeast Rail Service Act of 1981 (95 Stat. 643; 45 U.S.C. 1101 note).

The Board is composed of three members appointed by the President with the advice of the Senate—one upon recommendations of representatives of employees; one upon recommendations of carriers; and one, the Chairman, as a public member.

Field Organization The Board maintains field offices located in centers of railroad population that are grouped into regions. Claimants for unemployment benefits register with designated officials, and claimants for sickness benefits file their claims by mail with the Bureau of Unemployment and Sickness Insurance. Claims for benefits under the Railroad Retirement Act are received in all field offices as well as at headquarters.

Activities

The Railroad Retirement Act provides for the payment of annuities to individuals who have completed at least 10 years creditable service and have ceased compensated service upon their attainment of specified ages, or at any age, if permanently disabled for all employment. In some circumstances occupational disability annuities or supplemental annuities are provided for longer term or career employees.

A spouse's annuity is provided, under certain conditions, for the wife or husband of an employee annuitant.

Survivor annuities are awarded to the qualified spouses, children, and parents of deceased career employees. Two distinct lump-sum benefits are provided in certain circumstances; for one of these there are no service requirements, and the beneficiary may be designated by the employee.

The Railroad Retirement Act provides for extensive coordination with the Social Security Act in the computation, payment, and financing of railroad retirement annuities. Annuitants and members of their families also awarded social security benefits after 1974 receive the payment of such benefits through the Board. However, the responsibility for the adjudication of such benefits remains with the Social Security Administration.

Under the Health Insurance for the Aged Act, qualified railroad retirement beneficiaries are entitled to have payments made on their behalf for covered hospital, posthospital, and medical services.

Benefits are provided under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act to individuals who are unemployed in a benefit year, but who are ready and willing to work, and to individuals who are unable to work because of sickness or injury, based on qualifying railroad earnings in a preceding 1-year period.

Under the Regional Rail Reorganization Act, the Northeast Rail Service Act, and the Milwaukee Railroad Restructuring Act, the Board assists in the administration of various employee protection measures for employees affected by legislation restructuring those railroads.

The Board maintains, through its field offices, a placement service for unemployed railroad personnel.

[For the Securities and Exchange Commission statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 17, Part 200]

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) provides the fullest possible disclosure to the investing public and protects the interests of the public and investors against malpractice in the securities and financial markets.

The Securities and Exchange Commission was created under authority of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (48 Stat. 881; 15 U.S.C. 78a to 78jj) and was organized on July 2, 1934. The Commission serves as adviser to United States district courts in connection with reorganization proceedings for debtor corporations in which there is a substantial public interest. The Commission also has certain responsibilities under section 15 of the Bretton Woods Agreements Act of 1945 (59 Stat. 512; 22 U.S.C. 286-286k) and section 851(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 3; 26 U.S.C. 851(e)).

The Commission is vested with quasi-judicial functions. Persons aggrieved by its decisions in the exercise of those functions have a right of review by the United States Courts of Appeals.

Programs and Activities

Full and Fair Disclosure The Securities Act of 1933 requires issuers of securities making public offerings of securities in interstate commerce or through the mails, directly or by others on their behalf, to file with the Commission registration statements containing financial and other pertinent data about the issuer and the securities being offered. A similar requirement applies to such offerings on behalf of a controlling person of the issuer. Unless a registration statement is in effect with respect to such securities, it is unlawful to sell the securities in interstate commerce or through the mails. (There are certain limited exemptions, such as Government securities, nonpublic offerings, and intrastate offerings, as well as offerings not exceeding $1,500,000 that comply with the Commission's Regulation A.) The effectiveness of a registration statement may be refused or suspended after a public hearing if the statement contains material misstatements or omissions, thus barring sale of the securities until it is appropriately amended.

Registration of securities does not imply approval of the issue by the Commission or that the Commission has found the registration disclosures to be accurate. It does not insure investors against loss in their purchase, but serves rather to provide information upon which investors may make an informed and realistic evaluation of the worth of the securities.

Persons responsible for filing false information with the Commission subject themselves to the risk of fine or imprisonment or both; and persons connected with the public offering may be liable in damages to purchasers of the securities if the disclosures in the registration statement and prospectus are materially defective. Also, the above act contains antifraud provisions that apply generally to the sale of securities, whether or not registered (48 Stat. 74; 15 U.S.C. 77a et seq.).

Regulation of Securities Markets and Persons Conducting a Securities Business The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 assigns to the Commission broad regulatory responsibilities over the securities markets, the self-regulatory organizations within the securities industry, and persons conducting a business in securities. Persons who execute transactions in securities generally are required to register with the Commission as broker-dealers. The Commission is directed to facilitate the establishment of a national market system for securities and a national system for the clearance and settlement of securities transactions. Securities exchanges and certain clearing agencies are required to register with the Commission, and associations of brokers or dealers are permitted to register with the Commission. The act also provides for the establishment of the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board to formulate rules for the municipal securities industry.

The Commission oversees the self-regulatory activities of the national securities exchanges and associations, registered clearing agencies, and the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board. In addition, the Commission regulates industry professionals, such as securities brokers and dealers, certain municipal securities professionals, and transfer agents.

The Securities and Exchange Act authorizes national securities exchanges, national securities associations, clearing agencies, and the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board to adopt rules that are designed, among other things, to promote just and equitable principles of trade and to protect investors. The Commission is required to approve or disapprove most proposed rules of these self-regulatory organizations and has the power to abrogate or amend existing rules of the national securities exchanges, national securities associations, and the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board.

In addition, the Commission has broad rulemaking authority over the activities of brokers, dealers, municipal securities dealers, securities information processors, and transfer agents. The Commission may regulate such securities trading practices as short sales and stabilizing transactions. It may regulate the trading of options on national securities exchanges and the activities of members of exchanges who trade on the trading floors and may adopt rules governing broker-dealer sales practices in dealing with investors. The Commission also is authorized to adopt rules concerning the financial responsibility of brokers and dealers and reports to be made by brokers and dealers.

The Securities and Exchange Act also empowers the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to prescribe rules relating to the extension of credit by brokers and dealers for securities transactions. Such rules include the establishment of minimum margin requirements with respect to securities registered on national securities exchanges and certain securities traded over the counter (48 Stat. 881; 15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.).

The act also requires the filing of registration statements and annual and other reports with national securities exchanges and the Commission by companies whose securities are listed upon the exchanges, and by companies that have assets of $3 million or more and 500 or more shareholders of record. In addition, companies that distributed securities pursuant to a registration statement declared effective by the Commission under the Securities Act of 1933 must also file annual and other reports with the Commission. Such applications and reports must contain financial and other data prescribed by the Commission as necessary or appropriate for the protection of investors and to ensure fair dealing. In addition, the solicitation of proxies, authorizations, or consents from holders of such registered securities must be made in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Commission. These rules provide for disclosures to securities holders of information relevant to the subject matter of the solicitation.

Disclosure of the holdings and transactions by officers, directors, and large (10-percent) holders of equity securities of companies also is required, and any and all persons who acquire more than 5 percent of certain equity securities are required to file detailed information with the Commission and any exchange upon which such securities may be traded. Moreover, any person making a tender offer for certain classes of equity securities is required to file reports with the Commission if, as a result of the tender offer, such person would own more than 5 percent of the outstanding shares of the particular class of equity security involved. The Commission also is authorized to promulgate rules governing the repurchase by a corporate issuer of its own securities.

Regulation of Mutual Funds and Other Investment Companies The Investment Company Act of 1940 (54 Stat. 847; 15 U.S.C 80a-51) requires investment companies to register with the Commission and regulates their activities to protect investors. The regulation covers sales and management fees, composition of boards of directors and capital structure. Additionally, the act prohibits investment companies from engaging in various transactions, including transactions with affiliated persons, unless the Commission first determines that such transactions are fair.

Under the act, the Commission may institute court action to enjoin the consummation of mergers and other plans of reorganization of investment companies if such plans are unfair to security holders. It also may impose sanctions by administrative proceedings against investment company management for violations of the act and other Federal securities laws and file court actions to enjoin acts and practices of management officials involving breaches of fiduciary duty and personal misconduct and to disqualify such officials from office (54 Stat. 789; 15 U.S.C. 80a-1—80a-52).

Regulation of Companies Controlling Electric or Gas Utilities The Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935

(49 Stat. 838; 15 U.S.C. 79 et seq.) provides for regulation by the Commission of the purchase and sale of securities and assets by companies in electric and gas utility holding company systems, their intrasystem transactions and service and management arrangements. It limits holding companies to a single coordinated utility system and requires simplification of complex corporate and capital structures and elimination of unfair distribution of voting power among holders of system securities.

The issuance and sale of securities by holding companies and their subsidiaries, unless exempt (subject to conditions and terms that the Commission is empowered to impose) as an issue expressly authorized by the State commission in the State in which the issuer is incorporated, must be found by the Commission to meet statutory standards; namely, that the new security is reasonably adapted to the security structure and earning power of the issuer; that the proposed financing is necessary and appropriate to the economical and efficient operation of the company's business; that the consideration received and fees, commissions, and other remuneration paid, are fair; and that the terms and conditions of the sale are not detrimental to investors, consumers, or the public.

The purchase and sale of utility properties and other assets may not be made in contravention of rules, regulations, or orders of the Commission regarding the consideration to be received, maintenance of competitive conditions, fees and commissions, accounts, disclosure of interest, and similar matters. In passing upon proposals for reorganization, merger, or consolidation, the Commission must be satisfied that the objectives of the act generally are complied with and that the terms of the proposal are fair and equitable to all classes of security holders affected (49 Stat. 803; 15 U.S.C. 79—92z-6).

Regulation of Investment Counselors and Advisers The Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (54 Stat. 857; 15 U.S.C. 80b-20) provides that persons who, for compensation, engage in the business of advising others with respect to their security transactions must register with the Commission. The act prohibits certain types of fee arrangements, makes unlawful practices of investment advisers involving fraud or deceit, and requires, among other things, disclosure of any adverse interests the advisers may have in transactions executed for clients. The act authorizes the Commission to issue rules prescribing acts and practices that may operate as a fraud or deceit upon investors (54 Stat. 847; 15 U.S.C. 80b-1—80b-21).

Rehabilitation of Failing Corporations Chapter 11, section 1109(a), of the Bankruptcy Code (92 Stat. 2629; 11 U.S.C. 1109) provides for Commission participation as a statutory party in corporate reorganization proceedings administered in Federal courts. The principal functions of the Commission are to protect the interests of public investors involved in such cases through efforts to ensure their adequate representation and to participate on legal and policy issues that are of concern to public investors generally.

Independent Representation of the Interests of Holders of Debt Securities The interests of purchasers of publicly offered debt securities issued pursuant to trust indentures are safeguarded under the provisions of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939. This act, among other things, requires the exclusion from such indentures of certain types of exculpatory clauses and the inclusion of certain protective provisions. The independence of the indenture trustee, who is a representative of the debt holder, is assured by proscribing certain relationships that might conflict with the proper exercise of his duties (53 Stat. 1149; 15 U.S.C. 77aaa-77bbbb).

Enforcement Activities The Commission's enforcement activities are designed to secure compliance with the Federal securities laws administered by the Commission and the rules and regulations adopted thereunder. These activities include measures to compel obedience to the disclosure requirements of the registration and other provisions of the acts; to prevent fraud and deception in the purchase and sale of securities; to obtain court orders enjoining acts and practices that operate as a fraud upon investors or otherwise violate the laws; to suspend or revoke the registrations of brokers, dealers, and investment companies and investment advisers who willfully engage in such acts and practices; to suspend or bar from association persons associated with brokers, dealers, investment companies and investment advisers who have violated any provision of the Federal securities laws; and to prosecute persons who have engaged in fraudulent activities or other willful violations of those laws. In addition, attorneys, accountants, and other professionals who violate the securities laws face possible loss of their privilege to practice before the Commission.

To this end, private investigations are conducted into complaints or other indications of securities violations. Evidence thus established of law violations is used in appropriate administrative proceedings to revoke registration or in actions instituted in Federal courts to restrain or enjoin such activities. Where the evidence tends to establish criminal fraud or other willful violation of the securities laws, the facts are referred to the Attorney General for criminal prosecution of the offenders. The Commission may assist in such prosecutions.

[For the Selective Service System statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Oct. 25, 1983, 48 FR 49400]

The purpose of the Selective Service System is to be prepared to supply to the Armed Forces manpower adequate to ensure the security of the United States, with concomitant regard for the maintenance of an effective national economy.

The Selective Service System was established by the Military Selective Service Act (62 Stat. 604, as amended; 50 U.S.C. App. 451–471a).

Registration and Liability for Induction The Military Selective Service Act authorizes the registration of male citizens of the United States and all other male persons who are in the United States and who are between the ages of 18 and 26 years. The act exempts members of the active Armed Forces and foreign diplomatic and consular personnel from registration and liability for training and service. Likewise exempted are nonimmigrant aliens. Proclamation 4771 of July 2, 1980, requires male persons born after January 1, 1960, and who have attained age 18 to register. Registration is conducted at post offices within the United States and at United States Embassies and consulates outside the United States.

The act imposes liability for training and service in the Armed Forces upon registrants who are between the ages of 18 years and 6 months and 26 years, except those who are exempted or deferred. Persons who have been deferred remain liable for training and service until age 35. Aliens are not liable for training and service until they have remained in the United States for more than 1 year. Conscientious objectors who are found to be opposed to any service in the Armed Forces are required to perform civilian work in lieu of induction into the Armed Forces.

The authority to induct registrants, including doctors and allied medical specialists, expired July 1, 1973.

[For the Small Business Administration statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 13, Part 101]

The fundamental purposes of the Small Business Administration (SBA) are to aid, counsel, assist, and protect the interests of small business; ensure that small business concerns receive a fair portion of Government purchases, contracts and subcontracts, as well as of the sales of Government property; make loans to small business concerns, State and local development companies, and the victims of floods or other catastrophes, or of certain types of economic injury; and license, regulate, and make loans to small business investment companies.

The Small Business Administration was created by the Small Business Act of 1953 (67 Stat. 232), and derives its present existence and authority from the Small Business Act (72 Stat. 384; 15 U.S.C. 631 et seq.), as amended. It also derives its authority from the Small Business Investment Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 689; 15 U.S.C. 661), as amended. The Secretary of Commerce has delegated to the Administration certain responsibilities and functions under section 202 of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 556; 42 U.S.C. 3142), as amended, and is further authorized to delegate to the Administrator certain responsibilities and functions under chapter 3 of the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1978; 19 U.S.C. 2101).

Functions and Activities

Financial Assistance The Small Business Administration provides guaranteed, direct, or immediate participation loans to small business concerns to help them finance plant construction, conversion, or expansion; and acquire equipment, facilities, machinery, supplies, or materials. SBA also provides them with working capital. Since enactment of the act of June 4, 1976 (90 Stat. 663), farming enterprises are included within the term "small business concerns."

The victims of floods, riots, civil disorders, and other catastrophes are provided with loans to aid them in repairing, rebuilding, or replacing their homes, businesses, or other property. Loans are provided to assist small businesses that have sustained substantial economic injury resulting from natural disasters.

The agency is authorized to make special loans to handicapped individuals and nonprofit organizations employing the handicapped in the production of goods or services. Also, SBA may provide loans to finance residential or commercial construction or rehabilitation for sale; loans to small business concerns located in urban or rural areas with high proportions of unemployed or low-income individuals or owned by low-income individuals; extensions and revolving lines of credit for export purposes to enable small business concerns to develop foreign markets and for pre-export financing; and guarantee loans to qualified employee trusts with respect to small business concerns. SBA may finance small firms that manufacture, sell, install, service, or develop specific energy measures including engineering, architectural, consulting, or other professional services connected with eligible energy measures.

Under provisions of sections 501 and 502 of the Small Business Investment Act, loans are made to State and local development companies, which, in turn, assist small business concerns.

For further information, contact the Office of Finance and Investment. Phone, 202-653-6470.

Investment Assistance For the purpose of improving and stimulating the national economy and the small business segment, SBA licenses, regulates, and provides financial assistance to small business investment companies (SBIC's), and section 301(d) licensees (formerly minority enterprise small business investment companies). The sole function of these investment companies is to provide venture capital in the form of equity financing, long-term loan funds, and management services to small business concerns.

The Pollution Control Financing Program, initiated in 1977, helps small businesses obtain long-term financing of pollution control equipment by the use of 100-percent guarantees of loans, leases, or other contracts, which may be integrated into taxable or tax-exempt bond issues. SBA also guarantees to surety companies up to 90 percent of losses incurred on surety bonds issued to small contractors.

For further information, contact the Office of Finance and Investment. Phone, 202-653-6848.

Procurement Assistance The Small Business Administration works closely with purchasing agencies of the Federal Government and with the Nation's leading contractors in developing policies and procedures that will increase the number of contracts going to small business.

SBA provides a wide range of services to small firms to help them obtain and fulfill Government contracts and subcontracts. It sets aside suitable Government purchases for competitive award to small business concerns and provides an appeal procedure for a low bidding small firm whose ability to perform a contract is questioned by the contracting officer. It develops subcontract opportunities for small businesses by maintaining close contact with prime contractors and referring qualified small firms to them. It cooperates with Federal agencies in setting procurement goals for small business and small disadvantaged business for prime contracts and subcontracts.

SBA maintains a computerized small business source referral system that provides qualified sources for Federal Government and large business procurements. SBA cooperates with Government agencies in ensuring that small firms have an opportunity to procure a fair share of Government property, such as timber, royalty oil, strategic materials, and mineral leases, that is sold to the private sector. SBA also works with Federal agencies to ensure that small firms have a fair opportunity to acquire surplus Government property.

SBA helps small businesses benefit from research and development performed by other Federal agencies under Government contracts or at Government expense. SBA provides services, such as computerized literature searches, designed to acquaint small businesses with available technology and helps select the relevant portions.

For further information, contact the Office of Procurement and Technology Assistance. Phone, 202-653-6508.

Business Development SBA cosponsors courses and conferences, prepares informational leaflets and booklets, and encourages research into the management problems of small business concerns. It counsels and conducts management workshops and courses for established as well as prospective businesspersons, and enlists the volunteer aid of retired and active executives to assist small businesspersons in overcoming their management problems. It contracts with college and university schools of business for counseling services and training by qualified students. It counsels interested small firms on the major aspects of international trade and works with other public and private sector organizations to generate export activity and opportunities for small business manufacturers.

For further information, contact the Office of Business Development. Phone, 202-653-6330.

Minority Small Business-Capital Ownership Development The main objective of the Minority Small Business-Capital Ownership Development (MSB-COD) program is to help close the gap in business ownership between minority individuals and other Americans. SBA has combined its efforts with those of private industry, banks, local communities, and other Government agencies to substantially increase the number of minority-owned, -operated, and -managed businesses, and also to improve the chances for success of those businesses.

In its field offices, MSB-COD representatives, in cooperation with local business development organizations, describe to potential minority entrepreneurs how all SBA services and programs are available to help them become or remain successful business managers. The MSB–COD field representative becomes a catalyst, the applicant's "advocate," in advising and helping with the development of financial statements, business projections, and other related material. Assistance is also given, where needed, in preparing formal loan applications.

Section 8(a) of the Small Business Act (75 Stat. 668; 15 U.S.C. 637(a)) serves as the authority for SBA's Business Development program to assist in the expansion and development of existing, newly organized, or prospective profit-oriented small business concerns owned and controlled by eligible socially and economically disadvantaged persons. Under section 8(a) of the act, SBA is authorized to enter into contracts with the U.S. Government and any Federal department, agency, or office having procurement powers and to subcontract the performance of these contracts with firms approved by SBA under established eligibility criteria for participation in the program. SBA contracts for management and technical services for socially and economically disadvantaged businesses qualifying for assistance under the 7(j) program. In addition, SBA provides financial assistance to public or private organizations to pay all or part of the cost of providing technical or management assistance to socially or economically disadvantaged businesspersons.

For further information, contact the Office of Minority Small Business-Capital Ownership Development. Phone, 202–653–5688.

Advocacy The Office of Advocacy evaluates the impact on small businesses of legislative proposals and other public policy issues by preparing policy papers and by conducting research having an impact on small business. The Office conducts economic and statistical research into matters affecting the competitive strength of small business. The Office also researches the effect of Federal laws, programs, and regulations on small business and makes recommendations to Federal agencies for appropriate adjustments to meet the needs of small business.

The Chief Counsel for Advocacy is the Government's principal advocate of small business. He promotes the position of small business with Federal agencies and State and local governments; maintains liaison with trade and professional organizations; and serves as the major source of information about the Government for small business.

The Chief Counsel for Advocacy has specific responsibilities for monitoring the performance of Federal agencies under the Regulatory Flexibility Act (94 Stat. 1164; 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) and the Patent and Trademark Laws Amendments Act (94 Stat. 3015; 35 U.S.C. 301).

For further information, contact the Office of Advocacy. Phone, 202–653–6808.

The Women's Business Ownership program, a major advocacy program, operates under the authority and mandate of Executive Order 12138 of May 18, 1979, and the Small Business Act (72 Stat. 384; 15 U.S.C. 631 et seq.). Its functions are carried out by the Office of Women's Business Ownership (OWBO).

OWBO's purpose is to develop and coordinate a national program to increase the strength, profitability, and visibility of women-owned businesses while making maximum use of existing government and private sector resources. OWBO provides advice, assistance, and support to the Interagency Committee on Women's Business Enterprise in fulfilling its mandate to promote, coordinate, and monitor the efforts of the Federal Government to establish, preserve, and strengthen women-owned businesses. OWBO serves as principal liaison with non-Federal business, educational organizations, and community resources to assist the growth and development of women-owned businesses.

OWBO develops and recommends national pilot programs in the private sector to provide training and counseling in the initiation, management, and financing of women-owned businesses. OWBO encourages access to capital formation through trade organizations and management consultants who provide financial education and counseling tailored to the needs of women business owners. OWBO seeks out and adapts existing small business skills development programs to the needs of potential and actual women business owners and encourages delivery through existing private sector organizations, both profit and nonprofit.

In addition, OWBO is responsible for negotiating with Federal agencies to set annual Government-wide goals to increase Federal prime contracts with women-owned businesses. OWBO is responsible for increasing and monitoring the number of women in the SBA-operated Procurement Automated Source System (PASS) from which Government agencies and major corporations extract profiles of potential bidders.

To accomplish this mainstreaming approach, OWBO cooperates with existing SBA programs to develop, implement, and evaluate all activities to ensure equal access for women business owners.

For further information, contact the Office of Women's Business Ownership. Phone, 202–653–7954.

Veterans Affairs The main objective of the Veterans Affairs program is to advocate veteran assistance. This Office assists in improving programs of financial, procurement, and management assistance to small businesses owned, or majority controlled, by veterans. These programs include procurement and controlling opportunities, consultant services, and others. The Office also develops plans for training of regional Veterans Affairs officers; maintains liaison with key executive agencies, State and local government, and private organizations to ensure that SBA makes maximum use of existing programs; and advocates in behalf of SBA with those organizations for new and revised programs for the benefit of veterans pertaining to small business.

For further information, contact the Office of Veterans Affairs. Phone, 202–653–7482.

Private Sector Initiatives The major objective of the private sector initiatives program is to utilize the private sector to obtain maximum leverage from all programs in achieving agency goals and in meeting the needs of the small business community. The Office serves as a focal point within the agency to foster and coordinate those elements of agency programs involving partnership with the private sector. The Office solicits maximum cooperation from State and local government entities in all agency programs efforts so as to utilize local initiatives to the fullest and avoid costly duplication. The Office proposes legislative initiatives aimed toward increasing private sector involvement in small business assistance and other agency programs.

For further information, contact the Office of Private Sector Initiatives. Phone, 202–653–6787.

Innovation, Research and Technology The major objective of this Office is to develop and implement the SBA Innovation, Research and Technology program as outlined in the Small Business Innovation Development Act of 1982 (SMIDA) (96 Stat. 217; 15 U.S.C. 631 note). The Office independently surveys and monitors the operations of SMIDA with participating agencies; fosters and encourages participation by small businesses in Federal research and development; develops programs and procedures, including appropriate publications, to acquaint small manufacturing businesses and research and development firms and encourages their participation in this program; develops and maintains research and development sources and an information program to assure each qualified and interested small business concern the opportunity to participate in the program; coordinates with participating agencies a schedule for release of Small Business Innovation Research solicitations and prepares a master release schedule so as to maximize small businesses' opportunities to respond to solicitations.

For further information, contact the Office of Innovation, Research and Technology. Phone, 202–653–6458.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) is a Government-owned corporation that conducts a unified program of resource development for the advancement of economic growth in the Tennessee Valley region. The Authority's program of activities includes flood control, navigation development, electric power production, fertilizer development, recreation improvement, and forestry and wildlife development. While its power program is financially self-supporting, other programs are financed primarily by appropriations from Congress.

The Tennessee Valley Authority is a corporation created by act of Congress on May 18, 1933 (48 Stat. 58; 16 U.S.C. 831–831dd). All functions of the Authority are vested in its Board of Directors, who are appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. Offices of the Board and General Manager are in Knoxville, TN.

TVA is wholly owned by the U.S. Government. While its electric power program is required to be financially self-supporting, other programs are financed primarily by appropriations.

A system of dams built by TVA on the Tennessee River and its larger tributaries provides flood regulation on the Tennessee and contributes to regulation of the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. The system maintains a continuous 9-foot-draft channel for navigation for the length of the 650-mile Tennessee River main stream, from Paducah, KY, to Knoxville, TN. The dams harness the power of the rivers to produce electricity. They also provide other benefits, including a major asset for outdoor recreation.

TVA operates the river control system and provides assistance to State and local governments in reducing local flood problems. It also works with cooperating agencies to encourage full and effective use of the navigable waterway by industry and commerce.

TVA is the wholesale power supplier for many local municipal and cooperative electric systems serving customers in parts of seven States. It supplies power to several Federal installations and industries whose power requirements are large or unusual. Power to meet these demands is supplied from dams, coal-fired powerplants, nuclear powerplants, combustion turbine installations, and a pumped-storage hydroelectric project operated by TVA, U.S. Corps of Engineers dams in the Cumberland Valley; and Aluminum Company of America dams whose operation is coordinated with the TVA system.

In economic and community development programs, TVA provides technical assistance in areas including industrial development, regional waste management, tourism promotion, community preparedness, and vanpool organization. TVA works with local communities and groups to develop maximum use of available area resources. Working with regional learning centers, businesses, and industries, TVA has identified skills that are needed in the high-technology job market and has set up training centers.

At Muscle Shoals, AL, TVA operates a national laboratory for development of new and improved fertilizers and processes. Research results are made available to industry. Fertilizers produced in the demonstration facilities are distributed for use in research and educational programs, principally farm test-demonstrations and demonstrations conducted through cooperative and wholesale fertilizer distributors. It also conducts a major bioenergy research program.

In cooperatio [illegible] other agencies, TVA conducts research and development programs in forestry, fish and game, watershed protection, health services related to its operations, and economic development of Tennessee Valley communities.

In the western part of Kentucky and Tennessee, TVA operates Land Between The Lakes—a demonstration project in outdoor recreation, environmental education, and natural resource management.

[For the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 22, Part 601]

The United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) formulates and implements arms control and disarmament policies that will promote the national security of the United States and its relations with other countries. At present, to effectively carry out its responsibilities, it prepares and participates in discussions and negotiations with the Soviet Union and other countries on such issues as strategic arms limitations, mutual force reductions in Central Europe, preventing the spread of nuclear weapons to countries that do not now possess them, a prohibition on chemical weapons, and monitoring the flow of arms trade throughout the world.

Activities

The United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency was established on September 26, 1961, in response to congressional feeling that our country's arms control and disarmament policy could best be formed and carried out in a manner promoting the national security, by a central organization charged by law with primary responsibility for arms control and disarmament. The act creating the Agency (75 Stat. 631; 22 U.S.C. 2551) gives it a number of important responsibilities in the arms control field. The Agency conducts studies and provides advice relating to arms control and disarmament policy formulation; prepares for and manages United States participation in international negotiations in the arms control and disarmament field; disseminates and coordinates public information about arms control and disarmament; and prepares for, operates, or as needed, directs U.S. participation in international control systems that may result from United States arms control or disarmament activities.

In addition to directing the Agency activities as described above, the Director functions as the principal adviser to the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of State in arms control and disarmament matters. Under the direction of the Secretary of State, he also has primary responsibility within the Government for such matters.

In support of its activities, the Agency conducts research and studies or makes arrangements for their conduct (through contracts and agreements) by private or public institutions or persons. It also coordinates such efforts by or for other Government agencies, and analyzes selected defense programs for their arms control implications.

The Arms Control and Disarmament Act also provides for the establishment of a General Advisory Committee, not to exceed 15 members, appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to advise the President, the Secretary of State, and the Director of the Agency on matters affecting arms control, disarmament, and world peace.

[For the United States Information Agency statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 22, Part 504]

The United States Information Agency (USIA), formerly the United States International Communication Agency (USICA), is responsible for the U.S. Government's overseas information and cultural programs, including the Voice of America and the Fulbright scholarship program. USIA is known overseas as the U.S. Information Service (USIS). USIA has responsibility for the conduct of U.S. overseas informational, educational, and cultural affairs programs, including the exchange of persons designed to build bridges of mutual understanding between the people of the United States and other peoples of the world. USIA engages in a wide variety of communication activities—from academic and cultural exchanges to press, radio, television, film, seminar, library, and cultural center programs abroad—to accomplish its goals to strengthen foreign understanding of American society, obtain greater support of U.S. policies, and increase understanding between the United States and other countries.

USIA also has the responsibility to report to the President and the Secretary of State, as well as to advise the National Security Council, on worldwide public opinion as it is relevant to the formulation and conduct of U.S. foreign policy.

The International Communication Agency, which was established April 1, 1978, by authority of Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1977, was redesignated as the United States Information Agency by section 303(a) of the United States Information Agency Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1982 and 1983 (96 Stat. 291). That Reorganization Plan consolidated into USICA the functions previously carried out by the United States Information Agency and the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the Department of State. The Plan also provided for the merger of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Information and the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs into a seven-member U.S. Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy.

Purpose and Functions

USIA's specific tasks are to: strengthen foreign understanding and support for U.S. policies and actions; counter attempts to distort the objectives and policies of the United States; advise the President, the Secretary of State, members of the National Security Council, and other key officials on the implications of foreign opinion for present and contemplated United States policies; promote and administer educational and cultural exchange programs in the national interest and in order to bring about greater understanding between the people of the United States and the peoples of the world; cooperate with the American private sector to enhance the quality and range of America's overseas information and cultural efforts; assist in the development of a comprehensive policy on the free flow of information and international communications; and conduct negotiations on information, educational, and cultural exchanges with other governments.

The basic legislative authority for USIA activities is provided by the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (62 Stat. 6; 22 U.S.C. 1431–1442), as amended, which authorizes the dissemination abroad of information about the United States, its people, culture, and policies; and the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 527; 22 U.S.C. 2451–2458A), as amended, which authorizes educational and cultural exchanges between the United States and other countries as well as United States participation in international fairs and expositions abroad.

To accomplish its purposes, the Agency uses a wide array of approaches and methods to carry out its work abroad, including international radio broadcasting, motion pictures, television, exhibits, personal contacts, lectures and seminars, American Centers, libraries, English-language instruction, press placement, magazines and other publications, book translation and distribution, and facilitation to foreign press and television journalists working in the United States.

The Agency develops, administers, and facilitates programs for the international exchange of students, teachers, and other educators. It brings leaders in government, politics, social welfare, and other professional fields to consult with colleagues in the United States, observe American society and institutions, convey an understanding of their own cultures, and develop their particular fields of interest. The Agency seeks to enlarge the circle of those able to serve as influential interpreters between the United States and other nations, encourage key institutions to strengthen their contacts across national boundaries, and reduce impediments to the exchange of ideas and information. It administers a program through which American groups and individuals in the performing arts and athletics are sent abroad to perform, advise, and consult with their professional colleagues in other societies.

The Agency also is charged with advising the President, the President's representatives abroad, and the various departments and agencies on the implications of foreign opinion for present and contemplated United States policies, programs, and official statements.

The Agency's advice on substantive matters having foreign opinion implications includes: communication of comments, perspectives, and ideas by the Director to the White House and the heads of departments and agencies concerned with foreign affairs; participation by USIA area officers in the work of the National Security Council Interdepartmental Groups; close working relationships of USIA area and program officers with the Departments of State and Defense and other related departments and agencies; periodic assignment of USIA career officers to positions in the National Security Council, Departments of State, Defense, and Commerce, and other related departments and agencies; and dissemination to the White House and concerned Federal agencies of regular reports on foreign media reaction to activities and policies of the United States.

Abroad, the head of each USIS post, the Public Affairs Officer, provides the Ambassador and other members of the U.S. diplomatic mission with professional advice and expertise on all matters relating to the work of the Agency.

Operations

Agency operations are organized along both functional and geographical lines and are directed by the Executive Policy Committee composed of the Director, Deputy Director, Counselor, four Bureau Associate Directors, five Area Office Directors, the Inspector General, Director of Private Sector Committees, Coordinator of the President's U.S.-Soviet Exchange Initiative, the General Counsel and Congressional Liaison, Director of the Television and Film Service, Director of the Office of Public Liaison, and the Comptroller of the Agency.

Functional Elements The four major functional elements of USIA are the Voice of America (VOA) and the Bureaus of Programs (P), Educational and Cultural Affairs (E), and Management (M).

The Voice of America is the functional element for radio broadcasting and includes the Radio Marti Program. The Voice of America produces and broadcasts radio programs in English and 42 foreign languages for overseas audiences. Programming includes news, reports from correspondents on the scene, analyses of events from Washington, feature programs, music, and editorials.

The Bureau of Programs consists of the Agency's Policy Guidance Staff, International Communications Policy Staff, Media Reaction Staff, three Foreign Press Centers, two media services, and two major offices. The media services are responsible for the acquisition and production of a variety of media products for use by USIS posts abroad. These include a daily wireless bulletin to all posts containing official texts and other material needed to represent events in the United States, magazines, pamphlets, reprints, photographs, picture stories, and exhibits in various formats. Media production facilities include a regional exhibits center and two printing plants at overseas locations. The Foreign Press Centers facilitate foreign journalists working in New York, Washington, and Los Angeles. The Office of Program Coordination and Development analyzes field program support requests, develops and maintains program-relevant materials, coordinates the acquisition and production of Agency media products, and identifies and recruits speakers, performing artists, and fine arts exhibitions for USIS posts overseas. The Office of Research provides current insights into the overseas communication environment.

The Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs consists of the International Youth Exchange Staff, Board of Foreign Scholarships Staff, Cultural Property Staff, and four major offices:

The Office of Cultural Centers and Resources provides policy direction, program support, and professional guidance and materials to USIS libraries and binational centers overseas; provides library services to domestic Agency offices; promotes the distribution of American books in English and other languages; operates a donated-books program; and supports English-teaching programs abroad.

The Office of Private Sector Programs is responsible for developing cooperative projects with private sector institutions to support, complement, and enhance the goals and objectives of the USIA. These projects are designed to promote a better understanding of the United States abroad by means of educational and cultural exchange between Americans and citizens of other nations. The Office may provide selective assistance, encouragement, and grant support to nonprofit activities of U.S. organizations and institutions that satisfy this purpose, with special emphasis on international educational and cultural exchanges.

The Office of International Visitors is responsible for planning, implementing, monitoring, and evaluating all international visitor programs, both grantee and voluntary; managing the Agency's four reception centers; serving as the Agency's liaison with public and private organizations involved in the international visitor program; and arranging programs in the United States for U.N. fellows and foreign government trainees.

The Office of Academic Programs is responsible for organizing and assisting academic exchanges between the United States and other countries; facilitating the establishment and maintenance of close ties between the American academic community and those abroad; encouraging and supporting American studies at foreign universities and other institutions of higher learning; and providing staff support to the Board of Foreign Scholarships. The Office also maintains liaison with a wide range of non-Government institutions to encourage programs and foster institutional cooperation or ties across national boundaries; and coordinates international information, educational, cultural, and exchange programs conducted by other departments and agencies of the U.S. Government.

The Bureau of Management is responsible for planning, organizing, directing, and controlling the Agency's administrative and management operations. The Bureau's offices provide support services in the areas of administration, advanced technology, personnel and training, budget and fiscal operations, management analysis, security, equal employment opportunity, contracts, and procurement.

Executive Level Offices The three executive level offices in USIA are: Office of Public Liaison (PL), Office of the General Counsel and Congressional Liaison (GC), and Office of the Inspector General (OIG).

The Office of Public Liaison directs and implements or coordinates activities to enhance public awareness of Agency activities by providing information or responding to inquiries from the media, selected individuals and groups, or government agencies and elected officials. The Office's main purpose is to convey an accurate and positive image of USIA's programs and activities within the framework of Agency legislation.

The Office of General Counsel and Congressional Liaison provides general legal support, assistance, and representation to the Director and all elements of the Agency, both domestic and overseas, in all aspects of Agency operations; serves as the primary channel for contacts with Members and committees of the Congress and their staffs; carries out the accreditation and supervisory authority of the Director with respect to international educational and cultural exchange visitor program sponsors; and adjudicates requests of alien exchange visitors for waiver of the 2-year home-country residence requirement of section 212(e) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended (66 Stat. 182; 8 U.S.C. 1182), and passes on all requests made under the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts.

The Inspector General, who reports to the Director and the Deputy Director of USIA, is responsible for conducting, supervising, and coordinating audits, inspections, and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the Agency. In addition, the Inspector General (IG) provides leadership and coordination and directs the resources of the Office of Inspector General to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness, and to prevent and detect fraud and abuse in the administration of the Agency's programs and operations. Further, the IG refers to the Federal Bureau of Investigation matters in need of further investigation as possible violations of criminal or civil laws, and, in exceptional cases following consultations with the General Counsel, refers matters for prosecutive review to the Attorney General. The IG also receives and considers for investigation employee "whistleblower" complaints.

Television and Film Service The Television and Film Service is responsible for planning, organizing, and directing the Agency's television and film activities. The areas of responsibility encompass producing programs and interactive press conferences for the WORLDNET satellite delivery system; producing and acquiring films and VCR's for direct projection or placement overseas; providing facilitative assistance to visiting foreign television and film producers; providing assistance to foreign broadcasters in the production and foreign telecast of cooperative television programs; and coordinating with other U.S. and foreign government agencies on the dissemination of information overseas through motion pictures and television.

Counselor of the Agency The Counselor of the Agency provides advice and counseling to the Director and undertakes special assignments, at the Director's request, usually requiring coordination of activities within USIA or among USIA and other U.S. Government agencies. The Counselor has a special responsibility for bringing the Foreign Service perspective to issues before the Director and for ensuring that their implications for overseas operations are fully considered. The Counselor's office is designed to react quickly to new developments and to intercept potential problems before they unfold.

Geographic Areas The five geographic area offices are the principal Agency contacts with its overseas posts. They provide broad managerial oversight of the posts and programs abroad, conveying the central intentions of the Director and other Agency officials to the posts and, in return, relaying area and post needs and perspectives to the executive policy group and to functional offices of the Agency.

Overseas Posts

USIS posts overseas conduct communication, cultural, and educational exchange activities on behalf of the U.S. Government, except for Commands of the Department of Defense. The Agency maintains 217 posts in 129 countries.

The International Development Cooperation Agency's (IDCA) function is policy planning, policymaking, and policy coordination on the range of international economic issues affecting developing countries. IDCA's mission is twofold: First, to ensure that development goals are taken fully into account in all executive branch decisionmaking on trade, financing and monetary affairs, technology, and other economic policy issues affecting the less-developed nations; and second, to provide strong direction for U.S. economic policies toward the developing world and a coherent development strategy through the effective use of U.S. bilateral development assistance programs and U.S. participation in multilateral development organizations.

The International Development Cooperation Agency was established by Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1979 (44 FR 41165), effective October 1, 1979, to be a focal point within the U.S. Government for economic matters affecting U.S. relations with developing countries.

The Director of IDCA serves as the principal international development adviser to the President and to the Secretary of State, subject to guidance concerning the foreign policy of the United States from the Secretary of State.

The IDCA Director has a wide range of authorities to assist in the pursuit of the Agency's mission:

Agency for International Development (AID). AID is a component of IDCA, and its Administrator currently serves as the IDCA Acting Director;

Trade and Development Program (TDP). TDP is an organizational unit within IDCA, and the TDP Director reports to the IDCA Director; and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC). OPIC is a component of IDCA, and the IDCA Director serves as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Corporation.

Functions and Activities

IDCA, whose purpose is primarily developmental, has lead budget and policy responsibility for U.S. participation in United Nations (U.N.) and Organization of American States (OAS) programs. These include the U.N. Development Program (UNDP), the U.N. Children's Fund (UNICEF), the World Food Program, and the OAS Technical Assistance Funds.

U.S. participation in the multilateral development banks (MDB's)—the World Bank Group and the regional development banks—is a shared responsibility of the Director of IDCA and the Secretary of the Treasury, who instruct U.S. representatives to the MDB's. The Director of IDCA is consulted by the Secretary of the Treasury in the selection of the U.S. Executive Directors of the multilateral banks. The IDCA Director advises the Secretary and the U.S. representatives on development programs and policies and on each development project of the multilateral banks. Such advice is normally determinative except in cases in which the Secretary of the Treasury finds that compelling financial or other nondevelopmental reasons (legislative requirements) require a different U.S. position. Differences between the Director and the Secretary may be submitted to the President for resolution.

The direction of the Food for Peace Program (Public Law 480) is a shared responsibility of IDCA and the Department of Agriculture.

IDCA plays an important role in the implementation of the U.S. Economic Support Fund and a number of other development-related activities and programs.

The Director of IDCA and senior agency staff chair and participate in a wide range of interagency committees. The Director is a member of the National Advisory Committee on International and Monetary Affairs, the Trade Policy Committee, and the Advisory Committee on Agricultural Assistance.

The Director chairs the Development Coordination Committee, a broad interagency body that coordinates development and development-related policies and programs. As Chair of this Committee, the IDCA Director annually prepares and submits to the Congress a report on development coordination. This report reviews the efforts undertaken by the U.S. Government in the past year to promote international economic development, and it discusses key issues facing policymakers in the development field.

IDCA has responsibility for policy instructions for a number of U.S. programs affecting developing countries. The IDCA Director provides policy guidelines for the bilateral assistance program to use in developing projects and programs. The Director also works with other agencies in formulating the position the United States will take in international conferences or negotiations on many issues of concern to developing countries.

IDCA staff functions are currently being performed by AID personnel.

Agency for International Development

[For the Agency for International Development statement of organization, see the Federal Register of August

23, 1984, 49 FR 33503]

The Agency for International Development (AID) carries out economic assistance programs designed to help the people of developing countries develop their human and economic resources, increase their productive capacities, and improve the quality of human life as well as promote economic and political stability in friendly countries.

AID functions under an Administrator, who also currently serves as the Acting Director of the International Development Cooperation Agency. The Administrator directs U.S. foreign and economic assistance operations in more than 60 countries.

Programs

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended (75 Stat. 424; 22 U.S.C. 2151 note), authorizes AID to administer, normally on a bilateral basis, two kinds of foreign assistance: development assistance and economic support funds.

In addition, AID, in cooperation with the Departments of Agriculture and State, carries out the provisions of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended (68 Stat. 454; 7 U.S.C. 1691 et seq.), which includes the sale of agricultural commodities on concessional terms (Title I), the donation of agricultural commodities (Title II), and the provision of food under the Food for Development Program (Title III).

AID also conducts humanitarian relief activities in support of those who suffer from natural calamities such as earthquakes, famine, floods, and drought. Programs are conducted, often in conjunction with those of other nations and private charitable organizations, to quickly alleviate the effects of disaster and reduce human suffering.

AID emphasizes four major thrusts to achieve successful economic development: (1) use of market forces to stimulate growth of market economies in developing countries and to interest U.S. companies in making investments in those countries; (2) policy dialog to encourage those countries that receive U.S. assistance to adopt rational economic policies that foster economic growth; (3) institution building that supports the establishment and growth of institutions such as schools, colleges, training organizations, and supportive government ministries necessary for economic growth in developing countries; and (4) practical technology transfer to enable countries to produce their own resources.

AID's main objective is to help developing countries to help themselves.

Specifically, AID administers programs under the Foreign Assistance Act within the following major categories of assistance:

Development Assistance AID focuses its development assistance programs on critical problem areas in those functional sectors that affect the majority of the people in the developing countries. The areas of concentration are:

Agriculture, Rural Development, and Nutrition—to alleviate starvation, hunger, and malnutrition in developing countries by increasing the food supply in order to achieve improvements in diets and by expanding employment opportunities for low-income families in both rural and urban areas to enable them to purchase the food they need.

Health—to lower infant and child mortality rates through primary health care programs in developing countries; reduce the incidence of serious communicable diseases; and assist developing countries to plan the allocation of financial and human resources in health so that poorer groups have better access to preventive and curative health services;

Population Planning—to address problems of rapid population growth and to extend voluntary family planning services to the village level through programs that provide or promote safe, effective, affordable, acceptable family planning services;

Education and Human Resource Development—to expand access to basic education through programs in health, nutrition, family planning, and agriculture. Specifically, AID supports low-cost primary education, particularly for the rural poor; the use of mass media and communications technology such as radio, curricula revision, and teacher training to increase the relevancy of formal education to meet basic human needs; and the development of informal education and training approaches for rural families and workers in agriculture, nutrition, health, and family planning.

Energy, Private and Voluntary Organizations, and Selected Development Activities—to support selected development activities that deal with a wide range of development concerns that do not fall within the above functional sectors; for example, projects directed toward assisting developing countries with their national energy and natural resource problems and projects that provide for the transfer and adaptation of appropriate technology and lessen the problems of rapid urbanization, including employment and income problems. These activities place high priority on greater involvement of the private sector of both the United States and less developed countries, in development, including greater reliance on private and voluntary organizations.

Private Enterprise—is integrated into each of the functional program areas to assist, both directly and in collaboration with the U.S. private sector, those developing countries that want to support a private sector, market-oriented, developmental strategy. U.S. and developing country private sector resources can be an important supplement and complement to existing bilateral and multilateral aid programs; and private investment can make a vital contribution to development through job creation, increased productivity, transferred technology, and management know-how and the generation of additional and diversified products to meet internal demand and expand export capacity.

For further information, contact the Bureau for Private Enterprise. Phone, 202–647–7474.

Economic Support Fund The primary objective of the Economic Support Fund (ESF) is to support U.S. economic, political, and security interests and to advance U.S. foreign policy goals. ESF provides resources that stem the spread of economic and political disruption and that help friends and allies in dealing with threats to their security and independence.

ESF is flexible economic assistance provided on a grant or loan basis and may be used to sustain economic activity and restore financial equilibrium, to address basic development needs, or to improve infrastructure. In administering ESF, consideration is given to policy guidance that underlies the provision of development assistance. This would include, for example, assisting developing countries in building and maintaining social and economic institutions necessary to self-sustaining and equitable growth, providing opportunities to improve the quality of everyday life and meeting basic human needs.

For further information, contact the Office of Planning and Budget, Bureau for Program and Policy Coordination. Phone, 202–647–2088.

Specific Programs

Sahel Development—AID participates in a long-term program for the development of the Sahelian region of West Africa. The objectives of the Sahel Development Program are to promote regional food self-reliance and self-sustaining economic growth. The program is coordinated, planned, and designed by the Club du Sahel, which is comprised of 9 Sahel States: Mali, Chad, Niger, Burkina Faso, Senegal, Mauritania, Cape Verde, The Gambia, and Guinea-Bissau; the United States; and over 20 participating governments and international organizations.

For further information, contact the Office of Sahel and West Africa Affairs, Sahel Regional Desk, Bureau for Africa. Phone, 202–647–8834.

American Schools and Hospitals Abroad—The American Schools and Hospitals Abroad program provides grants to private U.S. nonprofit organizations sponsoring American schools and hospitals abroad. The purpose is to demonstrate American ideas and practices in education and medicine.

For further information, contact the Office of American Schools and Hospitals Abroad, Bureau for Food for Peace and Voluntary Assistance. Phone, 703-235-1966.

International Disaster Assistance—The Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance (OFDA) administers AID's overseas disaster assistance program. The Office draws upon other U.S. Government agencies, voluntary and international organizations, and the U.S. private sector to meet the demands of disaster relief, rehabilitation, preparedness, early warning, and mitigation in countries stricken or threatened by natural or manmade disasters. OFDA provides technical assistance and training for the development of host government disaster assistance programs, technology transfer for improved prediction and warning systems, and material and personnel resources for emergency relief and rehabilitation. The AID Administrator serves as the President's Special Coordinator for International Disaster Assistance.

For further information, contact the Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance. Phone, 202-647-8924.

Housing Guaranty Program—AID's Housing Guaranty Program facilitates private financing for shelter for lower income families in developing countries by guaranteeing repayment to U.S. lenders for projects requested by these countries. AID seeks to finance innovative programs such as squatter upgrading through the provisions of sewerage, potable water, electricity, and credit for home improvements; and sites and services by the provision of a basic urbanized lot, with the family constructing its own dwelling unit; and low-cost expandable core housing units.

These projects are designed to promote affordable homeownership for lower income households, increase the participation of the private sector in the financing and development of low-cost shelter, support improved housing finance policies, and strengthen local delivery of essential urban services to poorer neighborhoods.

The Office of Housing and Urban Programs also supports a program of research and technical assistance in urban development, emphasizing the development and application of new tools for analyzing urban issues and urban investment strategies and assisting in strengthening urban investment strategies and urban and financial management policies and practices.

For further information, contact the Office of Housing and Urban Programs, Bureau for Private Enterprise. Phone, 202-647-6025.

Food for Peace—In cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, AID participates in the sale of agricultural commodities on concessional terms under Title I of Public Law 480 to encourage economic development, assist in combating hunger and malnutrition, and for other purposes.

Under Title II, AID administers the donation of agricultural commodities to meet famine or other urgent or extraordinary relief requirements, to combat malnutrition, to promote economic and community development, and for needy persons and nonprofit school lunch and preschool feeding programs outside the United States.

AID also administers Title III, which provides that a portion of funds accruing from Title I sales be used for food for development programs to improve the production, protection, and utilization of food to increase the well-being of the poor in the rural sector of the recipient country and that funds so used are applied against that government's Title I repayment obligation (Public Law 480, Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended).

AID supports the use of food aid in ways that promote rather than hinder the growth of food production and associated policy and program initiatives in the host government.

For further information, contact the Office of Food for Peace, Bureau for Food for Peace and Voluntary Assistance. Phone, 703-235-9210.

Science and Technology—In recognition of the higher priority that developing countries are placing on science and technology, AID is focusing on more innovative and collaborative approaches to the problems and processes of development research and technology transfer. This program includes both support of research to explore the potential uses of emerging technologies for development and innovative approaches to strengthen the capacity of less developed countries to take advantage of these new technologies.

For further information, contact the Office of the Senior Assistant Administrator, Bureau for Science and Technology. Phone, 202-647-1827.

Special Provisions

Capital Technology—AID supports projects with the specific objective of broadening the range of technologies in use. This is accomplished by increasing local research and the flow of information on appropriate technologies; promoting local development, adaptation, and utilization of technologies appropriate to developing countries; and providing assistance that encourages the formulation of policies that broaden the range of technological options.

For further information, contact the Office of Rural and Institutional Development, Bureau for Science and Technology. Phone, 703-235-8881.

Women in Development—In recognition of the fact that women in developing countries play a significant role in economic production, family support, and the overall development process of the national economies of such countries, Congress requires that U.S. bilateral aid be administered so as to give particular attention to the programs, projects, and activities that tend to integrate women into the national economies of developing countries, thus improving their status and assisting the total development effort. AID implements this congressional mandate with leadership by the Office of Women in Development.

For further information, contact the Office of Women in Development, Bureau for Program and Policy Coordination. Phone, 202-647-3992.

AID Overseas Organizations AID country organizations are located in countries where AID is carrying out bilateral economic assistance programs.

AID country organizations are subject to the coordinative direction and guidance of the chief U.S. diplomatic representative in the country, such as the Ambassador, and the direction and supervision of the AID Assistant Administrator of the geographic bureau that has responsibility for the economic assistance program to the country in which the organization is located. Some programs and program support activities of AID country organizations are subject to the coordinative direction of the AID geographic bureau and other AID bureaus or offices.

Trade and Development Program

The Trade and Development Program (TDP) was established on July 1, 1980, pursuant to the provisions of the International Development Cooperation Agency's Delegation of Authority No. 4, dated June 27, 1980 (45 FR 46254), to promote economic development and, simultaneously, the sale of U.S. goods and services in Third World countries. TDP finances feasibility studies for high priority development projects that will be financed by the World Bank or other international financial institutions or from the host country's own resources. TDP-financed studies are performed only by U.S. firms.

TDP operates under the authority of sections 607(a) and 661 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2357, 2421). Under section 607(a) of the act, TDP serves as the coordinating and authorizing agency for the provision of government-to-government technical assistance on a fully reimbursable basis.

Under section 661 of the act, TDP finances planning services, including conceptual design and prefeasibility studies and feasibility studies and design engineering to assist U.S. firms in becoming involved in development projects having substantial U.S. export potential in project implementation.

TDP also assists U.S. firms in planning overseas investment projects by performing cost-sharing feasibility studies on the condition of reimbursement if the project is implemented.

Overseas Private Investment Corporation

[For the Overseas Private Investment Corporation statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 22, Chapter VII]

The Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) assists United States investors to make profitable investments in over 100 developing countries. It encourages investment projects that will help the social and economic development of these countries. At the same time, it helps the U.S. balance of payments through the profits returned to this country, as well as the U.S. jobs and exports created. OPIC offers U.S. investors assistance in finding investment opportunities, insurance to protect their investments, and loans and loan guaranties to help finance their projects.

OPIC is governed by a 15-member Board of Directors—8 appointed from the private sector and 7 from the Federal Government.

Functions

By reducing or eliminating certain perceived political risks for investors and providing financing and assistance not otherwise available, OPIC helps to reduce the unusual risks and problems that can make investment opportunities in the developing areas less attractive than in advanced countries. At the same time, it reduces the need for government-to-government lending programs by involving the U.S. private sector in establishing capital-generation and strengthening private sector economies in developing countries.

OPIC insures U.S. investors against the political risks of expropriation, inconvertibility of local currency holdings, and damage from war, revolution, insurrection, or civil strife. It also offers a special insurance policy to U.S. contractors and exporters against arbitrary drawings of letters of credit posted as bid, performance, or advance payment guaranties. Other special programs are offered for minerals exploration, oil and gas exploration, and development and leasing operations.

OPIC offers U.S. lenders protection against both commercial and political risks by guaranteeing payment of principal and interest on loans (up to $50 million) made to eligible private enterprises.

Its Direct Investment Fund loans, offered to small- and medium-sized businesses, generally cover terms of from 7 to 12 years, and usually range from $100,000 to $4 million with varying interest rates, depending on assessment of the risks of the project financed.

The Corporation offers investment information and counseling and a computerized project-investor matching service called the Opportunity Bank.

Since OPIC programs are available only for a new facility, expansion or modernization of an existing plant, or new inputs of technology or services, the investments it assists are more likely to produce significant new benefits for host countries.

OPIC also operates an investment mission program that provides senior U.S. executives the opportunity to discuss investment opportunities with host country officials and businesses.

The United States International Trade Commission furnishes studies, reports, and recommendations involving international trade and tariffs to the President, the Congress, and other Government agencies. In this capacity, the Commission conducts a variety of investigations, public hearings, and research projects pertaining to the international policies of the United States.

The United States International Trade Commission is an independent agency created by act of Congress approved September 8, 1916 (39 Stat. 795), as the United States Tariff Commission. The name was changed to the United States International Trade Commission by section 171 of the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 2009; 19 U.S.C. 2231). The Commission's present powers and duties are provided for largely by the Tariff Act of 1930; the Agricultural Adjustment Act; the Trade Expansion Act of 1962; the Trade Act of 1974; and the Trade Agreements Act of 1979.

Commissioners appointed after January 3, 1975, are appointed for 9-year terms, unless appointed to fill an unexpired term, and are not eligible for reappointment. The Chairman and Vice Chairman are designated by the President for 2-year terms, and succeeding Chairmen may not be of the same political party. The Chairman generally is responsible for the administration of the Commission. Prior to January 3, 1975, the Chairman and the Vice Chairman were designated annually by the President. Not more than three Commissioners may be members of the same political party. (Sec. 330, Tariff Act of 1930; 91 Stat. 867; 19 U.S.C. 1330.)

Functions

The Commission performs a number of functions pursuant to the statutes referred to above. Under the Tariff Act of 1930, the Commission is given broad powers of investigation relating to the customs laws of the United States and foreign countries, the volume of importation in comparison with domestic production and consumption, the conditions, causes, and effects relating to competition of foreign industries with those of the United States, and all other factors affecting competition between articles of the United States and imported articles, and is required to make available to the President and to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance of the Senate, whenever requested, all information at its command, and is directed to make such investigations and reports as may be requested by the President or by either of said committees or by either branch of the Congress. The Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (93 Stat. 144) repealed the Antidumping Act, 1921, and through amendment of the Tariff Act of 1930, assigned significant new responsibilities to the Commission in the area of investigations of injury to domestic industries caused by subsidized imports or imports sold at less than fair value.

In order to carry out these responsibilities, the Commission is required to engage in extensive research, conduct specialized studies, and maintain a high degree of expertise in all matters relating to the commercial and international trade policies of the United States. (Sec. 332, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1332.)

Advice Concerning Trade Negotiations The Commission advises the President as to the probable economic effect on the domestic industry and consumers of modification of duties and other barriers to trade that may be considered for inclusion in any proposed trade agreement with foreign countries. (Sec. 131, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2151.)

Generalized System of Preferences

The Commission advises the President with respect to every article that may be considered for preferential removal of the duty on imports from designated developing countries as to the probable economic effect the preferential removal of duty will have on the domestic industry and on consumers. (Secs. 131 and 503, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2151, 2163.)

Import Relief for Domestic Industries

The Commission conducts investigations upon petition on behalf of an industry, a firm, a group of workers, or other entity representative of an industry to determine whether an article is being imported in such increased quantities as to be a substantial cause or threat of serious injury to the domestic industry producing an article like or directly competitive with the imported article. If the Commission's finding is affirmative, the President has discretion to take action to provide import relief, such as an increase in duties, establishment of quantitative restrictions, orderly marketing arrangements, or specified types of adjustment assistance to groups of workers, firms, or communities. If the President does not provide relief in the form recommended by the Commission, and, if a joint resolution disapproving the action of the President is enacted by Congress, then the President is required to provide the relief recommended by the Commission. (Secs. 201, 202, and 203, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2251–2253.)

The Commission reports with respect to developments within an industry that has been granted import relief and advises the President of the probable economic effect of the reduction or elimination of the tariff increase that has been granted. The President may continue, modify, or terminate the import relief previously granted. (Sec. 351, Trade Expansion Act of 1962; 19 U.S.C. 1981 and sec. 203, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2253.)

East-West Trade Monitoring System

The Commission monitors imports into the United States from nonmarket-economy countries and makes a report not less frequently than once each calendar quarter on the effect of such imports on the production of like or directly competitive articles in the United States and on employment within the industry. (Sec. 410, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2240.)

Trade With Communist Countries

The Commission makes investigations to determine whether increased imports of an article produced in a Communist country are causing market disruption in the United States. If the Commission's determination is in the affirmative, the President may take the same action as in the case of serious injury to an industry, except that the action would apply only to imports of the article from the Communist country. (Sec. 406, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2436.)

Investigations Under the Tariff Act of 1930 Relating to Imported Articles Subsidized or Sold at Less-Than-Fair Value The Commission conducts preliminary investigations to determine whether there is reasonable indication of material injury to, threat of material injury to, or material retardation of the establishment of an industry in the United States by reason of imports of foreign merchandise allegedly being subsidized or sold at less-than-fair value. If the Commission's determination is affirmative, and the Secretary of Commerce further determines that the foreign merchandise is being subsidized or is being, or is likely to be, sold at less than its fair value, or there is reason to believe or suspect such unfair practices are occurring, then the Commission conducts final investigations to determine whether a U.S. industry, is materially injured or threatened with material injury, or its establishment is materially retarded, by reason of such imports. (Secs. 703, 705, 733, 735, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1671a, d, and 1673b, d.)

If the Secretary of Commerce determines to suspend an investigation upon acceptance of an agreement to eliminate the injurious effect of subsidized imports or imports sold at less-than-fair value, the Commission may conduct an investigation to determine whether the injurious effect of imports of the merchandise that was the subject of the suspended investigation is eliminated completely by the agreement. (Secs. 704, 734, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1671c, 1673c.) The Commission also conducts investigations to determine whether in light of changed circumstances such a suspension agreement continues to eliminate completely the injurious effect of imports of the merchandise. (Sec. 751, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1675.)

The Commission conducts investigations to determine whether changed circumstances exist that indicate that an industry in the United States would not be threatened with material injury, or the establishment of such an industry would not be materially retarded, if the countervailing duty order or antidumping order resulting from affirmative final determinations by the Commission and Secretary of Commerce were modified or revoked. (Sec. 571, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1675.)

With regard to imports of articles from countries not party to the Agreement on Interpretation and Application of Articles VI, XVI, and XXIII of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the Commission determines, with respect to any such duty-free article that the Secretary of Commerce has determined is being subsidized, whether an industry in the United States is materially injured or threatened with material injury, or its establishment is materially retarded by reason of such imports. (Sec. 303, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1303; sec. 103, Trade Agreements Act of 1979, 93 Stat. 190.)

Import Interference With Agricultural Programs The Commission conducts investigations at the direction of the President to determine whether any articles are being or are practically certain to be imported into the United States under such conditions and in such quantities as to materially interfere with programs of the Department of Agriculture for agricultural commodities or products thereof, or to reduce substantially the amount of any product processed in the United States from such commodities or products, and makes findings and recommendations. The President may restrict the imports in question by imposition of either import fees or quotas. (Sec. 22, Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 624.)

Unfair Practices in Import Trade The Commission conducts investigations to determine whether unfair methods of competition or unfair acts are being committed in the importation of articles into the United States, or in their sale, the effect or tendency of that is to substantially injure or destroy an efficiently and economically operated domestic industry, or to prevent the establishment of such an industry, or to restrain or monopolize trade and commerce in the United States. If the Commission determines that there is a violation of the statute, it shall direct that the articles involved be excluded from entry into the United States, or it may issue cease and desis orders directing the person engaged in such violation to cease and desist from engaging in such unfair methods or acts. Provision is made for the Commission to make certain public interest determinations that could result in the withholding of an exclusion or cease and desist order. Provision is made also for the President to intervene within 60 days after the issuance of a Commission order to terminate the order for policy reasons. Commission determinations of violation are subject to court review. (Sec. 337, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1337, and sec. 341, Trade Act of 1974.)

Uniform Statistical Data The Commission, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce, establishes for statistical purposes an enumeration of articles imported into the United States and exported from the United States, and seeks to establish comparability of such statistics with statistical programs for domestic production.

In conjunction with such activities, the three agencies are to develop concepts for an international commodity code for reporting transactions in international trade and to report thereon to the Congress. (Sec. 484(e), Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1484(e), and sec. 608, Trade Act of 1974.)

Tariff Schedules of the United States, Annotated The Commission issues a publication containing U.S. tariff schedules and related matters and considers questions concerning the arrangement of such schedules and the classification of articles. (Sec. 201, Tariff Classification Act of 1962; 76 Stat. 74, secs. 332(a) and 484(e), Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1332(a) and 1484(e).)

International Trade Studies The Commission conducts studies, investigations, and research projects on a broad range of topics relating to international trade, pursuant to requests of the President, the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee, either branch of the Congress, or on its own motion. Public reports of these studies, investigations, and research projects are issued in most cases. (Sec. 322, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1332.)

The Commission also keeps informed of the operation and effect of provisions relating to duties or other import restrictions of the United States contained in various trade agreements. (Sec. 603, Trade Act of 1974; 19 U.S.C. 2482.) Occasionally the Commission is required by statute to perform specific trade-related studies. Recent examples of such studies include a bill requiring the Commission to report on the impact of activities of the Export-Import Bank on U.S. industries, agriculture, and employment (sec. 1911, 92 Stat. 3641); and a bill requiring the Commission to report on the domestic economic impact of U.S. exports of certain industrial technology (sec. 118, 91 Stat. 243).

Tariff Summaries The Commission prepares and publishes, from time to time, a series of summaries of trade and tariff information. These summaries contain descriptions (in terms of the Tariff Schedules of the United States) of the thousands of products imported into the United States, methods of production, and the extent and relative importance of U.S. consumption, production, and trade, together with certain basic factors affecting the competitive position and economic health of domestic industries. (Sec. 332, Tariff Act of 1930; 19 U.S.C. 1332.)

[For the United States Postal Service statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 39, Parts 221–226]

The United States Postal Service provides mail processing and delivery services to individuals and businesses within the United States. The Service is committed to the development of efficient mail-handling systems and operates its own planning and engineering programs. It is also the responsibility of the Postal Service to protect the mails from loss or theft and to apprehend those who violate postal laws.

The Postal Service was created as an independent establishment of the executive branch by section 2 of the Postal Reorganization Act, approved August 12, 1970 (84 Stat. 719; 39 U.S.C. 101 et seq.). The United States Postal Service commenced operations on July 1, 1971.

The Postal Service has over 700,000 employees and handles more than 140 billion pieces of mail annually. The chief executive officer of the Postal Service, the Postmaster General, is appointed by the nine Governors of the Postal Service, who are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate for overlapping 9-year terms. The nine Governors and the Postmaster General appoint the Deputy Postmaster General, and these 11 people constitute the Board of Governors.

In addition to the national headquarters, there are regional, district, and sectional center offices supervising almost 40,000 post office branches, stations, and community post offices throughout the United States.

Activities

In order to expand and improve service to the public, the Postal Service is engaged in customer cooperation activities, including the development of programs for both the general public and major customers. The Consumer Advocate, a postal ombudsman, represents the interest of the individual mail customer in matters involving the Postal Service by bringing complaints and suggestions to the attention of top postal management and solving the problems of individual customers. To provide postal services responsive to public needs, the Postal Service operates its own planning, research, engineering, real estate, and procurement programs specially adapted to postal requirements, and maintains close ties with international postal organizations.

A fundamental commitment of the Postal Service is to provide swift and reliable mail delivery. To meet its mail delivery standards, the Postal Service maintains extensive processing and delivery systems and comprehensive, integrated bulk mail handling systems that utilize complex transportation services to link together every community in the Nation with every other community and foreign nations.

Postal Service activities designed to facilitate postal operations include design and maintenance of the postal rate structure, development of mail classification standards, and generation of internal information necessary for effective management of the postal enterprise.

The Postal Service is the only Federal agency whose employment policies are governed by a process of collective bargaining. Labor contract negotiations, affecting all bargaining unit personnel, as well as personnel matters involving employees not covered by collective bargaining agreements, are administered by the Employee and Labor Relations Group.

Through its Inspection Service activities, the Postal Service protects the mails, postal funds, and property; investigates internal conditions and needs that may affect its security and effectiveness; apprehends those who violate the postal laws; and audits financial and nonfinancial operations. There is a Regional Chief Inspector in each of the five postal regions. Information and complaints of postal violations should be presented to the nearest Postal Inspector in charge.

There are five Regional Postmasters General, each managing postal activities in his geographical area. The five Regions are the Eastern, Northeast, Southern, Central, and Western, with headquarters at Philadelphia, New York City, Memphis, Chicago, and San Bruno, respectively.

[For the Veterans Administration statement of organization, see the Federal Register of Apr. 24, 1979, 44 FR 24181]

A thorough system of benefits for veterans and dependents is administered by the Veterans Administration (VA). These benefits include compensation payments for disabilities or death related to military service; pension based on financial need for totally disabled veterans or certain survivors for disabilities or death not related to military service; education and rehabilitation; home loan guaranty; burial, including cemeteries, markers, flags, etc.; and a comprehensive medical program involving a widespread system of nursing homes, clinics, and 172 medical centers.

The Veterans Administration was established as an independent agency under the President by Executive Order 5398 of July 21, 1930, in accordance with the act of July 3, 1930 (46 Stat. 1016). This act authorized the President to consolidate and coordinate the U.S. Veterans Bureau, the Bureau of Pensions, and the National Home for Volunteer Soldiers.

The Board of Veterans Appeals has statutory jurisdiction to decide appeals to the Administrator for benefits under all laws administered by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4001–4009; 38 CFR 19.1–19.6, 19.101–19.200). Decisions are final, except as to issues on insurance contracts that are subject to action in the Federal district courts.

Medicine and Surgery

The Department of Medicine and Surgery provides hospital, nursing home, and domiciliary care, and outpatient medical and dental care to eligible veterans of military service in the Armed Forces. It operates 172 medical centers, 16 domiciliaries, 228 clinics, and 116 nursing home care units in the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Republic of the Philippines, and provides for similar care under VA auspices in non-VA hospitals and community nursing homes, and for visits by veterans to non-VA physicians and dentists for outpatient treatment. The Department also supports veterans under care in hospitals, nursing homes, and domiciliaries operated by 35 States. Under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veterans Administration (CHAMPVA), dependents of certain veterans are provided with medical care supplied by non-VA institutions and physicians.

The Department conducts both individual medical and health-care delivery research projects and multi-hospital research programs. It assists in the education of physicians and dentists, and with training of many other health care professionals through affiliations with educational institutions and organizations. These programs are all conducted as prescribed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs pursuant to sections 4101–4115 of title 38 of the United States Code and other statutory authority and regulations.

For further information, contact the Public Information Staff. Phone, 202–389–3466.

Veterans Benefits

The Department of Veterans Benefits conducts an integrated program of veterans benefits:

Compensation and Pension The Compensation and Pension Service has responsibility for: claims for disability compensation and pension; for automobile allowances and special adaptive equipment; claims for specially adapted housing; special clothing allowances; emergency officers' retirement pay; eligibility determinations based on military service for other VA benefits and services or those of other Government agencies; survivors' claims for death compensation, dependency and indemnity compensation, death pension, burial and plot allowance claims; claims for accrued benefits; forfeiture determinations; claims for adjusted compensation in death cases; and claims for reimbursement for headstone or marker.

Education The Education Service administers education programs for readjustment of veterans of the post-Korean conflict and Vietnam era; educational assistance benefits for post-Vietnam era veterans, peacetime era veterans, and members of the Selected Reserve; and educational assistance for spouses, surviving spouses, and children of veterans who are permanently and totally disabled or die from disability incurred or aggravated in active service in the Armed Forces, or are prisoners of war or are missing in action. Special restorative training is also available to eligible children. In addition, job training is available to assist unemployed veterans of the Korean conflict or the Vietnam era.

Vocational Rehabilitation and Counseling The purpose of the Vocational Rehabilitation and Counseling program is to provide for all services and assistance necessary to enable service-disabled veterans to achieve maximum independence in daily living, and to obtain and maintain suitable employment. Eligible veterans receive comprehensive rehabilitation services, including assessment, counseling, training allowances, and employment assistance. Specialized services provided include individualized written rehabilitation plans, independent living training, integrated rehabilitation efforts through a case manager concept, and priority service for veterans with serious employment handicaps.

During the period from February 1, 1985, to January 31, 1989, certain new pension recipients may be eligible for a special program of vocational training and employment services to enable them to achieve a vocational goal. In addition, upon request, counseling is provided to other eligible veterans, servicepersons, and beneficiaries using VA educational or training programs.

Loan Guaranty Credit assistance is provided so the housing credit needs of eligible veterans and active duty service personnel may be satisfied by private capital on more liberal terms than generally available to nonveterans. Assistance is provided chiefly through substituting the Government's guaranty on loans made by private lenders in lieu of the downpayments, shorter terms, and other requirements generally required in conventional home mortgage transactions.

In addition, a system of direct financial grants is available to help certain permanently disabled veterans acquire specially adapted housing.

The major activities include appraising properties to establish their values; supervising the construction of new residential properties; passing on the ability of a veteran to repay a loan and the credit risk; servicing and liquidating defaulted loans; and disposing of real estate acquired as the consequence of defaulted loans. There are also substantial operations involved in managing and realizing loan assets. A counseling service is conducted to aid potential minority homebuyers both in obtaining housing credit and in discharging their obligations as homeowners and mortgagors.

Insurance VA life insurance operations are for the benefit of service members, veterans, and their beneficiaries. The day-to-day processing of all matters related to individual insurance accounts is handled by the VA Regional Office and Insurance Centers in Philadelphia, PA, and St. Paul, MN.

Insurance activities include:

Complete maintenance of all individual insurance accounts (policies); authorization of policy loans, cash surrenders, and matured endowments; exchange and conversion of policy plans; development of insurance death claims and authorization of payment to the beneficiary; development of disability insurance claims to support waiver of premium or disability insurance award payments in behalf of the insured; allotments from pay for members of the military; payroll deductions for employees of large commercial employers; establishing relationship of individual death or disability to extra hazard of military service for assessment to proper funding accounts; any other transaction that may have a bearing upon the total responsibility for the insurance program.

In addition, the VA is responsible for:

Supervision of the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) and Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI) Programs for today's service members and veterans. The Veterans' Insurance Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 165; 38 U.S.C. 765–779), effective May 24, 1974, substantially amended the law authorizing SGLI by providing for the conversion of SGLI to a 5-year nonrenewable term policy known as Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI). At the termination of the 5-year term period, it may be converted to an individual policy with any one of the many participating commercial insurance companies. Supervision of the SGLI/VGLI Programs is under the terms of a contractual agreement with a Primary Insurer. More than 320 commercial life insurance companies participate in the SGLI/VGLI Programs on a reinsurer/converter or converter-only basis. The Primary Insurer administers the SGLI/VGLI Programs through the Office of the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, 213 Washington Street, Newark, NJ 07102; and Supervision of the Veterans Mortgage Life Insurance Program for those disabled veterans who receive a VA grant for specially adapted housing—under the terms of a contractual agreement with a Primary Insurer (the Primary Insurer administers the VMLI Program through the Office of Veterans Mortgage Life Insurance, P.O. Box 81497, Lincoln, NE 68501).

Veterans Assistance Through the Veterans Assistance Service, information, advice, and assistance are provided to veterans, their dependents and beneficiaries, representatives, and others in applying for benefits administered by the Veterans Administration. In addition, the Veterans Assistance Service cooperates with the Department of Labor and other Federal, State, and local agencies in developing employment opportunities for veterans, including on-the-job and apprenticeship training programs, and referral for assistance in resolving socioeconomic, housing, and other related problems.

This Service is responsible for maintaining a benefits protection program (fiduciary activities) for minors and incompetent adult beneficiaries. It also provides field investigative services for other VA components. It ensures compliance by schools and training institutions with VA directives. It also ensures compliance with title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, prohibiting discrimination on the grounds of race, color, or national origin in any program receiving Federal financial assistance; title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, prohibiting discrimination on the ground of sex in any education program receiving Federal financial assistance; and section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, prohibiting discrimination on the ground of handicap in any program receiving Federal financial assistance. The programs of this Service are provided through VA regional offices, VA medical centers, itinerant visits to communities, and a special toll-free telephone service available in all 50 States and the District of Columbia.

The Veterans Assistance Service also has the responsibility of providing information regarding veterans benefits to the various branches of the Armed Forces here and abroad and to veterans residing in foreign countries through United States embassies and consular offices, and of coordinating veterans' activities with foreign governments.

For further information, contact the Public Affairs Officer, Department of Veterans Benefits. Phone, 202–389–5210.

Department of Memorial Affairs

The Department of Memorial Affairs (DMA) administers the National Cemetery system, which provides cemeterial services to veterans and other eligibles as prescribed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs pursuant to the provisions of the National Cemeteries Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 75) and other statutory authority and regulations. DMA services also include providing headstones and markers for graves of eligibles in national and private cemeteries and monetary aid to States for the establishment, expansion, and improvement of veterans' cemeteries.

Data Management and Telecommunications

The Office of Data Management and Telecommunications provides a complete range of automatic data processing and telecommunications services to all departments and staff offices of the VA. These services are in support of the many and varied veterans benefits, medical, and administrative programs. Among these are the compensation and pension, education, insurance, loan guarantee, clinical laboratories, and burial allowance activities. To provide maximum support and to carry out its mission effectively and economically, the Office operates three data processing centers located in Austin, TX; Chicago, IL; and Philadelphia, PA; and one satellite service center in Washington, DC.

For further information, contact the Public Affairs Specialist, Office of Data Management and Telecommunications (32), Veterans Administration, 810 Vermont Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20420. Phone, 202–389–5165.

Field Stations

Insurance Centers Two field sites house all individual insurance records covering service members and veterans under the Government–administered programs: WW I United States Government Life Insurance (K); WW II National Service Life Insurance (V and H); post-Korean Conflict (RS/W); Veterans Reopened Insurance for the disabled of WW II and Korea (J–JR–JS); and Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance, the only Government–administered program open for new issues to disabled veterans only (RH).

The two field locations are the VA Regional Office and Insurance Centers at Philadelphia, PA, and St. Paul, MN. All WW I insurance accounts, and those accounts for which the premium is paid by allotment from military service pay, by deduction from VA compensation, or by payroll deduction with a commercial employer, are located at Philadelphia. All remaining insurance accounts are geographically distributed between the two VA Centers—with the Mississippi River serving as the approximate line of division. The Philadelphia VA Center is also responsible for formulating policy for the veterans insurance programs.

The insurance functions performed by the two field stations include the total range of insurance operations to provide individual policy, underwriting, life and death insurance claims service for service members, veterans, and their beneficiaries.

Regional Office A Veterans Administration regional office is a field station that grants benefits and services provided by law for veterans, their dependents, and beneficiaries within an assigned territory; furnishes information regarding Veterans Administration benefits and services; adjudicates claims and makes awards for disability compensation and pension; determines eligibility for hospitalization; supervises the payment of VA benefits to incompetent beneficiaries; aids, guides, and prescribes vocational rehabilitation training and administers educational benefits; guarantees loans for purchase of manufactured homes and lots and condominium units, purchase or construction or alteration of homes and farm residences, and under certain conditions, guarantees refinancing loans; processes grants for specially adapted housing; processes death claims; aids and otherwise assists the veteran in exercising rights to benefits and services; and supervises Veterans Administration offices under its jurisdiction. The regional office is also responsible for veterans assistance activities including coordination of efforts of participating agencies in an "outreach" program to assist returning service members, particularly those who are educationally disadvantaged.

Services to U.S. veterans in most foreign countries normally are provided by the Veterans Administration Regional Office, District of Columbia. The Honolulu Regional Office serves the Islands of American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam, Wake, and Midway and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. U.S. veterans in the Virgin Islands and Mexico are served by the San Juan and Houston offices, respectively. Service is provided in cooperation with embassy staffs of the Department of State.

Veterans Administration Regional Office, District of Columbia The Veterans Administration Regional Office, District of Columbia, is a typical VA regional office with additional functions. It has global jurisdiction and grants benefits and services provided by law for veterans, their beneficiaries and dependents, residing outside the territorial limits of the United States; adjudicates certain unusual claims and actions not common to all regional offices, such as WW I adjusted compensation death cases, forfeiture cases, and benefits under special enactments provided by the Congress. Maintains liaison with the Treasury Department on types and methods of payments to recipients in foreign countries.

VA Office A Veterans Administration office is an organizational element established to provide veterans assistance service and such other services as cannot be conveniently provided to veterans, their dependents and beneficiaries, and others in a given locality by the parent regional office or center.

Medical Center A Veterans Administration medical center provides eligible beneficiaries with medical and other health care services equivalent to those provided by private sector institutions, augmented in many instances by services to meet the special requirements of veterans. One hundred and thirty-three VA medical facilities are affiliated with 102 medical schools for residency training; 72 VA medical facilities are affiliated with 59 dental schools; and all VAMC's cooperate with one or more educational institutions in programs of nursing, associated health professions and occupations, and administrative training and related research, both in individual projects and in association with other VA medical centers in broad cooperative studies. There are 116 nursing home care units associated with VA medical centers to provide skilled nursing care and related medical services to patients who are no longer in need of hospital care.

VA Regional Office and Insurance Center A Veterans Administration regional office and insurance center is an organizational element consisting of a regional office and an insurance center under the jurisdiction of one director.

VA Medical and Regional Office Center A Veterans Administration medical and regional office center is an organizational element consisting of a regional office and a medical center or a regional office, medical center, and domiciliary under the jurisdiction of one director.

Data Processing Center/Satellite Service Center A Veterans Administration data processing center/satellite service center is responsible for the installation, operation, and maintenance of automated systems developed to support veterans benefits, medical, and administrative programs. The equipment at a center consists of sophisticated computers and communication devices as well as a large assortment of miscellaneous supporting gear that are operated on a 7-day week, 24-hour-a-day schedule, in support of the VA mission.

Domiciliary A Veterans Administration domiciliary provides the least intensive level of inpatient medical care. This includes necessary ambulatory medical treatment, rehabilitation and support services in a structured environment to veterans who are unable because of their disabilities to provide adequately for themselves in the community.

Outpatient Clinic A Veterans Administration outpatient clinic provides eligible beneficiaries with ambulatory care.

[For the Legal Services Corporation statement of organization, see Code of Federal Regulations, Title 45, Part 1601]

The Legal Services Corporation is a private, nonprofit organization established by the Legal Services Corporation Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 378; 42 U.S.C. 2996), approved July 25, 1974, as amended by the act of December 28, 1977 (91 Stat. 1619), to provide financial support for legal assistance in noncriminal proceedings to persons financially unable to afford legal services.

The Corporation is governed by an 11-member Board of Directors, appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The President of the Corporation, appointed by the Board of Directors, is the chief executive officer and serves as an ex officio Board member.

The Corporation provides financial assistance to qualified programs furnishing legal assistance to eligible clients and makes grants to and contracts with individuals, firms, corporations, and organizations for the purpose of providing legal assistance to these clients.

The Corporation establishes maximum income levels for clients based on family size, urban and rural differences, and cost-of-living variations. Using these maximum income levels and other financial factors, the Corporation's recipient programs establish criteria to determine the eligibility of clients and priorities of service based on an appraisal of the legal needs of the eligible client community.

The Corporation also conducts research and technical assistance activities.

The National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) was created by the Rail Passenger Service Act of 1970, as amended (84 Stat. 1327; 45 U.S.C. 541), and was incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia to provide a balanced national transportation system by developing, operating, and improving U.S. intercity rail passenger service.

Amtrak is governed by a 9-member board of directors: The Secretary of Transportation serves as an ex officio member and Amtrak's president serves as Chairman; three members are appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate (representing labor, State Governors, and the business community); two members represent commuter authorities; and two members are selected by the preferred stockholder. The Corporation is managed by a president, 2 executive vice presidents, and 11 vice presidents.

Amtrak operates an average of 210 trains per day, serving over 500 station locations, over a system of approximately 24,000 route miles. Of this route system, Amtrak now owns a right-of-way of 2,611 track miles in the Northeast Corridor (Washington-New York-Boston; New Haven-Springfield; Philadelphia-Harrisburg), and several small track segments in the East, purchased pursuant to the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 355; 45 U.S.C. 701 et seq.) and the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (90 Stat. 31; 45 U.S.C. 801 et seq.).

Amtrak owns or leases its stations and owns its own repair and maintenance facilities. The Corporation employs a total work force of approximately 20,537 and provides all reservation, station, and on-board service staffs, as well as train and engine operating crews in the Northeast Corridor. Outside the Northeast Corridor, Amtrak contracts with 21 privately owned railroads for the right to operate over their track and must compensate each railroad for its total package of services. Under contract, these railroads furnish engineers, train-operating crews, and maintenance services. The railroads are responsible for the condition of the roadbed and for coordinating the flow of traffic.

In fiscal year 1985, the Corporation transported nearly 21 million people for more than 4.2 billion passenger miles and retained its standing as the sixth largest intercity passenger carrier in the country.

Although Amtrak's basic route system was originally designated by the Secretary of Transportation in 1971, modifications have been made to the Amtrak system and to individual routes that have resulted in more efficient and cost-effective operations.

Amtrak began operation in 1971 with an antiquated fleet of equipment inherited from private railroads; some cars were nearly 30 years old. Beginning in 1975 head-end powered equipment (HEP) cars, with electric lighting, heating, and cooling systems, were put into revenue service. The HEP cars are the result of a total refurbishing process completed at the Amtrak Beech Grove, Indiana, maintenance facility. In addition, Amtrak now has 492 Budd Company cars and 284 bilevel Superliner cars; 150 more single-level Budd cars are being built. Currently, every train in the Amtrak system is operating with new or completely rebuilt, all-electric equipment. This modern fleet, along with improved maintenance, has yielded the best on-time performance ever—81.5 percent, surpassing the performance of many other public carriers.

The Smithsonian Institution was created by act of the United States Congress, approved August 10, 1846 (9 Stat. 102; 20 U.S.C. 41 et seq.), to carry out the terms of the will of James Smithson of England, who in 1829 had bequeathed his entire estate to the United States "to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

After accepting the trust property for the United States, Congress vested responsibility for administering the trust in the Smithsonian Board of Regents, composed of the Chief Justice, the Vice President, three Members of the Senate, three Members of the House of Representatives, and nine citizen members appointed by joint resolution of Congress.

To carry out Smithson's mandate, the Institution, as an independent trust establishment, performs fundamental research; publishes the results of studies, explorations, and investigations; preserves for study and reference over 100 million items of scientific, cultural, and historical interest; maintains exhibits representative of the arts, American history, technology, aeronautics and space exploration, and natural history; participates in the international exchange of learned publications; and engages in programs of education and national and international cooperative research and training, supported by its trust endowments and gifts, grants and contracts, and funds appropriated to it by Congress.

Activities

Anacostia Neighborhood Museum Located in one of the oldest communities of Washington, DC, and the first neighborhood museum of its kind, the Anacostia Neighborhood Museum serves as a museum exhibition hall and cultural center. The exhibit, research, and educational programs are designed in response to the interest and concerns of local residents as well as those of visitors from the greater Washington metropolitan area.

The Research Department supports exhibit design and educational programs and conducts independent studies in the areas of Afro-American history, minority and ethnic studies, and history of Anacostia and Washington, DC.

The Education Department designs, prepares, and schedules programs that enhance current exhibitions and develops independent programs and activities to serve the needs and interests of the local school community. These activities include a traveling puppet troupe for intermediate grades, teacher workshops and seminars and a circulating library of children's books, for use by teachers, on African and Afro-American history and biographies.

The Exhibit, Design and Production Laboratory, located in Fort Stanton Park, produces the design and construction of exhibitions for the Museum.

For further information, contact the Director, Anacostia Neighborhood Museum, 2405 Martin Luther King, Jr., Avenue SE., Washington, DC 20020. Phone, 202-287-3306.

Archives of American Art The Archives of American Art contains the Nation's largest collection of documentary materials reflecting the history of visual arts in the United States. The Archives gathers, preserves, and microfilms the papers of artists, craftsmen, collectors, dealers, critics, museums, and art societies. These papers consist of manuscripts, letters, notebooks, sketchbooks, business records, clippings, exhibition catalogs, tape-recorded interviews, and photographs of artists and their work. The extensive microfilm holdings of the Archives include bodies of materials not belonging to the Archives but recorded by it with permission of the owner.

The Archives' chief processing and reference center is in the Smithsonian's Museum of American Art and Portrait Gallery Building. The Archives' executive office is in New York; regional branch offices, each with a complete set of microfilm duplicating the Archives' collections, are located in Boston, Detroit, LosAngeles, New York, and San Francisco.

For further information, contact the Archives of American Art, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2781.

Conservation Analytical Laboratory

The Conservation Analytical Laboratory provides a focus within the Smithsonian Institution for conservation of the millions of artifacts in the collections. It provides chemical analyses to curators for cataloging purposes, and to conservators for establishing the nature of a particular example of deterioration and for determining whether commercial materials proposed for use in prolonged contact with artifacts are truly safe. It treats many hundreds of artifacts each year and, upon request, supports other conservators in the Institution with advice and specialized materials. It collaborates with archeologists, curators, and university and government laboratories in archeometric studies.

For further information, contact the Director, Conservation Analytical Laboratory, Museum Support Center, 4210 Silver Hill Road, Suitland, MD 20560. Phone, 202-287-3700.

Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Design The Museum, the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Design, is located in New York City. Of scope and quality unparalleled in this country, its collection consists of more than 300,000 items. It maintains a reference library of about 35,000 volumes relating to design, ornament, and architecture and a picture library of several million photographs and clippings, as well as a series of archives devoted to color material and industrial design. The Museum is not only a major assemblage of decorative art materials but also a research laboratory serving professionals and students of design. The regularly changing exhibitions always relate to some aspect of design. The Museum is open daily except Mondays and major holidays.

For further information, contact the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, 2 East Ninety-First Street, New York, NY 10028. Phone, 212-860-6868.

Directorate of International Activities

The Directorate of International Activities was established in October 1984 to monitor, coordinate, and enhance the Smithsonianwide array of international activities. The organization was set up to oversee liaison activities with Federal agencies and national and international organizations whose activities relate to those of the Institution. It emphasizes the establishment of international programs reflecting all world regions in all fields of existing Smithsonian interest, from popular culture and the performing arts to basic research in the natural sciences, and the development of a comprehensive, long-range program plan that will increase the scope, salience, and effectiveness of all the Institution's international activities.

For further information, contact the Director, Directorate of International Activities, 1000 Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone. 202-357-4281.

Freer Gallery of Art The building, the original collection, and an endowment fund were the gift of Charles Lang Freer. The Gallery houses one of the world's most renowned collections of oriental art as well as an important group of ancient Egyptian glass, early Christian manuscripts, and the works of James McNeill Whistler together with other late 19th and early 20th century American painters.

Over 10,000 objects in the oriental section represent the arts of the Far East, the Near East, Indochina, and India, including paintings, manuscripts, scrolls, screens, pottery, metalwork, glass, jade, lacquer, and sculpture. Members of the staff conduct research on objects in the collection and publish results in scholarly journals and books. They arrange special exhibitions and present lectures in their field of specialization. Annually, a series of six lectures on Far and Near Eastern art is given by distinguished scholars.

Free public tours are given four times a day Monday through Saturday and twice a day on Sunday. An extensive library is open to the public during Gallery office hours. The Gallery also possesses a conservation laboratory and an oriental picture mounting studio.

For further information, contact the Freer Gallery of Art, Twelfth Street and Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2104.

Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden The Museum houses major collections of art consisting primarily of American and European painting and sculpture of the past 100 years. The nucleus of the collection is the gift of more than 6,000 works of art presented in 1966 to the people of the United States by Joseph H. Hirshhorn (1899–1981).

Supplementing the permanent collection are loan exhibitions focusing on contemporary painting and sculpture as well as on art movements of the modern era. There is an active program of public service and education, including docent tours through the Museum to introduce visitors to the collections, lectures on contemporary art and artists, films of historic and artistic interest, and others. The Museum houses a collection research facility, a specialized 10,000-volume art library, and a photographic archive—available for consultation by prior appointment.

For further information, contact the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, Eighth Street and Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-3091.

Office of Publications Exchange The Exchange is set up to distribute the publications of the Smithsonian Institution to scientific and learned institutions abroad.

Staff accepts addressed packages of publications from libraries, scientific societies, and educational institutions in the United States for transmission to similar organizations in foreign countries, and in return receives addressed publications from foreign sources for distribution in the United States.

For further information, contact the Office of Publications Exchange, 1111 North Capitol Street, Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2073.

National Museum of African Art The only museum in the United States dedicated exclusively to portraying the rich creative heritage of Africa, the Museum of African Art is located in a historic row of nine Capitol Hill houses, including the first Washington residence of Frederick Douglass.

Established in 1964 and incorporated as a bureau of the Smithsonian in 1979, the Museum regularly displays some 500 items of traditional sculpture, musical instruments, textiles, and artifacts drawn from its 9,000-object permanent collection or on loan from other public or private collections. The walls of its inner and outer courts hold replicas of the geometric color murals of the N'debele villages of southern Africa. Permanent installations include a gallery demonstrating African influences in modern art; educational displays for school classes; color photography by the late world-renowned photographer, Eliot Elisofon, featured in an award-winning multi-media presentation, "Tribute to Africa;" and memorabilia reflecting the life and times of Frederick Douglass as precursor of the civil rights movement. Contemporary African arts and crafts are featured at the Museum's Boutique Africa.

The permanent collections also include some 100,000 Elisofon slides, photos, and film segments on Africa, and a specialized library of 5,000 titles.

For further information, contact the Museum of African Art, 318 A Street NE., Washington, DC 20002. Phone, 202-287-3490.

National Air and Space Museum Created to memorialize the development of aviation and space flight, the Museum collects, displays, and preserves aeronautical and space flight artifacts of historical significance as well as documentary and artistic materials related to air and space. The exhibitions and study collections record man's conquest of the air from its tentative beginnings to recent achievements by high altitude aircraft, guided missiles, rockets, satellites, and manned space flight. The principal areas in which work is concentrated include flight craft of all types, manned and unmanned, space flight vehicles, and propulsion systems.

The Langley Theater, with a giant screen presentation, and the 70-foot domed Albert Einstein Spacearium are featured.

For further information, contact the National Air and Space Museum, Seventh Street and Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2491.

National Armed Forces Museum Advisory Board The National Armed Forces Museum Advisory Board advises and assists the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution on matters concerned with portraying the historical contributions that the Armed Forces of the United States have made to American society and culture. The Board gives particular attention to the development of the Dwight D. Eisenhower Institute for Historical Research in the National Museum of American History.

For further information, contact the National Armed Forces Museum Advisory Board, Twelfth Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2183.

National Museum of American Art This Museum is devoted to American painting, sculpture, and graphic art from the 18th century to the present. A portion of its permanent collection of over 25,000 works is exhibited in its extensive galleries, and the remainder is available for study by scholars. Various aspects of American art are examined through numerous temporary exhibitions, accompanied by carefully documented publications. The Department of Education conducts programs for schoolchildren, university students, and the general public, and its "Discover Graphics" program combines study of the collection with participation in a graphics workshop. It also has a program for junior interns. A research program for visiting scholars, both predoctoral and postdoctoral, is maintained, and training for university interns in all aspects of museum operations, including conservation, is carried on under staff supervision.

The Renwick Gallery presents special exhibitions, with accompanying publications, of American design, crafts, and decorative arts as well as the arts and crafts of other countries. It maintains an active film and lecture program.

Guided tours of the galleries, and special educational programs for schools and organizations are provided.

For further information, contact the Director, National Museum of American Art, Ninth and G Streets NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-1959.

National Museum of American History The Museum's exhibits offer a unique view of the American experience. Important elements of the collections present the European background, but emphasis is placed upon the growth of the United States, upon the men and women who have shaped our heritage, upon science and the arts, and upon the remaking of our world through technology.

Exhibits draw upon strong collections in the sciences and engineering, agriculture, manufacturing, transportation, medicine, printing, photography, ceramics, coins and stamps, and glass. Outstanding holdings include Whitney's cotton gin, Morse's telegraph, the Pioneer locomotive, and a great variety of scientific instruments. Political, social, military, and cultural history are also well represented. The Museum offers changing exhibits on a wide range of subjects including news reporting, atom smashers, American music, and American cars and trains. Demonstrations, films, and performances highlight many aspects of the Museum.

The Museum's curators, specialists, and technicians command professional knowledge and skills that are basic to the exhibits. The staff publishes widely, and some of its exhibit catalogs and research monographs are available in the Museum bookstore. By appointment, scholars may be aided in the use of the Museum's research collections and specialized library facilities.

The Dwight D. Eisenhower Institute for Historical Research conducts scholarly studies into the meaning of war, its effect on civilization, and the role of the Armed Forces.

For further information, contact the National Museum of American History, Twelfth Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202–357–2510.

National Museum of Natural History This Museum serves as a national and international center for the natural sciences. Among the exhibits are halls devoted to the Ice Age; the dynamics of evolution; the rise of Western civilization; meteorites; Moon rocks; mammals; birds; human biology; dinosaurs and other extinct animals and plants; sea life; South American, Asian, African, and Pacific cultures; gems and minerals; and native Americans. Notable new attractions include a 3,000-gallon tank containing a living coral reef; a live Insect Zoo; "Splendors of Nature," a hall of beautiful natural history objects; a Discovery Room where persons of all ages may touch and handle natural history specimens; and a Naturalist Center designed to provide a quiet library atmosphere for amateur naturalists. A new, 12,000-square-foot gallery on the ground floor is used for diverse special exhibitions.

The Museum maintains the largest natural history reference collections in the Nation, available to qualified researchers. The scientific staff conducts basic research on man and his artifacts, plants, animals, fossil organisms, rocks, minerals, and materials from outer space. Systematic and biological studies at the Museum are providing new information that is of use in conservation, monitoring pollution, food production, improvement of medical knowledge, and other problems.

A Scientific Event Alert Network (SEAN) notifies scientists throughout the world of volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, meteorite falls and finds, and bright fireballs. The Museum also administers an Oceanographic Sorting Center that sorts and distributes collections of marine animals to international researchers and the Smithsonian Marine Station at Link Port that conducts marine biological research along the Florida coast.

The Museum staff participates in joint educational programs with universities by teaching courses, training graduate students, and conducting science seminars.

For further information, contact the Director, National Museum of Natural History, Tenth Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202–356–2664.

National Portrait Gallery The Gallery was established by an act of Congress in 1962 as a museum of the Smithsonian Institution "for the exhibition and study of portraiture depicting men and women who have made significant contributions to the history, development, and culture of the people of the United States." It is housed in one of the oldest Government structures in Washington—the former U.S. Patent Office Building, constructed between 1836 and 1867—on the very site that Pierre L'Enfant, in his original plan for the city, had designated for a pantheon to honor the Nation's immortals.

The first floor of the Gallery is devoted to major loan exhibitions, changing exhibitions from the Gallery's collection of paintings, sculpture, prints, photographs, and drawings as well as several galleries with special portrait collections. On the second floor are featured the permanent collection of portraits of eminent Americans and the Hall of Presidents containing portraits and associative items of our Chief Executives. The two-story Victorian Renaissance Great Hall on the third floor is used for special events and exhibitions.

Publications include richly illustrated catalogs for major shows, an illustrated checklist of portraits in the collection, and educational materials designed to be used as teaching guides.

A 43,000-volume library is shared with the National Museum of American Art. The education department offers outreach programs for elementary and secondary schools, senior citizen groups, hospitals, and nursing homes; walk-in or group tours; and programs for handicapped audiences.

For general information and descriptive brochures on the Gallery's activities, contact the Public Affairs Office, National Portrait Gallery, Eighth and F Streets NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2866.

National Zoological Park The Zoological Park covers an area of approximately 165 acres of parkland along Rock Creek, 2 miles north of the center of Washington. In addition, it operates a 3,000-acre conservation and research center near Front Royal, VA. Its collection is outstanding, and comprises about 2,600 living mammals, birds, amphibians and reptiles of over 600 species. Research objectives include investigations in animal behavior, ecology, nutrition, reproductive physiology, pathology, and clinical medicine. Conservation-oriented studies cover maintenance of wild populations and long-term captive breeding and care of endangered species.

For further information, contact the National Zoological Park, 3001 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20008. Phone, 202-673-4721.

Office of Fellowships and Grants The Office administers the Smithsonian predoctoral and postdoctoral fellowship programs, which make grants to visiting scholars and students. This program is designed to bring developing scholars to the Smithsonian for periods of directed study, to give more senior scholars the benefit of specialized work with staff researchers, and to provide graduates and undergraduates an opportunity for study visits lasting up to 3 months. Fifty to sixty predoctoral and postdoctoral appointments are offered each year, averaging 1-year's duration, but ranging from 6 months to 2 years or more. A few fellowships are available for senior scholars.

Fellowships for short-term visits of 2 to 3 months are available for some 20 graduate students who can benefit significantly from the Institution's resources as they develop their areas of specialization, with direction from staff scholars. Modest grants also are awarded to some 25 scholars each year for 1-week visits to Smithsonian research facilities.

Undergraduates, advanced enough to participate substantially in Smithsonian research and curatorial projects, are provided with selected opportunities to further their work. About 35 students are appointed annually to work with staff members on specified projects. These appointments are usually made without a stipend.

The Office also administers a Special Foreign Currency Program, a nationally competitive grants program for research carried out by U.S. institutions in countries where the United States owns local currencies deemed by the Treasury Department to be in excess of normal U.S. needs. Grants are offered in disciplines in which the Smithsonian has traditional competence and interest: archeology, anthropology and related studies, systematic and environmental biology, astrophysics and earth sciences, and museum programs.

For further information, contact the Office of Fellowships and Grants, Amtrak Building, L'Enfant Plaza SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-287-3271.

Office of American Studies The Office conducts a graduate program in the material aspects of American civilization for graduate students enrolled in cooperating universities. Interested students should apply to the American studies departments of the George Washington University or the University of Maryland or the Office of American Studies, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC 20560.

For further information, contact the Office of American Studies, 2306 Massachusetts Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-673-4872.

Office of Folklife Programs The Office of Folklife Programs is responsible for research, documentation, and presentation of American folklife traditions. It prepares publications based on the papers, films, tapes, and other materials amassed during previous Festivals of American Folklife and directs the planning, development, and presentation of future folklife programs.

For further information, contact the Office of Folklife Programs, 955 L'Enfant Plaza,

Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-287-3424.

Office of Service and Protocol The Office of Service and Protocol provides the basic services necessary to support the international requirements of Smithsonian research and museum programs. The scope of its activities includes obtaining passports and visas for Smithsonian travelers, facilitating the exchange of objects between the Smithsonian and foreign museums, assisting in the drafting and implementation of agreements relating to international cooperative programs, providing assistance to scholars and dignitaries from other countries, facilitating communication, and making logistical arrangements necessary for research and participation in meetings abroad.

For further information, contact the Director, Office of Service and Protocol, 900 Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2519.

Office of Museum Programs This Office provides professional guidance and technical assistance to museums on collections and their management, exhibition techniques, educational activities, and operational methods. It conducts training programs for museum professionals, produces and distributes information on museum conservation, and conducts evaluation studies of exhibitions and programs to identify areas and means of improvement. The Office cooperates with American and foreign museums and governmental agencies on museum matters, administers the National Museum Act, and oversees the archival, exhibition, conservation, library, registrarial, and horticultural activities of the Smithsonian.

For further information, contact the Office of Museum Programs, 900 Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-3125.

Office of Smithsonian Symposia and Seminars The Office of Smithsonian Symposia and Seminars brings together the Smithsonian's own professional staff, visiting investigators, and distinguished figures from many areas of intellectual accomplishment in interdisciplinary symposia, colloquia, and seminars. It develops the Institution's international symposia series at which leading scholars and specialists from all over the world examine themes of contemporary concern and significance. These programs consist of closed scholarly working sessions and special presentations for the interested public; an important feature is the publication by the Smithsonian Institution Press of a book based on each symposium's overall activities.

Consultative colloquia and seminars are organized regularly on a smaller scale within the spectrum of Smithsonian research interests. The Office works closely with the many bureaus of the Institution in bridging the sciences and humanities for the benefit of academicians from the United States and the other countries, as well as for intermediate students and a serious nonspecialist audience.

For further information, contact the Office of Smithsonian Symposia and Seminars, 1000 Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2328.

Smithsonian Archives The Archives, which is open to the scholarly community and the general public, is the official depository for the Institution's records. These records are essential to an understanding of the growth of the Institution. They are equally significant for their documentation of the development of science and art in America, particularly during the 19th century, a process in which the Smithsonian played a major part. In addition to its official records, the Archives holds a substantial number of private papers that further document the Smithsonian's role through the lives of eminent scientists, such as Joseph Henry, Spencer F. Baird, Samuel P. Langley, Charles D. Walcott, and Charles Greeley Abbot. Holdings are described in the Guide to Smithsonian Archives, Smithsonian Institution Press, 1978.

For further information, contact the Smithsonian Archives, 900 Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-1420.

Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory The Smithsonian

Astrophysical Observatory (SAO) is located in Cambridge, MA, on the grounds of the Harvard College Observatory (HCO). Since 1973, SAO and HCO have coordinated research activities under a single director in a cooperative venture known as the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics.

The Center's research activities are organized in seven divisions, as follows: atomic and molecular physics, radio and geoastronomy, high-energy astrophysics, optical and infrared astronomy, planetary sciences, solar and stellar physics, and theoretical astrophysics.

Data-gathering facilities include a major observatory in Arizona; field stations to observe artificial satellites; an optical and radio astronomy facility in Massachusetts; and a radio astronomy and millimeter-wave facility in Texas. SAO's observational capabilities are complemented by library, computation, and laboratory facilities in Cambridge.

Research results are published in the Center Preprint Series, Smithsonian Contributions to Astrophysics, the SAO Special Reports series, and other technical and nontechnical bulletins, and distributed to scientific and educational institutions around the world. As a further service to international science, SAO serves as the headquarters for the International Astronomical Union's Central Telegram Bureau and the Minor Planet Center. The Central Telegram Bureau provides rapid international dissemination of news about the discovery of comets, novae, and other astronomical phenomena. The Minor Planet Center is the principal source for all positional observations of asteroids as well as for establishing their orbits and ephemerides.

The Public Affairs Office coordinates an extensive public education program. A variety of "open days" are held in Cambridge and at other facilities.

Information about these activities and other general materials for students and teachers may be obtained from the Information Officer, Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, 60 Garden Street, Cambridge, MA 02138. Phone, 617–495–7461.

Smithsonian Environmental Research Center The Smithsonian Environmental Research Center (SERC) measures physical, chemical, and biological interactions in the environment and determines how these interactions control biological responses. This research is carried out in a 50,000-square-foot laboratory in Rockville, MD, where methodology is developed for measuring the environment and characterizing the cellular and subcellular mechanisms within organisms that respond to environmental changes, especially sunlight; and in a 2,600-acre facility in Edgewater, MD, where the ecology of land/water interactions is studied for an estuary and its adjacent watersheds.

For further information, write the Director, Smithsonian Environmental Research Center, 12441 Parklawn Drive, Rockville, MD 20852. Phone, 301–443–2306.

Smithsonian Institution Libraries (SIL) The libraries of the Smithsonian Institution include approximately 950,000 volumes with strengths in natural history, museology, history of science and humanities. The systems' administrative services and Central Reference and Loan are located in the National Museum of Natural History with branch libraries located in each of the major Smithsonian museums and research units including the Cooper-Hewitt Museum of Decorative Arts, New York City, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, Cambridge, MA, and the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute, Republic of Panama. Inquiries on special subjects or special collections should be addressed to the appropriate branch library or to the Central Reference and Loan.

For further information, contact the Smithsonian Institution Libraries, Tenth Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202–357–2240.

Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES) The purpose of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service is to provide to educational, scientific, and cultural institutions exhibitions and other services that will enrich their programs and enable them to offer a greater variety of cultural experiences to their audiences. SITES circulates the best possible exhibits at the lowest possible rental fees.

More than 130 exhibitions of paintings, sculptures, prints, drawings, decorative arts, history, children's art, natural history, photography, science and technology are circulated every year. Lists of available exhibitions and information for future bookings can be obtained directly from the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, Washington, DC 20560.

For further information, contact the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, 900 Jefferson Drive SW., Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202–357–3168.

Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute The Institute, a research organization devoted to the study and support of tropical biology, education, and conservation, focuses broadly on the evolution of patterns of behavior and ecological adaptations. The tropics offer a rich natural laboratory for these purposes. Panama further offers its unique zoogeographic characteristics—landbridge to terrestrial life forms of two continents and water barriers to marine life of two oceans.

The Institute provides a base of operations and an intellectual center for exploring the frontiers of biology across the varied land and seascapes of the tropical world. It operates the Barro Colorado Nature Monument, a 12,000-acre tropical forest research preserve including Barro Colorado Island and adjacent peninsulas in Gatun Lake, Republic of Panama. The Institute also maintains an inland laboratory in Ancon, including one of the world's finest tropical biology libraries. In addition, there are two marine biology laboratories, one on the Atlantic side of the Isthmus at Galeta Island and the other at Fort Amador on the Pacific side. The Institute's scientific staff conducts research in these areas as well as in other parts of Central and South America, the Pacific, Asia, and Africa, where comparative studies are clarifying the distinctive biological role of the tropics.

For a brochure describing the Institute's activities and illustrating some of the facilities and habitats available, write the Director, Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute, APO Miami, FL 34002.

John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts The Center, the sole official memorial in Washington to President Kennedy, is an independent bureau of the Smithsonian Institution, administered by a 45-member Board of Trustees. The Center's operations are mostly dependent on box office receipts and private contributions.

Since its opening in 1971, the Center has presented a year-round program of the finest in music, dance, and drama from the United States and abroad. Facilities include the Concert Hall, the Opera House, the Eisenhower Theater, the Terrace Theater, and the Lab Theater. By special arrangement, the Center also houses the American Film Institute Theater.

The Center's Education Program includes the nationwide American College Theatre Festival, Programs for Children and Youth, and the Alliance for Arts Education, designed to increase participation by students throughout the country in Center activities and to establish the Center as a focal point for strengthening the arts in education at all levels.

The Kennedy Center box offices are open daily, and general information may be obtained by calling 202–254–3600. Tickets may be purchased by calling 202–857–0900. Full-time students, senior citizens over the age of 65, enlisted personnel of grade E–4 and below, low-income groups, and the handicapped may purchase tickets for most performances at a 50-percent discount through the Specially Priced Ticket Program. This program is designed to make the Center accessible to all, regardless of economic circumstance.

Visitor services are provided by the Friends of the Kennedy Center. The National Park Service maintains a portion of the Center as a Presidential memorial while the Center's Board of Trustees is wholly responsible for theater programming and maintenance. Tours are available free of charge, daily, between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. by calling 202-254-8700.

National Gallery of Art The National Gallery of Art is governed by a Board of Trustees composed of five Trustees and the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. It houses one of the finest collections in the world illustrating Western man's achievements in painting, sculpture, and the graphic arts. The collections, beginning with the thirteenth century, are rich in European old master paintings and French, Spanish, Italian, American, and British 18th-19th century paintings; sculpture from the late Middle Ages to the present; Renaissance medals and bronzes; Chinese porcelains; and over 75,000 works of graphic art from the 12th to the 20th centuries. Among the extraordinary single works of art given by individuals is the portrait of Ginevra de'Benci by Leonardo da Vinci, the only painting by this renowned Italian Renaissance master outside of Europe, and masterpieces by Raphael, Rembrandt, Matisse, and Picasso. The collections continue to be built by private donation rather than by the expenditure of government funds, which serve solely to operate and maintain the building and its collections.

The National Gallery's West Building, designed by John Russell Pope in neoclassical style, was a gift to the Nation from Andrew W. Mellon, who also bequeathed his collection to the gallery in 1937. On March 17, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt accepted the completed building and works of art on behalf of the people of the United States of America.

The National Gallery's East Building, designed by I.M. Pei, was accepted by President Jimmy Carter in June of 1978 as a gift of Paul Mellon, the late Ailsa Mellon Bruce, son and daughter of the Gallery's founder, and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. The East Building provides space for temporary exhibitions, the Gallery's growing collections, the Center for the Advanced Study in the Visual Arts, including greatly expanded library and photographic archives, and administrative and curatorial offices.

A professor-in-residence position is filled annually by a distinguished scholar in the field of art history; graduate and postgraduate research is conducted under a fellowship program; programs for schoolchildren and the general public are conducted daily; and an Extension Service distributes loans of audiovisual materials, including films, slide lectures, and slide sets throughout the world. Publications, slides, and reproductions may be obtained through the Publications Service.

For general information on the National Gallery of Art and its activities, call 202-737-4215.

Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, located in Washington, DC, seeks, through open, international competition, outstanding project proposals representing diverse scholarly interests and approaches from individuals throughout the world. The Center welcomes all disciplines and scholarship that transcends narrow specialties and includes a strong humanistic component. Fellows engage in no sponsored, classified, or structured group research at the Center.

The Center's residential fellowships are awarded in one broad program—the History, Culture, and Society Program, and several more specific programs—American Society and Politics, the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies, the Latin American Program, the Asia Program, and the European Institute, which includes the East European Program and the West European Program. The International Security Studies Program includes European as well as broader international components. The History, Culture, and Society Program supports projects that promise to make major contributions to our understanding of the human condition or that attempt broad synthesis involving different fields or cultures across the humanities and social sciences. The Center encourages projects with theoretical, philosophical, or theological dimensions.

For academic participants, eligibility is limited to the postdoctoral level; for participants from other backgrounds, equivalent maturity and professional achievement are expected. Fellows devote their full time to research and writing. The length of a fellowship can vary from 4 months to a year. Within certain limits, the Center seeks to enable the fellows to meet their earned incomes during the preceding year. Deadline for receipt of applications is October 1, with decisions by mid-February. Appointments usually cannot begin before the following September.

For further information and application materials, contact The Wilson Center, Room 331, Smithsonian Institution Building, Washington, DC 20560. Phone, 202-357-2841.

UNITED STATES RAILWAY ASSOCIATION

955 L'Enfant Plaza North SW., Washington, DC 20595
Phone, 202-488-8777

Stephen Berger	Chairman of the Board
Robert C. Gresham	Vice Chairman and Counselor to the Board
Cary W. Dickieson	Executive Vice President
John D. Wells	Vice President and Staff Director
Peter J. Gallagher	General Counsel and Corporate Secretary

The United States Railway Association was established by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 985; 45 U.S.C. 701), approved January 2, 1974, to authorize and direct the maintenance of adequate and efficient rail service in the midwest and northeast regions of the United States.

The Association is governed by a Board of Directors consisting of a Chairman of the Board, the Secretary of Transportation, the Comptroller General of the United States, the Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Consolidated Rail Corporation.

The Association developed and now implements a system plan whose goal is a financially self-sustaining, competitive, efficient, safe, and environmentally sound rail service system in the midwest and northeast regions adequate to meet rail transportation needs and service requirements.

The system plan, approved by Congress, provided for the creation of the Consolidated Rail Corporation (Conrail) through the restructuring of six bankrupt railroads, including the Penn

Central. The Association provided funds to Conrail for working capital and rehabilitation by purchasing securities of the Corporation. The Association monitors Conrail's performance and use of funds. The Association studies possible changes in the Conrail system to enhance its economic viability. The Association also conducts the litigation on behalf of the Government that has arisen from the reorganization of the bankrupt railroads.

African Development Bank

Headquarters: Abidjan, Ivory Coast.
President: Babacar N'Diaye.

The African Development Bank (AFDB) was formed in 1963 by 33 independent African countries to contribute, individually and jointly, to the economic and social progress of its regional members. In 1973, non-African countries joined with AFDB to establish the African Development Fund (AFDF) as the concessional lending affiliate of AFDB. The Fund loans only to the poorest African countries. Membership in the Bank was limited to 50 African nations until late 1982 when 24 nonregional countries began to join the institution.

The United States became a member of AFDF in 1976 by virtue of the African Development Fund Act (90 Stat. 591; 22 U.S.C. 290g note), and in February 1983 the United States became a member of AFDB by virtue of the African Development Bank Act (95 Stat. 741; 22 U.S.C. 290i note).

Asian Development Bank

Headquarters: 2330 Roxas Boulevard, Pasay City, Philippines
President: Masao Fujioka.

The Agreement establishing the Asian Development Bank came into effect on August 22, 1966, when it was ratified by 15 governments. The Bank commenced operations on December 19, 1966. It now has a membership of 47 countries, 34 of which are in the Asian region. The United States became a member by virtue of the Asian Development Bank Act of March 16, 1966 (80 Stat. 71; 22 U.S.C. 285–285h).

The purpose of the Bank is to foster economic growth and contribute to the acceleration of economic development of the developing member countries in Asia, collectively and individually.

Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations

Headquarters: Rome, Italy.
Director General: Edouard Saouma (Lebanon).
Liaison Office for North America: Suite 300, 1001 Twenty-second Street NW., Washington, DC 20437. Phones: 202–653–2400 (Director), 202–653–2402 (Public Information), 202–653–2398 (Administration), 202–653–2458 (Economics).
North American Representative: Roger A. Sorenson.

The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) officially came into being on October 16, 1945, with the signing of its constitution by the delegates of 44 member nations meeting in Quebec, Canada. By December 1985 its membership had increased to 158 nations. FAO derives its authority and funds from its member governments, but works closely with the United Nations, of which it is an autonomous specialized agency.

The purpose of the Organization, as set forth in the preamble to its constitution, is "raising levels of nutrition and standards of living of the peoples under their respective jurisdictions, securing improvements in the efficiency of the production and distribution of all food and agricultural products, bettering the condition of rural populations, and thus contributing toward an expanding world economy."

Inter-American Defense Board

2600 Sixteenth Street NW., Washington, DC 20441. Phone, 202–387–7860.
Chairman: Lt. Gen. Robert L. Schweitzer, USA.

The Inter-American Defense Board is a permanently constituted international organization, autonomous within the inter-American system, composed of army, navy, and air officers appointed by the governments of American Republics. Its constitutional sources are: Resolution XXXIX of the Meeting of Foreign Ministers at Rio de Janeiro in January 1942; Resolution XXXIV of the Ninth International Conference of American States held in Bogotá, Colombia, in April 1948; and Resolution III of the Fourth Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs, held in Washington, DC, March–April 1951.

The Board studies and recommends to the governments of the American Republics measures necessary for close military collaboration in preparation for the collective self-defense of the American continents.

Inter-American Development Bank

Headquarters: 808 Seventeenth Street NW., Washington, DC 20577. Phone, 202-634-8000.

President: Antonio Ortiz Mena.

The Agreement Establishing the Inter-American Development Bank came into effect in December 1959, when it was accepted by 19 Latin American Republics and the United States. The Bank commenced operations on October 1, 1960.

The United States became a member by virtue of the Inter-American Development Bank Act (73 Stat. 299; 22 U.S.C. 283). Trinidad and Tobago became a member in 1967, Barbados and Jamaica in 1969, Canada in 1972, Guyana in 1976, the Bahamas in 1977, and Suriname in 1980.

The Bank amended its Articles of Agreement on June 1, 1976, to enable the admission of nonregional countries. The countries of Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Israel, Japan, Spain, Switzerland, the United Kingdom, and Yugoslavia became members in 1976; Austria, the Netherlands, France, Italy, Finland, and Sweden in 1977; and Portugal in 1980.

The purpose of the Bank is to promote the economic and social development of the regional developing member countries, individually and collectively.

Intergovernmental Committee for Migration

Headquarters: 17 Route des Morillons, Grand-Saconnex, Geneva; mailing address—P.O. Box 71, CH1211, Geneva 19, Switzerland.

Director General: James L. Carlin.

Washington Office: 440 National Press Building, 529 14th Street NW., Washington, DC 20045. Phone, 202-662-7099.

Chief of Mission: Gretchen S. Bolton.

New York Office: Suite 2122, 60 East Forty-second Street, New York, NY 10165. Phone, 212-599-0440.

Chief of Mission: Richard E. Scott.

California Office: 2173 Francisco Boulevard, Suite D, San Rafael, CA 94901. Phone, 415-459-8035.

Operations Coordinator: James Gildea.

The Intergovernmental Committee for Migration (ICM), formerly the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, was created in 1951 at a conference in Brussels sponsored by the Governments of the United States and Belgium.

ICM is a technical, nonpolitical organization that plans and operates refugee resettlement, national migration, and emergency relief programs at the request of its member governments and in cooperation with other international organizations.

ICM has three major objectives: the processing and movement of refugees to countries offering them permanent resettlement opportunities; the promotion of orderly migration to meet the specific needs of both emigration and immigration countries; and the transfer of technology through migration in order to promote the economic, educational, and social advancement of countries in the process of development, particularly in Latin America and Africa.

ICM has a membership of 31 governments; 17 other governments have observer status. Operational offices are located in 34 countries, including some nonmember countries in Southeast Asia.

International Atomic Energy Agency

Headquarters: Wagramerstrasse 5, Vienna, Austria.

Director General: Dr. Hans Blix (Sweden).

The Statute of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), opened for signature at United Nations Headquarters in New York from October 26, 1956, to January 24, 1957, was signed by the plenipotentiaries of the United States and 79 other governments, ratified by the President of the United States on July 29, 1957, and entered into force the same day. As of 1983, 111 nations had become members of the IAEA.

The Agency seeks to accelerate and enlarge the contribution of atomic energy to peace, health, and prosperity worldwide. It ensures, through the international safeguards system, that assistance provided by it or at its request or under its supervision or control is not used in such a way as to further any military purpose.

For further information, contact the Office of Nuclear Technology and Safeguards, Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 202–647–3310.

International Bank for Reconstruction and Development

Headquarters: 1818 H Street NW., Washington, DC 20433. Phone, 202–477–1234.

President: A.W. Clausen.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank) officially came into existence on December 27, 1945, when the Articles of Agreement, formulated at the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference held at Bretton Woods, NH, in July 1944, were signed in Washington, DC. by 28 governments. As of June 30, 1985, 148 countries were members of the Bank.

The purposes of the Bank are to assist in the reconstruction and development of its poor member countries by facilitating the investment of capital for productive purposes; to promote private foreign investment and, when private capital is not available on reasonable terms, to supplement private investment by providing finance for productive purposes primarily from funds raised by it in the world capital markets and its other resources; and to promote the long-range, balanced growth of international trade and the maintenance of equilibrium in balances of payments by encouraging international investment for the development of the productive resources of members, thereby assisting in raising productivity and the standard of living.

International Development Association (IDA)

The International Development Association (IDA) came into existence on September 24, 1960, as an affiliate of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Membership of IDA is open to all member countries of the Bank; and by June 30, 1985, 133 countries had become members. IDA's resources consist of subscriptions and supplementary resources in the form of general replenishments, mostly from its 33 more industrialized and developed members; special contributions by its richer members; and transfers from the net earnings of the World Bank.

The purposes of IDA are to promote economic development, increase productivity and thus raise standards of living in the least developed areas of the world, in particular by providing finance to meet their important developmental requirements on concessionary terms, which are more flexible and bear less heavily on the balance of payments than those of conventional loans, thereby furthering the objectives of the World Bank and supplementing its activities.

International Civil Aviation Organization

1000 Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal, PQ, Canada H3A 2R2. Phone, 514–285–8219.

President of the Council: Dr. Assad Kotaite.

Secretary General: Yves Lambert.

The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) is a specialized agency of the United Nations having a membership of 156 countries. It was created by the Convention on International Civil Aviation concluded at Chicago in December 1944, and the permanent organization came into being formally in April 1947. The Convention was ratified by the President of the United States on August 6, 1946.

The purposes of ICAO are to develop principles and techniques of international air navigation and to foster planning and development of international air transport, so as to ensure the safe and orderly growth of international civil aviation; to encourage the design and operation of airplanes for peaceful purposes; and to meet the needs of the peoples of the world for safe, regular, efficient, and economical air transport.

For further information, contact the Office of Aviation Programs and Policy, Bureau of Economic and Business Affairs, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520. Phone, 202-632-9341.

This organization has no office in Washington, DC.

International Finance Corporation

Headquarters: 1818 H Street NW., Washington, DC 20433. Phone, 202-477-1234.

President: A.W. Clausen.
Executive Vice President: Sir William Ryrie.
Vice President: F. Javier Alejo.
Vice President: José E. Camacho.
Vice President: Makarand V. Dehejia.
Vice President: Judhvir Parmar.
Vice President: Hilary P. Reddy.

The International Finance Corporation (IFC), an affiliate of the World Bank, was established in July 1956 to promote productive private enterprise in the developing countries. Membership is open to all countries that are members of the World Bank. All powers are vested in IFC's Board of Governors, with one Governor from each member country. Responsibility for conduct of IFC's general operations is vested in a Board of Directors made up of the 21 Executive Directors of the World Bank. The President of the World Bank is ex officio Chairman of the IFC Board of Directors, which has appointed him President of IFC. As of June 30, 1985, IFC had 127 member countries, vast amounts of subscribed capital and general reserves, and authority to borrow from the World Bank up to four times its unimpaired capital and surplus. Its capital is subscribed by its member countries.

The Corporation pursues its objective principally through direct investments in projects that either establish new businesses or expand, modify, or diversify existing businesses. It does this by providing finance of its own, either by loan or equity subscription or a combination of both, and by recruiting finance from other foreign and local sources.

International Monetary Fund

700 Nineteenth Street NW., Washington, DC 20431. Phone, 202-623-7000.

Managing Director and Chairman of the Board of Executive Directors: J. de Larosière.

The Final Act of the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference signed at Bretton Woods, NH, on July 22, 1944, set forth the original Articles of Agreement of the International Monetary Fund. The Agreement became effective on December 27, 1945, when the President, authorized by the Bretton Woods Agreements Act (59 Stat. 512; 22 U.S.C. 286) accepted membership for the United States in the Fund, the Agreement having thus been accepted by countries having approximately 80 percent of the quotas. The Inaugural Meeting of the Board of Governors was held in March 1946, and the first meeting of the Executive Directors was held May 6, 1946.

On May 31, 1968, the Board of Governors approved a proposed amendment to the Articles of Agreement for the establishment of a facility based on Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) in the Fund and for modification of certain rules and practices of the Fund. The amendment became effective on July 28, 1969, and the Special Drawing Account became operative on August 6, 1969. The United States acceptance of the amendment and participation in the Special Drawing Account were authorized by the Special Drawing Rights Act (82 Stat. 188; 22 U.S.C. 286 et seq.).

On April 30, 1976, the Board of Governors approved a proposed second amendment to the Articles of Agreement, which entered into force on April 1, 1978. United States acceptance of this amendment was authorized by the Bretton Woods Agreements Act

Amendments (90 Stat. 2660). Under this amendment the two separate departments, formerly called accounts, which were established under the first amendment are continued: a General Department through which the Fund carries on its operations and transactions in currencies and gold, as in the past, and a Special Drawing Rights Department for functions related to SDRs, which serve as a supplement to gold and foreign exchange as a component of the international reserves of participant countries. The second amendment introduces new and flexible provisions dealing with exchange arrangements, including provision for Fund surveillance over the exchange rate policies of members, and changes in the characteristics and uses of the SDR intended to enhance its status.

The purposes of the Fund are: to promote international monetary cooperation through a permanent institution that provides the machinery for consultation and collaboration on international monetary problems; to facilitate the expansion and balanced growth of international trade; to promote exchange stability; to assist in the establishment of a multilateral system of payments for current transactions between members; and to give confidence to members by making the Fund's resources temporarily available to them under adequate safeguards.

In accordance with these purposes, the Fund seeks to shorten the duration and lessen the degree of imbalance in the international balances of payments of members.

International Telecommunication Union

Headquarters: Place des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland.

Secretary General: Richard E. Butler.

The International Telecommunication Union (ITU), a specialized agency of the United Nations with 160 members, originated from the International Telegraph Union established in 1865 and the International Radio-Telegraph Union established in 1906. The present International Telecommunication Union resulted from a merger in 1932 into one convention of provisions pertaining to radio, telegraph, and telephone.

The purpose of the ITU is to maintain and extend international cooperation for the most efficient and economical systems of telecommunications possible throughout the world through recommended standards and minimum regulations governing the international use of telegraph, telephone, and radio services, and through technical and scientific studies designed to improve the means of communication.

For further information, call (4122) 99-51-11 in Geneva, Switzerland. Information also may be obtained from the Office of International Radio Communications (phone, 202-647-2592) or the Bureau of International Organization Affairs (phone, 202-647-1546), Department of State, Washington, DC 20520.

The Organization of American States (OAS) is a regional intergovernmental organization whose primary purposes are to preserve peace and security and to promote, by cooperative action, the integral development of the member states. Organized in its present form in 1948, its roots date from 1890, making it the oldest regional international organization in the world.

The OAS member states are Argentina, Antigua and Barbuda, Barbados, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Commonwealth of the Bahamas, Commonwealth of Dominica, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Grenada, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Saint Christopher and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Suriname, Trinidad and Tobago, the United States of America, Uruguay, and Venezuela. The present Government of Cuba is excluded from participation by a decision of the Eighth Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs in 1962. Seventeen nonmember countries are Permanent Observers.

The principal organs of the OAS are the General Assembly, which is normally composed of the foreign ministers of the member states and meets at least once a year to decide the general action and policy of the Organization; the Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs, which meets on call to consider urgent matters of common interest or threats to the peace and security of the hemisphere; the Permanent Council, which meets twice a month at OAS headquarters; the Inter-American Economic and Social Council and the Inter-American Council For Education, Science, and Culture, which meet once a year.

Head: Hendrikus D. De Vroom.

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) is an international intergovernmental organization, successor to the Organization for European Economic Cooperation created in 1948 to implement the Marshall plan for European recovery. The constituent Convention of OECD was signed by 18 European countries, Canada, and the United States on December 14, 1960, and was ratified by the required number of national parliaments by September 30, 1961. Since that date Japan, Finland, Australia, and New Zealand have become full members of the Organization, bringing the total of member countries to 24. Yugoslavia participates in certain OECD activities.

The Convention specifies that the Organization shall promote policies designed to:

Achieve the highest sustainable economic growth and employment and a rising standard of living in member countries, while maintaining financial stability, and thus to contribute to the development of the world economy;

Contribute to sound economic expansion in member as well as nonmember countries in the process of economic development; and Contribute to the expansion of world trade on a multilateral, nondiscriminatory basis in accordance with international obligations.

An OECD publications sales office and library are part of the Washington Center.

Pan American Health Organization

Executive Organ: Pan American Sanitary Bureau, 525 Twenty-third Street NW., Washington, DC 20037. Phone, 202–861–3200.

Director: Dr. Carlyle Guerra de Macedo.

The International Sanitary Bureau, created in 1902, became the Pan American Sanitary Bureau in 1923. In 1947 it became the executive organ of the Pan American Sanitary Organization. The name of the Organization was changed to Pan American Health Organization by the Pan American Sanitary Conference in 1958. Since 1949 the Organization has served as Regional Office for the Americas of the World Health Organization.

The purposes of the Pan American Health Organization are to promote and coordinate efforts of the countries of the Western Hemisphere to combat disease, lengthen life, and promote the physical and mental health of the people.

Pan American Sanitary Bureau The functions and duties of the Bureau are determined by the Pan American Sanitary Code (1924), ratified by the governments of the 21 American Republics, and by the Constitution of the Organization (1947). The Bureau is the central coordinating agency for international health activities in the Americas. Programs encompass technical collaboration with member governments in the field of public health. In a consultative capacity, it serves the national health authorities of the American Republics.

[1] Charter of the United Nations, together with the Statute of the International Court of Justice (Department of State Publication No. 2353, International Organization and Conference Series III, 21) June 26, 1945. Available for sale from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402 (87 pages).

Purpose The purposes of the United Nations set out in the Charter are: to maintain international peace and security; to develop friendly relations among nations; to achieve international cooperation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character and in promoting respect for human rights; and to be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Organization

The principal organs of the United Nations are:

General Assembly All states that are members of the United Nations are members of the General Assembly. Its functions are to consider and discuss any matter within the scope of the Charter of the United Nations and to make recommendations to the members of the United Nations and other organs. It approves the budget of the organization, the expenses of which are borne by the members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations likely to endanger international peace and security, may initiate studies, and may receive and consider reports from other organs of the United Nations. Under the "Uniting for Peace" resolution adopted by the General Assembly in November 1950, if the Security Council fails to act on an apparent threat to or breach of the peace, or act of aggression, because of lack of unanimity of its five permanent members, the Assembly itself may take up the matter within 24 hours—in emergency special session—and recommend collective measures, including, in case of a breach of the peace or act of aggression, use of armed force when necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security.

The General Assembly has held to date 40 regular sessions, 12 special sessions, and 9 emergency special sessions. It normally meets in regular annual session in September.

Security Council The Security Council consists of 15 members of which 5—the People's Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom, and the United States of America—are permanent members and are elected each year. The 10 nonpermanent members are elected for 2-year terms by the General Assembly. The primary responsibility of the Security Council is to act on behalf of the members of the United Nations in maintenance of international peace and security. Measures that may be employed by the Security Council are outlined in the Charter.

The Security Council, together with the General Assembly, also elects the judges of the International Court of Justice and makes a recommendation to the General Assembly on the appointment of the Secretary General of the organization.

The Security Council first met in London on January 17, 1946, and is so organized as to be able to function continuously.

Economic and Social Council This organ is responsible, under the authority of the General Assembly, for the economic and social programs of the United Nations. Its functions include making or initiating studies, reports, and recommendations on international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters; promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all; calling international conferences and preparing draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly on matters within its competence; negotiating agreements with the specialized agencies and defining their relationship with the United Nations; coordinating the activities of the specialized agencies; and consulting with nongovernmental organizations concerned with matters within its competence. The Council consists of 54 members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly for 3-year terms; 18 are elected each year.

The Council usually holds two regular sessions a year. It has also held a number of special sessions.

Trusteeship Council The Trusteeship Council was initially established to consist of any member states that administer trust territories, permanent members of the Security Council that do not administer trust territories, and enough other nonadministering countries elected by the General Assembly for 3-year terms to ensure that membership would be equally divided between administering and nonadministering members. At present, the participating members of the Council are the United Kingdom, China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and the United States.

Of the original 11 trust territories, all except the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, which is administered by the United States, has attained the goals of the trusteeship system, either as independent states or as parts of such states.

The Council functions under authority of the General Assembly. It considers reports from the member administering the Trust Territory, examines petitions from inhabitants of the Trust Territory, and provides for periodic inspection visits to the Trust Territory. The Council has held 52 regular sessions and a number of special sessions; it now holds one regular session a year.

International Court of Justice The International Court of Justice is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It has its seat at The Hague, the Netherlands. All members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the Court. Nonmembers of the United Nations may become parties to the Statute of the Court on conditions prescribed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council.

The jurisdiction of the Court comprises all cases that the parties refer to it and all matters specially provided for in the Charter of the United Nations or in treaties and conventions in force.

The Court consists of 15 judges known as "members" of the Court. They are elected for 9-year terms by the General Assembly and the Security Council, voting independently; they may be reelected.

Secretariat The Secretariat consists of a Secretary-General and "such staff as the Organization may require." The Secretary-General, who is appointed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council, is the chief administrative officer of the United Nations. He acts in that capacity for the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, and the Trusteeship Council. Under the Charter, the Secretary-General "may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter that in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security."

Universal Postal Union

International Bureau, Weltpostrasse 4, 3000 Bern 15, Switzerland.

Director General, International Bureau: Adwaldo Cardoso Botto de Barros.

The Universal Postal Union is a specialized agency of the United Nations whose 168 members comprise practically every country of the world, including various territories and possessions. The Union was created by a postal convention signed at Bern in 1874, the latest revision of this convention having been made at Hamburg, Federal Republic of Germany, in 1984.

The purpose of the Universal Postal Union has been to establish "a single postal territory for the reciprocal exchange of correspondence" among the peoples of the various countries of the world, to assure the organization and improvement of the various postal services, and to encourage the development of international cooperation in this field.

For further information, contact the Assistant Postmaster General, International Postal Affairs Department, U.S. Postal Service, Washington, DC 20260–6500, or the Bureau of International Organization Affairs, Department of State, Washington, DC 20520–0001.

World Health Organization

Headquarters: Avenue Appia, Geneva, Switzerland.

Director General: Dr. Halfdan T. Mahler.

Regional Office for the Americas: Pan American Sanitary Bureau, 525 Twenty-third Street NW., Washington, DC 20037. Phone, 202-861-3200.

The International Health Conference, convened by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations in New York in 1946, drafted the Constitution of the World Health Organization (WHO) and also established an 18-member Interim Commission that functioned until WHO officially came into being on April 7, 1948. The United States became a member on June 21, 1948, by joint resolution of Congress. There are now 160 member states, 2 nonmember states, and 2 associate members.

The objective of WHO is the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health—physical, mental, and social. The Organization recognizes health as fundamental to the attainment of peace and security, dependent upon the fullest cooperation of individuals and states.

World Meteorological Organization

Secretariat: Case postale No. 5, CH-1211, Geneva 20, Switzerland.

Secretary General: G.O.P. Obasi.

The World Meteorological Organization (WMO), a specialized agency of the United Nations, has a membership of 159 countries and territories. Its predecessor, the International Meteorological Organization (IMO), was organized in 1878. In April 1951, the functions and assets of IMO were transferred to WMO in accordance with a Convention adopted in Washington in 1947.

The purposes of the WMO are: to facilitate worldwide cooperation in the establishment of networks of stations for making meteorological and hydrological observations or other geophysical observations and to promote the establishment and maintenance of meteorological centers charged with the provision of meteorological services; to promote the establishment and maintenance of systems for the rapid exchange of weather information; to promote standardization of meteorological observations and ensure the uniform publication of observations and statistics; to further the application of meteorology to aviation, shipping, water problems, agriculture, and other human activities; and to encourage research and training in meteorology and to assist in coordinating the international aspects of such research and training.

Dissolved by act approved June 30, 1945 (59 Stat. 310; 15 U.S.C. 605k-1, 606b note), and functions, powers, duties, and authority transferred to Reconstruction Finance Corporation (see appendix A), effective July 1, 1945.

Disbursement of Moneys of the United States Section 4 of EO 6166 of June 10, 1933, provided that the function of disbursement of moneys of the United States exercised by any agency should be transferred to Treasury Department and, together with Office of Disbursing Clerk of that Department, be consolidated in a Division of Disbursement under a Chief Disbursing Officer. Pursuant to section 22 of that order, establishment of Division of Disbursement delayed until Dec. 16, 1933, and effective date of completion of transfers of disbursing functions from various executive agencies postponed from time to time by Executive orders. EO 8182 of June 28, 1939, postponed effective date of consolidation of disbursement functions of Postal Service and U.S. marshals until June 30, 1940.

By section 4 of Reorg. Plan No. IV of 1940, all functions relating to postal disbursements that would otherwise become functions of Treasury Department on July 1, 1940, by virtue of EO 6166 of June 10, 1933, transferred to Board of Trustees of Postal Savings System as to postal savings disbursements and to Post Office Department (see appendix A) as to all other disbursements involved, effective June 30, 1940.

All functions relating to disbursements by U.S. marshals that would otherwise have become functions of Treasury Department on July 1, 1940, by virtue of EO 6166 of June 10, 1933, retained in Department of Justice by section 3 of Reorg. Plan No. IV of 1940 to be exercised by U.S. marshals, effective June 30, 1940.

Section 4 of EO 6166 revoked by EO 6728 of May 29, 1934, so far as applicable to disbursing functions under jurisdiction of War Department, Navy Department, and Panama Canal, except those pertaining to departmental salaries and expenses in District of Columbia, with certain provisions.

With exceptions indicated above, consolidations of functions of disbursement within purview of EO 6166 effected.

Displaced Persons Commission Established by Displaced Persons Act of 1948 (62 Stat. 1009; 50 U.S.C. App. 1957) to administer functions concerning selection and resettlement in United States of certain European displaced persons. As provided in act, Commission terminated Aug. 31, 1952. EO 10382 of Aug. 9, 1952, provided for its liquidation by the State Department.

Distinguished Civilian Service Awards Board Established by EO 10717 of June 27, 1957, to advise and assist the President in selecting Federal career officials to receive the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service. Terminated and functions transferred to U.S. Civil Service Commission (see appendix A) by EO 12014 of Oct. 19, 1977.

District of Columbia Established by acts of July 16, 1790 (1 Stat. 130; 4 U.S.C. 6), and Mar. 3, 1791.

Virginia and Maryland ceded land for the territory. When the seat of government was permanently established in 1800, both the corporation of the city of Alexandria, incorporated by Virginia, and the corporation of the city of Georgetown, incorporated by Maryland, were included. In 1846 Congress gave back to Virginia its portion, retaining the Maryland portion that covered approximately 70 square miles. Until 1846, when Virginia's portion, Alexandria City and County, was returned, the District included the corporation of Washington, the corporation of Alexandria, the corporation of Georgetown, and the counties of Washington and Alexandria. A French engineer, Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, planned and partly laid out the new city of Washington, and Maj. Andrew Ellicott continued the work.

In 1802 the first government of the District of Columbia consisted of a mayor, appointed by the President of the United States, and a city council, elected by the residents. The city council was given the right in 1812 to elect the mayor of Washington, and in 1820 the election was put in the hands of the people. In 1871, however, Congress acted to abolish the corporations of Washington and Georgetown and the levy court of Washington County in favor of a territorial form of government.

The new form of administration was composed of a governor, a board of public works, and a legislative assembly consisting of a Council and a House of Delegates. Also, at that time, and until March 4, 1875, the District of Columbia was represented in the lower house of Congress by a delegate. The governor and the members of the board of public works and of the council were appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The 22 Members of the House of Delegates and the Delegate to Congress were elected by the people.

After June 20, 1874, a change was made, and the District was governed by three commissioners appointed by the President. This temporary form of government lasted until July 1, 1878, when the permanent commission government was established. The act of Congress of June 11, 1878 (20 Stat. 102), created the District government as a municipal corporation, but made no provision for franchise. This form of government was administered by a board of three Commissioners, two of whom must have been residents of the District and the third being detailed from the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army.

While the District has a municipal form of government, Congress by various statutory enactments has treated it as a branch of the United States government by including it in legislation applying to the executive departments, such as the Budget and Accounting Act, the act classifying the salaries of Federal employees, and the act providing for retirement of Federal employees.

By constitutional Amendment 23, dated March 29, 1961, the District was given back the right of franchise.

By Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective in parts on August 11, 1967, the government of the District was reorganized and became operative on November 3, 1967.

The act of Dec. 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 774), provided for a charter for the District of Columbia for local government.

District of Columbia Auditorium Commission Established by act of July 1, 1955 (69 Stat. 243), to formulate plans for the construction in the District of Columbia of a civic (national) auditorium, containing an Inaugural Hall of Presidents, a music, fine arts, and mass communications center. Submitted final report to Congress, Jan. 31, 1957, pursuant to act of Apr. 27, 1956 (70 Stat. 115).

District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency Established by act of Aug. 2, 1946 (60 Stat. 790), to provide for replanning, rebuilding, and rehabilitation of slum and blighted areas in the District of Columbia. The District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of Dec. 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 774), established the agency as an instrumentality of the District of Columbia Government, effective July 1, 1974.

War Department Established by act approved Aug. 7, 1789 (1 Stat. 49), succeeding a similar department that was established prior to the adoption of the Constitution. It was the second executive department to be provided by the statutes of the first Congress under the Constitution. Pursuant to the National Security Act of 1947, approved July 26, 1947 (61 Stat. 495; 5 U.S.C. 171), the three military departments (Army, Navy including naval aviation, and the U.S. Marine Corps, and the Air Force) were reorganized under the National Military Establishment (see appendix A).

War Finance Corporation Established by act of Apr. 5, 1918 (40 Stat. 506), to give financial support to industries whose operations were necessary or contributory to prosecution of the war and to banking institutions that aided in financing such industries, and for certain other purposes. All functions, property, and obligations transferred to Secretary of the Treasury for completion of its affairs not later than Dec. 31, 1939, by Reorg. Plan No. II of 1939, effective July 1, 1939.

War Food Administration EO 9280 of Dec. 5, 1942, established within Department of Agriculture a Food Distribution Administration and a Food Production Administration by consolidating various agencies as follows: Under Food Distribution Administration were grouped the Agricultural Marketing Administration, Sugar Agency, distribution functions of Office for Agricultural War Relations, regulatory work of Bureau of Animal Industry, food units of War Production Board; under Food Production Administration were grouped the Agricultural Adjustment Agency, Farm Credit Administration, Farm Security Administration, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, Soil Conservation Service, and food production activities of War Production Board, Office of Agricultural War Relations, and the Division of Farm Management and Costs of Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

EO 9322 of Mar. 26, 1943, consolidated Food Production Administration, Food Distribution Administration, Commodity Credit Corporation, and Extension Service of Department of Agriculture to be under direction and supervision of an Administrator, directly responsible to the President. EO 9334 of Apr. 19, 1943, changed name to War Food Administration. Its functions were to determine military and civilian food requirements, allocate the Nation's farm production resources as needed, assign priorities, make allocations of food for all uses, and ensure efficient and proper distribution of food supply. Terminated by EO 9577 of June 29, 1945, effective June 30, 1945, and functions, duties, and powers transferred to Secretary of Agriculture (see text). Transfer made permanent by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1946, effective July 16, 1946.

War Insurance Corporation See War Damage Corporation, appendix A.

War Manpower Commission Established within Office for Emergency Management by EO 9139 of Apr. 18, 1942, to assure the most effective mobilization and utilization of the Nation's manpower for war. Terminated by EO 9617 of Sept. 19, 1945, and functions, except Procurement and Assignment Service (see appendix A), transferred to Department of Labor (see text).

War Production Board Established within Office for Emergency Management by EO 9024 of Jan. 16, 1942, amplified by EO's 9040 of Jan. 24, 1942, and 9125 of Apr. 7, 1942, to exercise general direction over war procurement and production program. EO 9638 of Oct. 4, 1945, provided for termination of War Production Board and establishment of a successor agency, Civilian Production Administration (see appendix A), effective at the close of business Nov. 3, 1945. (See also Office of Production Management, and Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, appendix A.)

War Refugee Board Established within the Executive Office of the President by EO 9417 of Jan. 22, 1944, to effectuate with all possible speed the rescue and release of victims of enemy oppression in imminent danger of death, and otherwise to afford such victims all possible relief and assistance. Terminated by EO 9614 of Sept. 14, 1945.

War Relocation Authority Established within Office for Emergency Management by EO 9102 of Mar. 18, 1942, to provide for relocation, maintenance, supervision, and placement in public and private employment of persons whose removal from areas designated by military commands (under authority of EO 9066 of Feb. 19, 1942) was necessary in interest of national security. Transferred to Department of the Interior by EO 9423 of Feb. 16, 1944, to be administered as an organizational entity by Secretary of the Interior. On June 8, 1944, the President directed the Authority to administer an emergency refugee shelter for civilian refugees evacuated from the European theater of war. Terminated by EO 9742 of June 25, 1946, effective June 30, 1946.

War Resources Board Established in August 1939 as a civilian advisory committee to work with Joint Army and Navy Munitions Board on policies pertaining to mobilization of economic resources of the country in event of a war emergency. Terminated by the President on Nov. 24, 1939, its work completed.

War Resources Council (Interior) Established by Administrative Order 1636 of Jan. 14, 1942, to replace Defense Resources Committee established by Administrative Order 1496 of June 15, 1940, to formulate a definite war program for Department of the Interior so that it could make maximum contribution to the war effort. The Council no longer functions.

War Shipping Administration Established within Office for Emergency Management by EO 9054 on Feb. 7, 1942, issued under First War Powers Act (55 Stat. 838, ch. 593; 50 U.S.C. app. 601 et seq.), to control operation, purchase, charter, requisition, maintenance, insurance, and use of all ocean vessels under control of the United States except combat vessels, Army and Navy transports, and vessels engaged in coastwise, intercoastal, and inland transportation under control of Office of Defense Transportation; and to collaborate with Federal departments and agencies concerned to ensure most effective use of U.S shipping in the prosecution of the war. (See also Training Functions, U.S. Maritime Commission, appendix A.) Terminated and functions transferred, effective Sept. 1, 1946, to U.S. Maritime Commission (see appendix A) by act approved July 8, 1946 (60 Stat. 501; 50 U.S.C. App. 1291 note).

Standard Federal Regions

Standard Federal administrative regions were established to achieve more uniformity in the location and geographic jurisdiction of Federal field offices. Standard regions are a basis for promoting more systematic coordination among agencies and Federal-State-local governments and for securing management improvements and economies through greater interagency and intergovernmental cooperation. OMB Circular A-105, Standard Federal Regions, provides further guidance on the policies and requirements governing standard administrative regions. Boundaries were drawn and regional office locations designated for 10 regions, and agencies are required to adopt the uniform system when changes are made or new offices established. A map showing the standard boundaries is printed on page 890.

The regional structures of agencies not conforming to the uniform regional system can be found in the tables accompanying their descriptions, when provided by the agency.

For further information, contact the Management Improvement Division, Office of Management and Budget, Executive Office Building, Washington, DC 20503. Phone, 202-395-6107.

Federal Executive Boards

Federal Executive Boards (FEB's) were established by Presidential directive to improve internal Federal management practices and to provide a central focus for Federal participation in civic affairs in major metropolitan centers of Federal activity. They carry out their functions under the supervision and control of the Office of Personnel Management (OPM).

Federal Executive Boards are composed of heads of Federal field offices in the metropolitan area. A Chairman is elected annually from among the membership to provide overall leadership to the Board's operations. Committees and task forces carry out interagency projects consistent with the Board's missions.

Federal Executive Boards serve as a means for disseminating information within the Federal Government and for promoting discussion of Federal policies and activities of importance to all Federal executives in the field.

Currently, Federal Executive Boards are located in 26 metropolitan areas that are important centers of Federal activity. These areas are: Albuquerque-Santa Fe, Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas-Ft. Worth, Denver, Detroit, Honolulu-Pacific, Houston, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Miami, New Orleans, New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seattle, and the Twin Cities (Minneapolis-St. Paul).

Federal Executive Associations, Councils, or Committees have been locally organized in over 100 other metropolitan areas to perform functions similar to the Federal Executive Boards but on a lesser scale of organization and activity.

For further information, contact the Office of the Assistant to the Director for Regional Operations, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street NW., Washington, DC 20415. Phone, 202-632-5544.
